FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

If Mr. Joyner Resigns, the Selection of Prof. W. H. Ragsdale is Urged.

To the Editor: The past few years has witnessed such a great improvement in the public school system of our State that it has not only become a matter of pride to ourselves, but has attracted the attention of those in public education in other sections of the country.

The advancement made along all lines, not only in the higher grade of teaching, greater length of school term, but also in the establishment of rural libraries and the replacing of the "old-field school house" with modern, well equipped buildings has been phenomenal. All of which has been the result of the close supervision of the county superintendents fostered by their association in their vital connection with the State superintendent.

This work has progressed so smoothly and so rapidly under the supervision of our present live and energetic superintendent that the possibility of his giving up the work to accept the presidency of the Normal and Industrial College at Greensboro, has been a matter of deep concern to those interested in the public school work. And there is a general feeling of reluctance on the part of all to give him up. However in the event of his resignation, it seems to me that the best field from which to select his successor, in order that the work should suffer least from the change, would be from among the county superintendents, who have been so closely associated with him in the present development of our school work. While there are many capable and efficient men in the State Association of County Superintendents, there is not one more deserving of recognition on account of long and faithful service and unselfish devotion to his work than W. H. Ragsdale of Pitt county. The Northeastern Division of County Superintendents, at its recent meeting in Windsor, passed unanimously a resolution urging Governor Glenn to appoint Prof. Ragsdale to this office in case Mr. Joyner should resign.

Mr. Ragsdale was born in Granville county in 1855 and was educated at Wake Forest College, graduating in 1880 with highest mark of his class. He has been actively engaged in educational work since that time, having taught for over twenty years in the high schools of the State. He has been Superintendent of Public Schools of Pitt county for sixteen years, with the exception of two years under Fusion administration. Under his supervision there has been a wonderful development of the schools, and Pitt county now ranks among the foremost in the State in educational advancement.

Prof. Ragsdale is a recognized force in the body of county superintendents, having been present at every meeting since its organization, and being thoroughly conversant with its purpose and methods of work. He has also been closely connected with the work of the North Carolina teachers' assembly for the past twenty years, having attended every meeting during that time, except one; served nine or ten years on the executive committee; was president in 1900 and was several times on committees appearing before the Legislature to ask for favorable legislation. Mr. Ragsdale was chairman of the Sub Text Book Commission, which recently examined and recommended text books for use in our schools.

His varied experience, and his interest in the entire educational work of the State, with his native ability, administrative power; his force as a public speaker in persuading men, and his loyalty to the public school work, as proved by the fact that he has several times declined professorships in colleges to which he had been elected, all these things render him eminently fitted for the office of State superintendent.

Believing as I do, that Mr. Joyner's logical successor should come from the body of county superintendents, in case we lose him from the work, I am sure there is no one better qualified for the office, or one who would give more general satisfaction than Mr. Ragsdale.

WINTERVILLE ITEMS.

Winterville, N. C., Nov. 17.

On Thursday evening Nov. 29, the Philo-altean society of W. H. S. will give a free entertainment in the auditorium of the academy. All are most cordially invited to be present. They are preparing an excellent programme and there is a treat in store for all who come.

Norman Madlin, a student of W. H. S. left Friday evening to meet his father in Rocky Mount. Miss Elizabeth Boushall and Mrs. J. D. Cox went to Shelmerdine today to spend Sunday with Mrs. J. O. Bobbitt.

Harvey Cox went to Greenville today.

Joe Tyson, a student of W. H. S. went to House today spend Sunday at his home.

P. H. Kittrell went to Greenville today.

R. G. Chapman went to Greenville today.

Misses Marv E. and Louise Fleming left Friday evening to spend Saturday and Sunday at their homes near House.

W. F. Carroll was here Friday evening buying goods.

C. T. Mumford, one of the most hustling merchants of Greenville, was here Friday.

Mr. John Poythress will give another one of his moving picture entertainments next Thursday night in the auditorium of W. H. S. He has always given entire satisfaction and we may expect to be delightfully entertained. The rates are as heretofore.

The robbers struck Winterville Thursday night but through the excellent watchfulness of our most efficient policeman, Chas. Smith and assistant A. O. Beddard, things got too warm for them and they beat a hasty retreat. The officers saw one man near the post office and the flash light of another near the Winterville Manufacturing Co. door. They discharged two broadsides in the direction of the light and everything disappeared.

How Father Tested Him.

One of our exchanges tells of an old German who had a boy of whom he was very proud, and decided to find out the trend of his mind. He adopted a novel method by which to test him. He slipped into the boy's room one morning and placed on his table a bottle of whiskey, a Bible and a silver dollar. "Now," said he, "when dot boy comes in if he takes dot dollar he's going to be a beeznis man; if he takes dot Bible he's going to be a preacher; if he takes dot whiskey he's no good, and going to be a drunkard." Then he hid behind a door to see which his son would choose. In came the boy whistling. He ran up to the table, picked up the Bible and put it under his arm; then snatched up the bottle, took two or three drinks, picked up the dollar and put it in his pocket, and went out smacking his lips. The Dutchman poked his head out from behind the door and exclaimed: "Mein Got, he is going to be a bolitician."

KEEP MONEY AT HOME.

The success of North Carolina insurance companies has caused other Southern States to decide to organize strong companies and keep most of the insurance premium money at home. The New Orleans Picayune notes that strong men in that city have organized the Louisiana Life Insurance Company and other wise men have organized "The Keystone Life" with headquarters at New Orleans. The Picayune sensibly says:

"In the past a vast amount of Louisiana money has been sent into distant States to pay for life insurance, and if a fair proportion of it can be kept at home, while proper security is attained by risks in our local companies, it is not only the part of patriotism, but of wisdom and common prudence to invest in our local companies."

There is no reason in the world why, within a few years, North Carolina, Louisiana and every other Southern State should not have local life and fire companies that will carry three fourths of the insurance of the States in which they are located. There is no better way to keep the money at home and no better way to develop and keep in their States the men of financial ability. North Carolina has developed insurance officials who are as wise and as prudent as the ablest insurance men in the metropolis and they are not only succeeding in the conduct of home companies, but are encouraging other young men of brains to believe that they can establish and successfully conduct large business concerns that have hitherto been largely confined to the North.

The best thing North Carolina folks can do is to keep its money at home and let it work here instead of being carted off to the Northern cities to develop them. If one-half of the insurance premiums paid by North Carolina since the war had remained with home companies in North Carolina this State's development would have been ten fold greater than it has been.—Ex.

Deposits Increasing.

Attention is called to the excellent showing of the Bank of Greenville in its statement made on the close of business on the 12th inst. This bank has gained in deposits over $70,000 since its statement issued in September. Its strength is further shown in the surplus and undivided profits having grown so much larger than the capital stock.

Tom Watson is still pecking away at Col. Mann for freezing him out of Tom Watson's Magazine. To our mind, this display of ill nature is entirely unwarranted. Everyone familiar with the blue back speller knows what comes of keeping bad company, and when Tom Watson took up with the Town Topics man he acted with his eyes open.—Charlotte Observer

The other day when some workmen were pulling some shingles off of a house in Chester to put on a slate roof, they found a large square bottle filled with coffee—the berries—which seemed to have retained its aroma perfectly, concealed under the boxing of the roof. It was secreted there in anticipation of a raid by Sherman's army and it was overlooked or forgotten when other articles were removed. Coffee was very precious in those days.—Wahaw Enterprise.

The King's Welsh.

The king, who was Prince of Wales for a longer period than any of his predecessors, is said to speak a few words of Welsh. There is a story told of a Chicago girl, the daughter of a millionaire, who, in the days before his majesty had ascended the throne, had determined to visit England. A friend found her studying Welsh, and in reply to a question the girl said, "I'm going to be presented to the Prince of Wales when I'm in London, and I should like to be able to speak to him in his real native language."—St. James' Gazette.

A Prodigious Egg.

There is being exhibited in Liverpool a prodigious egg, that of a tall, flightless bird—the Acipornis maximus—which formerly inhabited the island of Madagascar. The eggs of this immense creature are nearly a yard in circumference, and a foot in length, and their cubical contents, roughly speaking, are equal to six ostrich eggs, or 150 hens' eggs, or 60,000 humming birds' eggs, or two gallons of water. The market price ranges from £55 to £60, only twenty known specimens being in existence.

A HORSE'S HARNESS.

The Exact Way It Should Be Fitted to the Animal.

To fit a harness to a horse is the simplest of operations, and only neglect and the good nature and patience of the animal allow any departure from exactness. Few browbands fit as they should, but are so loose that the ears are painfully pinched. Blinkers carelessly kept become warped out of shape and seriously obstruct vision, while if they flare or the check pieces are too loose they lose their effect in the one case and are dangerous as affording glimpses of the following vehicle in the other. Bits are generally too wide rather than too narrow; bridle bits too thin and sharp, curb chains are often sharpened or "roughed" through carelessness or too tightly drawn. Collars are often too much bent at the top. Our horses are rather straight shouldered as a rule, and sore or chafed necks are very frequent in consequence.

Pads are usually broader in the tree than is best, especially if a horse is light in flesh, and the ridge suffers unless a housing is worn. When placed well back, as they should be, however, they generally fit better, and the girth does not chafe the thin skin at the elbows. Breastplates generally are far too loose, dangling aimlessly about, whereas they have vitally important duties to perform in handling the load. Backbands, if tight, are always dangerous, as inciting to a kicking scrape, especially if the crupper is not thickly padded. Tight girthing is never necessary. The breeching should hang in the right place and be just tight enough to come into play when traces slack, without that length which leaves it dangling about, and stopping the vehicle with a sudden jerk. Pole pieces should, while controlling the pole head instantly, not be drawn so tight that the horses are jammed against the pole, nor should they dangle loosely about. No strap ends should stick up or out, but everything be snugly billeted. As a rule backbands are made long enough for a dromedary and girths big enough for an elephant, with from four to six holes each, that are never visited by a buckle tongue. Nose bands should have a lot of holes, close together, and be used when needful to assist biting. At all events they should fit snugly. Throatlashes should always be quite loose. Coupling reins should be long, with several holes at bit ends. The hand reins should have more holes and rather closer together than usually punched.—F. M. Ware in Outing Magazine.

How Houdon Was Saved.

During the reign of terror David had Houdon, the sculptor, arrested and wished to have him guillotined, as he had declared war against all the artists, his colleagues. Mme. Houdon went to Barrere and urged him to save her husband. "I see no way," Barrere said. "But tell me, for which of his works has he been imprisoned?" "For a statue of St. Scholastica," said Mme. Houdon. "What does she look like?" "A fine woman, with a scrap of paper in her hand." At that moment entered Collot-d'Herbois. Barrere said to him: "Houdon has made a statue of Philosophy meditating on the revolution. You must have it bought by the assembly and placed in the room in front of the assembly room and declare that Houdon has deserved well of the country." This was done, and Houdon was saved.

Mark Twain's Best.

After Mark Twain had spoken for half an hour or more at one of his lectures years ago, says the Boston Record, he concluded to take a brief rest, and without a word of explanation he stepped talking and sat down. The audience hardly knew what to do. After awhile some one more bold than the rest got up, strode down the aisle and went out. Some one else followed, and in a few minutes the hall was empty. "Very good lecture, Mr. Clemens," said a local dignitary, who was trying to be polite. "You mean the first half of it," was the reply. "The second half has not been delivered." "Not delivered!" almost shrieked the local dignitary. "No," said Twain, his composure not in the least disturbed, while the usual merry twinkle was seen in his eye, "but we have the money for the whole, and I don't see why we need to worry if they only take

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make statements. What they do claim, that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pains in the stomach and bowels on, has never been known. For sale by J. L. Wooten

BACON AS A FOOD.

Properly Cooked It is Valuable and Easily Digested.

Lean bacon which contained fairly large proportions of both protein and fat formed a part of the ration in a number of experiments made at the Minnesota experiment station, about nine ounces being eaten per man per day. It was cut in thin slices and baked or broiled in the oven until crisp and brown. All the fat which cooked out was saved and eaten with the bread and other food which made up the daily fare. In an average about 90 per cent of the protein and 96 per cent of the fat of the ration containing bacon were digested, and about 88 per cent of the energy was available. Calculated values for bacon alone showed over 90 per cent digested protein and 96 per cent digestible fat, figures which compare favorably with those which have been obtained for other animal foods.

Allowing 5 per cent for waste, a pound of bacon will contain from one-tenth to three-tenths digestible protein and from four-tenths to six-tenths pound digestible fat, which is about two-thirds as much as is found in butter. "Lean bacon contains as much protein and about twice as much digestible fat as other meats," says the experimental station professor, "making it at the same time and even at a higher price per pound a cheaper food than other meats. Bacon fat is easily digested, and when combined with other foods it appears to exert a favorable mechanical action upon digestion."

Many who are fond of bacon hesitate to eat it, since they believe that, being very rich in fat, it is a frequent cause of indigestion. As has been pointed out by a number of writers, it seems fair to say that in the majority of cases such digestive disturbances are not due to the fatty nature of the food, but to the fact that the bacon was overcooked, or, rather, cooked at too high a temperature. It is not surprising that this should be the case when it is

A GLIMPSE OF SPAIN.

The Manner of a Wedding Dance in the Provinces.

The wedding dance was being held in a long, narrow building near a fountain, and we entered on a smooth earth floor. Seats were arranged about the sides of the white-washed room, and the low rafters were draped and festooned with fancy wall paper with gold scrolls in it. The music was furnished by a piano organ at one end of the long room, turned in rotation by a number of small boys in their clean blue blouses and brown corduroy breeches, who felt their importance, and at the other end of the room a table was spread with cakes and bread and a wine concoction very sweet and pleasant, but seductive. The women, some bringing their babies, were a pleasant set, but not beautiful, although a few, with their large dark eyes, came very near to it. They did not wear the gay costumes of my imagination, but their dresses showed great care and conscientious patching. A gay handkerchief was often folded around the neck and across the breast, and large earrings and big breastpins were the vogue even among the young women. The men wore broad brimmed black felt hats and clean blue blouses, corduroy trousers, either light tan or brown, and the long red or black sash belt called a "faja" wound many times about the waist, the folds serving as pockets for cigarettes, tobacco pouch and the villainous knife that every one carries.

The dances were "round," interspersed with a square dance, where four people comprised a set—a sort of fandango, with lots of stamping and attempts at lithe, serpentine motions, with the hands raised above the head. There was a very old man who danced with great gusto and amused the crowd of young people, who encouraged him with clapping of hands. Edward Penfield in Scribner's.

Some Cat Superstitions.

Napoleon Bonapart showed a morbid horror of cats. The night before the battle of Waterloo a black cat passed near him, and at the sight the great warrior was completely unnerved. He saw an omen of defeat. Henry III of France swooned whenever he saw a cat, and one of the Fredinands of Germany would tremble in his boots if a harmless tabby got in the line of his vision.

Among the Romans, cat was a symbol of liberty. The Egyptians held the animal in veneration under the name of Aelurus, a deity with a human body and a cat's head. Whoever killed a cat, even by accident, was put to death. Diana assumed the form of a cat and excited the fury of the giants.

Lost—On Sunday evening between Greenville and Bell's Cross Roads in Belvoir township, a buggy blanket, black on one side with green figure of tiger on other side. Finder will be rewarded by leaving same at the postoffice in Greenville. B. G. Albritton.

DRESS BETTER PAY LESS

THAT is what hundreds of sensible men are doing—buying our fine Ready for Service Clothes instead of bothering with a tailor.

You get better Clothes that way; better styles and better satisfaction. Nine times in ten a better fit, too. As for the cost, you can see for yourself what a profit the wholesale tailor makes; his army of detail specialists, his enormous buying of fabric and his system of cutting, making and finishing a thousand suits at a time, are all factors in lowering the price to you.

BE WELL DRESSED

Don't make the mistake of buying the Cheap ready-mades they are dear at any price. No one can do the impossible—give something for nothing—good Cloth and high-class fabrics cost far more than they used too.

When $15 to $20 an up will pay for one of our Splendid Suits, the few dollars you might save don't represent economy—or good sense either. Come in and let us show you how good "Ready Clothes" can be.

We have all the latest styles in Fine Clothes for men—$10 to $35— and everything desirable in Fall furnishings.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

Ex-Side Show Strong Arm Lady Has a New and Ideal Job.

A woman who might have been Mrs. Sandow answered the bell. The census enumerator took the name and then asked for the occupation.

"I'm a strong arm woman," said Mrs. Sandow.

"What's that?"

"It's like this," she said: "I used to be in a side show. One day a smart lookin' lady slipped up to me an' says, 'What do you get?' I says, 'Ten an' four.' 'We'll give you twenty,' she says.

"Well, I left the show an' went with her. I found she was the president of a woman's club. She took me to a meetin', an' I got my orders before the whole boonch.

"Mary," said the president, 'ev'ry Monday mornin' we hev bargain sales at the big department stores. We all like bargains, but the ladies of the club don't stand no show. They are lightweights. They can't get in.

"Now, Mary," she said, 'you're a strong woman. You could fell an ox with a blow of your fist. What we want you to do is to take a list once a week of the things we want to buy. Go downtown with it on Monday mornin' and get the goods.'

"So that's what I do."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

For Her.

"What I want," pants the comic opera star who had acquired a superabundance of flesh—"what I want is a vehicle for the proper display of my personality. I don't want any ordinary"—

"No, Miss Fatyette," interposes the playwright, "you don't want any ordinary vehicle. How would an automobile truck do in these days of auto drama?"—Judge.

Great Work.

"The poets have done a great though unrecognized work for the world," remarked the literary person.

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "They have so many good things which may be quoted that there is no excuse for one being stupidly original."—Washington Star.

Heroism.

Grace—I wonder why Fred proposed to Miss Hasbeen.

Helen—I understand he is making a try for the Carnegie hero prize.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Not All Hard.

Housekeep—I tell you, the price of anthracite these days makes it come hard to the coal buyer.

Wiseman—Yes, but it doesn't make it come hard to the coal cellar. Sometimes it's mixed with bituminous.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Paradox of a Buried Treasure.

Buried treasure is not always apocryphal. An instance occurred in the last century at Washington, lying seven miles north of Worthing. In that village for many generations a tradition had lingered that, just before the battle of Hastings, a great treasure had been hidden. From 1066 to 1836 it lay undisturbed. In that latter year, at the Wasington (settlement of the sons of Wasa, to give the village its Saxon name), 3,000 pennies of the coinage of Edward the Confessor and Harold were unearthed, which proved for once the truth that may underlie an "old wives' fable."—London Chronicle.

An All Round Raise.

A man owning a double house sublet the half he did not occupy to a noisy tenant. Such a racket was kept up that he notified the party to quit.

"What's the matter with me?" he asked, much hurt in his pride.

"Ah, you raise too much noise all the time, and I can't stand it."

"Why don't you balance matters by raising something yourself? I don't object."

"Don't you? Well, I'll just raise the rent." And he did to such an extent that the tenant left.—Stran

STOKERS ON A BATTLESHIP.

Henry Nevinson, special correspondent of the Glasgow Herald with the British blue fleet in the recent maneuvers, after describing how blue dodged red's superior force in the Atlantic and raced into the English channel, says:

"While we in the salt air and sunshine of the bridge admired our speed and watched the enemy receding behind us, the true heroes of triumph were toiling in narrow chambers of iron far below the water's level. There, for sixteen hours apiece during our forty-eight hours' run, the stokers labored in an atmosphere that, I think, was never less than 120 degrees and in the chamber of the old cylindrical boilers was more. Four hours on and eight off ran the shifts, and for four hours at a time each stoker plied his furnace, shut in from above by the armor which makes a battleship's stokehold very different from a liner's. The down draft whirled the black dust round them; the fires burnt their flesh; they streamed with sweat; in spite of all precautions the glare scorched their eyes."

And for a word of praise and two shillings a day, adds Mr. Nevinson, they did it all and smiled!

Reads Like a Story.

A Clark Russell story in real life is reported from New Zealand. The Taviuni, a Pacific trading steamer, recently arrived at Auckland with two members of the crew of the Lord Templeton, a ship voyaging from Newcastle to Honolulu. They were Englishmen, and the rest of the crew were foreigners. Fights and quarrels among the latter were so frequent and violent that the Englishmen found life on board intolerable. So one night, in mid-Pacific, they seized a small boat and quietly left. They visited various islands and were kindly treated by the natives. After many adventures they reached Papeete, the principal French trading center in the Pacific. There they were picked up by the Taviuni and taken to Auckland.

Peculiar Austrian Law.

A few days ago the murderer of an Englishman who was killed in Austria in July of last year was tried, convicted and sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment. He owes his life to a peculiarity of the Austrian law. Premeditated murder is commonly a capital crime there, but when the murderer has between the commission of his crime and his trial been punished for some other misdeed the death sentence cannot be passed upon him. In this case the murderer had served a week's sentence for some petty offense after the killing, but before his arrest for it.

The World's Submarine Cables.

There are about 225,000 miles of cable in all at the bottom of the sea, representing $250,000,000, each line costing about $1,000 a mile to make and lay. The average useful life of a cable nowadays is anything between thirty and forty years, according to circumstances. About 6,000,000 messages are conveyed by the world's cables throughout the year, or 15,000 a day, the working speed of any one cable being up to 100 words a minute under present conditions. About 90 per cent of these are sent in code or cipher.

Whole Town Has the Habit.

"If physicians are right when they advocate plenty of fresh air in winter and summer as a preventive and cure for tuberculosis, then the people of Evanston, Ill., won't have to worry much about the great white plague," said John R. Donald of that thriving Chicago suburb, who is at the Plankinton House. "Nearly the entire city has taken to sleeping out of doors or in tents. There is an open air tent in nearly every yard, containing cots, and the fresh air full in full blast."—Milwaukee News.

Fined the Weather Man.

There's a rule at the Cosmos club in Washington by which any member of the club is fined for talking shop. The other night it looked as though the treasury would not be enriched from this source, but Professor Willis Moore, chief of the weather bureau, came to the rescue. Just as he was leaving the club he turned to a group of friends and courteously baded them "good evening." He was recalled and fined.
