Bugle Sound Against Saloons.

The mobs and race riots which prevailed in the great city of Atlanta two weeks ago taught some things that some people may not have observed. One of the first steps for keeping order after it was once learned that the city was under mob law, was the closing up of the saloons, not only for a day, but for a week and as much longer as the mayor of the city should deem it necessary. The index of condemnation points against the liquor saloon from all quarters of the world, and such occasions as the Atlanta trouble serve to give strong emphasis to the fact that the world regards the saloon as a dangerous influence.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

The T. J. Jarvis Chapter Daughters of the Confederacy will meet Friday afternoon at 4:30 with Miss Nannie Bowling.

A CARD.

To the Citizens of Pitt County:

I desire to announce through the columns of The Reflector that I have always been a Democrat and am now a Democrat, and that the action of the Republican convention in nominating me for county surveyor was without my knowledge or consent, and I take this method of publicly announcing that I decline to accept the nomination of the Republican convention for said office. My reason for so doing is that I am a Democrat and shall support the Democratic candidates, and I desire to make this announcement to the citizens of Pitt county.

Why be Profane?

To one who will think coolly and calmly about human speech, it is really a puzzle why men use profanity. In the first place, most men know better, else why will they not swear in the presence of ladies or preachers of the gospel? Somehow men who swear just feel like it is not the polite thing to swear before ladies or other distinguished presence.

And yet those who are addicted to the habit will forget their politeness even amongst strangers and use profanity which often time shocks those who hear, though the man who does the swearing seems almost unconscious of what he has said. While it is not becoming in any one to swear anywhere, otherwise very polite and clever gentlemen sometimes express themselves in profane language which for the time may shock some one for whom the swearer would have more regard if he knew him. Recently we heard a man who seemed to be a clever and accomplished gentleman slip some expression of profanity for which he afterwards wished to apologize, but did not get a convenient opportunity. It was in a small company, perhaps all strangers to each other, one of whom was a minister of the gospel. The company was discussing some current events of the day, when the one of unguarded speech said some things which he regretted when he learned that one of the company was a minister. It would have been so much better if he had left off the profanity entirely. And so would be better if men in every walk and circle of life could learn how useless is profanity and would leave it out of their expressions altogether. It does not emphasize, but rather weakens the statement; does not edify the speaker or the hearer, is never of any benefit, but frequently causes bitter regrets.

Let us hope that sometimes men will not swear so much.—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

Right You Are, Brother.

A man who stands on the street corner chewing and spitting, telling how the government should be run, cursing the town, finding fault with his grandmother because she was a woman, claiming that the merchants are a lot of thieves, that the lawyers and newspaper men would skin a man to a finish and a whole lot more, is a nuisance and a abomination. Any two posteried with one or more such worthies would be justified in exercising censure and authority on the bosom of their trousers. No one is obliged to live where he is not suited. I things don't suit you go where they will. A growler and so called in a town is an enterprise killer every time.—From the Advocate (Ch.) Enterprise.

Why a Teacher Didn't Go to See a Pupil's Father.

Duncan in Contempt of Court.

New Bern, N. C., Oct. 2.—Revenue Collector E. C. Duncan is tonight in custody of the sheriff of Craven county, because he refused to answer questions put to him while on the witness stand by Solicitor Moore, in regard to the granting of liquor license to L. B. Habicht, who was on trial for selling liquor without a license. Judge Stone, presiding, ordered that Collector Duncan be held in jail pending investigation by the grand jury in the matter.

SCHOOL OPENINGS.

Splendid Advancement Through the County.

The schools that have already opened in the county show a large increase in attendance from last year. The following have opened since we last noted openings.

Grifton begun its work about two weeks ago with the following teachers: Supt. W. H. Cale having the 7th, 8th, and 9th grades, Miss Trevillian 5th and 6th, Miss Pearce, 3rd, and 4th, Miss Coward, 1st, and 2nd, and Miss Gay music. The school is full and is doing fine work in the hands of this splendid corps of teachers.

Ayden school opened last week in charge of the following fine list of teachers: Supt. J. A. McArthur, 8th, and 9th grades, Miss H. Runday 6th and 7th, Miss Bauer, 5th, Miss Whitehead 4th, Miss Brown 2nd and 3rd, and Miss Dawson 1st. This school is rapidly forging itself to the front rank of schools in this county.

Last Monday the school at Farnville opened with an educational hour. H. W. Whodbee, Esq. of Greenville, spoke for the people. Every one who heard him speaks in the highest terms of the address, it was sensible, well conceived, appropriate and to the point. The attendance the first day showed an increase over last year of more than 40 pupils. It would be hard to find a more splendid set of teachers than those who are in charge of this school: Supt. J. H. McIver, 8th and 9th grades, Miss Tyson 6th and 7th, Mrs. Moore 4th and 5th, Miss Waldrop 3rd, and Miss Perkins 1st and 2nd.

The rural schools will begin to open about the 15th, and the prospects are good for a live year in the educational work of the county.

Chinese of Development in the Pure Race Therefore Limited.

The negro race is now considered to be one of the oldest races in the world, evidences of its existence in prehistoric times having been discovered throughout Africa, Australia, and Oceania. In historic times negroes are depicted on the monuments of Egypt thousands of years before the Anglo-Saxon had emerged from barbarism. They have been in contact continually with the highest civilizations of antiquity, but have never risen to the eminence of other nations, having retained their primitive condition, even as is now apparent in the southern states, where they are isolated in large masses.

Another significant fact is that the negro brain is smaller than the Caucasian, the difference in size being represented in both gray matter (nerve cells) and white matter (nerve fibers). Brain cells are the basis of brain power, or mental ability, and their number is known to remain constant throughout life, so that there seems never to be a degree of mental development beyond the possible expression of the brain cells inherited. Development of mental activity by experience, education, etc., is considered to be correlated with the development of sheaths around the nerve fibers as they become active in the transmission of impulses. The efficiency of the brain depends upon the number and position of such nerve fibers, just as the efficiency of a telephone system depends upon the number of its various connections and ramifications. The negro brain, having fewer nerve cells and nerve fibers, assuming that gray matter and white matter respectively represent these numerically, the possibilities of developing the negro are therefore limited, except by crossing with other races. This has been done to such an extent in times past that it is difficult to determine whether a pure negro really exists in America.—Robert Bennett Bean in Century.

AN ARABIAN TRIAL.

Like Unto Patriarchal Life of Old Testament Times.

In his "Narrative of a Year's Journey Through Central and Eastern Arabia" Mr. Palgrave gives a vivid description of proceedings in an Arabian court. The trial was a preliminary hearing before a magistrate. The scene reflects the patriarchal life of Old Testament times. One day my comrade and myself were on a visit of politeness at the castle. The customary ceremonies were over, and business, at first interrupted by our entrance, had resumed its course. A Bedouin, pleading his cause before Hamood, was accusing some one of having forcibly taken away his camel.

The governor was seated in his corner with an air of intense gravity, half leaning on a cushion, while the Bedouin, crosslegged on the ground before him and within six feet of his person, flourished in his hand a large reaping hook, such as is used for cutting grass. Energetically gesticulating with this ugly implement, he thus challenged the judge's attention:

"You, Hamood, do you hear?" stretching out at the same time the hook toward the governor so as almost to reach his body. "He has taken from me my camel. Have you called God to mind?" Here again he put the weapon close to the unflinching magistrate. "The camel is my camel. Do you hear?" with another reminder from the reaping hook. "He is mine by God's award and yours too. Do you hear, child?" and so on, while Hamood sat without moving a muscle of face or limb until some one of the counselors quieted the plaintiff with: "Remember God, child. It is of no consequence. You shall not be wronged."

Then the judge called on the witnesses, men of the province, to say their say, and on their confirmation of the Bedouin's statement he gave orders to two of his satellites to search for and bring before him the accused person, while he added to the suitor: "All right, daddy, you shall have your own. Put your confidence in God," and composedly motioned him back to his place.

In suits: Long Coats are the thing, with long, narrow lapels and semi-shaped backs. The newest idea is to have no vent in back, though men prefer side or centre vents. All coats are "three button" this year, and those cut either "straight front" or nearly so, are considered the best style. Colors are mostly dark mixtures--black, blues, and browns, though greys are still very popular. Plain colors are always stylish.

In Overcoats $15 to $30

The latest is the "French Flare Back" model, of which you get some idea from the picture. This is a semi-fitting garment with wide lapels and a deep centre vent in back, made of the new worsteds and other appropriate fabrics. Rain Coats, both loose and form fitting, are more popular than ever, while the Top-Coat is a garment always in style. Puddocks and Box-Coats are also among the fashionable over-garments of the year.

SPOONS.

Date of Their Origin Unknown, They Are So Very Ancient.

If you desire to know about the scarcity of really reliable data on the history of spoons, take down your handbooks and encyclopedias and see if they do not take you a long while to learn anything concerning their origin, "activity," etc. In fact, the antiquarians do not pretend to give us anything of value in that line. It is admitted that they are "very ancient," but just exactly how old they are and by whom and where they were first used are points upon which we are left completely in the dark. Creighton says "spoons" must have been a very ancient invention, for a Saxon spoon of perforated silver gilt, ornamented with gems, was found in a grave at Sarre, Thanet."

When forks were unknown spoons played a very important part at the table. Spoons of the thirteenth century, and even later, had handles terminating in a knob, knot, acorn or other odd and cumbersome devices. About the period of the restoration, of which so much is said in English history, a great change was made in the forms of spoons. In some of the unique patterns the "spoon" part was divided into two, three and even four parts, and the handles always split or twisted and turned up instead of down and back. Spoons of that period were all blunt instead of being pointed, as in the forms generally seen at present. They continued short and blunt to the time of George I., when they were first made pointed and had the handles turned down instead of up.

About the year 1500 what were known as "apostle spoons" were introduced. They were so called because they had the figures of the twelve apostles carved upon their handles. They were generally given by sponsors to children at their time of baptism. The wealthy presented the entire twelve, those who could not afford to indulge in such extravagance giving one or more, according as they felt able.

The most curious and remarkable spoon in the world perhaps is a "coronation spoon," preserved among the other royal relics in the Tower of London. The bowl is of gold and the handle of silver. The handle is split down the middle and set with all kinds of precious stones. The relic is valued at about £20,000, or upward of $100,000.

There Was No Hurry.

Stern of mien and keen of eye, the school inspector was examining the boys in arithmetic.

"Now," he said, "I'll just set you one more sum. If a cat falls down a well, how long will it take to get out of the well?"

One boy got hold of a slate, and after filling both sides of it with a mass of figures asked for another slate.

"Good gracious, boy," snapped the inspector, "haven't you the sense to see that the cat will never get out of the well?"

"Don't be in a hurry, sir," replied the boy; "there's plenty of time and heaps more slates. If you wait long enough I'll bring the little beggar out in Australia."—London Answers.

A Troubled Breeder.

"Don't you think it's about time our daughter began to look out for a husband?" asked Mr. Green mildly. "She is getting on, and she'll be an old maid if she is not careful."

"Indeed, yes, it is time," answered Mrs. Green, "but she is just the same as I was. I never thought of marriage until my mother warned me that if I were ever to marry at all I had no time to lose. I tell you I was so alarmed that I made up my mind to take the first fool that offered, and that very evening you came!"—Kansas City Independent.

Fatal Ambition.

"What brought you here, my friend?" asked the philanthropic visitor at the penitentiary.

"Unsuccessful authorship, ma'ama," answered the man in cell 444.

"How could there be anything criminal in that? Please explain."

"I was busily engaged on a little work on the national currency, when the secret service men swooped down on me and caught me with the tools in my hand."—Philadelphia Record.
