THE BANKS OF THE STATE.

The North Carolina Corporation Commission Gives Out Statement on Reports on September 4th.

The 265 State, private and savings banks in North Carolina have $45,802,416.13 assets and $33,312,302.83 deposits, according to a summary of statements made to the North Carolina corporation commission. Some notable items mentioned in the statement are capital stock paid in $6,269,451.89, surplus fund $1,264,963.52, undivided profits $1,389,899. The summary is based on statements made of condition of banks at the close of business September 4.

The summary of the commission last year about this time showed $141,095,359 assets as compared with the $45,802,461 shown in the summary just issued.

It was in 1899 that the State private and savings banks were placed under the supervision of the corporation commission. At that time there were only 67 of these banks in the State, the aggregate of assets being $11,275,490.—Raleigh Times.

No Reward Offered.

"Have you lost anything, madam!" asked the polite floor walker of the square-jawed, austere-looking shopper who stood before the "lost and found" window of the large department store.

"Yes, sir," she replied. "I've lost one hundred and fourteen pounds of husband, in light brown suit, with black derby hat, small tuft of hair on its chin and a frightened look. I lost it in a crush at the fancy goods counter. It's probably wandering through the building in search of me, and I thought perhaps you could find it easier than I can. I want it on account of a bundle it is carrying under its arm."—Ex.

"The Clansman" Has been Cancelled.

"The Clansman" has cancelled its time for this theatrical season in North Carolina and the recent race riots in the South are responsible for it. It is said that the management of "The Clansman" writes that it has no desire to appear as contributing in any way to what might be deemed fanning the flame and hence will not present "The Clansman" until absolute peace once more reigns. It is further stated that while there was no fear about North Carolina yet the company could not limit its tour through the South to a few states.

"The Clansman" was booked to appear in Wilmington and in other North Carolina cities during December, but the company's management writes the local management of the Academy here cancelling the date. "The Clansman," however, will be presented elsewhere than in the South and will make a tour of the South either some months after Christmas, about April or May, or next season.—Wilmington Dispatch.

Which Are You?

"Two boys went to gather grapes. One was happy because they found grapes; the other was unhappy because the grapes had seeds in them.

"Two men, being convalescent, were asked how they were. One said: 'I am better today.' The other said: 'I was worse yesterday.'

"When it rains one man says: 'This will make mud.' Another: 'This will lay the dust.'

"Two boys examined a bush. One observed that it had a thorn; the other that it had a rose.

"Two children, were looking through a colored glass, one said: 'The world is blue.' The other said: 'It is bright.'

"Two boys having a bee, one got honey, the other got stung. The first called it a honey bee, the other a stinging bee.

"I am glad I live," says one man. 'I am sorry I must die,' says another.

"I am glad," says one, 'that it is no worse.' 'I am sorry,' says another, 'that it no better.'

"One says: 'Our good is mixed with evil.' Another says: 'Our evil is mixed with good.'"

McIver Day.

The memorial service to the late Dr. C. D. McIver, previously announced to be held on the 11th, was postponed because of an announcement by State Superintendent Joyner that the usual North Carolina day observed once a year by the public schools will be changed this year to McIver day, and all the public schools throughout the State will observe it on the same date, in Dr. McIver's memory.

In Texas a mob of negroes lynched a negro for assaulting a sixteen year old girl of their race. They mean to do what they can to stop such crimes.

TOO MUCH BIG HEAD.

A Negro Teacher Tells What He Thinks is the Trouble With his Race.

To My Race, the Colored People of the South.

I have read of the heinous crimes committed by our people till I am sore and sick at heart, because no punishment can equal the crimes of such brutes.

We, as teachers and representatives of our people, are in tears, and feel ashamed of our history as a race, at least for the last ten or more years, for no honest person can truthfully say we have done our best along this line.

I therefore suggest that every decent person, male or female, do all in his or her power to ferret out and to make known to the officers of every commonwealth where crimes of such character are committed, the person or persons, and to hold and condemn those who fail to do likewise as accomplices, and if proven as such to be treated as the perpetrator. We as a race may expect to see riots more prolonged and bloody if this is not done, and justly so.

To remedy these evils, I would suggest:

First. Compulsory education for my people, for four months in the year, from 6 to 14 years; an enforcement of the vagrant law, and that teachers for the most part should be white people because they are more able to help in the civilization of our people, and a few colored teachers who have been brought up and trained under and by the Southern white people, because they are the only ones who properly understand our situation.

Second, I will add that Northern people, who are furnishing means and clothing for the educational advancement, along with Northern newspaper rot about things of which it is impossible for them to understand, are largely responsible for the bad conditions prevailing. Too much help has given big head and self-importance, which is the real cause of our condition.

Those Who Have to Register.

The registration books for the November election are now open and voters who are required to register will have until the 27th instant in which to do so. All voters who were registered and voted in the last general election, two years ago, and who have not changed their place of residence since that time will not need to register again. All persons who have come of age since the last election and those voters who have moved into another precinct, before July 6th, 1906, will be required to register before voting in the November election.

AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Hustling Town.

Ayden, N. C., Oct. 12, 1906.

Sergeant E. C. Flynn, stationed at Fortress Monroe, is here to see his father-in-law, B. F. Early, who is critically ill.

Mrs. Mason, who has been spending several days with the family of her father, J. T. Smith, Sr., has returned to her home near Whichard.

Tuesday evening after usual business of the meeting had been completed the Pythians repaired to Hotel Tripp where they partook of a fine oyster supper prepared for the occasion, cigars and other delicacies were enjoyed and the entire evening was a pleasant one.

Mack Taylor went to Scotland Neck yesterday.

Constable W. J. Hemby carried a crazy colored man to Greenville Monday and placed him in jail for safety.

Rev. Mr. Jones, of the Disciple church, has gone to Buffalo, N. Y. on a visit.

Miss Pauline Burnette has returned to her home in Oak City.

How attractive to some of our folks Kinston seems to be. They call it kinfolks, but somehow or other we have never felt the necessity of going to see our folks oftener than they seemed glad to see us. But we are free to admit there are some folks we would like to see oftener than we do who are not our kin, yet we feel it would be mighty nice if they were, and there are others than ourselves laboring under this apprehension who are striving zealously to add a new one to their relationship.

Raymond Turnage went to and returned from Kinston during the week.

Mrs. Susan Jackson, from near Winterville, is visiting her son, W. C. Jackson.

Leslie Turnage spent Thursday night with his parents at Ormondville.

We are glad to know that Mrs. J. S. Hart is improving.

The little infant of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Quinerly died Wednesday night and was buried at the family cemetery near St. John's.

H. M. Hardee, of Norfolk, was here Wednesday.

Why don't our business men come together and open a whole sale grocery store here, thereby keeping their profits at home.

Last Friday night our merchants all met in Jenkins hall, their object being to organize a chamber of commerce, J. J. Edwards was elected chairman, and J. R. Turnage secretary. After the meeting was called to order and object explained, it was suggested that the secretary write Norman H. Johnston, of Raleigh, to make a date when he could address the merchants here and organize them into a chamber of commerce. This is a long needed necessity here and we sincerely hope the movement will not be allowed to drop. Give us this and other good things will follow.

THE PASSING PEOPLE.

Names Caught at the Depot and Elsewhere Around Town.

Charles Skinner returned Thursday evening from a trip on the road.

Mrs. J. S. Barr, of Kinston, came over this morning to visit relatives.

C. S. Carr went to Ayden Thursday evening and returned this morning.

Miss Dell Clements, of Henderson, arrived Thursday evening to take charge of the school at Smithtown.

Mrs. W. T. Lipscomb left this morning for Raleigh to visit her daughter and attend the state fair next week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Dunn left this morning for Rocky Mount to attend the Primitive Baptist association [that meets near there.

Mrs. J. D. Murphy and children and W. W. Moore, of Asheville, arrived Thursday evening to attend the funeral of their sister, Mrs. J. W. Perkins.

The Lines Not His Own.

A paragraph has been going the rounds of the press referring to the following inscription, which, it is stated, was written by Mark Twain for the tombstone of his wife, in Woodlawn Cemetery, Elmira:

Warm summer sun,
Shine kindly here;
Warm Southern wind
Blow softly here,
Green sod above,
Lie light, lie light,
Good night, dear heart,
Good night, good night.

It appears that this statement is erroneous. The lines are favorite ones with Mr. Clemens, and when he had them engraved for his daughter's—not his wife's—gravestone he enclosed them in quotation marks to indicate that he was not the author of them. Who the writer is he does not know; but, as he says, the lines were to him touching and beautiful, and expressed what he felt better than any words of his own could have done.—Syracuse Herald.

Teachers' Association.

The first fall meeting of the Pitt County Teachers' Association will be held tomorrow in the chapel of the graded school building. An interesting program has been prepared and the election of officers will take place. The people of the town are cordially invited to attend the meeting and their presence will show their interest in the educational movement of the county.

Crop Selling Fast.

The tobacco market had the largest break of the week to-day. Sales have been lighter so far this month than last, indicating that the crop is being rapidly sold. Prices are very satisfactory, in many instances reaching high figures.

WHISKERS.

Once upon a time the clean shaven man used to be told that he looked like a groom. To tell him so at the present day would be, by implication, to insult Mr. Chamberlain, Winston Churchill and the bishop of London. Very similar, though in the opposite direction, has been the evolution of public opinion with regard to whiskers. At the time of the Crimean war they were the badge of the milliner and were the center of sentiment accordingly. One remembers a song, once popular, of which the refrain was, "The captain with his whisker cast a sly glance at me." To quote it is like calling up the ghost of a forgotten past. It reminds one no less of the modesty of the early Victorian maiden than of the lady killing propensities of the early Victorian warrior. Whiskers were one of the lady killer's weapons in those days, and it would seem from the sighs of our contemporary that when the hirsute circle is completed they may be made to serve that purpose yet again.—London Graphic.

AN EMERGENCY SPEECH.

It Soothed the Indians and Probably Saved General Gaines.

People often say very funny things in times of emergency. It was fortunate for the general whose conciliatory efforts are described in Mrs. Jefferson Davis' life of her husband, that the Indians with whom the men were dealing had no great sense of humor. Lieutenant Davis, then on the staff of General Gaines, had accompanied his superior officer to a conference with the chiefs of the Sac nation.

The council met in a tent. The warriors, decked with war paint and feathers, sat scowling and silent, their arms stacked near by. Seated with them was a dark old woman, shrunken to a mere skeleton, clothed in white woolen. She held herself with great majesty of mien.

The general began the council in a hesitating manner. He explained that it was necessary for the Indians to move on, for the white man must have the territory. At this the old squaw became greatly excited and began speaking with vehemence. She declared that the Sacs must die on their own hunting ground. The general showed considerable irritation at her tirade and spoke to the interpreter.

"Tell her—a—that—a—woman is not expected to interfere between the—a—white and Indian braves. She must be silent."

The squaw rose from her seat with great impressiveness and stretched her skinny arms above her head with a wild gesture.

"Does he say I am to be silent in the councils of my people? In these veins runs the blood of the last of the Sac King. It is my right to speak."

The chiefs rose about her, stirred by her words, gesticulating angrily. It was plain that trouble was at hand, and the Indians far outnumbered the whites.

The general calmly listened until the speech was interpreted. Then he rose, with a sweep of the hand, to command silence.

"Mr. Interpreter," he said, "tell her—a—that—a—my mother was—a woman."

This revelation brought grunts of satisfaction from the Indians, and the frankness of the statement pleased the old princess. Order was restored, and the council proceeded with the business in hand.

A Costly Joke.

A woman of Bochum, says a Vienna dispatch, wishing to give her young nephew, living in a neighboring town, a pleasant surprise, bought a little tablet of chocolate and posted it to him in an envelope marked "Value $25,000." The package, on account of its high declared value, attracted the notice of the postal authorities, who demanded $4 extra fee on delivery. The nephew, suspecting a hoax, refused the letter, which was duly returned to Bochum and the sender advised. The woman, half ashamed, declared that the envelope contained nothing of real value, but it was pointed out to her that the contents, whatever they might be, were declared to be worth $25,000 and she must pay. The poor woman signed the receipt, but then was told, to her dismay, that a double fee had been incurred owing to the return of the letter. She paid $8 without further complaint.

Chemistry, Practical and Theoretical.

"Young gentlemen," said the lecturer in chemistry, "coal exposed to the elements loses 10 per cent of its weight and heating power. This is due to the action of the alkali constituents of—"

"But what if there is a dog sleeping near the coal, professor?"

"None of your levity, young man. This is a serious matter."

"That's what father thought when 72 per cent of his coal pile disappeared during three nights of exposure. Then he asked my advice as a student of chemistry, and I told him to buy a dog. He bought a dog with bay window teeth and the stringhalt in his upper lip, and now we don't lose 1 per cent of our coal a month. That's the kind of a practical chemist I am. Now go on with your theory."

Jas F Davenport,

FATE AND ANDREW JACKSON.

What Going West, Not East, Meant to the Fugitive Lawyer.

During the young manhood of Andrew Jackson, when he rode the plains in Tennessee, knowing more than most of his brethren at the time, afraid of nothing on earth, he used to challenge to a duel some of the lawyers from the older settlements when that lawyer trespassed upon his own preserves and made fun of his ignorance—as Andrew all averred—thus holding his ground and that all corners, and he had a lance and partly by accident and partly by design, he was probably more to be feared than he ever was in a duel.

From court to court he rode his race horse, pistols in holsters, carrying his gun and his pack of hounds, ready for the shooting, ready for the horse race, ready for the house raising and for anything else he was ready to go out himself and drag into the courthouse the desperado whom the sheriff feared to arrest.

Rough and tumble times these were in backwoods Tennessee, with rude and lawless elements boiling and bubbling in that inevitable period of unrest and struggle which prevails in border settlements before the community takes form and everybody smugly congratulates everybody else on the "reign of law and order."

In just such a state of society young Jackson was peculiarly fitted to lead, dominate and prosper.

Had he gone eastward instead of westward, had he cast in his lot with the lawyers that were striving for advancement in the cities of the original thirteen seaboard states, nothing is more certain than that the world would never have heard of him.

His lack of knowledge of the law would have made him easy prey to those who were masters of this profession. His fiery temper would have kept him constantly in battle with them, and in fighting these lawyers who got the better of him in the cities of the east he would, in the nature of things, have met the same fate as that of John Watson.

Two Famous Kisses.

History has taken notice of some famous kisses. There was that which Queen Margaret gave to Alain Chartier over 300 years ago, the memory of which is fresh in the minds of men if not on their lips. Chartier was a poet, but he was the ugliest man personally in all "the sunny land of France." The queen, with her maids, one day found him asleep and, bending over him, kissed his dreaming lips. Turning to her maids, she prettily said: "I kiss not the man. I kiss the soul that sings."

Two centuries later Voltaire, another Frenchman and also a poet, was publicly kissed in the stage box of the theater by the young and lovely Countess de Villars, but in his case the lady gave the kiss not as a voluntary tribute to genius, but in obedience to the commands of the claqué in the pit, who, mad with enthusiasm for the poet's "Merope," bade her kiss him.

Perpetual Motion.

Some experimenter every now and then tries to persuade himself and the public that he has discovered perpetual motion. Now, perpetual motion means the motion of a machine or a device that would continue forever or until it wore out without the aid of any force external to itself. A machine of this kind is an impossibility. Friction and the resistance of the air are constantly opposing the action of machinery, and as matter, on account of what is called inertia, cannot generate power that will make up for this loss every machine must in time come to rest, unless some external force, such as wind, water or steam, keeps acting on it. Perpetual motion is, therefore, impossible.—Chicago News.

Baited the Wrong Fish.

It happens sometimes that the cure is worse than the disease. It was in the case of the mother who tried to break her little Theodore of the habit of taking sweets off the sideboard. "We often have bonbons when there are guests to luncheon," she said, "and although Theodore promises not to touch them he always does."

"You might do as I did in the same circumstances," suggested the neighbor, smiling reminiscently.

"What did you do?"
"I carefully removed the inside filling from a chocolate drop and stuffed the shell with red pepper."

"Did it work?"
"It might have worked," replied the neighbor, "if Johnny had happened to spy it. As it was, I forgot all about it in the press of other matters, and at dinner time the guest of the evening got it."

Conscientious.

At a cricket match, Married versus Single, the former took first innings, and chiefly by the aid of some blind hits by one of the players, named Jones, made a score of 84. Just as the bachelors were about to commence their innings, news of a local railway accident, in which some of the passengers had been killed, reached the field.

"I'm in a bit of a quandary," said Jones to the curate who had organized the match. "My missus was in that train."

"Don't worry, I'm sorry to hear it," was the reply. "You are anxious to get away, of course?"

"Well, no, sir. It isn't that. I was only thinking if anything has happened to my Mary I ought to be playing for the single chaps."—London Queen.

DANGER OF INDIFFERENCE.

There is danger of indifference on the part of Democrats in this county in the coming election. The Republicans are openly admitting that they have no hope of winning, but this may be only a blind. By such admission they hope to create indifference on the part of Democrats and cause them to think there is no use in going to the polls when the ticket is going to be elected anyway. At the same time it is well known that the Republicans are doing everything possible to rally their own forces and to get new followers. Every voter among them is going to the polls in order to make their vote as large as possible, and if Democrats are indifferent and stay at home on election day it may result disastrously to the party. This is what the Republicans are hoping for. If they should come in power again and get control of the election laws every negro who applies will be registered, and his name once on the registration books there will never be a way to get it off. There has been an example of this on a small scale right here in Greenville where by chance a Republican was registrar in one of the wards and put the names of many negroes on the registration books.

Democrats must not be indifferent. Every man of them should go the polls and vote on election day. If you stay at home you may have cause to regret it.

The president has begun work on his next message to congress. Wonder if he will use his his new fangled ideas of spelling in it.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

(By an occasional contributor.)

In view of the world happenings that have been taking up newspaper space, it probably is just as well that Mr. Wellman decided to postpone his trip to the pole till next season.

The bank depositors do not agree with that doctor's statement, that President Stensland ought to have taken a long vacation a year ago. They think they would have been better off if he had taken it ten years ago.

On being interviewed on his views about the political situation in New York, ex-president Cleveland replied that he understood the trout were biting fine in the upper lakes.

THE WORLD'S WHEAT CROP.

The London Economist asserts that "the world's cereal harvest of 1905 cannot fail to prove one of the greatest ever produced." The wheat crop is above the average in the north of France, but it has suffered from drought in the south and west. France will need to import very little if any wheat. Spain has reaped a good harvest generally, while Germany has good crops of barley and oats as well as of wheat and rye. Austria-Hungary will produce a much larger wheat crop this year than last. In Russia the winter wheat crop has been officially reported to be a good one, while the more important spring wheat crop is poor in all but a few provinces. Roumania is now expected to produce a record wheat crop, and Serbia and Bulgaria have good crops. The Canadian wheat harvest will not prove very abundant. India's wheat crop harvested last spring was the greatest but one ever known.

Handling Live Wires.

As an experienced motorman I should like to tell of a simple way in which the life of the motorman who was killed by the third rail the other day could probably have been saved. If the conductor or guards had taken a newspaper (which is an easy article to get) and used it as a glove or mitten they could have dragged the man from under the car as soon as they reached him, which would have saved some little time in waiting for a rope. I have sometimes in running surface cars torn down overhead wires and by using a newspaper (or any paper) and folding three or four thicknesses picked up the live wire and fastened it around a pole or a fence. I am convinced that paper can be used safely in such emergencies and may in future be the means of saving life.—New York Times

Night Air.

In the old times people had an idea that the night air was noxious. They shut their windows before going to bed, under the impression that it was better to breathe the same air over and over than to have fresh air when the sun was down. That notion still survives in some regions, but it is disappearing, and now comes an Englishman—a lecturer at the Institute of Hygiene in London—who declares that night air is purer and more beneficial than the air breathed during the day. He urges people to take their walks at night as much as possible, instead of going out when the sun is blazing and the microbes holding high revel and even regrets that it isn't practicable to have children take their outdoor recreation at midnight.

The Way of Lightning.

A correspondent of Nature remarks that the now known facts seem to require a modification of the statement found in some text books that "it is impossible to say whether a flash of lightning moves from a cloud to the earth or in the opposite direction." Many photographs of lightning taken in the Transvaal show that, in all cases, the discharges were from cloud to cloud or from the clouds to the earth. Quite frequently, the correspondent says, he has observed lightning flashes leaving a cloud for the earth, but fading away before reaching it. The opposite phenomenon has not been observed.

To Make a White Flower Red.

Changing a white flower into a red one is a performance suitable for the garden or the drawing room. The dry petals of a white rose or any other flower must be first delicately and as far as possible uniformly sprinkled with aniline crystals. The rose should be shaken so as to leave as little as possible visible. What then is will be only a fine speck. By bringing to play a spray of eau de cologne or spirit from a vaporizer—those with a finger ring enable the delicate flower to be promptly suffused with a crimson blush.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statements. What they do claim, is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pains in the stomach and bowels and has never been known to fail. For sale by J. L. Wooten.
