HOW A BLIND TIGER WAS TRAPPED.

Policemen Work a Ruse and Bag the Game.

Chief of Police J. T. Smith and Assistant Police Mr. George Clark recently did a clever piece of work on a blind tiger hunt, and were rewarded by catching the offenders red handed. Some of the details were known several days ago, but until the chain of evidence could be made complete it was thought best not to make the facts public. But it is a good story, even if coming a little late in print.

The police officers were satisfied that a blind tiger existed somewhere out in tobacco town, and following the trail carefully discovered his lair. From observation they believed that Tony Evans, a colored man who conducts a small grocery store on the corner of Twelfth and Clark streets, was selling whiskey on the sly, and that he had accomplices in delivering the goods. They then began scheming how to catch the game, and this is where the cleverness of the work came in.

One night Capt. Smith secreted himself near the store of Evans to watch for developments and saw enough to convince him that he had struck the right place.

The next night was selected to execute the plan of capture. Policeman Clark, with a plentiful application of burnt cork and a suit of shabby clothes, converted himself outwardly into a negro, and they say the disguise was so perfect that even his closest friends could not have disclosed his identity. In this disguise he sauntered out to one of the tobacco warehouses where Amos Elks, colored, was a night watchman, Capt. Smith in the meantime having again gone to his hiding place near Evans' store. It was not long before the disguised officer and Amos got so chummy that they together walked the watchman's beat around the warehouse, talking about various things and making themselves very friendly.

Some later another darkey from the country, who had brought in tobacco, put in an appearance, and he was soon chatting along with Amos and his new friend. This last arrival intimated that he would like to have some whiskey and Amos divulged the fact that he could get it for him. Upon being handed a quarter and requested to get it, Amos left the thirsty man at the warehouse and went off in the direction of Tony's store accompanied by the disguised officer. Before reaching the store Amos told his friend to step one side to avoid being seen as he could not get the liquor if anybody was with him. Officer Clark did as directed, but hid where he could watch the door. Amos advanced and rapped on the door and after being hailed from within to know who was there the door opened. Tony asked what was wanted and how much, received

Saving For a Rainy Day.

A New York man with a propensity for saving tried to impress upon the mind of his wife in the beginning of their married life the necessity of laying up for a rainy day. Two years later things ceased to go well with the man. The firm he worked for failed, a defalcation wrecked the building and loan company in which his savings were invested, and then his mother died, thereby throwing on his hands heavy funeral and doctor's bills. For weeks he spent most of his waking moments rushing around trying to borrow money, and when at last he negotiated loans sufficient to pay his debts he settled down to the luxury of nervous prostration. One day when on the road to recovery he happened to look through his wife's account book. "Great Scott!" he cried. "Is it possible that you have $300 of your expense money put away in a saving bank? Why on earth didn't you offer to help a fellow out of some of the awful holes I have been floundering in lately?" "Why, dear," said his wife in genuine surprise. "I am saving up for a rainy day."—New York Sun

Mrs. Hetty Green, the richest woman in the world, sees the end of rule by trusts, for she says: "There is going to be a revolution in this country, and the people are going to revolt against the oppressions of the trusts. There will be a deluge, and these streets will run with blood. The people are aroused. The people are gradually finding out about the trusts, and when they realize a little more fully how they are running the chances of the public, there is going to be a revolution. It will be a deluge. I tell you."

a piece of money from Amos and handed him a bottle.

Then the two, Amos and the disguised officer, walked back to the warehouse and the bottle was given to the waiting darkey. Officer Clark's friendship was transferred to the latter, for he was bent on finding out what that bottle contained, and the two left together. The fellow with the bottle was social, and offered to share it with his new chum, and officer Clark soon discovered that it contained the real stuff.

Being satisfied along this line officer Clark left the fellow with the bottle, returned to the warehouse and told Amos he would like to have a bottle, too. A quarter was passed over, Amos left him at the warehouse and again went in the direction of Tony's. He returned without a bottle this time, saying that Tony refused to get up any more because it was so late.

Officer Clark then made himself known and at once proceeded to arrest Amos, and joining Capt. Smith they went and arrested Tony. Both the darkeys have been bound over to Superior and Federal court, and the evidence is complete against them.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Some Interesting Happenings Given in Brief Form.

The Western North Carolina Conference is in session at Mt. Airy.

Auditor Dixon says the State will make a fine financial showing at the end of the present fiscal year and that there will be a balance of $300,000.

New Bern, Nov. 13.—A white man was brought to New Bern from Vanceboro on the boat last night who had been arrested on the charge of criminal assault. He is said to have escaped from the officer, but he was soon caught and is now in the county jail.

Waynesville, Nov. 12.—The first snow of the season began to fall here last night and it has been snowing all day. A great many are blue and show anxiety over the situation, there being no coal in town. It seems that the town will have to go into the confiscating business.

Wilson, Nov. 12.—A negro calling himself John Dempsey secured about $40 worth of clothes from Mr. W. W. Whitehurst, a Tarboro street merchant, late Saturday afternoon on a forged check. The amount of the check was $78.80, and purported to be given by G. G. Conner on the Branch Banking Company, and in favor of Dempsey.

Tarboro, Nov. 13.—On Monday afternoon, this week, Mr. W. R. Abrams, superintendent of the Dupree farm, near Old Sparta, had his hand badly lacerated while ginning cotton. The condenser was choked up and in an effort to relieve the trouble he ran his hand into the gin, making the mistake of thrusting it too far.

Defeated Candidate Honored by His Associates on the Ticket.

New York, Nov. 12.—A complimentary dinner was given to William Randolph Hearst tonight at Delmonico's by Louis Stuyvesant Chanler, W. S. Jackson, John S. Whalen, Julius Hauser and F. W. Skene, his associates on the Democratic and Independence League State tickets.

Besides Mr. Hearst there were 26 other guests, all of whom were either associated with him during his recent campaign for governor or were successful judicial candidates on the Independence League or other tickets. The banquet was private.

Mrs. Russell Sage says she has had seven thousand letters begging for money since her husband died. She answers no begging letters, and it is said she will not leave any money to educational or charitable institutions but give it all to deserving individuals. But how does she know who are the "deserving?" Next to having no money, having too much, like Mrs. Sage, brings most trouble.—Raleigh News and Observer.

"Joshua Simpkins."

The humorous comedy drama, "Joshua Simpkins," accompanied by a fine band and an excellent orchestra, will be seen at Masonic opera house, Wednesday, Nov. 21st. It is a rural play in four acts, bound together by and interesting plot and produced with special scenery carried by the company. In the taird act a realistic saw-mill scene is introduced, when a real buzz saw is seen cutting through a real log at terrific speed upon which a human being has been helplessly bound by his enemies and left to an evident death. There is an abundance of comedy in the play, while there are many fine singing and dancing specialties incidentally introduced.

Large Owl.

Tuesday Mr. S. I. Fleming brought in a large horned owl which he killed at his home, 4 miles from town, the night before. The owl was a very large one and measured 4½ feet between tips of wings. Mr. Fleming says he has been losing many chickens and thinks this owl was killing them.

Curfain Catches Fire From Lamp.

Tuesday evening there came near being a fire at the home of Mr. J. S. Tunstall, just west of the railroad. From a lamp sitting near the window the curtains caught on fire. Parties about the depot saw the blaze and ran across to the house to help put the fire out. No damage was done except to the curtain and carpet.

A Personal Sermon.
 A minister of the kirk of Scotland, once discovered his wife asleep in the midst of his homily on the Sabbath. So, pausing in the steady and possibly somewhat monotonous flow of his oratory, he broke forth with this personal address, sharp and clear, but very deliberate:

"Susan!"
 Susan woke up with a start and rubbed her eyes, as did all the other dreamers in the edifice, whether asleep or awake.

"Susan," continued her clerical spouse, "I didna marry ye for yer wealth, sin' ye had none. And I didna marry ye for yer beauty. That the hail congregation can see. And if ye hae not grace I hae made but a sair bargain wi' ye!"

Brides in Spain.

In Spain a bride has no girl attendants to stand at the altar with her, but instead a "madrina," or godmother. Neither does she have a wedding cake or any festive departure after the ceremony. The wedded pair go quietly to their new home, where they remain until the following day, when they start on their honeymoon. Before leaving they pay a formal visit to their respective relatives.

Sale of Blooded Stock.

At are opportunity by the Farmers of this Section to get improved stock at common Stock Prices.

On Wednesday November 14th, 1906 I will offer for sale at my farm, three miles West of Greenville on the Tarboro road about 150 head of high bred hogs, about 20 young steers some of them ready brcketo work, and a few choice young bullocks of the Red Polled Angus breed. I will also sell some very fine farm mules. Only reason for selling mules is I want to replace them with mares for breeding. I am ordering this sale of improved stock simply as an experiment and if the farmers will buy this stock at anything like fair prices my purpose in future is to have an annual sale of improved stock. Here is a rare opportunity to get especially fine gilts either of the Berkshire or Polland China blood, at common stock prices and the stock will be offered for sale in such a manner that every rich or poor, can have the same chance to purchase. In other words you can buy one as many more as you like. Let everyone interested in this branch of farming attend sale.

HE TURNED THE LAUGH.

A Quick Witted Orator Who Was Equal to the Occasion.

An orator who was equal to an emergency was the late George A. Sheridan, who was a noted "spell-binder" often engaged by the Republican national committee. At a big meeting he was addressing in a town near New York he was introduced by a Mr. O'Brien, the chairman, in most flattering terms. In order to reciprocate Mr. Sheridan paid a glowing tribute to the sterling qualities of the chairman and wound up the eulogy by saying that no man could say Mr. O'Brien owed him a cent.

"He owes me $3!" came a keen Celtic voice from the rear of the audience.

It was almost a solar plexus blow for the orator, and the audience started to laugh and jeer. Rallying, the speaker said: "Don't be alarmed, good friends. I will answer that man presently." This assertion was to gain time and if possible have the audience forget the incident. But again that penetrating voice cried out:

"He owes me $3 cold cash!"

Advancing to the edge of the platform, General Sheridan in a confidential tone said: "Yes, I know all about the $3, for my friend, Mr. O'Brien, has given me the inside facts. Ladies and gentlemen, the truth is simply this, and it reveals a peculiar character: This man who has interrupted me met Mr. O'Brien recently and asked him for the loan of $10. 'I haven't got ten,' said generous Mr. O'Brien, 'but here are $7,' handing the money to him. Now this man is going around saying my friend, the honorable chairman, owes him $3 because he could lend him only $7 when ten were requested." A roar of laughter filled the hall, and the indignant man tried to answer the orator. He was howled down. The chairman whispered in General Sheridan's ear: "You have saved me. You are a genius."—Losie's Weekly.

A laborer was recently engaged in a railway yard in the east. He was set to carry some heavy planks. After a couple of hours' work he went to the foreman and said, "Did I tell ye me name when I started?" "Ah, mon, ye did. Ye said it was Tamson." "Oh, that's a richt, then," replied the man wearily. "Ah was wunnerin' if ye thoct Ah said it was Samson."

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

Benjamin Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was to surprise a great surprise instead of a disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and Darrho's Remedy. They do not publicly boast of its efficacy with a complete list of testimonials, but users make the statement. It is the only cure for whooping cough, dysentery, and all the stomach and bowels and has never been known to fail. For sale by J. L. Wooten

HE TIPPED A CONGRESSMAN...

Warren F. Daniell, the wealthiest man in the vicinity of Franklin, N.
H., is exceedingly democratic in manner. Some years ago he represented his district in congress. One day as Congressman Daniell was standing in one of the corridors of the capitol a New York millionaire, thinking he was an attache of the building, asked in rather a brusque manner to be directed to the room of a well known house leader. Congressman Daniell conducted him to the desired place, and as he was leaving the New Yorker pressed a twenty-five cent piece into his hand. Mr. Daniell noticed that a newspaper man had witnessed the transaction and, sliding over to him, said: "Don't give this away. That is the first money I have earned since I have been in congress." The next day the millionaire was in the visitors' gallery and saw Daniell occupying a seat in the house. After the session he hunted Mr. Daniell out, and the two took supper together at the New York man's expense.—Washington

Commercial Panics.
Is it true that these great commercial panics recur at fairly regular intervals—as a rule once in every twenty years? Are periods of commercial distress and, therefore, the intervening periods of prosperity thus separated? The fact seems incontestable. Our country's record fixes the years 1837, 1857, 1873, and 1893 as the dates of our greater panics. England's record is 1825, 1844, 1866 and 1890. In each case the twenty year interval is preserved with reasonable accuracy. It will be observed that the "panic years" in England were not the same as in the United States. Our commercial distress of 1893 and 1873 reacted, no doubt, on London, as the acute foreign troubles of 1890 and 1866 recoiled on financial New York. But the result was never a panic of the first order in the market indirectly affected.—A. D.
Noyes in Atlantic.

Please While They Rob.
The fakirs and peddlers have begun doing the country. Good crops always bring them. They are selling patent rights, taking orders for enlarging pictures, soliciting for books and maps, selling cloth for men's wear—cloth that "escaped duty at the port"—offering tinware or cutlery very cheap, selling soap and throwing in a prize and unloading worthless stuff generally. It used to be a peddler was poorly clad, but nowadays the peddler is a well dressed, prayerful, smooth proposition, male or female. He or she is smart, dressed neatly and ready to say grace at the table, lead in high five, dance the twostep, milk the cows or make the piano sing and talk. To please people while robbing them is the peddler's mission on earth.—Paola (Kan.) Spirit.

"High" Noon Lunches.
Talk about your "high" noon luncheons. There are men in Gotham who would sit on the damp edge of a cloud while depleting their dinner pails if given a chance. On Broadway, near the Battery, every noon hour may be seen a dozen or more men who sit on the edge of a seventeen story office building and eat their noonday meal. The other day I saw one chap who had swung his legs over the coping and kicked his feet together, presumably in glee. I wondered at the time if he was eating pie.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Ostentatious Millionaire.
The great wealth in question being an essentially new phenomenon, its American possessors have no inherited culture and no inherited positions to guide them in their personal expenditure of it. It tends to produce a class which is held together internally by nothing but emulous extravagance in insane and self satisfying indulgence and which asserts its supremacy in the eyes of the general public merely by making this insane self indulgence ostentatious.—W. H. Mallock in North American Review.

NO THINKING HERE.

A Sensible Motto to Hang Up In Your Bedchamber.
A prominent business man, told me recently that his great weakness was his inability to stop thinking after retiring. In this way he is robbed of so much sleep that he feels all used up the next day.
I advised him to cultivate the habit of closing the door of his business brain at the same time that he closed the door of his business office. "You should," I said, "insist on changing the current of your thoughts when you leave your business for the day just as you change your environment or as you change your dress for dinner when you go home in the evening. Turn your thoughts to your wife and children, to your joys and cares. Talk to them, play games with them.
Read some humorous or entertaining story or some strong, interesting book that will lift you in spite of yourself out of your business rut.
Go out for a long walk or a ride.
Fill your lungs with strong, sweet fresh air. Look about you and offer the beauties of nature or have a hobby of some kind to which you can turn for recreation and refreshment when you quit your regular business. Be master of your mind.
Learn to control it instead of allowing it to control you and tyrannize over you.

Hang up in your bedchamber in a conspicuous place where you can always see it a card bearing in bold, illuminated characters this motto:
"No Thinking Here."
Shut off all thinking process of every kind when you retire for the night, relax every muscle, let there be no tension of mind or body, and in a short time you will find that sleep will come to you as easily and naturally as to a little child.
The habit of thinking after going to bed is fatal to all freshness of brain work. These men have not learned to lock their business in their offices or factories when they quit for the night, so they drag it home, bring it up at the dinner table and depress the whole family, or if they do not talk about their problems their anxiety and absent-mindedness totally unfit them for the pleasant companionship of their families. They are so absorbed in the problems of their vocations that they do not know what is going on around them. They do not know how to relax, to unbend, to rest, so they lie down to sleep with all their burden, just as a tired camel lies down in the desert with its great burden still on its back.
It is a great art to be able to shut the gates in the great mental power house on retiring, to control oneself, to put oneself in tune with the infinite, to put oneself in sympathy with those about him, in harmony with the world, to expel from the mind everything which jars, irritates, all malice, envy and jealousy, the enemies of our peace and happiness, before we go to sleep.—
O. S. Marden in Success Magazine.

A Conscientious Patient.
"Medicine won't help you any,"
the doctor told his patient. "What you need is a complete change of living. Get away to some quiet country place for a month. Go to bed early, eat more roast beef, drink plenty of good, rich milk, and smoke just one cigar a day."
A month later the patient walked into the doctor's office. He looked like a new man, and the doctor told him so.
"Yes, doctor, your advice certainly did the business. I went to bed early and did all the other things you told me. But, say, doctor, that one cigar a day almost killed me at first. It's no joke starting in to smoke at my time of life."—Everybody's Magazine.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 14, 1906.

The Greensboro Tar Heel is candid, and frankly admits its disappointment over the result of the election.

BRIGHT PROMISE FOR 1908.

Democrats the country over read in the returns from Tuesday's elections bright promises for victory in 1908.

Everywhere there were democratic gains, and the remarkable showing made in the usual large reduction in the republican majority in congress is decidedly a widespread change of sentiment.

That it is a change of sentiment largely in the behalf of a need reformation in the tariff is also strikingly apparent, putting this question still further to the front, as it does, as the leading issue in 1908.

Surprising in its results was the contest in New York State, where immense Democratic gains are recorded, the Democrats, in fact, overcoming the large Republican majority of two years ago, and with the exception of governor, carrying the State by a small vote. The success of Hughes in his race for governor is not an indication of Republican strength; it is evident that Hughes was stronger than his party.

Elections in other States where the contests were warmly waged give similar evidence of a healthy growth of Democratic sentiment. In Kansas, for instance, it was so close as to make the situation an extremely uncomfortable one for the Republicans.

Altogether Tuesday's results were gratifying from a Democratic standpoint. They indicate a steady and substantial growth of the Democratic representation in Congress and clearly point the way to victory when the next national contest is fought with the issue of tariff revision as the battle-cry of the party.—Atlanta Constitution.

Judge Purnell Renders Arbitrary Judgment.

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 12.—Judge Purnell in the United States court this morning, prominently gave judgment for defendant in one case and continued another because Iredell Meares, Esq., plaintiff's counsel in each case, was a few minutes late in arriving in the court room. Mr. Meares strongly protested against the disposition of the cases, saying that his client in the one case set for the morning, had come with witnesses at great expense to attend court, but the judge would not relent and Mr. Meares gave notice of an appeal in the one case in which judgment was given by default.

AWFUL RAILROAD WRECK.

Nearly Half Hundred People Perish.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—More than one-half the passengers on an immigrant train on the Baltimore & Ohio were killed or injured in a collision today between the passenger train and a freight near Woodville, Ind.

One hundred and sixty-five passengers were on the train. Of these 47 were either killed outright or were burned to death in a fire that broke out in the wreckage immediately after the collision. The names of all of the dead will probably never be known as 55 of the bodies were consumed in the flames or were so badly burned that identification will be out of the question. Thirty-eight people were injured and several of these will die. Eighty others escaped unhurt but lost nearly all their baggage and clothing.

SMITH DISLIKES HIS NAME.

Too Many Bear that Cognomen, Says Applicant for Channe.

Too much Smith is the wail of a son of that famous tribe, bearing the Christian names of William Marion, who petitioned the District Supreme court yesterday to authorize him to prefix the mother's family name, Irby, to that of his father, Smith, thus making his surname Irbysmith. The applicant is an employe of the office of the Auditor for the Navy department.

Mr. Smith is a Kentuckian, having been born in Albany, Clinton county, that state, on August 22, 1847. His father went through life with the plain cognomen of Jesse W. Smith, while his mother's name was Mary Jane Smith.

Mr. Smith tells the court that it is difficult to find his name in the city directory, because there are so many William Smith's, perhaps more than any other name. Again, he says, the letters constituting his initials, "W M.," are the letters of the abbreviation of William, and this has caused confusion about mail, a condition which he believes can be remedied only by a change of name.

On August 22 last, Mr. Smith avers, he decided to add Irby to his name and prefix it to Smith, and it is already becoming known among his friends that his surname is to be Irbysmith.

The purpose of one's name, Mr. Smith says, is to identify him from all other persons, and he contends that a name which is so commonly recurring as William Smith or even William

M. Smith does not properly identify an individual.

Mr. Smith asserts that he is not endeavoring to avoid the payment of any debt or obligation by seeking a change in name.—Washington Post.

Female Fear of Mice.

Why are women afraid of mice? Although this problem has claimed the attention of the greatest philosophers, it must be admitted that we are as much at loss for a scientific and psychological explanation as was Adam after the first field mouse of the tribe drove Eve up a tree.—New York Globe.

The Dread Of Riches.

The man of $10 a week income had just been rejected. Vainly he pleaded to have the case reopened.

"No, George," said the girl firmly, "I have read that all millionaires begin on $10 a week or less, and I deem myself unworthy to be the wife of a millionaire. Some poor fellow with about $20,000 a year might catch me, though."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

THE FALLS OF IGUAZU.

South American S. Rivaling Niagara's C. in

In the heart of South America, at the meeting place of three republics, Brazil, Argentine and Paraguay, nature has chosen the site for a stupendous natural wonder to be seen by the many Niaguans. It is a natural phenomenon by some of the best travelers who have seen it to be far greater than its North American counterpart. The falls of Iguazu are at the junction of Iguazu river with the Upper Paraná in a territory famous as the original locality of the Jesuit missions established in the sixteenth century, the ruins of which may still be seen by those who visit the falls.

About twelve miles above the falls the river Iguazu makes a sharp bend, almost at right angles, giving them greater extent and more varied character than those of Niagara, which to some degree they resemble. As the river makes the sharp bend already mentioned the main volume of water rushes around the inner bank and is discharged into a long, narrow gorge, at one point making a clear plunge of 210 feet. Not all the volume of the river is received at this place, however, the rest of the water running out past it into the wide elbow formed by the bend and circling along the farther shore among rocks and islands before reaching the edge of the cliff, over which the descent is made in two great leaps of a hundred feet each in a vast semicircle of 3,000 feet. The total length of Iguazu falls, if measured, at the upper edge of the cliff, through their broken contour, including interesting islets, is twice as great as that of Niagara, including the intersection of Goat island.

The double fall of Iguazu is the most striking feature of the cataract, the rocky shelf or platform that divides the leap being in some places more than fifty yards wide and in others only a few feet.

The scenery surrounding Iguazu falls is in peculiar harmony with the solemn grandeur of the cataract and its varied character. The roar of the waterfall is more impressive for the solitude of the spot and the eternal silence that reigns in the dense forests that mark its border, into which the white man has scarcely penetrated. For several miles before the falls are reached the river is a mass of huge frowning boulders and whirlpools, and the first view of the great cataract is often a disappointment, from the fact that it must be seen from many different points to be appreciated in all its beauty.—National Geographic Magazine.

Too Short For Romeo.

"It is a great misfortune to a serious actor to be short," said a theatrical manager. "A short man must have a shorter leading lady, or if he waives that privilege he must, in his scenes with her, see to it that when the pair draw near on another she sits or leans on a table or kneels on an ottoman, while he stands very erect in his high heeled shoes, thus creating the illusion that he is rather tall. But with all that a short actor is always at a disadvantage. I once knew an excellent tragedian of five feet four who dared to play Romeo with a Juliet of six feet. In a western town one night, as usual, sighed, 'I wish I were a glove upon that hand!' A shrill voice called from the gallery: 'Ye wouldn't fit. Yer too small!'"

Sacred Fires of India.
The sacred fires of India have not all been extinguished. The most ancient which still exists was consecrated some centuries ago in commemoration of the voyage made by the Parsees when they emigrated from Persia to India. The fire is fed five times every twenty-four hours with sandalwood and other fragrant materials combined with very dry fuel. This fire, in the village of Oodwada, near Bulsar, is tended by the Parsees in large numbers during the months allotted to the presiding genius of fire.

Origin of "Grass" Widow.
"She is a grass widow," said the professor, nodding in the direction of a woman with yellow hair.
"A 'grass' widow? Oh, professor I didn't think you would use slang."
"Grass' widow is not slang," said the professor stoutly. "It is, on the contrary, a very ancient and correct expression. It comes from the French 'grace.' It was originally written 'grace' widow. Its meaning is 'widow by courtesy.'"
"There is nothing slangy or disrespectful in the term 'grace widow.' A widow may call herself that with propriety."—New York Press.

WATERMARKS IN PAPER.

The Ancient Devices Used in the Time of Caxton and Faust.

Watermarks have proved themselves invaluable for safeguarding against the forgery of bank notes, bills, stamps, etc., though the difficulty experienced by the Bank of England in evolving a mark defying imitation was very great and was accomplished by the execution of forgeries innumerable.

Many a will has been set aside owing to false dates in watermarks, for, thanks to watermarks, we are under no uncertainty respecting the date of the existence of the paper. Ireland's celebrated Shakespearean forgeries were, however, perpetrated with skillful recognition of the watermark difficulty.

Driven to the production of manuscripts, he set to work to purchase old volumes for their fly leaves, and, hearing that the "jug" was the prevalent watermark of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, he selected such as had the "jug" on, being careful to mingle with them a certain number of blank leaves, in order that the production on a sudden of so many identical watermarks might not arouse suspicion.

Two of the earliest watermarks consist of a circle surmounted by a cross, representing the pastoral benediction of a priest. Post paper takes its name from the post horn, which mark appears on a shield, and in the seventeenth century is surmounted by a ducal coronet, in which form it is still met with on our ordinary note paper.

The ox's head was another ancient watermark, on which Caxton and Faust printed some of their books, but Caxton used a watermark in the form of the letter "P" for the "Game and Plays of the Chesse," first printed in 1474.

The first edition of Shakespeare, printed by Isaac Iaggard and Edward Blount in 1623, still, however, be found to be made on paper bearing a cap like a boy's as a watermark, and the general use of the term "cap" for various modern papers is owing to marks of this kind.—London Globe.

The earliest looking glasses, or mirrors, were of copper metal, highly polished, or of black painted mica. It is noted in Jewish history that the laver was made of brass "of the looking glasses of the women assembling, which assembled at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation," and some commentators conjecture that these women gave up their bronze or copper hand mirrors to supply the material for the laver. Egyptian women always carried their mirrors to the temples, and the Hebrew women probably did likewise, as do the Arabian and Turkish women today. Glass mirrors are of comparatively recent date. Mirrors of silver and gold were commonly used in mediaeval times. In 1360 Venice became the seat of the manufacture of glass mirrors, which have since superseded all other varieties, the improvements in the manufacture of plate glass enabling mirrors to be made of great size.

Parisian Paradox. A recent establishment has recently established that to kiss a woman without her consent, a crime, as an offense of violence, is atoned for by a kiss. That is not exactly a paradox if she consents to it? It is much dearer to Paris.

Mark Twain's Best. After Mark Twain had spoken for half an hour or more at one of his lectures years ago, says the Boston Record, he concluded to take a brief rest, and without a word of explanation he stopped talking and sat down. The audience hardly knew what to do. After awhile some one more bold than the rest got up, rode down the aisle and went out. Some one else followed, and in a few minutes the hall was empty. "Very good lecture, Mr. Clemens," said a local dignitary, who was trying to be polite. "You mean the first half of it," was the reply. "The second half has not been delivered." "Not delivered!" almost shrieked the local dignitary. "No," said Twain, his composure not in the least disturbed, while the usual merry twinkle was seen in his eye, "but we have the money for the whole, and I don't see why we need to worry if they only take

THE REASON WHY

It is only by reason of the maker's intimate, thorough knowledge of women's tastes and the requirements of her feet that "Dorothy Dodd" Shoes have achieved their marvelous success. First, they satisfy the eye and lend distinction to the foot. Secondly, they fit women's feet as only "Dorothy Dodd's" can fit. Thirdly, their large sale permits them to be sold at a moderate price. This store secured and controls the sale of these splendid shoes, because it believes them to offer the wearer more real value and satisfaction than any others possible to procure. New styles now ready. Glad to show even though you do not care to buy.
