TO ALL DEMOCRATIC VOTERS:

If there ever was a time in the history of the Democratic party for the manifestation of loyalty and patriotism on the part of its members, it is right now.

If we are to win a victory and elect a president two years hence, we must first elect a house of representatives this fall. A Democratic house can and will investigate every department of the government. With all of them honeycombed by "graft," the edges of which, only, have been touched by recent exposure and prosecutions, there will be a revelation of rottenness that will astound the country and create a demand for a Democratic administration to clean the government workshop.

To win the house we need money to defray legitimate expenses and get out our vote. We have no protected monopolies from which to draw to fill our coffers, as they do those of the Republican party. We must, therefore, appeal to loyal Democrats for contributions.

Will you send us $1.00 at once, and in return for this we will send you copies of our campaign literature issued by the committee. You will have the thanks of the entire Democratic party for your favorable response to our request.

Address all remittances to
J. M. Griggs, Chairman,
Munsey Building,
Washington, D. C.

Serial Story Starts.

"The Refugees" begins today. Do not miss a single chapter of it, and let us know if you like it. Publishing a serial story is a new feature of The Reflector, and whether they are to be continued after this one is completed will depend on the way our readers like them. The only means we have of knowing this is for you to tell us. You can also help us by asking your neighbor to subscribe to The Reflector and enjoy the story.

Real Estate Deals.

T. E. Hooker has purchased the Grimmer lot on Pitt street, just north of R. J. Cobb's residence, and will build there.

F. V. Johnson has bought of R. O. Jeffress the vacant lot on Ninth street where the latter's tobacco warehouse was burned a few years ago.

THE WEATHER.

Fair tonight and Tuesday except showers in the mountain district.

ASSESSMENT ON RAILROADS, TELEGRAPH TELEPHONES.

The North Carolina Corporation Commission yesterday issued to the various counties of the State a statement of the total amount of the apportionment to each of the counties of the general assessment against railroads, telegraph, telephone, street railway, electric lights and gas light companies, these being the amounts on which the various counties are to assess taxes.

The entire assessment for all the counties amounts to $76,650,548 and the aggregate of the amounts in the apportionment is about $70,000,000, as the excess is listed in the counties. Besides this there is a privilege tax paid directly by the railroads into the State treasury, which amounts to $18,000.

Fourteen of the ninety-seven counties in North Carolina get taxes on amounts over one million four hundred thousand dollars. In the list Robeson leads with $2,328,674.19. Mecklenburg is second with $2,372,992.49. Guilford third with $2,343,317.32. Wake fourth with $2,147,635.45. Columbus fifth with $2,217,673.01, the next nine being Halifax $2,009,785.88, Johnston $1,927,402.08, Cumberland $1,905,371.62, Pender $1,633,793.41, Granville $1,607,675.92, Brunswick $631,014.62, Durham $1,532,159.22, Pitt $1,465,726.56, Wayne $1,427,410.68. The lowest amount to any county is $200 to Greene county, while two that have no share in the assessment, are Watauga and Yadkin.—News & Observer.

There is no reasonable excuse for a man to live in a town if he doesn't like it. If you have no word of commendation to say for your town, its institutions or people emigrate. You won't stop the town clock by going away. The church bells will have the same musical ring, the little dogs will play just as well and the pure air, bright sunshine and sparkling water will have the same health giving properties. Speak a good word for your neighbor, if you can; if you cannot don't everlastingly enlarge on their faults. If you have become thoroughly disgruntled I'd move away; go somewhere where things will suit you.—Louisburg Times.

The people of Texas have unanimously renominated Senator Baily for another term in the United States Senate and this action will be endorsed by his election by the Democrats when the legislature meets. It is a great triumph for Senator Baily, who has enemies within and without his state, and his election will be welcomed by Democrats everywhere, as they regard him as a champion to expose and denounce Republican abuses and corruption.

A brick trust with fourteen plants has been organized in the central and western states and will jump up prices to increase their already large profits. The coffin and cradle trusts are still doing business at the old stands and all are protected in plundering the people through the tariff which fosters them. Yet the Republicans have determined to continue to stand pat.

CRUISER NORTH CAROLINA.

The New United States Navy Vessel Will be Launched October 6th, at Newport News.

The armored cruiser North Carolina will be launched at the Newport News, Va., shipyards, October 6. Announcement to this effect was made at the navy department and it is said that in all probability Governor Glenn would be asked to name the sponsor who will christen the man-of-war. In any event it is expected that the governor's daughter will break the bottle over the North Carolina when the vessel takes her baptismal plunge.

A knotty problem to be solved will be the selection of the liquid that the christening bottle will contain. Naval folks as a rule hold to the time-honored champagne bottle on occasions such as the North Carolina is to experience in October, but already there is talk of a demand upon the part of the governor that he insist upon the substitution of water for wine on the christening event. Navy department officials are pleased at the result of the rapid work in the construction of the North Carolina. The keel of the armored cruiser was laid March 21, 1905, and she is now fifty-five per cent completed.

Seeking Shelter.

When the hard rain came up Saturday afternoon several teams were standing along the streets. A mule hitched to a buggy got tired of being pelted by the downpour, mounted the sidewalk and started to take shelter under an awning where the owner had got out of the rain. It took three men to persuade the mule back into the street, and the animal continued so restless that the man had to get in the buggy and drive. Then the rain gave him a taste of what the mule was getting.

"Make Hay While the Sun Shines."

There is a lesson in the work of the thrifty farmer. He knows that his bright sunshine may last but a day and he prepares for the showers which are so liable to follow. So it should be with every household. Dysentery, diarrhoea and cholera morbus may attack some member of the home without warning. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which is the best known medicine for these diseases, should always be kept at hand, as immediate treatment is necessary, and delay may prove fatal. For sale by J. L. Wooten, druggist.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statements. what they do claim, is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pains in the stomach and bowels and has never been known to

FRANCE AS A WORLD BANKER

Among other results of the Algeiras conference France has come to a consciousness of her real power in the world at large. An English financier had already said that if the French people continue to live on the principle, "Where you have four sous spend only two," they will end by having in their possession all the coined gold in the world. The great portion of it, which they already possess, and the distress caused to German finance and industry by the patriotic refusal of the united French banks to allow their gold to be drawn until peace was secure had a great and probably decisive influence in the happy termination of this entangled affair of Morocco. The floating of the latest Russian loan has since come to show yet further the riches of France, to which tourists alone, it is estimated, add 2,000,000,000 francs in gold each year. This money power and money need should tend to the keeping of European peace more than all the theories of the pacifists who clamor for a disarmament impossible to obtain. In favor of France should also be added the unwieldiness of parliamentary government in case of sudden war. —Stoddard Dewey in Atlantic.

Who Are the Real Owners of a City?

It has been predicted that the task of rebuilding the city of San Francisco would be hindered and made difficult by labor union restrictions. It has been remarked as unfortunate that organized labor now has control of the city's government. Emphatically I dissent from these pessimistic opinions. I regard it as in the highest degree fortunate, for the masses of the toilers who must supply the labor that will rebuild San Francisco, that their representatives will have something to say about how the work is to be done.

I look to them to prevent the duplication of many miseries inflicted upon the poor of the city, as upon the poor of all great cities, through huddled and insanitary housing in narrow, dark, neglected back streets. There is a dawning general consciousness in this world that a city belongs not to the few who take its revenues, but to the many who build and inhabit it; that, at any rate, the few who take the revenues are not solely to be considered; that the many have some rights which must be regarded.—Frank Putnam in National Magazine.

Summer Diarrhoea in Children.

During the hot weather of the summer months the first unnatural looseness of a child's bowels should have immediate attention, so as to check the disease before it becomes serious. All that is necessary is a few doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy followed by a dose of castor oil to cleanse the system. Rev. M. H. Stockland, pastor of the first M. E. church, Little Falls, Minn., writes: "We have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for several years and find it a very valuable remedy, especially for summer disorders in children." Sold by J. L. Wooten.

Jas F Davenport,

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

Why Certain Beasts and Birds Are More Clever Than Others.

Why do you suppose squirrels, elephants, parrots, monkeys and opossums are clever? They certainly are not much alike, but there is one power they all have that most animals have not. It sounds rather like the old riddle: "Why is an oyster like a cow? Because neither of them can climb a tree." But this isn't meant to be a riddle. There really is one great power that all these animals have. It is the grasping power. Elephants can pick things up with their trunks and feel the shape, parrots grasp with their claws, monkeys with their hands, feet and tails, opossums with their hind feet and tails and squirrels with their paws. And so all these animals who have not, like dogs and horses, had the advantage of living with men, have nevertheless grown wise in the woods and jungles.

Water In Grinding.

Why is water used on a grindstone in sharpening a knife? That is one of the questions asked on the porch of a summer hotel recently, and although several well informed men and women were in the little gathering, the only one who could answer it satisfactorily was a fifteen-year-old schoolboy. Here is the explanation he gave: The object in using water is to secure a better contact of the blade with the stone, so that the entire edge of the blade may be smoothly sharpened. The application of water not only fills the little spaces between the particles of stone, but it softens them and thus makes a smoother surface. If a dry stone were used, the edge of the blade would be rough, for the friction would be unequal.

He Was Real Industrious.

Two Washington negroes, meeting in the street, fell into a discussion of the peculiarities of a mutual friend. Said one: "What kind of a passon is dat man anyhow? Seems to me he never do no work."

"Oh, he is industrious, all right," promptly responded the second negro, "even if he don't do nothin' hisself. Why, only las' week dat man spent two whole days tryin' to git his wife a job!"—Success Magazine.

Have Killed Birds on the Wing and Caused a Sheep to Drop Dead.

It does not often happen that a bird falls a victim to a golf ball in its flight, although such a mishap has occurred in two or three instances, says London Tit-Bits.

Not long ago an incident of this kind was reported from Raynes Park Golf club. It took place in the course of a bogie competition. One of the players, a Mr. Crocker, having driven off at the eleventh tee, his ball created some astonishment by coming in contact with a lark in midair and literally knocking off its head.

A similar incident happened last season but one on the ground of the Birkdale club. Two members were playing a round when one of them made a brassie shot. The ball was in full flight when a bird of the wagtail species was seen crossing the line of flight, and the next moment both objects came into collision at a distance of about forty paces from the striker.

The consequences were fatal to the unfortunate bird, which was not only killed, but decapitated. As for the golf ball, its flight was stopped by the impact, the ball falling to the ground within a few yards of its slaughtered victim. The incident had the further object of losing the player the match, he having to make an extra stroke or two to cover the distance short covered, thus costing him the game.

A still more extraordinary freak of a golf ball resulted in a tragedy on the Balcomie links in Scotland. In the course of a match one of the players, in his drive from the sixth tee, put so much vigor into it that the ball struck a sheep on the head with such force as to cause it to fall dead on the spot.

A very different, but no less interesting, story was reported from another links in Scotland about the same time. In a foursome match, played at North Berwick, one of the golfers drove his ball against a wall. It rebounded into some rough grass and for a few minutes could not be traced, but ultimately the caddie found the ball lying in a lark's nest, in which were four eggs all unbroken. For a ball to drop into a nest of eggs without breaking any was surely an extraordinary occurrence.

It is not long since a player at Woking in approaching the hole landed a ball on the top of the clubhouse. This little incident did not, however, upset his equilibrium very much. As nimbly as he could he followed the ball to the roof and from that coign of disadvantage played it so well that he was successful in securing a half of a hole which everybody considered irretrievably lost.

A similar scene was once witnessed on the St. Andrews links in the course of a three ball match. One of the players happened to drive his ball on to the corrugated iron roof of a shed and, in the belief that he had consequently given up the hole, the other two calmly proceeded with the match. But they had reckoned without their host, for the next moment there was a great clatter of feet on the iron roof. Barely had the warning cry of "fore" reached the players' ears when a ball whizzed on to the course close by. It was that of the other player, who had mounted to the roof and played it from that unexpected corner.

By the Barrel.

She is an English woman and a new domestic in a boarding house. She was rolling a heavy barrel along the basement hall when one of the boarders passed her.

"What have you there, Annie?"
"The hash barrel, sir."
"The what?"
"The hash barrel."
"Great Scott! I knew we ate a lot of it, but I didn't think she bought it by the barrel."

His Part.

"Oh, ye-es," remarked Ketchley in a self satisfied way, "Lulu and I will start out in married life under very favorable circumstances. Her mother gives us a neat little home, her father furnishes it, and her Uncle De Long has given a carriage and pair. Besides, Lulu has a snug income in her own name."

"What part do you furnish?"
"Well—principally the name—principally the name."—London Standard.

THE REFUGEES

BY A. CONAN DOYLE

Creator of the Famous Sherlock Holmes Stories

Every reader of fiction is familiar with the work of this writer whose stories have fascinated and entertained people of every nationality.

The Refugees

Is one of his most famous productions, said by many to be the best he has ever written. It is a stirring tale of the troublous times when the Huguenots were driven from France. The scenes are laid in France and America, then the newly founded home of the free and oppressed from all climes.

Beginning in the court of Louis XIV, detailing the life of the vacillating and pleasure loving king, exploiting the intrigues of the leisure class about him, the story carries the reader to the shores of the new world where a band of brave refugees have thrilling experiences with ferocious Indian warriors and find peace at last when they reach the English provinces about New York and Boston.

Good roads, jury reform and lower railroad rates will be some of the important measures before the next legislature.

Valparaiso Chili, has suffered a disaster from Earthquake and fire similar to the one that visited San Francisco. The city is nearly wiped out and thousands of lives were lost.

The Pittsboro Record is twenty eight years old. Through all these years the paper has had the same editor who founded it, Maj. H. A. London. The State has no abler or more conscientious editor, and he makes the Record an excellent paper.

The Reflector is in hearty sympathy with the efforts started by Judge Walter H. Neal, to bring about a reform of the jury system in North Carolina. There is too much disparity in the selection of a jury for justice to be done by the courts. That the defendant in a capital case has so many more challenges than the State places the State at great disadvantage and is so fruitful of packed juries that it is hard to obtain a conviction, it matters not how much one may be deserved. The next legislature should reform the jury system.

Former Congressman Hitchcock, who will be nominated and probably reelected from the Omaha district says of the tariff issue in the World-Herald: "So long as the Republican party stands sponsor for this infamous and monumental graft all its reform pretensions are as a tinkling cymbal." Do you hear that, Mr. Roosevelt?

A good many Federal officials are feeling that after all, it will be just their luck, if President Roosevelt does not run for a third term, or if he did run should be defeated. A good many to feel that the country would go to the demnition bow wows, if their services were dispensed with. But it is safe to say the United States would still be on map if the G. O. P. was wiped out of existence.

What may we expect to get from Secretary Root's expensive trip on a warship to the republics to the South of us? Let's have the expense bill and the credits if there are any. Of course, the war vessel would have been quietly anchored at Bar Harbor or Newport, if not used for the Root trip, and perhaps the sight of her may encourage some of those countries to "pay up and look p'asant" and beware of the other big sticks that could be sent on a more unfriendly errand.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

How a Dime's Worth of High Life Started a Dimey Team.

The old man was driving a heavy load when his team, suddenly coming to a bog hole, balked. He tried every way to start it. Coaxing, praying and flogging helped none and swearing very little. He had almost given up when he saw a young man coming to surely down the road. The young man stopped and said: "Stuck, eh? I'll get you out for 10 cents."

The old man jumped at the chance. The young man produced a small bottle of liquid and dashed a drop on each horse. No sooner had he done this than the horses plunged forward and were gone. The old man asked excitedly, "What kind of stuff is that?"

"High life,"

"Well," the old man said nervously, handing him 35 cents, "put a quarter's worth on me. I've got to catch that team." — Judge's Magazine of Fun.

How to See the Wind.

Take a polished metal surface of two feet or more and with a straight edge. A large handsaw will answer the purpose. Take a windy day on which to make the experiment, paying no attention to atmospheric conditions, for such an experiment can be as successfully made on a clear day as it can on a cloudy one, and the results will be equally good in summer and winter. The only thing you need to look out for is that you do not attempt to "see the wind" on a rainy or murky day, as conditions are then very unfavorable. When everything is in readiness, hold the metallic surface at right angles to the direction of the wind—i. e., if the wind is in the north hold the metal east and west, but instead of holding it vertical incline it about 42 degrees to the horizon. When this has been done sight carefully along the edge of a sharply defined object for some moments and you will see the wind pouring over in graceful curves almost like water.

The Juvenile Way.

Children are the real humorists. They never rack their brains to say something funny. Here is a small boy's ingenious "composition" on politeness:

"Never eat quickly, or you might get bones in your throat. My father knows of a boy who got killed over his Sunday dinner. The greedy boy was picking a rabbit's head in a hurry and swallowed one jaw of it, and my father says he was choked to death there and then. Be very polite over your meals, then, especially when it's rabbits. Since my father told me that I have always felt rather queer over a rabbit dinner. I don't talk much and don't ask for any more."

A definition that won a little girl praise despite its strangeness was "Turf, sir, is grass and clean dirt stuck together by God."

An excited individual ran up to a porter at a railway station and asked, "Have you seen a parcel I left on this seat?" The porter replied that he had not. "Oh, what shall I do?" exclaimed the excited passenger. "It contains three poems I have written!" "Can't you write them again?" asked the unsympathetic porter. "Yes, I can do that, but," hesitatingly, "there were two sandwiches in the parcel as well."—Christian World.

CHAPTER I.

IT was the sort of window which was common in Paris about the end of the seventeenth century.

Inside the window was furnished with a broad banquette of brown stamped Spanish leather, where the family might recline and have an eye from behind the curtains on all that was going forward in the busy world beneath them. Two of them sat there now, a man and a woman, but their backs were turned to the spectacle and their faces to the large and richly furnished room. From time to time they stole a glance at each other, and their eyes told that they needed no other sight to make them happy.

Nor was it to be wondered at, for they were a well favored pair. She was very young, twenty at the most, with a face which was pale, indeed, and yet of a brilliant pallor, which was so clear and fresh and carried with it such a suggestion of purity and innocence that one would not wish its maiden grace to be marred by an intrusion of color. In her whole expression there was something quiet and subdued, which was accentuated by her simple dress of black taffeta. Such was Adele Catinat, the only daughter of the famous Huguenot cloth merchant.

But if her dress was somber it was atoned for by the magnificence of her companion. He was a man who might have been ten years her senior, with a keen soldier's face, small well marked features, a carefully trimmed black mustache and a dark hazel eye which might harden to command a man or soften to supplicate a woman and be successful at either. Any Frenchman would have recognized his uniform as being that of an officer in the famous Blue guard of Louis XIV. A trim, dashing soldier he looked, with his curling black hair and well poised head. Such he had proved himself before now in the field, too, until the name of Amory de Catinat had become conspicuous among the thousands of the valiant lesser nobles who had flocked into the service of the king.

They were first cousins, these two, and there was just sufficient resemblance in the clear cut features to recall the relationship. De Catinat was sprung from a noble Huguenot family, but, having lost his parents early, he had joined the army and had worked his way without influence and against all odds to his present position. His father's younger brother, however, finding every path to fortune barred to him through the persecution to which men of his faith were already subjected, had dropped the "de" which implied his noble descent and had taken to trade in the city of Paris, with such success that he was now one of the richest and most prominent citizens of the town.

"Tell me, Adele," said he, "why do you look troubled?"

"You leave me this evening."

"But only to return tomorrow."

"And must you really, really go to-night?"

"It would be as much as my commission is worth to be absent. Why, I am on duty tomorrow morning outside the king's bedroom! After chapel time Major de Brissac will take my place, and then I am free once more. But still that line upon your brow, dearest."

"I was wishing that father would return."

"And why? Are you so lonely, then?"

Her pale face lit up with a quick smile. "I shall not be lonely until to-night. But I am always uneasy when he is away. One hears so much now of the persecution of our poor brethren."

"Tut, my uncle can defy them."

"He has gone to the provost of the Mercer guild about this notice of the quartering of the dragons."

"Ah, you have not told me of that."

"Here it is." She rose and took up a slip of blue paper with a red seal dangling from it which lay upon the table. His strong black brows knitted together as he glanced at it.

"Take notice," it ran, "that you, Theophile Catinat, cloth merchant, on the Rue St. Martin, are hereby required to give shelter and rations to twenty men of the Languedoc Blue, dragons, under Captain Dalbert, until such time as you receive a further notice. [Signed] De Beaupre, commissioner of the king."

De Catinat knew well how this method of annoying Huguenots had been practiced all over France, but he had flattered himself that his own position at court would have insured his kinsman from such an outrage. He threw the paper down with an exclamation of anger.

"When do they come?"

"Father said tonight."

"Then they shall not be here long. Tomorrow I shall have an order to remove them. But the sun has sunk behind St. Martin's church, and I should already be upon my way."

"No, no; you must not go yet."

"I would that I could give you into your father's charge first, for I fear to leave you alone when these troopers may come. And yet no excuse will avail me if I am not at Versailles. But see; a horseman has stopped before the door. He is not in uniform. Perhaps he is a messenger."

The girl ran eagerly to the window and peered out.

"Ah!" she cried. "I had forgotten. It is the man from America. Father said that he would come today."

"The man from America!" repeated the soldier in a tone of surprise, and they both craned their necks from the window.

The horseman, a sturdy, broad shouldered young man, clean shaven and crop haired, turned his long, swarthy face and his bold features in their direction as he ran his eye over the front of the house. He had a soft brimmed gray hat of a shape which was strange to Parisian eyes, but his somber clothes and high boots were such as any citizen might have worn. Yet his general appearance was so unusual that a group of townsfolk had already assembled round him, staring with open mouth at his horse and himself. A battered gun with an extremely long barrel was fastened by the stock to his stirrup, while the muzzle stuck up into the air behind him. The rider, having satisfied himself as to the house, sprang lightly out of his saddle and, disengaging his gun, pushed his way unconcernedly through the gaping crowd and knocked loudly at the door.

His strong black brows knitted together as he glanced at it.

"Who is he, then?" asked De Catinat. "A Canadian? I am almost one myself. I had as many friends on one side of the sea as on the other."

"Nay, he is from the English provinces, Amory. But he speaks our tongue. His mother was of our blood."

"And his name?"

"Is Amos—Amos—ah, those names! Yes, Green, that was it, Amos Green. His father and mine have done much trade together, and now his son, who, as I understand, has lived ever in the woods, is sent here to see something of men and cities."

The stranger entered and, having bowed to Adele, said to her companion, "Do I speak with my father's friend, M. Catinat?"

"No, monsieur," said the guardsman from the staircase, "my uncle is out, but I am Captain de Catinat, at your service, and here is Mlle. Catinat, who is your hostess."

"I am sorry my father is not here to welcome you, monsieur," she said; "but I do so very heartily in his place. Your room is above. Pierre will show it to you, if you wish."

"My room? For what?"

"Why, monsieur, to sleep in."

"And must I sleep in a room?"

De Catinat laughed at the gloomy face of the American. "You shall not sleep there if you do not wish," said he.

NO CURE FOR THIS DISEASE

"Medical science has not yet penetrated the secret of spotted fever," said Dr. W. W. King, passed assistant surgeon in the public health and marine hospital service.

Dr. King has just returned from a several months' study of the disease in the Bitter Root valley of Montana.

"There are many baffling characteristics about spotted fever," said he. "In the first place, the disease is only known in a few valleys in the west. It is exceedingly dangerous, but not even prevalent where it occurs. For instance, in the Bitter Root valley there were ten cases this year, with eight deaths.

"A peculiarity of the disease is that it appears only on the east side of the Bitter Root valley. People on the west slope have never been affected.

"Many theories have been advanced regarding the transmission of spotted fever, none of which has been proved. For instance, some of the people maintain that the wood tick spreads the disease in the same manner as the mosquito does yellow fever. Others believe that it is caused by drinking water contaminated by the refuse of sawmills."—Washington Post.

The Big Locks at the Soo.

The greatest attraction at Sault Ste. Marie is the locks which raise the vessels from the level of Lake Huron to that of Lake Superior. Fifty years ago the first lock was opened. It was a small affair compared with the present canals. On the American side two locks are in operation. The larger of these is 800 feet long, 100 feet wide, deep enough to permit the passage of vessels drawing twenty-one feet of water and big enough to permit four large vessels to pass through at once. On the Canadian side there is also a lock, greater in length, but of less width, and of sufficient dimensions to allow three vessels to be raised or lowered at once. All the shipping from the upper to the lower lakes must go through these three locks. The commerce passing through these canals is by far the greatest in the world. In 1904 the Suez canal passed approximately 12,000,000 tons of shipping. In the same year the canals at Sault Ste. Marie carried 31,546,106 tons. Yet all the business in the "Soo" must be done in seven months, while the Suez canal is in operation all the year round.—Four Track News.

A Valuable Invention.

A poor man went about in Nebraska looking for work. He obtained a job in a village sawing wood. The sawyer interested his employer and finally confessed the reason of his poverty. He was an inventor and had spent his substance on a device to keep horses off barbed wire fences. The idea seemed promising to the Nebraskan, and he finally paid $2,000 for the right to sell the device in his state. The sample was sent later. It was a signboard to be hung on the fence and read as follows:

NOTICE TO HORSES.
Dangerous—Keep Away!

With the signboard came a pair of spectacles for the use of nearsighted horses.

Scarcity of Hickory Wood.

Hickory, one of if not the most valuable of our native woods, has become so scarce that many substitutes have of necessity been found for it. The wonderful increase in the demand for buggies and carriages of the finer class had much to do with the virtual exhaustion of the great American hickory forests. England, Germany, China, Australia, South Africa and the South American countries made strong requisitions on the American supply. Years ago the supply of this fine wood north of the Ohio river had been exhausted. Despite substitutes and changed conditions, hickory remains one of the most valuable of American woods.—Baltimore Herald.

Cure For Corns.

One teaspoonful of tar, one teaspoonful of coarse brown sugar and one teaspoonful of saltpeter, the whole to be warmed together. Spread it on bits of kid the size of the corn, and in two days they will be drawn out.

CHERRY INVISIBLE LACING CORSETS

The Corset is The Foundation

Upon which all women should build their appearance. Those who desire to make the best appearance possible are most careful in selecting their corset, realizing that the best results can be attained only when the corset is right, right in fit---right in shape. The gown may be handsome and stylish in itself, but it will never show to best advantage over an ill-fitting, poorly constructed corset.

OUR CORSET DEPARTMENT

Comes to your aid just at this point by offering you a large variety of styles and makes, the kinds that have been tried and found satisfactory, and the selection is so great you may easily choose the the right shape, the one best suited to your needs, the one that will insure comfort and a stylish figure combined. We would like to show you the new "Invisible Lacing," and explain the many advantages it possesses over other kinds. Our corset department is very popular--there's a reason--Let us show you.
