FIFTY-SEVEN DROWN IN ELECTRIC CARS.

Train Dives Near Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 28—The wrecking of a three-coach electric train on the West Jersey & Seashore Railroad this afternoon, at least 50 passengers perished and the list may reach the total of 75 when all is known.

While crossing over a draw-bridge spanning the waterway known as "the Thoroughfare," which separates Atlantic City from the mainland, the train left the track and plunged into the water. The passengers in the first two coaches, with one or two exceptions, were drowned. Up to mid-night 25 bodies have been recovered and it is believed that at least 25, and possibly 50, more bodies still are in the submerged coaches.

The disaster, the worst that has happened since the terrible Meadow wreck of July 30, 1896, occurred at half-past 2 o'clock this afternoon. The train, made up of three heavy coaches, which left Camden at 1 o'clock in the afternoon carried at least 88 passengers, as that number of tickets are held by the conductor. That official is uncertain, however, just how many passengers were on the train, and until all the bodies have been taken from the submerged cars, it will not be possible to give the true figures of the dead.

1906—YEAR OF DISASTERS.

The present year will go down into history as a period of great disasters. Nature has been on a rampage, so to speak, and the consequent destruction of life and property has been enormous. The eruption of Vesuvius, the earthquakes which wrecked San Francisco and Valparaiso, the typhoons which have raged through the China seas, the storms which have devastated the countries of the Caribbean sea and the Gulf of Mexico—these are but a few of the unusual manifestations of natural energy which have afflicted the world.

In the midst of all these things humanity stands helpless. This is the lesson of these disasters—that while man has made gigantic strides in science and art and literature, while discovery and there seems to be no limit to inventive genius no one has yet been able to harness or direct the tremendous forces of nature. We can predict storms, but we cannot control them; we can register the occurrences of earthquakes, but we cannot protect ourselves against them. Perhaps some of these days the intelligence of man will rise superior to these material things, and the power of will be greater than the movement of matter. It is, however, very doubtful. The probability is that as long as time shall last the forces of nature will continue to manifest themselves in utter disregard of human life or comfort.

It has been the dream of imaginative minds to picture man as the supreme controller of the universe. Bulwer Lytton's "The Coming Age" hinted at such a consummation, and more recent writers have dwelt upon the subject with evident delight. In the meantime, we stand helpless and appalled while nature wreaks destruction on sea and land. Beside these manifestations of its tremendous energy, the human being, despite his intellectual greatness, becomes a mere pygmy. He must bow in humble spirit before a power which scorns to call him master. —Washington Herald,

MISS BLANCHE PICKERT, WITH THE FOUR PICKERT CO.

The Four Pickert Co.

The Four Pickert Co. who were here some time ago have made arrangements with the Masonic Temple opera house management and will appear here on three nights, with all new plays, commencing Monday, Oct. 5th, opening with the 4-act Southwestern drama, "Oklahoma." This piece was presented in Raleigh during fair week by this company and received good press notice.

Happiness.

It's a mere habit. Some people have it by nature. The rest of us have to cultivate it.

It's hard work, but it can be done.

It means forgetting injuries and hurts and neglects.

It means refusing to permit your mind to dwell on anything that causes worry and sorrow.

It means resolutely swinging your thoughts to brighter things.

It means to put aside the past and live in today, with no fret about tomorrow.

Odd Fellows Take Notice.

Covenant Lodge invites you to be present tonight. Work in the initiatory degree, and a pleasant evening for all. Our meetings are beneficial to every Odd Fellow. See if you can't make it a point to be present.

WANTED—A BRITISH SENATE.

The chances are that, however warily the peers try to evade the decisive issue, the collision will come between the two principles of hereditary legislation and popular representative government. When that time arrives, and it may be nearer at hand than we imagine, we may look forward to a gradual transformation of the hereditary chamber into a senate of notables. The liberals are more or less pledged not to create new hereditary peerages. But by a judicious selection of bachelors and childless men, a number of life peers have been introduced who will steadily increase permeate the upper house with a liberal element. At present we have practically no senate, no chamber of revision.

In the House of Lords we have only a party caucus which says "ditto" to every decision of the House when the Tories happen to have a majority and which not less automatically says "veto" to every measure brought forward by the House of Commons when their Liberals are in the ascendant. What is wanted is an assembly of experienced and capable men representing all parts of the empire who could act as a competent and dispassionate senate. No one nowadays demands the ending of the Lords. But of its mending, and that in right drastic fashion, there is indeed most urgent need.—From "The House of Lords, Past, Present and Future," by W. T. Stead, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for November.

Today suited almost everybody for as weather goes.

AYDEN ITEMS.

Notes of Interest From a Husband Town.

Ayden, N. C., Oct. 30, 1906.

Miss Julia Bready, who has been spending the summer at her old home in Adamstown, Md. came back to Ayden last Thursday and will remain through the winter. Her many friends are delighted to have her with them again.

We were mistaken in our last items as to the death of Dr. M. M. Sauls' sister at Black Creek. It was an error in the telegram.

Miss Reba Stokes left here on the train yesterday morning.

Great Scott! is Ayden to go into outer darkness, where there must be wailing, stumping of toes, breaking of necks and great calamities among the people? Good Lord deliver us! The way of the transgressor may yet lead us into ways and dangers that are frightful and breakers of bones. Help us brethren!

Claude Manning, while driving across Swift Swamp yesterday, met with the accident of having a pole across the road to fly up and stick into the body of his horse inflicting a very serious wound.

L. C. Bell and wife, of Kinston, have been here on a visit to their daughter, Mrs. J. T. Smith, Jr.

Mrs. Blanche Weeks is visiting in Scotland Neck.

Mrs. Ben Smith attended the association of the Primitive Baptists at Wilson last week.

W. C. Jackson came home Friday from Newbern where he has been in attendance upon the Federal court as a juror.

Miss Emma Palmer, of Hookerton, spent last Thursday night here with Miss Ida W. Edwards and left on the train Friday morning for Littleton where she will visit friends.

There were regular services in the Free Will Baptist church Sunday.

There was a fine crowd here Saturday to hear the speeches of Hons. J. Bryan Grimes, F. G. James and Harry Whedbee. The gentlemen were well prepared for the occasion and their speeches were of the highest order and were of effect. Every one can rest assured that next Tuesday old Contentnea will do her duty. She has never failed in her loyalty to the Democratic party and never will. It is just simply ridiculous to talk otherwise.

Rev. W. E. Cox, of Greenville, conducted divine services at the Episcopal church here Sunday evening.

Rev. R. H. Jones has returned from his visit to Buffalo, N. Y.

J. L. Hobgood, Esq., and family from the country spent Sunday night with J. R. Smith.

Nice cement walks are being laid in front of the new brick store.

J. A. Harrington will move from Lee street to Third street near the Methodist church, Joe Gordon will move on Main street near the graded school, and James Jones to the home now occupied by Mr. Harrington. All good folks.

ON THE MOVE.

Names of People Caught Passing.

C. W. Harvey went to Parmele today.

F. L. Castex, of Goldsboro, was here today.

Miss Lillie Bennett went to Ayden this morning.

J. S. Joyner, of Baltimore, has been in town a few days.

James and Frank Perkins left Monday evening for Tarboro.

Mrs. G. W. Cox went to Ayden this morning to attend the funeral of her son.

Misses Eula and Clyde Cox went to Ayden this morning to attend the funeral of their brother.

Dr. W. H. Bagwell returned Monday from Washington where he had been undergoing treatment in the hospital.

Dr. J. W. Perkins left this morning for Raleigh, to arrange for placing his two little boys in school.

AYDEN POSTMASTER SUICIDES.

Mr. E. V. Cox Takes His Life With Pistol.

Ayden, N. C. Oct. 30.—This town was shocked and greatly saddened last night when it was learned that Mr. E. Victor Cox, our efficient and obliging postmaster, had taken his own life.

Mr. Cox completed his usual duties in the postoffice after the arrival of the evening mail and closed the office about 9 o'clock. Later he went through the telephone office that occupied a part of the same building handed the postoffice keys to the operator and passed on to his sleeping room in the rear of the telephone office. As he was passing through, the operator asked if he wanted the lights turned on, but Mr. Cox replied that it was unnecessary as he would be in only a few minutes.

Shortly after he got in his room there was a report of a pistol followed by the sound of a body falling on the floor. The alarmed telephone operator rushed out for assistance, and a physician and several friends hurried to Mr. Cox's room. They found him lying dead upon the floor with a pistol ball wound near his heart and the weapon with which his life had been taken lying near his body. The body was moved to the Pythian lodge room where it was prepared for burial and remained until 2 o'clock this afternoon when the funeral took place.

Mr. E. Victor Cox was a son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Cox, now residents of Greenville, and beside the aged parents is survived by one brother, and two sisters, Misses Eula and Clyde Cox, of Greenville. He represented Pitt county in the legislatures of 1895-97. He served as postmaster here the last several years, and discharged the duties of the office with marked fidelity. He was both a Pythian and Odd Fellow and was buried with the honors of both orders. There was an unusually large attendance at the funeral, showing the esteem in which he was held by our people.

Until a government official arrives the postoffice is in charge of the bondsmen and Mr. E. G. Cox, brother of the deceased.

Sale of Blooded STOCK.

A Rare opportunity by the Farmers of this Section to get improved stock at common Stock Prices.

On Wednesday November 14th, 1906 I will offer for sale at my farm, three miles West of Greenville on the Tarboro road about 150 head of high bred hogs, about 20 young steers some of them ready broketo work, and a few choice young bullocks of the Red Pole and Polled Angus breed. I will also sell some very fine farm mules. Only reason for selling mules is I want to replace them with mares for breeding. I am ordering this sale of improved stock simply as an experiment and if the farmers will buy this stock at anything like fair prices my purpose in future is to have an annual sale of improved stock. Here is a rare opportunity to get especially fine gilts, either of the Berkshire or Polland China blood, for common stock prices and the stock will be offered for sale in such a manner that every one rich or poor, can have the same chance to purchase. In other words you can buy one or as many more as you like. Let everyone interested in this branch of farming attend this sale.

Lowered the Fee.
At a certain church it is the pleasing custom at a marriage for the clergyman to kiss the bride after the ceremony. A young lady who was engaged to be married in the church and not wish the prospect and future of her prospective husband when making arrangements to tell the clergyman that she did not wish him to kiss her. The young bridegroom did as directed.
"Well, George," said the young lady when he appeared, "did you tell the clergyman that I did not wish him to kiss me?"
"Oh, yes."
"And what did he say?"
"He said that in that case he would charge only half the usual fee."—London Telegraph.

Not in Time.
Mabel—My dearest Olga, I could not rest until I had come and made an effort to dispel the gloomy thoughts which, to judge from your letter yesterday, threatened to develop into melancholia. "This true Alfred has jilted you—the wretch. Still, try to make a sensible girl and look out for another engagement."
Olga—Your advice comes too late, darling.
"Good gracious, Olga! You surely haven't taken poison?"
"Well, yes; the first is, I— became engaged again yesterday."

Is a white lie ever justified? That at least some people believe it has no excuse is proved by the following tale: An ancient rabbi came to a city where all the people were truthful, married one of the inhabitants, had two children and prospered. One day a neighbor called when the rabbi's wife was washing her head, and the rabbi, going to the door, was seized by false modesty and said that she had gone out. Thereupon both of his children died, and, as no one died in that city before reaching old age, the neighbors made inquiries, the rabbi confessed what he had done and was ordered to leave the city immediately.

FISH IN ITALY.

Octopus, Sea Robin, Sea Spider and Skate Used For Food.

"The fish had a peculiar but agreeable taste," said a globe trotter. "Its flesh was a little tough and elastic. That, though, I didn't mind. I rather like it, as one likes the elastic toughness of a clam."

He was describing a dinner in Rome. He went on:

"Gorgio, I said to the waiter, 'what kind of fish is this?'"

"Fried octopus, signor," Gorgio answered calmly.

"I ate no more. Fried octopus! The idea! I'd as soon have eaten fried rattlesnake."

"I found that in Italy and in southern France the octopus makes a popular dish. And after that, taking a deep interest in the Roman fish stalls, I found on sale a number of sea things that we consider harmful and disgusting."

"The sea robin, for instance. His body is like a catfish's in shape. In color it is speckled and ugly, frog-like, brown and black. And it has a pair of brown wings. Well, this fish, which we always throw overboard, the Roman dealers get 3 cents apiece for."

"The sea spider. It looks like a great spider, and it is covered with black slime. You catch it when you go crabbing, and, with a cry of disgust, you toss it overboard again—a round, black body, from which a dozen jointed, restless tentacles ray. But the sea spider is a cherished dish in Italy."

"Do you know the skate? A flat, round body, with a long, slim tail—one side of the body white, and here a grotesque parody of the human face is seen—two eyes, nose, mouth. The skate is a horror to look at, and an American would as soon eat rat; but in Italy big, pale skates are on sale at every fish stall."

"You will not believe it, but it is a fact that there are even certain types of jelly fish that the Italians eat."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statement. What they do claim, is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pain in the stomach and bowels, and has never been known to fail. For sale by J. L. Wooten.

A LION STORY.

Tragic Experience With One of the African Man Eaters.

"Many years ago," says a writer, "before the arrival of the railway and the sportsman in east Africa, the natives were decimated by lions. It was impossible in some districts to procure mail carriers. Appalling stories are still related of the fearless ferocity of these beasts. The railway was building at Kin. Several coolies had been carried off by an old lion, and one night Ryall, an English engineer who had seen much service in India, decided to sit up in a railway carriage on the chance of getting a shot. With him were Mr. Huebner, the German consul, and an Italian, Parenti. The night was dark, with but little moon, and after midnight Ryall commented upon the brightness of the fireflies near the carriage and also remarked that he had seen a rat ~~run~~ ~~across~~ a spot where the steel rails glowed in the moonlight.

"But the supposed fireflies were the luminous eyes of the lion, he waited for, and the rat was the slow movement of his tail. If Ryall had recognized this, his life would have been saved. Tired of their vigil toward the morning, the three watchers went to sleep, Huebner on the upper berth, the two others below. The carriage was the ordinary sleeping carriage familiar to Indian travelers, with a lavatory beyond the couches. An hour had passed, the party was asleep, when the lion jumped into the carriage and seized Ryall, while in a moment Parenti had slipped into the lavatory and closed the door.

"The movements of the lion, or more probably, his weight thrown on one side, caused the door by which he had entered the car to close. Thus Huebner's experience was most terrible. The rifles were below, and on the upper berth he remained while the lion killed Mr. Ryall within three feet of him. After a few awful minutes the great beast jumped out through the window with Ryall's body in its mouth."—Chicago News.

PROF. RAGSDALE FOR STATE SUPERINTENDENT.

The North Eastern District Association of county superintendents of schools, embracing twenty two counties, while in session at Windsor, last week, adopted a resolution endorsing Prof. W. H. Ragsdale, of Pitt county, to succeed Prof. J. Y. Joyner as State superintendent, in case the latter is elected president of the Normal and Industrial College and accepts that position.

Such endorsement of Prof. Ragsdale is most timely. There is not a man in North Carolina better qualified to succeed Prof. Joyner and fill the office of State superintendent acceptably. He has spent twenty six years as a successful teacher and for fifteen years been superintendent of schools in Pitt county. The marvelous advance the schools of this county have made under his management are as high endorsement of his ability as any man could receive.

Prof Ragsdale is one the State's leading educators, and the work he has done in his own county and his interest in the teachers' assemblies, the State association of superintendents, the summer schools and his connection with the State sub-text book commission have given him a reputation that extends from the mountains to the sea.

If Prof. Joyner is elected and accepts the presidency of the college, we believe ninety per cent of the county superintendents of the State would favor Prof. Ragsdale for State superintendent. His knowledge of school work throughout the State qualifies him for entering upon the duties of the office and keeping up the high standard of educational progress. He is the man who should succeed Prof. Joyner.

One matter that may come before the board of aldermen at its next meeting will be the use of fire works during the coming Christmas. There is a license tax for the sale of fire works in town and also an ordinance prohibiting the shooting of fireworks in town, but heretofore the ordinance has been suspended for a day or two at Christmas. Of course in suspending the ordinance the burden of responsibility for any damage that may result is on the town. As to the license tax the dealer in town has to pay, there is some complaint over this, too, as there are stores outside of the town, yet within reach, that can sell without license and thus have the advantage of the dealer in town. The fire works question is a knotty one from every standpoint. It might be best for the town not to suspend the ordinance at all.

The president says that he and Hughes stand in the same boat. He is for him first, last and all the time.

With Bryan for Hearst and Roosevelt for Hughes they both feel like they are going to get it.

LAZARS OF THE TONGUE

Some of the Speeches That Have Been Made

That man made a mistake that had better have been left unsaid who, when the king found some fault with the earl marshal for some details of the coronation ceremony, replied, "Please, your majesty, I hope it will be better next time." Lord Orford tells the following, which he characterizes as the best "bull" he ever heard: "I hate that woman," said a gentleman, looking at one who had been his nurse. "I hate that woman, for she changed me at nurse." A gentleman was once complimenting Mme. Denis on the manner in which she had just enacted the part of Zara. "To act that part," said she, "a person should be young and handsome." "Ah, madam," replied the would be complimenter, "you are a complete proof to the contrary," which was a faux pas with a vengeance. It was at an execution in Ireland that the rope broke and the half hanged victim fell to the ground, when the person who was superintending the execution said, "You rascal, if you do that again I'll kill you as sure as you breathe."

It was an Irish mayor who issued a proclamation stating that certain business would be transacted in that city "except Monday" (Easter Sunday only excepted), which is capped by the preamble of an English bill which ordained that certain regulations should take place "on every Monday" (Tuesday excepted), while an English mayor ran this close in a proclamation, and an advertisement relating to some forthcoming races, wherein it was stated that "no gentleman will be allowed to ride on the course but the horses that are to run."

Another "bull" of the legislature which actually found its way on to the statute book was that in which in amending an old act it was ordained in the event of conviction that of the fine of 40 shillings, half was to go to the king and half to the informer. In the amending act this was altered to "40 strokes with the birch, half to go to the king and half to the informer," which only tends to show that the draftsmen of the laws of the nation are not always as careful as they might or should be. Of course, perhaps, the poor things are overworked or tired.

Shakespeare has been guilty of more than one literary "bull," one of his best being in the first portion of "Henry IV," wherein the carrier complains that "the turkeys in his panniers are quite starved," the phrase occurring in the fifth scene of the second act, whereas turkeys came from America, and the new world was not even discovered for a century later. Again, in the first scene of the fifth act of "Henry V," wherein Gower is made to say to Fluellen, "Here comes Pistol, smiling like a turkeycock," all of which proves the appositeness of the remark that even Homer sometimes nods, as Shakespeare did in these and other instances. Many others could be deduced, but the above examples will suffice.

Going a step higher, we find the lord lieutenant of Ireland of a former day equally at fault in his language, for in a proclamation issued from the council chamber of Dublin we find it set forth that "whereas, the greatest economy is necessary in the consumption of all species of grain and especially in the consumption of potatoes," etc. Mr. Grey tells of a lawyer who in an action for assault and battery informed the judge that "the defendant beat his client with a certain wooden instrument called an iron pipe."—London Standard.

A Legend Recounted
One night Paganini was going to the Paris opera house, where he was to astonish every one by playing on one string. Being late, he took a cab, and when he arrived at his destination the cabby wanted 10 francs. "What," he exclaimed, "you are crazy. I have only had you five minutes." "I know it is only five minutes," said the other, "but for you it is a fortune by playing on one string, it must be 10 francs." "No," said Paganini, handing him the 10 franc fare, "when you can make your cabbie go on one wheel come to me and I will give you 10 francs."—La Caricaturista.

HABITS OF THE SHAD.

Interesting Facts About Its Incoming From the Sea.

The shad spends part of its life at sea and part of it in fresh water. At the approach of the spawning season it comes in from the sea and seeks the fresh water streams to spawn. At the close of this season it goes to sea again, there to remain until the spawning season again returns.

It is not known absolutely whether the shad remains in deep water in the ocean off the approach of the river whence it came or whether in winter it goes south into warmer waters; but it is commonly believed that when the shad returns from whatever point at sea it may to fresh water it comes back to the river in which it was born; but a percentage of the shad do not return. It may be a great percentage.

It is certainly the expectation when shad fry are placed in such a river as the Hudson that the young fish which survive and go to sea will return to the Hudson. Here the shores of Long Island and New Jersey would serve as a great funnel to guide the fish, if they needed guidance, to the opening to the bay and river.

It is not supposed, however, that the shad of a river basin, like that of Chesapeake bay, for example, return each group to its own particular stream. In Chesapeake bay shad would come in from the sea together, but once inside the bay they would be likely to seek each the most convenient of the streams emptying into it.

Shad have sometimes been caught in New York bay in the early part of the season with the roe much advanced. These may be simply individual cases of early maturity in shad belonging here. Shad correspondingly late have been caught here. Roe shad have been taken in the bay as late as August, but generally the shad come in with the roe in the condition that might be expected in fish that knew where they were going and when they were going to get there, and fishermen incline to think of the early shad with the advanced roe that it is one that from some cause, perhaps stress of weather, has overrun its river.

That the shad does not always seek its own river is plainly shown on the Pacific coast, where the shad is not native, but was introduced from the east. Shad were planted there chiefly in the Sacramento river, but they have now spread all along the coast, as far north as southern Alaska. There is, however, along the Pacific coast a cold current which the shad does not seek to pass. It is found in the bays and estuaries and can be caught the year round, and the natural barrier that prevents its making an offing has doubtless led to its general movement along the coast.—New York Sun.

A Time of Suspense.

A traveler in Pennsylvania arrived late one night at a small village hotel and asked for a room. He was told that the only vacant one was next to that of a very nervous man whom he must be careful not to disturb. After going to his room the newcomer thoughtlessly let fall one of his shoes, then, recalling the warning he had received, placed the other very carefully on the floor. He had put out the light and retired when there was a knock on his door. Opening it, he faced the nervous occupant of the adjoining room, who demanded excitedly:

"Why in thunder don't you take off that other shoe?"

To Avoid Getting Stung.

A beekeeper of New Hampshire was showing a city man his apiary. The hives were ranged in line on the side of a mountain and the air was sweet with the smell of clover, pine trees, carnations.

A bee lit on the keeper's hand angrily, and the man held his breath.

"Bees can't sting you if you hold your breath," he said afterward. "To hold the breath closes the pores of the skin, or something like that. At any rate, if a bee goes for you hold your breath and I'll guarantee you won't be stung, though the bee jabs its sting at you till the thing breaks."
