It is just what the tobacco farmers need.

AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a hustling Town.

Ayden, N. C. Oct. 2, 1906

Mrs. Dr. Blount was a pleasant visitor in Ayden last week.

To the delight of her many friends and especially her pupils Miss Mary Long Whitehead came Saturday evening. Everyone is glad to have her here again and especially are we pleased to know she has so far recovered from her recent illness as to be able to resume her duties at the graded school.

Leslie Cox and Wayland Smith left yesterday for a visit to Tunis. Miss Ebbie Langley, from near Greenville, is visiting Mrs. J. J. Hines.

Miss Julia Taylor on her way home, at Horkerton, stopped over yesterday for a short visit to Mrs. Jos. Dixon.

Senator Overman speaks in Ayden Saturday, 13th, Oct.

Mrs. Nan Coward and son, Elias, are making preparation to move at once to Florida. Ayden people regret very much to see this excellent family leave.

Friday while selling cotton on the market here Lorenzo McLawhorn had the misfortune to fall off the platform and break his right arm above the wrist.

Four miles from Ayden, Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the residence of Wickliffe Worthington, father of the bride. Mr. Ralph Sumrell and Miss Maud Worthington were united in marriage by J. M. Blow, Esq. After the ceremony the bridal party left for the home of Mr. John Allen near Greenville where they partook of an elegant supper after which the evening was pleasantly spent by all present.

C. A. Fair went to Greensboro Wednesday.

Theron Moore left yesterday for Richmond, where he will enter a medical college.

Our town and streets are now wearing a gala appearance. The schools have all opened and the large number of young ladies and young men in attendance can be seen every evening passing to and fro. There are some of the prettiest girls one ever did see and the most of them, to be sure, it is pleasing to the eye, encouraging to the merchant and a perfect delight to all who behold.

G. W. Cox, of Greenville, has been here during the week.

F. T. Carr and family, of Greene county, were in town Thursday.

Mrs. Harper, of Greene county, is visiting Mrs. Robert Coward.

Miss Cora Long has been visiting Mrs. O. C. Noble. She left Tuesday for her home.

Mrs. F. M. Whichard, of Greenville, spent one day this week with Mrs. W. J. Henby.

Amos Tyson and Walter Harrington have come home from South Carolina.

Mrs. W. E. Hooks and Miss Nina Cannon spent Wednesday in Grifton.

Miss Gene Morrison has returned from her visit in Hyde county and taken a position in the millinery department of the J. K. Smith Mercantile Company.

Bob Anderson, of Greenville,

THROW PREJUDICE ASIDE.

Farmers Should Use Their Common Sense.

The Farmers Consolidated Tobacco Company continues to maintain its fine record in leading the Greenville tobacco market on high prices. According to the report of the secretary of the Board of Trade, during the month of September there were sold on this market 2,839,600 pounds for $262,102.17, an average of $9.26 per hundred pounds. Of this the Consolidated sold 981,164 pounds for $91,722.62, an average of a fraction over $9.35 per hundred pounds.

Deducting what the Consolidated sold from the total sales of the market leaves 1,858,436 pounds for $170,379.55, an average of $9.17 per hundred, which gives the Consolidated 18 cents per hundred, higher than all the other houses obtained.

A further analysis of these figures discloses the fact that this difference of 18 cents per hundred pounds obtained by the Consolidated put $1,766.09 more in the pockets of the farmers who sold with this company than if they had sold with other warehouses. At the same time it can be seen that this difference of 18 cents per hundred pounds on what was sold at other houses was a loss of $3,345.52 to those farmers who did not sell with the Consolidated. The figures speak for themselves, and the wonder is that the farmers go on losing money like this on a crop they have worked hard to make when they could just as easily save it. By the old adage "A dollar saved is a dollar made."

The benefit the Consolidated is to the farmers does not end with getting them higher prices than other warehouses, but all who are stockholders in it receive their share of the profits arising from the business in cash dividends at the end of the season. In three years these dividends have aggregated 80 per cent, and this year will carry the total up to at least 100 per cent. It looks like every tobacco farmer ought to be able to see that it would be to his interest to have stock in the Consolidated and sell his tobacco through their warehouses. When prejudice takes dollars out of your pocket it is time to throw prejudice to the winds.

The Farmers Consolidated Tobacco Company is admirably conducted on business principles, and it is the best organization for farmers that has ever yet been put on foot.

PLEASANT PARTY.

Miss Annie Leonard Tyson Celebrates Her Eleventh Birthday.

The rainy weather on Monday evening did not keep any of the guests away from Miss Annie Leonard Tyson's very pleasant entertainment.

At eight o'clock when the guests arrived they were pleasantly received by the hostess and Miss Christine Tyson, who never looked sweeter than on this occasion.

The guests were then received in the sitting room by Misses Janie Tyson and Alice Lang, with their usual pleasing manner.

In the parlor Miss Lillian Burch received with her accustomed grace.

The house was beautifully decorated, the porch brilliantly lighted with Japanese lanterns, the color scheme of the hall being in red. In the hall were also displayed the many birthday gifts presented by the hostess' little friends.

The sitting room was a scene of enjoyment as well as beauty, in its green decorations, as every guest entered here blind folded and pinned a tail on the donkey, the latter was soon almost covered with tails. Willie Grey Lang proved best in the contest and was awarded a nice game. Miss Lucy Outterbridge coming furthest from the mark, was presented a bobby.

The parlor was filled with little folks who played many games and enjoyed themselves greatly. The color scheme here was pink.

The guests were invited into the dining room, at 9:30, and served with delicious ices and cakes by Mesdames Burch and Tyson. This room also showed the skillful work of the two ladies, it being in green and red, and candles here and there showing the hostess' age.

The guests enjoyed pretty instrumental music by Miss Lillian Burch during the evening.

At ten the guests bade Miss Tyson good-night, and wished her many happy returns of the day. She was assured that her birthday would always be remembered by her little friends on account of this very enjoyable entertainment.

BOAT PARTY.

Grimesland, N. C. Sept. 29, 1906.

Tuesday morning Messrs. Ben Mayo and John Warren of Grimesland, gave a most pleasant boat party to the guests of Mrs. J. O. Proctor, Misses Pamela and Julia Taylor and Fannie Hardee.

The boat left Boyd's Ferry for Washington where the hosts served cold drinks, fruits, etc., as an introduction to the magnificent repast to come. The barn yard fowls were the principal features of this occasion, and it was said that the generous host managed the disappearance of two entire chickens. The cake was exceedingly fine and every one took a generous share.

The party went on a sight seeing expedition at Bay Side where the principal sights were the numerous lumber mills.

From here they went to Aurora

Store Improved.

J. R. and J. G. Moye have had the old front in their store taken out and replaced with a handsome plate glass front. It gives the store a much better appearance.

Complaint of Book Changing

There is much complaint among parents who are sending children to the graded school because of the wholesale change of books that has been made. As the graded school here is not required to use the books adopted by the State board, there seems to be good ground for the complaint at the change. The people had already purchased a supply of books for last session that were satisfactory, hence they complain at having to now throw away those books away and go to the additional expense of buying new ones.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Baptist church will meet tomorrow (Wednesday) afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. B. E. Parham's.

where they were met by Mr. John Mayo, who entertained them most royally at his home. The following morning was spent taking pictures and noting places of interest around this charming little village, where every one seemed interested in the pleasure of others.

From here they visited the historic little burg of Bath. After a good dinner at the Water's House, they went to see the oldest church in North Carolina, the Episcopal church. This venerable old structure has stood well the wear of ages and seems good for several decades to come.

From Bath they went to Washington and registered at Hotel Louise for supper. The carnival was the center of excitement where confetti battles raged thick and every one had at least one mouthful of the pink and blue paper.

From Washington the party had a beautiful moonlight ride back to Grimesland. The young people expressed themselves as having had a most enjoyable time.

A Trouble Breeder.

"Don't you think it's about time your daughter began to look out for a husband?" asked Mr. Green mildly. "She is getting on, and she'll be an old maid if she is not careful." "Indeed, yes, it is time," answered Mrs. Green, "but she is just the same as I was. I never thought of marriage until my mother warned me that if I were ever to marry at all I had no time to lose. I tell you I was so alarmed that I made up my mind to take the first fool that offered, and that very evening you came!"—Kansas City Independent.

Fatal Ambition.

"What brought you here, my friend?" asked the philanthropic visitor at the penitentiary. "Unsuccessful authorship, ma'am," answered the man in cell 444. "How could there be anything criminal in that? Please explain." "I was busily engaged on a little work on the national currency, when the secret service men swooped down on me and caught me with the tools in my hand."—Philadelphia Record.

DIRTY AIR.

There Are Two Forms of Impurity, Gaseous and Solid.

The importance of ventilation and of a constant supply of fresh air in living rooms, whether sleeping or waking, has often been insisted upon. Without air life is impossible, and unless that air be moderately pure health cannot be maintained, although it is astonishing and a proof of the wonderful adaptation of living beings to their environment to note how great an amount of contamination of the air can be borne with seeming impunity.

There are two forms of impurity in the air—gaseous and solid. The gases, those resulting from exhalations from the lungs, and in city houses from the little unnoticed leaks from the gas pipes and from defective plumbing, are the most injurious. For the removal of these free ventilation through open windows and open fireplaces is most efficacious. But it is of little service in the removal of the other kind of impurity—that is to say, the solid particles of matter—dust—which are always floating in the air of houses as well as in that of the streets.

A beam of sunlight entering through a half closed shutter makes visible this dust, and as one looks with startled eyes on the beam which lights up the floating particles the wonder grows that the lungs are not made solid by this stream of dust flowing in with every breath. Fortunately the nose and the moist lining of the air tubes are designed to filter the air by arresting these particles before they can enter the delicate air chambers of the lungs. They do their work well, but not perfectly, and the greater the amount of dust the more they fail in their function.

Workmen engaged in dusty trades—carpet beaters, coal miners, potters, grinders, felt workers—often acquire disease of the lungs from the inhalation of dust.

Dust particles are injurious not only mechanically, but also and chiefly because they act as carriers of disease germs.

Since it is impossible to remove dust entirely by ventilation, it is necessary to do what is practicable to prevent its dissemination through the air. Settled dust is ugly, but inoffensive. But when the well meaning but ignorant housewife flops it into the air with a feather duster she only rouses the sleeping lion. Brooms and feather dusters are relics of barbarism and should be banished. The damp cloth for furniture and the mop and carpet sweeper for floors, or, best of all, the vacuum process, are the modern civilized agents of cleanliness. These gather up the dust and do not simply scatter it in the air, where it is invisible, but pernicious.—Youth's Companion.

The Honest Office Boy.

A Baltimore lawyer had engaged a new office boy, and to test the boy's honesty he put a twenty dollar note under the inkstand on his desk, letting the end protrude, when he went out to lunch. On his return a couple of hours later the note was gone. A silver quarter occupied its place.

Pale with rage and horror, the lawyer called the new boy to him.

"Look here," he shouted, "when I went out I left $20 under this inkstand. Now there's only a quarter there. How do you explain it?"

The boy smiled brightly. "Why, sir," he said, "just after you left a gentleman called with a wine and cigar bill that he knew you were dying to pay because it had been standing for four years, so I settled it with the twenty dollar note under the inkstand. It was $19.75. Here's the receipt, sir."

Local Pride.

There is a railway map of the Lancaster and Yorkshire railway station painted on the tiled entrance of the Victoria station in London. The painter whose work it was had an experience with local pride. While at work he was accosted thus: "Dost come from Rochdale?" "No, why?" "Well, tha's painted Rochdale bigger nor Owdham. Dostna know Owdham's bigger nor Rochdale and Royton both put together? Tha'll get punched if some chaps as Ah know fra Owdham cops thee doin' it."

SENATOR LEE S. OVERMAN.

Hon. Lee S. Overman, the junior senator from North Carolina, who will address the people of Pitt county at Ayden on the 18th, and again at Greenville that night, has risen rapidly during the short while he has been in the Senate, and is fast becoming a national figure. His stand for the interest of the shipper in the railroad rate bill brought him prominently to the front, and his amendment to that bill, limiting the granting of injunctions by Federal courts and which was secured in the face of great opposition, is one of the most important features of the law as it now stands. It is worthy of note that only one other amendment to the bill was secured by a Southern senator.

Senator Overman served on many of the most important committees of the senate, and took an active part in all its discussions and deliberations. He secured the passage of a bill in the senate to establish a national forest reserve in the Appalachian mountains—a bill which has made its appearance at every session of congress for several years, but which has never before been passed. Senator Overman also secured important additions to the public buildings bill for North Carolina, all of which goes to show that he kept at all times the interest of his constituents in mind. But perhaps the most important single achievement of Senator Overman and that which most vitally concerns the interests not only of Pitt county but of all North Carolina and the South as well, is the law creating a cotton commission to investigate and encourage our cotton trade abroad. The history of this bill is instructive. Remembering the great cotton crop of two years ago and the slump in prices. Senator Overman became convinced that some effort should be made by the government to promote our foreign trade in cotton products, and introduced a bill to establish a commission for that purpose. The bill received the support of the Southern members but it seemed impossible to secure enough influence to bring it out of committee. Senator Overman, however was not to be caught napping, and when the appropriations bill came to the senate, he proposed an amendment to that bill, thus bringing the matter fairly before the Senate, where by active and wise management and by personal influence he secured its favorable consideration and the amendment became a law. The commission is now on its way to the east.

Senator Overman is one of the staunchest party men in the Senate. His colleagues recognizing his ability and his loyalty to his party, elected him a member of the Democratic steering committee of the senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Gorman—an honor made the greater by the fact that it has seldom been conferred upon a "first term-er." His Democracy was learned at the feet of Vance and Jarvis, to both of whom he served as private secretary during their respective terms as governor of North Carolina.

We predict for Senator Overman an enthusiastic welcome to Pitt.

Dr. W. H. Wakefield, of Charlotte, N. C., will be in Greenville, at Hotel Bertha on Thursday, Oct. 11th, for the purpose of treating diseases of eye, ear, nose and throat, and fitting glasses. 192w

The Latest

Fashions for fall.

Copyright 1906, by The House of Kuppenheimer

In suits: Long Coats are the thing, with long, narrow lapels and semi-shaped backs. The newest idea is to have no vent in back, though men men prefer side or centre vents. All coats are "three button" this year, and those cut either "straight front" or nearly so, are considered the best style. Colors are mostly dark mixtures,—black, blues, and browns,—though greys are still very popular. Plain colors are always stylish.

15 TO 30

In Overcoats $15 to $30

The latest is the "French Flare Back" model, of which you get some idea from the picture. This is a semi-fitting garment with wide skirts and a deep centre vent in back, made of the new worsteds and other appropriate fabrics. Rain Coats, both loose and form fitting, are more popular than ever, while the Top-Coat is a garment always in style. Paddocks and Box-Coats are also among the fashionable over-garments of the year.

NO THINKING HERE.

A Sensible Motto to Hang Up in Your Bedchamber.

A prominent business man told me recently that his great weakness was his inability to stop thinking after retiring. In this way he is robbed of so much sleep that he feels all used up the next day.

I advised him to cultivate the habit of closing the door of his business brain at the same time that he closed the door of his business office. "You should," I said, "insist on changing the current of your thoughts when you leave your business for the day just as you change your environment or as you change your dress for dinner when you go home in the evening. Turn your thoughts to your wife and children, to your joys and cares. Talk to them, play games with them. Read some humorous or entertaining story or some strong, interesting book that will lift you in spite of yourself out of your business rut. Go out for a long walk or a ride. Fill your lungs with strong, sweet, fresh air. Look about you and observe the beauties of nature or have a hobby of some kind to which you can turn for recreation and refreshment when you quit your regular business. Be master of your mind. Learn to control it instead of allowing it to control you and tyrannize over you.

Hang up in your bedchamber in a conspicuous place where you can always see it a card bearing in bold, illuminated characters this motto: "No Thinking Here."

Shut off all thinking process of every kind when you retire for the night, relax every muscle, let there be no tension of mind or body, and in a short time you will find that sleep will come to you as easily and naturally as to a little child.

The habit of thinking after going to bed is fatal to all freshness of brain work. These men have not learned to lock their business in their offices or factories when they quit for the night, so they drag it home, bring it up at the dinner table and depress the whole family, or if they do not talk about their problems their anxiety and absent-mindedness totally unfit them for the pleasant companionship of their families. They are so absorbed in the problems of their vocations that they do not know what is going on around them. They do not know how to relax, to unbend, to rest, so they lie down to sleep with all their burden, just as a tired camel lies down in the desert with its great burden still on its back.

It is a great art to be able to shut the gates in the great mental power house on retiring, to control oneself, to put oneself in tune with the infinite, to put oneself in sympathy with those about him, in harmony with the world, to expel from the mind everything which jars, irritates, all malice, envy and jealousy, the enemies of our peace and happiness, before we go to sleep.—O. S. Marden in Success Magazine.

There Was No Hurry.

Stern of mien and keen of eye, the school inspector was examining the boys in arithmetic.

"Now," he said, "I'll just set you one more sum. If a cat falls down a bottomless well, and for every two feet it climbs up it falls down three, how long will it take to get out of the well?"

One boy got hold of a slate, and after filling both sides of it with a mass of figures asked for another slate.

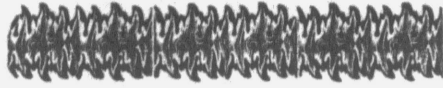

"Good gracious, boy," snapped the inspector, "haven't you the sense to see that the cat will never get out of the well?"

"Don't be in a hurry, sir," replied the boy; "there's plenty of time and heaps more slates. If you wait long enough I'll bring the little beggar out in Australia."—London Answers.

A Poet's Meaning.

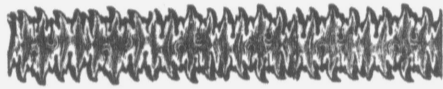

Klopstock, the German poet whom his admirer justly compared to Milton, was once questioned at Gottingen as to the exact meaning of one of his stanzas. He read it over once or twice and then delivered this judgment: "I cannot remember what I meant when I wrote it, but I do remember that it was one of the finest things I ever wrote, and yet I do not know better than devote your lives to the discovery of its meaning."

WHOSE WAS IT?

A Rare Coin, Two Bargain Sales and Three Questions.

A scholar traveling in the east says that he was once in camp with his friend Ramsay, a man of kindred tastes, in a wretched Phrygian village far from the track of travelers. As they were striking tents in the morning a heavy faced boy brought Mr. Ramsay a handful of bronze for sale. He sorted it rapidly on the palm of his hand and found among the rubbish one very rare coin of Hierapolis. Then he put it all back again in the boy's outstretched palm and offered half a dollar for the lot. The boy accepted the bid, gave back the handful, took his money and disappeared, while the exultant purchaser went chuckling off among the horses.

Ten minutes later the boy appeared again and, going up to the other Englishman, offered another handful of rubbish, among which was the same rare Hierapolitan coin. The gentleman kept the bronze in his hand and offered a half dollar for it, which the boy refused, though the bargain was eventually concluded for a dollar.

Then the gentleman, in high glee, hailed his companion and, showing his purchase, informed him that he was not the only man who possessed a coin of Hierapolis.

"Let us compare," said the other, emptying the pocket where his bronze was jingling.

He sorted the lot and felt in every pocket. No coin of Hierapolis was there. To this day three questions remain unanswered:

How did the boy retain the coin in the first instance in order to sell it over again?

How, in that remote region, far from the haunts of travelers, did he know the value of his find?

And to which purchaser did the coin really belong?

Tobacco Stories.

They were talking about tobacco. Said one: "I was the luckiest fellow that ever lived when I began the habit. A great many times I fooled my mother, who would believe me on sight. But my father came in on me in the kitchen once when I actually had a pipe in my mouth, drawing at it and emitting a cloud of smoke.

"He did not need to say anything. I knew.

"Papa," I said, "I am not smoking. I have just lit the pipe for Mary," and I passed the pipe to the cook with as confident an air as I could assume.

"Bless her soul, she took it and went on smoking, and my father went on his way, satisfied."

"I had a worse time than that," said the next man. "My father came upon me with a large chew of tobacco in my mouth. Said he, 'Son, aren't you chewing tobacco?' I gulped the whole thing down, held my face as straight as I could, and said, 'N-no, sir.'"—Charlotte Observer.

The Dwarf Elephants of Malta.

The island of Malta is the only known spot where the remains of dwarf elephants are found. There are several places on the island where the bones of these miniature pachyderms have been unearthed, and hundreds of skeletons have been secured, in whole or in part. One of these, whose teeth and bones showed it a full grown specimen, was less than two and a half feet in height and could not have weighed over 600 pounds when in the flesh.

There is nothing that take away the beautiful womanly charms like a plodding, stooped awkward carriage. There is absolutely excuse for that as long as Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea is made. Tea or Tablets, 35 cents. Woote's Drug Store.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statements. what they do elsewhere that it will positively cure diarrhea, dysentery, pains in the stomach, bowels and has never been fail. Are You One?

There are about eight classes of town-killers, and every town is afflicted with one or more of them. First, those who go out of town to do their trading; second, those who are opposed to improvements; third, those who prefer a quiet town to one of push and business; fourth, those who imagine they own the town; fifth, those who decide public-spirited men; sixth, those who oppose movements not originating with themselves; seventh, those who oppose every movement that does not appear to benefit them; eighth, those who seek to injure the credit or reputation of their neighbors.
