WHITE CAP CASE.

All Evidence in and Argument Complete Jury Cets Case This Evening.

I am indicted in Federal court charged with helping to conceal whiskey. I am not charged with helping to whip Manning.

I drove something like 20 miles that Sunday, it was an ordinarily warm day and my horse was tired. Put the horse up in my stables at Jenkins. Whitehurst stables is about 500 yards from mine. Do not know where Whitehurst went that day, he was out driving that evening.

ELMER PARKER

Recalled—I am witness examined yesterday who said Miss Taylor had sown bow in my cap, and have the cap with me today. (shows cap) Have not worn the cap much since tournament.

Miss Mary Taylor was recalled and examined Parker's cap and said it was the bow she put there.

STATE RESUMES

The defense at this point closed its testimony, and the State introduced further witnesses in rebuttal of testimony of defense.

S. C. WHITEHURST

I talked with Teel about 7 o'clock Monday morning after assault Teel with others came to my store and asked if I heard the news, then told me white caps were after him the night before but did not whip him; said he recognized two of them. Later he told me the two he recognized were Barnhill and Briley. Teel's character is good.

Cross examine—It was during same week he told me names of parties he recognized.

O. L. JOYNER

Teel spoke of matter in my presence soon after it occurred, said he recognized two of them. Teel described how they broke door open, dragged him off bed, and by means of matches struck by his wife he recognized the parties.

REV. J. E. BRISTEW

First time I saw Teel after trouble he said he knew one of the parties and thought he knew another. Have known Teel seven years, his character is good.

D. S. ROLLINS.

I live one mile from Sheppard mill, saw Barnhill that Sunday about 11 o'clock going towards mill and he returned before 12. I had just returned home and had occasion to look at clock. It is 9 miles from my house to Hickory grove.

G. L. MOORE.

Saw Teel in Greenville a few days after the trouble and asked him about it; told me he recognized two of them but did not care to say then who they were. He did tell me later they were Barnhill and Briley. Teel's character is good.

Cross examined—Barnhill's character while he lived in my neighborhood was good, I knew him until he was grown. Character of Offie Barnhill is good.

MRS. W. J. TEEL.

Recalled—Heard testimony of George Reddick and wife. I made no such declaration in their presence as they stated.

George Teel and Frank Teel were also recalled and said no such statement was made by their mother.

THEOPHILUS CARSON.

I have heard George Reddick say that he was summoned over here to April court, but that he went to the lawyers and told them he knew nothing whatever about it. I got to Teel's about 3 o'clock the night of the attack. Teel showed me where he had shot in the house and I saw door broken. Crowd gathered and we followed first tracks out to old house, then followed buggy tracks around to forks of road leading to Oakley. I went with Teel to Oakley that day, he has never said in my presence that he did not recognize any of them, but the first thing that morning he said he did recognize them. I saw the hats and caps at Teel's house.

Cross examined—Heard there was preaching at Hickory grove that day, I did not go. Never heard of a negro church in that community. I will swear that we could plainly follow tracks of the buggies. I did not follow tracks beyond fork of road leading to Oakley because my son met us there and said that Mrs. Nelson had told him in Oakley that Barnhill, Whitehurst and Wynne had gone in their room that night, took off their Sunday clothes, put on old clothes and left saying there would be some mischief and white capping to take place that night. Because my son told this we did not follow the tracks further toward Oakley. I am first cousin of both Teel and Barnhill.

J. N. HART.

Had conversation with Teel in Greenville soon after trouble, he told me a number of men broke in his house and how he defended himself; that his wife struck matches and his boy run down stairs with gun, said he recognized two of the parties; and next day Teel told me he recognized Barnhill positively and was quite certain about Briley.

At re-opening of court Thursday afternoon the state recalled defendant Barnhill and asked if he would submit to an examination of his person by a physician, and Barnhill consented. Dr. E. A. Moye was selected to make this examination, and with certain of counsel on both sides they retired for that purpose.

DR. E. A. MOYE.

I have made a physical examination of body of J. K. Barnhill, found one scar about an inch above right nipple. The scar could have been made by any instrument that broke the skin; it could have been made by a pistol ball.

Cross examination—The scar is directly over lung. If a pistol had been held directly against body at that point and ball had gone into cavity it would likely have made a severe and serious wound. There is no scar to indicate that ball went on through body and came out in back. Size of scar does not indicate size of ball that makes a wound, as the skin usually retracts. It is a scar from a wound that was left open and healed by granulation. I could not say if a ball is in his body now.

CLYDE CARSON.

Recalled—I was in Oakley Monday morning after trouble, went to Joe Williams, who clerks for Barnhill, to get whiskey. Williams went to Nelsons to get key from Barnhill. (Another cap was shown witness) that is not the cap Barnhill wore at tournament, his cap had white buttons on it.

J. C. R. DAVENPORT.

Character of Teel is good. Sometime after the white capping he told me he recognized two of the parties as Barnhill and Briley.

H. W. MARTIN

Teel told me recognized two of the parties, it was very soon after the trouble. His character is good.

S. M. JONES.

Teel told me Wednesday following trouble in Greenville, seemed distressed and said he would tell me all about it later. Afterward he told me he recognized Barnhill and thought he did Briley. Characters of Teel and the Offie and John Barnhill good.

SAMUEL WARREN

Was in Berbel Monday afternoon after the trouble. Teel was in there, several people in there asking questions. When asked he said he recognized two but did not care to tell then who they were.

W. J. TEEL

Recalled—I never told T. W. Whitehurst that if his brother would turn State's evidence he could get any reward desired.

The State then closed.

W. C. Hines was recalled for defendant. He said the defendants were arrested the Monday week following the trouble. I went with deputy sheriff to arrest Barnhill. After taking Barnhill in custody we went with him to his room to change clothes, in changing he bared his body from waist up; saw no fresh wounds on his person.

W. P. SYMONDS.

I went out with sheriff to arrest J. K. Barnhill under bench warrant; went to Barnhill's room where he changed clothes; re removed both shirts; saw all body exposed to waist; saw no fresh wounds on breast.

This closed the testimony on both sides. Counsel advised the court that four speeches would be made on each side, and Judge Shaw advised them that the time consumed in arguments should not exceed four hours on each side.

Ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis made the opening address to the jury for State, and said he knew it was by all odds the most important case these jurors had ever assisted in trying. His made a strong speech of nearly an hour, and was followed by H. W. Whedbee, who made the opening speech for the defense. He speech occupied the remainder of the afternoon session of the court.

At this morning, Friday, session of court speeches were made by Messrs. Pou, Gilliam and Fleming for defense, and by Mr. James and

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Organization Revived and Officers Elected.

The Chamber of Commerce of Greenville is again a reality. There was such an organization here some years ago, but it was allowed to die a natural death from doing nothing. A good number of business men met in the mayor's office Thursday night, and the organization was revived.

The meeting was called to order by Mayor F. M. Wooten who requested H. A. White, vice-president of the former organization, to preside. The following officers were elected:

J. L. Wooten, president.
S. T. White, vice-president.
C. E. Bradley, secretary.
J. L. Little, treasurer.

J. L. Wooten, H. A. White, S. T. White and R. J. Cobb were appointed a committee on rules and by laws.

A special committee consisting of F. M. Wooten, Dr. E. A. Moye and Frank Wilson was appointed to confer with the officials of the Raleigh and Pamlico sound railroad with a view of securing the location of the railroad shops at Greenville.

After brief discussion of some matters the meeting adjourned to be called again by the president as soon as the committee on rules and by-laws is ready to report.

Every business man in the town is invited to attend the next meeting and become a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

MR. J. J. CHERRY STRICKEN.

Found Unconscious in Warehouse

This town was greatly shocked early this morning when Jake Latbam, a colored drayman, came hurriedly up town crying that he had found Mr. J. J. Cherry dead at the wharf. A number of friends with Dr. E. A. Moye hurried to the wharf and found Mr. Cherry lying unconscious on the warehouse floor and in a serious condition.

Mr. Cherry is agent of the Norfolk and Southern railroad, and went to the wharf early this morning in keeping with his usual habit. The colored man went in the warehouse a little later and seeing him lying in the floor hurried up town and gave the alarm. A examination disclosed that he had suffered a stroke of appoplexy and his right side was entirely paralyzed.

As soon as arrangements could be made Mr. Cherry was removed to his home. Late report from his bedside is that he has regained consciousness but his condition is still serious.

THE WEATHER.

Rain tonight and probably Saturday.

Solicitor Moore for State, all being good speeches for their respective sides.

Gov. Aycock is the only one to speak this afternoon, when he will close the argument for the State to be followed by Judge Shaw's charge to the jury.

Period in Montana When a Reign of Terror Prevailed.

The discovery up to the fall of 1863 of no less than 110 bodies of victims of the road agents finally aroused the feelings of the law abiding citizens to a pitch of frenzy. They felt that the mysterious disappearance of many other men whom they had known was to be traced to the bandits. Scores of miners who had set out with large sums of money for various places had never been heard of and had never reached their destination. Murders occurred daily, almost hourly. Had there been the most perfect system of legal procedure time would not have permitted of the orderly trials of offenders, so frequent were the crimes. Alder gulch continued to disgorge its treasure in a steady stream, and the very excess of its bounty excited the most selfish passions of men. The heart of a man possessed with the thirst for gold is like the country where gold is produced—it is wild and barren, and the flowers wither.

It must not be supposed that during these long months of sickening dread and doubt attempts had not been made to organize justice. Rude courts were established, and the guilt or innocence of offenders submitted to regularly chosen juries, but the swaggering outlaws would boldly force their way through the lines of spectators and into the presence of the qualified twelve men, announcing their determination to avenge upon every one connected with the case any verdict other than acquittal. Witnesses and jurors under these circumstances were afraid of their lives, and justice miscarried until the outlaws, seeing the blanch of fear everywhere, were supreme. In the early stages of this reign of terror some of the road agents had been tried, found guilty and condemned to death by unanimous vote, but, as in the case of the murderers of Dillingham, between conviction and punishment motions to reconsider had been intervened, and the vacillating mob, through fear of relenting doubt, had revoked the action of the previous hour.— McClure's Magazine.

An Important Guest.

When Miss Phoebe Washington returned in her wedding finery to the house where she had reigned as cook for several years she announced briefly that she had returned "for awhile" and seemed disinclined toward explanations until the next evening, when she unburdened her heart to the mistress of the household.

"Nobody needn't ever go to tell me again dat thutteen ain't a terrible onlucky number, Miss Clemmy," she said gloomily. "I guess I know now how onlucky 'tis. Dey was thutteen pussons, Miss Clemmy, at my wedding yest'day, and dat wedding nebber came off 't all!" "Why, Phoebe, how strange, how very strange!" and the lady looked most sympathetic. "But whatever happened," she said conscientiously, "of course you know, Phoebe, the fact of there being thirteen persons at the wedding couldn't have had anything to do with it."

"Deed it did, Miss Clemmy," and Phoebe's face took on its most determined look. "Ain' you understood the fo'teenth pusson would 'a' been dat triflin' Samu'l P's expecting to marry?"

Offered Choice of Seats.

When she entered the car it was easy to see that she was angry. Her chin was high in the air, and her lips were set in a rigid line. The car was crowded and every seat was occupied, so she pushed her way up front with a determination that gave further evidence of her vexation. She reached the front end of the car just as a tall, good looking man rose and, lifting his hat, asked in a pleasant voice, "Won't you have this seat?"

"No, I won't," she snapped. The young man was surprised, but sat down again without speaking. For about five minutes she rode along, hanging on to the straps. Then the car gave a sudden jolt, and she was thrown unceremoniously into the young man's lap. She blushed a vivid red and, struggling to rise, was almost on her feet when another lurch threw her back again.

"Madam," he said quietly, in the same good humored tone, "if you prefer this seat to the one I offered before you are quite welcome to it." —Baltimore Sun.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 28, 1906

Raleigh is looking forward to and making preparation for the "rake off" the city will get at the State fair. In old times people had a custom of going annually to Jerusalem to be taxed. In this age they differ very little from that custom, as they go up once a year to the capital to be fleeced.

Judge Fred Moore while holding court in Greensboro the other day expressed himself favoring the whipping post for wife beaters and those who treat dumb animals cruelly. This discarded method of punishment may have to be restored to the statute books. Thirty nine lashes well applied would be a good antidote for a number of offences.

For several days past The Reflector has devoted all its available space to a report of the white cap trial. We have no apology to make for excluding practically all other matter to make room for it, for it was what the people wanted and they have read it with keen interest. At the same time reporting and printing such a trial has been a heavy piece of work.

Whether he is liked or not, the action of the Democratic convention of New York in nominating William R. Hearst for governor will make him a power in notional politics. You can mark the prediction that Hearst is going to have much to do with writing the platform of the next Democratic convention and he may undertake to make it such a platform that Bryan will refuse to run on it. Nothing would give Hearst more pleasure for in that event he would hope to secure the presidential nomination himself.

That is good news The Reflector prints today relative to the re-organization of the Chamber of Commerce, Greenville is really waking up and taking on new life, and much good is going to be accomplished through this organization. We are glad to note that the repeated effort through these columns to revive the organization has borne fruit. Now it is the duty of every business man of the town to come to the support of the Chamber of Commerce. It will not run itself, but will only accomplish for the town what the members make it accomplish. There is room for plenty of activity.

The shooting of a sophomore by a freshman at the State University may serve a good lesson in that it will learn hazers that there is danger in the practice.

A NIGGARDLY POLICY.

Inadequate Railroad Service Works Detriment to Shippers.

The business men complain, and for it there is just cause, about the tardiness with which freights are handled, both incoming and outgoing. Not long ago The Reflector gave instances of vexatious delays on shipments in transit. Recently we have been looking into matters at the local station of the Atlantic Coast Line to find some cause for the delays the business men of Greenville are subjected to, and the result was the finding of ample cause for the trouble, the responsibility for which rests upon the railroad officials.

In the first place the force of employes at the depot is inadequate to handle the large amount of freight at this station. As a result of this the freight warehouse is congested all the time and the business men of the town get their goods as best they can which frequently means several days delay. Agent J. R. Moore is allowed only one man clerk and two boys to assist in all the work both passenger and freight, and they are just unable to keep up with it in any degree of promptness. There are also supposed to be two colored freight hands around the warehouse, but the small pay for the heavy work and long hours required makes it impossible to keep laborers. They try it awhile and throw up the job. Whenever there is a heavy run of either outgoing or incoming freights the agent has no authority to hire the needed extra labor to handle it and there is consequent delay.

Practically the same condition exists on the freight trains as around the depot. One day we noticed the south bound freight train standing at the depot after dark. It was already six hours late, but nothing seemed to be going on to indicate that there was any particular hurry to get through and move on to the next station. Inquiry developed the fact that there was one lone freight hand with the train when there should have been four. The other three had become tired of this all day and all night continues work and quit.

It seems to be the policy of the railroad to put all the work possible on its employes, not caring how near the latter are literally worked to death nor how much the patrons of the road are delayed in receiving and forwarding their goods by such inadequate service.

This is a matter both the Chamber of Commerce and Tobacco Board of Trade might go after to the material benefit of the community.

AN ARABIAN TRIAL.

Like Unto Patriarchal Life of Old Testament Times.

In his "Narrative of a Year's Journey Through Central and Eastern Arabia" Mr. Palgrave gives a vivid description of proceedings in an Arabian court. The trial was a preliminary hearing before a magistrate. The scene reflects the patriarchal life of Old Testament times.

One day my comrade and myself were on a visit of politeness at the castle. The customary ceremonies were over, and business, at first interrupted by our entrance, had resumed its course. A Bedouin, pleading his cause before Hamood, was accusing some one of having forcibly taken away his camel.

The governor was seated in his corner with an air of intense gravity, half leaning on a cushion, while the Bedouin, crosslegged on the ground before him and within six feet of his person, flourished in his hand a large reaping hook, such as is used for cutting grass.

Energetically gesticulating with this ugly implement, he thus challenged the judge's attention:

"You, Hamood, do you hear?" stretching out at the same time the hook toward the governor so as almost to reach his body. "He has taken from me my camel. Have you called God to mind?" Here again he put the weapon close to the unflinching magistrate. "The camel is my camel. Do you hear?" with another reminder from the reaping hook. "He is mine by God's award and yours too. Do you hear, child?" and so on, while Hamood sat without moving a muscle of face or limb until some one of the counselors quieted the plaintiff with: "Remember God, child. It is of no consequence. You shall not be wronged."

Then the judge called on the witnesses, men of the province, to say their say, and on their confirmation of the Bedouin's statement he gave orders to two of his satellites to search for and bring before him the accused person, while he added to the suitor: "All right, daddy, you shall have your own. Put your confidence in God," and composedly motioned him back to his place.

Hard on the Faculty.

In the rural districts in Ireland the people place implicit faith in a doctor's prescription. In a village in County Limerick a sorrowful young man went along to the local undertaker's to order a coffin for his father. "Dear me," said the undertaker, "I didn't know poor old Pat was dead." "No, he's not dead yet," replied the mourning relative, "but he'll die tonight, for the doctor says he can't live till morning, and he knows what he gave him."

A somewhat similar story is told of the actual death of a parent. A peasant lad, asked by a gentleman how his father was, replied, "Ah, my poor father died last Wednesday, your honor." "I'm very sorry to hear it," said the gentleman. "It must have been very sudden. What doctor attended him?" "Ah, sir," said the boy, "my father wouldn't have a doctor. He always used to say he'd like to die a natural death."—London Tribune.

Children's Answers.

The school children have been contributing to the world's stock of knowledge: "The pig is a very useful animal to a woman." "A young cow is sometimes called an ox." "One of the stomachs of the cow is shaped like the leaves of the Bible." "The cow's father is called a bullock." "Everything that lives on a farm are called cattle." "When a cow is alive it is used for to get milk, but when it is dead it is used for to get mutton." "Some cows have horns and are called bulls. The male bulls are called heifers." "The flesh of the lamb is called veal."

Too Good to Be True.

A successful financier with a reputation for conservatism was approached by a callow but hopeful friend seeking advice in regard to an intended investment.

"Jones wants me to take some mining stock that he says will pay at least 50 per cent per annum and is a sure thing," he said.

The financier stroked his moustache. "Well," he said slowly, "personally I should prefer 5 per cent with a bare uncertainty."—Woman's Home Companion.

Queer Language.
When he was in Egypt Mark Twain hired two Arab guides to take him to the pyramids. He was familiar enough with Arabic, he thought, to understand and be understood with perfect ease. To his consternation he found that he could not comprehend a word that either of the guides uttered. At the pyramids he met a friend, to whom he made known his dilemma. It was very mysterious, Twain thought. "Why, the explanation is simple enough," said the friend. "Please enlighten me, then," said Twain. "Why, you should have hired younger men. These old fellows have lost their teeth, and, of course, they don't speak Arabic. They speak gum-Arabic."

Cigar Dust.
Here is a thing which all cigar smokers might observe with profit to themselves. Before lighting a cigar bite off the end and, placing the part to be lighted between your lips, blow through it. In this way you get rid of a fine dust that accumulates in a cigar when it is dry, which is apt to inflame your vocal chords and injure your voice. It is a valuable hint to vocalists, and there are quite a number of professional opera singers who never light a cigar until they have blown out the dust. To the failure to do this may be attributed in great part the throat diseases with which steady smokers are afflicted.

From London Bridge in a Sack.
Some years ago a porter named Fuller, employed at Billingsgate market, London, made a bet that he would jump from London bridge tied up in a sack, his only stipulation being that he should be provided with a knife, which he was not to open till he touched the water, with which to rip open the sack. He succeeded in accomplishing the feat and when picked up by some friends in a boat was none the worse for his dive.

SCHUBERT'S SAD LIFE.

"I Shall Have to Sneak From Door to Door to Beg My Bread."

One of the bitterest disappointments in Schubert's life was Goethe's indifference. In 1818 he sent a selection of his compositions to the poet's songs to Weimar. What precious pearls of music were among the collection—the songs of "Mignon" and "The Harpist," those from "Faust," the sad melodies "Longing," "Nightsong," "The Wanderer's Nightsong," "The Earl King," "Haideroslein," "The Fisherman," "The Bard," "The King of Thule" and the music to "Claudine of Villa Bella." Goethe, who had an ear only for the stiff compositions of Zumsteeg and Reinhart, then in fashion in Weimar, took no notice of Schubert's music and left his letter unanswered. Not until 1830—after Schubert's death—did Goethe learn to appreciate the extraordinary value of the compositions that lay neglected in his drawer. It was then that Wilhelmine Schroder Devrient sang "The Earl King" to him.

It was Schubert's greatest delight to make some little excursion with his friends to the picturesquely situated villages in the Wilnerwald or on the Kahlenberg, and it was in the arbors of the small inns, with a glass of pure country wine before him, that inspiration came most easily. But even these modest delights were embittered by the malice that pictured him as a drunkard who composed his songs when he was full of wine. It is an absolute fact that he did not lose the faculty of artistic work even under the saddest circumstances. He composed the greater part of the "Miller Songs" while he was lying ill in hospital in 1823.

He was quite right when he wrote to his friend Kuppelwieser in March, 1824, "Those of my compositions which have been inspired by pain seem to please people best." And in a letter to Bauernfeld he complained: "What will become of poor me? Like Goethe's harp player, I shall have to sneak from door to door and beg my bread." The only ray of light that fell into his dark life was when, through the kindness of Count Johann Esterhazy's manager, Unger, the father of the famous prima donna, Unger-Sabatier, he was appointed music master in the count's household in Zelecs, where he spent some happy summers, the happiest of his life. It was in Castle Zelecs that he is supposed to have fallen in love with Caroline, his patron's beautiful daughter, who was his pupil and who probably never learned the secret of the musician's heart, though it is strange that one so gifted and so beautiful should not have married before she was well into the thirties. Bitter disappointment followed this short spell of a life free of care.—London Telegraph.

First Matrimonial Agency.

The title "Matrimonial agencies and advertisements" ought to attract attention from those who request for marriage in the journals in the form of prose or verse and sometimes serious announcements. That may seem to be a new phenomenon of modern life, yet M. Henri d'Almeris in La Revue Hebdomadaire says the real originator of this industry was one Villiaume. In the last days of the empire he set up in Paris a sort of universal agency which would supply furnished apartments, domestics, wives and husbands.—Journal de St. Petersburg.

The beauty tea is a nerve maker. It "cleans" up one's thoughts; it sweetens one's life; its rector on one's words, and drops, sip by sip, into one's heart, when Parfister's Rocky Mountain Tea is used. Tea or Tablets, 35 cents. Western Drug Store.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statements, what they do observe that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pains in the stomach, bowels and has never been failed. For sale by all druggists.
