A Long Root.

An Irishman with one jaw very much swollen from a tooth that he wished to have pulled, entered the office of a Washington dentist.

When the suffering Celt was put into the chair and saw the gleaming forceps approaching his face, he positively refused to open his mouth. Being a man of resource, the dentist quietly instructed his assistant to push a into the patient's leg, so that when the Irishman opened his mouth to yell the dentist could get at the refractory molar.

When all was over, the dentist smilingly asked:

"It didn't hurt as much as you expected, did it?"

"Well, no," reluctantly admitted the patient. "But," he added, as he ran his hand over the place into which the assistant had inserted the pin, "little did I think them roots went that far down.—Success.

Beit and Marriage.

Beit, the South African Croesus who died not long ago, was said to be much averse to the marriage of young men in his employ. At one time his secretary asked for a holiday to get married. Mr. Beit replied: "If you get married I shan't want your services any more. You can't serve me as I want to be served and you can't look after your wife as you ought to if you serve me properly. Come in later and let me know what you are going to do." Next day the secretary explained that he had determined to wed. His services were dispensed with then and there, but just before the wedding Mr. Beit sent for him and wished him success and handed him an envelope, not to be opened until after the wedding. It contained a check for $5,000 and a note admiring the young man's courage.—London Truth.

Striking a Match.

King Edward once said that he spent the most exciting and nervous moment of his life on a prairie in Canada when he visited that country as a youth. He was in no danger of being scalped by a red Indian or eaten by wolves or gored by a madman or bitten by a rattlesnake. His anxiety and nervousness were simply due to his effort to light a match. The prince and his party were miles away from human habitation; they wanted to smoke and had only one match between them. They were cast as to who should strike it. The lot fell on the prince, and with great difficulty he managed to get the light which was to carry them with fire till their return to civilization.

New Use For Cocaine.

In his charge to the Warren county grand jury Judge Rush drew attention to the alleged doping with cocaine of roustabouts by steamboat mates. The judge stated that it had come to his ears that the mates carried a supply of the deadly drug, which they gave to the negroes in liberal doses. When stimulated by the drug the roustabout's capacity for work is greatly increased, but by the time the trip is ended he is a physical and mental wreck.—Mobile Register.

A Whistler Retort.

"At Point Aven, in Brittany," said a New York painter, "I met Mortimer Menpes, who is chiefly famous for his friendship with Whistler. 'Whistler,' Menpes said, 'was not a conceited man. He was a joker. As jokes, not as serious speeches, most of his remarks were to be taken.' Thus a lady said one day to Whistler, 'Do you think, Mr. Whistler, that genius is hereditary?' 'I can't tell you, madam,' Whistler replied. 'Heaven has granted me no offspring.'"

FOUND PURSE.

It Fell in Good Hands and was Returned to Owner.

Mr. Jesse Speight was returning from Washington, Saturday evening and as he was about to get off of Capt. Ellsworth's train at Parmele, picked up a purse in the aisle. The purse contained $60. Mr. Speight reported the matter to Capt. Ellsworth and asked him to make inquiry for the owner. This Capt. Ellsworth did on his way back to Washington and found that Mr. H. S. Congleton, of Whichard, who was returning home from Baltimore and changed cars at Parmele, had lost the purse. Mr. Congleton came over to Greenville today for the purse and was very glad that it had fallen into good hands.

Worth Considering.

Great care should be exercised by the property owner who is going to buy paint to secure the best and most economical paint, as often big claims are made for inferior paints. A poor paint of inferior paint is a mere stimulant like a treacherous expensive narcotic which gives only temporary relief to the home, while Town and Country Paint is a perfectly pure paint the result of over 100 years of good paint-making experience and obtainable at the right price from Baker & Hart who are estimated to be the largest distributors of exclusively high grade paints in the State. If your house suffers for the need of paint write them for color card or see them at once.

Good Showing.

The second series of stock in The Home Building and Loan Association began Saturday with nearly 400 shares taken and others spoken for. The first series has nearly 1,000 shares in operation. This is a fine showing for an association six months old.

Diphtheria.

Two houses in town are quarantined for diphtheria. They are the homes of R. F. Windham, on Elizabeth street and J. C. West, on Sulton Lane.

The 4 Pickerts.

This splendid company arrived Sunday evening and will begin a three nights' engagement in the opera house tonight. They will open with "Oklahoma," a thrilling play with plenty of fine specialties between the acts.

Mr. E. T. B. Glenn Dead.

Macon, Ga., Nov. 3.—E. T. B. Glenn, traveling auditor of the Central Railway and brother of Gov. R. B. Glenn, of North Carolina, died at his home on Bond street this morning in his 48th year. He had been ill several weeks. A mother and four children survives him, besides his brother, R. B. Glenn. Gov. Glenn will be present at the funeral. He was here several days this week and had gone back home after a supposed rally of his brother. The funeral will probably take place tomorrow.

Election tomorrow.

Masons meet tonight.

AT HOME.

Friday Afternoon From 4 to 7.

Mrs. James Burton Cherry held an informal reception for the purpose of presenting her son's wife to friends of the family in our town. Mr. J. B. Cherry, Jr. and Miss Scott were married in the early summer, but have only a few days since returned to their home in Greenville.

There was a steady stream of callers within the hours designated, and hearty good wishes for the young couple were heard on all sides. There were no flowers, no music, no decorations of any kind because of the shadow of family bereavement that still fell athwart the threshold of the handsome home.

Refreshments were served in excellent taste and style, and the fashionably dressed callers moved from room to room in social converse until the limit of time was reached, when renewed wishes for a long and happy life were uttered in earnest good will for the occupants, old and new, of the honored home.

When Ma is Due in Oklahoma.

The way in which one Oklahoma editor announced that his mother was coming to visit him may seem a trifle breezy, but it's pretty safe to say that away down in her heart "ma" was prouder than forty queens. This is the way he did it:

"The editor of the News-Republican is going to tog up a little this evening. Going to change collars and put on a pair of cuffs, if he can find any. Going to get shaved and going to get our shoes shined and the pegs cut out, so we can walk right peartly. Ma's a-comin' down to see us. You know who ma is. Ma is our only ma, and she's a good one, too—one of the old Old Quaker sort, you know. Ma lives in Ingfisher. She was our ma when we were born; she was our ma out in western Kansas when we hunted prairie coal, she was our ma when we drank parched corn coffee in old Oklahoma in '89 and she's our ma now. If you see us tomorrow waving down the street with a little woman with a little smile on her face you'll know that's ma. If you never had a ma you should get one—and one like our ma, too."

Preacher in Logical Tangle.

The manner in which questions of "Higher Criticism" are to be settled has been announced by the Rev. John Ross Straton, of Chicago, who told the 200 ministers that woman's belief in the inspiration of the Bible was a sufficient refutation of the rationalist's conclusions. "You never saw a destructive critic," said Mr. Straton "in feminine form, for a woman gets her knowledge by intuition—by direct inspiration. Man with his logic gets all tangled up, but the average woman knows." If Mr. Straton, with his logic is also "tangled up," he has got himself into the scrape of Epimenides the Cretan, who said that "all Cretans are liars."—New York Evening Post.

County commissioners in session today

Weather.

Partly cloudy tonight. Tuesday probably showers.

CAMPAIGN CLOSED.

Black Jack Accepts Challenge for Big Majority.

The Democratic county candidates closed the campaign Saturday at Black Jack. Hons. John Small and J. Bryan Grimes were there and spoke with the candidates. A large crowd was present and there was much enthusiasm. Beaver Dam and Falkland sent out a challenge to other townships for a big majority and Black Jack took it up, and they all will make records when the returns come in Thursday night.

Injunction Refused.

Washington, N. C., Nov. 2.—The much mooted bridge matter has been disposed of for the present at least. Judge Thomas McNeil, before whom the case was argued last week, has announced his decision, which is to the effect that he will not grant the injunction asked for. The plaintiffs will appeal to the Supreme Court and the case will be fought out there.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

To the officers and Members of Eureka Lodge No. 167 Ayden, N. C.

We your committee appointed to draft a series of resolutions expressive of the respect and esteem of this lodge for Bro. E. V. Cox, who died October 29th, 1906, beg leave to submit the following:

That in the death of Bro. Cox this lodge sustains a serious and irreparable loss. That as a Pythian he was zealous and never shirked a duty imposed upon him and in recognition of our regard be it resolved:

That in his death we recognize we are deprived of the privilege of his presence in our lodge room, to say nothing of the wise words that often fell from his lips, and were of great and beneficial results to the order and to the brotherhood.

That we bow in humble submission to the will of our great Chancellor, who at all times does that which is best and has only the interest of his children at heart.

That this lodge deeply mourns the death of Brother Cox and that his absence from our lodge room will long be felt, and the place he so honorably and acceptably filled can not easily be occupied by another.

That a page of our records be set aside to his memory with his name, date, birth and age inscribed thereon.

That we tender his aged parents and devoted sisters and brother our sincerest sympathy in this their, and our sad, bereavement, and for consolation and comfort point them to Him our Great Father who loveth us all.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent the family of our deceased brother, and also a copy to The Reflector, and one to the Free Will Baptist with request to publish same.

Oxford, Nov. 3.—News has reached here of a very distressing accident a few miles from Oxford, near Mountain Creek, a few days ago, when Miss Hazel Currin, aged 19 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Currin, was killed instantly by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of the young lady's brother, a little boy of 13 years.

APPROX BLOOD HOUNDS.

Constable Savage Leaves This Morning for Greenville, N. C.—Will Return on Tuesday.

Constable W. B. Savage leaves this morning for Greenville, N. C., to get the blood hounds recently purchased by the county. A full grown dog, and he is said to be well trained, has been purchased and also two puppies which are six months old. All are fully blooded hounds and when they are brought to the city the negroes had better watch out when they get it in their head to commit murder. There were so many murders and it was found so difficult to catch the criminals that the commissioners decided to purchase blood hounds.

The dogs will be given a trial on Monday and Constable Savage expects to get back to the city on Tuesday.—Wilmington Messenger, 4th.

Constable Savage arrived here Sunday evening to examine the dogs which were purchased from Mr. W. C. Hines. The dogs were given a test today and will be taken to Wilmington tomorrow. Mr. Hines' dogs have made a reputation for good work in running down criminals.

As Buster Brown says "Vote early but not often."

Hint About Old Gloves.
 Old kid gloves or kid slippers may be utilized for making kettle or iron holders. Leather being a bad conductor of heat, these holders are much more effective than flannel ones. Squares of kid should be cut out, joined together and covered with felt or flannel, the edges being bound with braid or strips of thin leather. The housewife will be surprised how such holders save her hands from the heat.

"Governor—Hang the company. Take it for tonight anyhow. Will you do that?"

"Colonel Peck—If it will help you, governor, I will think it over until morning, so you can get some sleep and save your life."

"The governor put his arm around Peck's neck and wept for joy. He drove back to the Copeland House, where the candidates were still lined up, and told them the thing was settled, that Peck had the job.

"Quicker than a bunch of cats the candidates rushed away, and the governor went to bed for the first time in a week. As you may know, Peck the next day declined the honor, but the governor in the meantime had selected Congressman Perkins from his own town."—Kansas City Journal.

Sale of Blooded Stock.

A Rare opportunity by the Farmers of this Section to get improved stock at common Stock Prices.

On Wednesday November 14th, 1906 I will offer for sale at my farm, three miles West of Greenville on the Tarboro road about 150 head of high bred hogs, about 20 young steers some of them ready brcketo work, and a few choice young bullocks of the Red Pole and Polled Angus breed. I will also sell some very fine farm mules. Only reason for selling mules is I want to replace them with mares for breeding. I am ordering this sale of improved stock simply as an experiment and if the farmers will buy this stock at anything like fair prices my purpose in future is to have an annual sale of improved stock. Here is a rare opportunity to get especially fine gilts, either of the Berkshire or Polland China blood, for common stock prices and the stock will be offered for sale in such a manner that everyone rich or poor, can have the same chance to purchase. In other words you can buy one or as many more as you like. Let everyone interested in this branch of farming attend his sale.

Washing White Ribbons.
 White ribbons—satin, messaline, muslin and the rest of the satiny kind—which have become soiled with age, may be washed in tepid water in which soap has been dissolved. Spread them out upon a board to dry—an ironing board covered with a clean muslin is splendid for the purpose—pinning the ends firmly, so as to stretch the ribbon beyond the need of pressing if possible.

Conducive to Truthfulness.
 "I understand that Brown claims he hasn't told a lie in ten or twelve years. Do you believe it?"
 "Well, it may be so. I know he made great preparations about ten years ago to be from that time on a man of absolute truth."
 "Preparations?"
 "Certainly. He put all his property in his wife's name and let her make out all the statements for the assessor."

THE UMBRELLA.

It Has Been Known and Used For Thousands of Years.

Possibly many of you suppose that the umbrella is a modern invention, but it is not. Both as an emblem of rank and as a protection from sun and rain it is of very ancient origin. Though the materials used in the manufacture have been constantly changing, the general construction of the frame has been changed but little in thousands of years.

Egyptian and Ninevite sculptures of the earliest dates have many representations of the umbrella, but it is invariably in connection with royalty. It was always held over the head of a monarch when he rode in his chariot and at his great open air feasts. In some of the Hindoo sculptures Vishnu is represented carrying an umbrella when going on a visit to the infernal regions.

We find frequent references to the umbrella in the Greek poets, for its use was quite fashionable among women of high rank in Greece. In the middle ages it was an emblem of rank in the church. Umbrellas were carried over cardinals and bishops in solemn processions, and all of the large cathedrals owned one or more umbrellas that were kept for use on such occasions.

The Chinese adopted the umbrella as a very early period in their history and for many centuries were the only people that did not confine its use to the king and princes of the blood. However, they permitted only men of wealth and high position to carry them. The common people protected themselves from the elements by making their hats broad and umbrella shaped.

From the time that they established their empire the Japanese have made much use of the umbrella. It is also used throughout India, but it is a mark of rank in Burma and Siam. One of the titles of the king of Burma is "lord of the twenty-four umbrellas." He uses white silk umbrellas, and no other person is permitted to use a white one. The princes of the blood each have, as a mark of distinction, two gilt umbrellas, with handles ten or fifteen feet in length. The other officers of the state have but one.

From early drawings it seems probable that the umbrella was introduced into Europe in the fourteenth century, but it did not come into general use until about 1700.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statements. What they do claim, is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pains in the stomach and all such as never been cured. For sale by J. L. Wooten.

NAMES OF SHIPS.

So Many Are Identical That Much Confusion Constantly Results.

Any horse owner may give his horse whatever name he chooses, as no law will prevent him doing so. However, it is safe to presume that in the case of a valuable animal bred for racing purposes the owner will take good care that the name given the quadruped be such as to create no confusion with that of any other race horse. Newspaper owners are debarred by the copyright law from duplicating the names of rival publications, and the same restriction applies to theaters, shops, road houses, etc. Shipowners enjoy, in common with horse owners, the privilege of giving their craft any name which may suit their fancy. A look at the register, however, will convince any one of the poor imagination many owners have displayed in naming their vessels and what inextricable muddle has resulted from the repetition of names.

When a ship's name is free from duplication in the ship's own country, the evil is not great, as the precaution of referring to the nationality of the vessel will avoid all confusion. When, on the other hand, the same names are given several deep sea vessels flying the same flag, the modern shipping trade Theseus who ventures in this labyrinth without the thread of Ariadne in the shape of a clew as to some particulars of the ship he is endeavoring to identify finds himself baffled at every turn and constantly facing the Minotaur who appears in the shape of doubt and needless anxiety. British shipowners, as representing the larger share of the total tonnage owned in the world, have been responsible in no small measure for this state of affairs. Among the names especially relished by them, those evoking memories dear to the heart of the loyal Britain have, of course, been repeated with the greatest alacrity.—Shipping Illustrated.

KOSSUTH IN LONDON.

His Receptions Were Conducted With princely Formality.

When he arrived in London the enthusiasm of the English people seemed to know no bounds. His entry was like that of a national hero returning from a victorious campaign—the multitudes crowding the streets were immense. He appeared in his picturesque Hungarian garb, standing upright in his carriage, with his saber at his side and surrounded by an equally picturesque retinue. But when he began to speak, and his voice with its resonant and at the same time mellow sound poured forth its harmony over the heads of the throngs in classic English, deriving a peculiar charm from the soft tinge of foreign accent, then the enthusiasm of the listeners mocked all description.

Kossuth had been offered the hospitality of the house of a private citizen of London who took an especial interest in the Hungarian cause, and there during his sojourn in the British capital he received his admirers and friends. A kind of court surrounded him; his companions, always in their Hungarian national dress, maintained in a ceremonious way his pretension of his still being the rightful governor of Hungary. He granted audiences like a prince, and when he entered the room he was announced by an aid-de-camp as the "governor." All persons rose and Kossuth saluted them with grave solemnity.

Among the exiles of other nations these undemocratic formalities created no little displeasure. But it was Kossuth's intention to produce certain effects upon public opinion, not in his own, but in the people's behalf, and as to that end it may have seemed to him necessary to impress upon the imagination of the Englishmen the picture of Hungary under her own governor, and also to illustrate to them the firm faith of the Hungarians themselves in the justice of their cause, it was not improper that he should have used such picturesque displays as means for the accomplishment of his purpose.—Carl Schurz in McClure's.

For a season there will be rest from the turmoil of politics, at which we should all be thankful. It will be a good day for the country when political campaigns become less frequent, that is if such a time ever arrives.

In this section at least the campaign just closed has been remarkably clean. Of course there has been some lying, usually is, but on the whole the campaign has been free from bitterness and nothing has occurred to create enmity between men or cause heart burnings.

CONDENSED STORIES.

Young Soldier Lost His Bearings in First Engagement.

At the Army and Navy club in Washington a number of veteran officers were telling stories, says Harper's Weekly, when General Chaffee told this anecdote of General Carr, who died in New York some years ago:

It appears that General Carr, at the outbreak of the civil war, had left Troy to take command of a regiment. The engagement in which, as colonel, he first figured was at Big Bethel. His regiment had been halted for a rest and refreshment in a pleasant place and had not yet experienced the excitement of the fight. It had been a day of quiet. Carr's men were in a camp near the river and the soldiers were sleeping peacefully. Carr, who was a young man at the time, was standing guard. He saw a light in the distance and thought it was a fire. He called out to his men, "They are firing upon my regiment!"

"THEY ARE FIRING UPON MY REGIMENT."

The men woke up and looked towards the light. Carr saw that they were confused and he tried to explain. "It is only a fire," he said. "Do not be alarmed."

Claims That Carr Is a Republican.

John F. Carr, New York's secretary of the State, is a Republican. He is a member of the Albany Club and is known as "John" because of the familiarity with which he carries his way and the Republican feeling of the state, has many friends. Carr is a native of Bullwink, Clinton county. Carr is related to Mr. Carr, a recently elected one of his French-Canadian constituents as a member to carry a letter. The recipient of the letter quizzically asked the carrier who sent the letter.

"John F. O'Brien," was the reply, delivered with great importance.

"But who is John F. O'Brien?"

"You must know John F. O'Brien?"

"I've never heard of him."

"John F. O'Brien is biggest man in the State."

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

An Atlantic Liner Passenger and the Superfluous Pilot.

Among the passengers on an Atlantic liner when she left New York recently was a charming young woman from St. Louis, who was making her first trip abroad. The vessel had not proceeded far when the fair passenger approached the captain and said:

"The ship appears to be stopping, captain. Why should we stop here?"

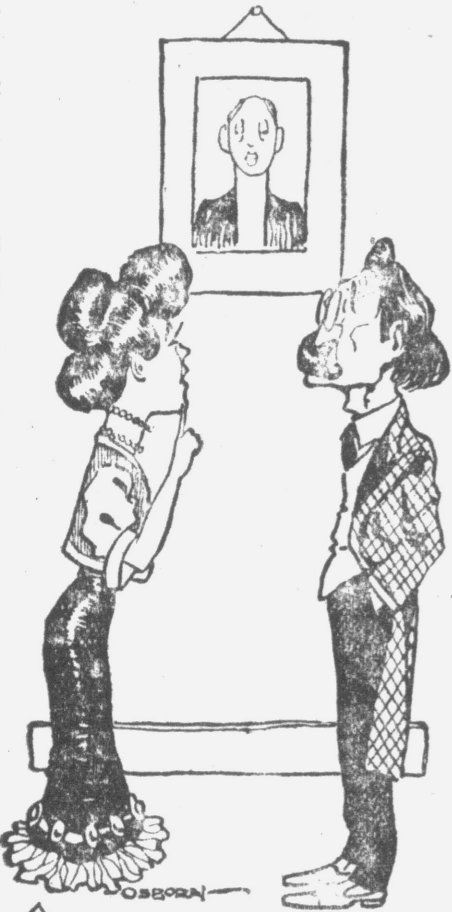

"We stop here to let the pilot off," was the reply.

"To let the pilot off?" exclaimed the young woman in a tone of polite incredulity. "Do you mean to say that the pilot doesn't cross the ocean with us and direct the course?"

"I mean just that," answered the captain.

The fair passenger pondered for a bit. Then smiling as if a bright idea had occurred to her, she added: "Oh, I suppose after he has set the rudder pointing in the right direction that there's nothing left for him to do, so he goes."—Woman's Home Companion.

THE REASON WHY

It is only by reason of the maker's intimate, thorough knowledge of women's tastes and the requirements of her feet that "Dorothy Dodd" Shoes have achieved their marvelous success. First, they satisfy the eye and lend distinction to the foot. Secondly, they fit women's feet as only "Dorothy Dodd's" can fit. Thirdly, their large sale permits them to be sold at a moderate price. This store secured and controls the sale of these splendid shoes, because it believes them to offer the wearer more real value and satisfaction than any others possible to procure. The Publisher's
Claims Sustained

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it "is, in fact, the popular Unabridged thoroughly re-edited in every detail, and vastly enriched in every part, with the purpose of adapting it to meet the larger and severer requirements of another generation."

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the work that has been accomplished and the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every detail, has been corrected in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular philological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.
