TRIP AROUND THE WORLD.

EDSALL-WINTHROPE STOCK CO.

Mrs. Lou Nichols, of Beaver Dam is here on a visit to her daughter Mrs. W. J. Hemby.

Mrs. E. S. Edwards left Tuesday for Williamston where she will make a short visit.

Miss Ida G. Edwards is visiting relatives in Kinston.

W. B. Wilson, of Greenville, was here on business Tuesday.

We regret to learn B. S. Summerell and family anticipate leaving Ayden and making their home at Wharton. This is an excellent family and our people are loath to give them up.

James Sauls who has been visiting his brother M. M. Sauls has returned to his home in Fremont.

W. E. Hooks went to Greenville Wednesday.

Mrs. F. G. Buhmann, and Miss Isabella Dawson have come home from Norfolk.

B. F. Manning and family who have been on a visit to Fort Barnwell came home this week.

Will Ormond of Ormondville has been a pleasant visitor at our office during the week.

Capt. D. G. Berry, William Denniss, Zeb Bland, Ollie Cox, Tobe Moye and Joe Blow all went to Greenville today.

Mr. Moon a brother of Mrs. Stancill Hodges left for his home in Washington City today.

Burglars Galore--Wednesday evening a phone message was received here conveying the intelligence that two very suspicious looking characters were wending their way in this direction and warning the authorities to be on the look out. This created no small ripple of excitement, and things for a short while were somewhat on the live order. About sundown sure enough, two gentlemen presenting the appearance of the wild road proclivities came and found quarters at a boarding house in town. After careful investigation nothing definite could be learned of them and they for awhile were left to their own meditation. Later upon arrival of a freight after dark four men said to be white were seen to leave railroad and go down by the Ayden Mfg. plant where they halted and held a conference and then went on to the woods a short distance away, like magic the incident was wafted up town and then excitement, pshaw! it was crazy, from the real old man to the lad of ten it was who should and shouldn't catch the gang. All night the town was paraded, valuables were placed in safety, babes were tucked under beds, wives sought refuge in closet while their liege lords were on the warpath in defense of home and country. Next morning all was serene, the robbers gone the valuables replaced, the babes once again in the mother's arm, the mother from her closet at her household affair and our chivalrous manhood back to usual avocations of life and everything calm awaiting later developments to chronicle, and make our place in history famous and our people as subjects to be admired and spoken of men. So endeth the second chapter in Burglary history hie.

Written for the Reflector.

What fifth grade school boy never owned or kept a dog--pointer, setter, gray hound, New Foundland, collie or Fice? He is an impossibility. And you might as well undertake to find one who never had a sweetheart three times his age, or who does not like watermelon. It does not matter how homely (we are thinking about the dog of course) "There is nothing like ownership." And a boy will defend his favorite and property, at any extremity, even in the presence of his mother. But notwithstanding the kicks and hard usage he is compelled to submit to, Fido is patient and believes that it is all for love and intended for his good, and coiled at his master's feet on a quiet summer evening, the youngster with his improvised quartett who does not sing, and sing with his friends Old Tray with his whole heart, is not the kind of boy Deacon Whichard is looking for as a promising Sunday school scholar.

But has a Greenville in knee pants ever heard of Joe Davis and his famous rat terriers, Pink, and Ready, that exterminated Mr. Hoyt's rodents at the rate of forty every sixty seconds? Ask Cousin Blount Pearce.

Joe, as we remember him in his earliest years, was a small, white headed, near sighted boy, with a talent for training animals and birds. And because of this talent, like Saint Francis, he was able to communicate and commune with his silent friends and learn mysteries known only to the dumb. The birds and other feathered fowls were always his special pets. And in his way controlled some of the most vicious brutes of the canine species. He would frequently go into an enclosure with a furious dog and reduce him to submission by soothing and kindness, and with a peculiar whistle he could summon all the dogs in the town within the sound of his voice, when they would gather about him, all varieties, big and little, moving as they did together, through the streets in the most perfect harmony and good fellowship to a royal rabbit hunt, from which they quietly dispersed in the same way each to his own quarters. What do you say, Lewis Lawrence?

As a digression, who of us can recall the year of the great social convention among the beaux and belles of Greenville that began about the time Dr. Sibberling proposed to a certain charming widow? Who? As a silent witness of the past in the days of yore, there still stands the long county bridge, the scene of many a moon lit promenade. When the wee hours were waning that suddenly awoke a familiar warning, and good night, with the rumble and echo of a passing horse and cart on the old bridge.

Here we introduce Mr. Irvin Briley the proprietor of this horse and cart. And in his cart he had placed at least two dozen logger head turtles of all sizes,

Jesse Speight returned Thursday evening from Norfolk.

Miss Martha O'Hagan returned Thursday evening from Norfolk.

Misses Carrie Gay and Rosa Hooker returned this morning from Wilson.

Miss Janie Brown returned this morning from a visit to Tarboro.

J. M. Blow, the clever manager of The Reflector's Ayden department, was up to see us today.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hines left this morning for a visit to Goldsboro and Warsaw.

Mr. Williams, of Louisburg, came in Thursday evening to visit his son, M. J. P. Williams, who is sick here.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Arthur returned home Thursday evening from a visit to several points in Virginia.

W. L. Clark and Henry Dixon left this morning for Whitsett to visit their sons who are in school there.

with great glaring eyes, snapping each other in their efforts to escape. They are all harmless now. But think of Mr. B. with his wise looking old dog following on three legs who had been bitten in the mud of Grindool creek, and held fast it is said, until it thundered, or he was relieved with the loss of his foot. How did you catch them said a stranger "Breedem," said Mr. B. in a surly mood, remembering the accident in which his horse ran on the bridge turning over cart and rider, as well as turtles, left to save themselves in the scramble regardless of the danger of cracking their shells in the fearful fall to the low ground.

But of course our friend was neither killed nor maimed on the occasion, although he made a narrow escape, and seldom referred to the incident. But it is possible he would sometimes turn a conversation at this point to the subject of his neighbor, Tom Gwarthney's escapade and where he had been exhibiting his skill as an acrobat, especially to some sable maidens, showing them how he could turn a summersault on the bridge banisters, when he slipped and was precipitated thirty feet into the middle of the dark and turbid river, and was only saved by clinging to a post at the water edge.

We remember poor Tom and can imagine his dripping clothes and thoroughly wilted appearance as he emerged from the bridge and said "good evening, gentlemen."

In conclusion there was Uncle Mansel Flake, said to have been a revolutionary soldier, (peace to his ashes), that with his son, John, had they been present as usual, might have witnessed the exciting horror, as in single file they always followed each other to and from the "bridge" grocery, and where this most unfilial son would frequently say to his venerable sire: "Hush, Daddy! you know you are telling a (dinky) lie." Uncle Tom.

Most Successful Hit of the Season.

For genuine interest and pleasure the trip around the world, Thursday night, inaugurated and conducted by the ladies of the Methodist church, was the success of the season. It was simply great, and the large crowd who made the trip got more than their money's worth.

The union depot, the starting point of the journey, was at Pender's store, from which carriages took passengers on the tour. The first country visited was Japan, at the home of Gov. and Mrs. T. J. Jarvis. Here everything was typical of the country represented, the parlor decorations being of Japanese flags and the dining room with Japanese draperies, table covers and napkins. Mrs. Jarvis, dressed as a Japanese lady and in a brogue equal to a native, delivered an interesting lecture on the flag and customs of the Japs. The refreshments consisted of the national drink "sake," which the visitors were admonished to take with "a straight face" lest offense be given, potatoes and rice a la Japanese and fruits. A large cluster of Japanese persimmons hung above the table.

Next the passengers were conveyed to Greece at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Hooker who cordially greeted the arrivals, Mrs. Hooker being attired in ideal Grecian costume. The scene here was one of beauty, the decorations being in national colors and flags of the country. Around the hall and rooms were cozy ottomans on which Grecian beauties and their supposed lovers gracefully reclined. A graphophone made merry music while the feast was going on. The refreshments here consisted of fruit punch, stuffed dates and salted wafers. The voyagers departed with pleasant recollections of the beautiful scenes of Greece.

The journey was then to Egypt at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Brown. The visitors were welcomed at the door by an Egyptian lady who turned them over to a black veiled sister to be presented to the noted personages of the court, the Khedive and his consort, the prince and princess. After these introductions the visitors were escorted to a cozy corner in the hall where the fortune teller read their palms and unfolded the future. The male representatives of the country used long stem pipes and the ladies hid their faces below the eyes hid behind black veils. Refreshments consisting of coffee, wafers and pickles were served. The decorations were in keeping with the country.

From here the course of the traveler was to Africa, represented at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Wilson. The decorations were very striking, besides the red and purple colors there being numerous palms, cocconut trees and tropical plants. Here

Opening a Three Nights Engagement Monday Night.

The advanced agent hands in the following:

The Edsall-Winthrope Stock Company which is acknowledged by many competent critics as the most modern and up-to-now popular priced attractions entour today, will be in this city for three nights, commencing next Monday, Nov. 26th. This season Mr. Edsall is carrying the largest and best company that he has ever brought South. The repertoire is carefully chosen selection of royalty plays, nothing old, everything new. The specialties were selected after a careful inspection of the various northern vaudeville stages, and the management luckily secured as special between-the-acts features "The 3 Hylands," "Miss Mae Gardner," and "Goodwin and Goodwin."

The opening bill on Monday night is "Saved from the Sea, an idyl of the lives of the fishermen on the coast of North Carolina. This five-act comedy-drama is a gem of the playwright's art in which humor and pathos are cleverly commingled, and the players are as adept in portraying one as the other. "Living prices" will prevail by special arrangement with the management of this superb attraction, viz: 15, 25 and 35 cents. Seats on sale Saturday morning.

was the real fun of the voyage. Uncle Reuben and Aunt Judy were right there with their full retinue, including their grown up children--Dinah, as likely a nigger gal as the country produced, Pete, who was a regular sport, and Sam, who wern't fit fer nothin' but to suck cheroots ---down through all sizes to the veritable picaninnies. And they were "plum honeys," every one of them. They played the harmonica and drum, sang, danced and cut all manner of funny capers that kept the visitors roaring with laughter. Ambrosia and ginger cakes were served with nigger toes as souvenirs.

The travelers were loath to leave Africa but America, the garden spot of the earth, was yet to be visited. This was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Munford where "Old Glory" waved in profusion amid the decorations of national colors and made everybody feel that they were in "the land of the free and home of the brave." Various types of the American citizen were in evidence. George and Martha Washington, Pocahontas and Virginia Dare to represent the early period in the nation's history, the American beauty of today, the Jack Tar, the dude, Alphonso and Gaston, Happy Hooligan and on down to the twentieth century dude. In one room the mantel was banked with open cotton boils and over in the corner were two ladies of ante bellum days, one industriously carding cotton and the other whirling the almost forgotten spinning wheel. Sherbet and iced cakes were served, the sherbet cups being surmounted with tiny American flag souvenirs.

From America the travelers "tapped the grit" home by any route desired and at will. The trip was unique and a real innovation. Much credit is due the ladies who planned and executed it, and we are glad to know it was also a success financially.

The Wrong Way.

The late John C. Paige had at one time as a profession the run of a very particular brand, a pleasant, gentlemanly young fellow, but always ready to take a hand in a quiet game, and on this account it was thought best by his friends to send him to Boston on a limited income with the hope of being away from old associates and of getting some business energy in him.

Mr. Paige gave him some good, wholesome advice, particularly instructing him to "keep his name before the public to let the people know he was living," etc.

Not very long after this Boston debut Mr. Paige very late one evening was requested to call at a nearby police station. The young man, it appeared, had got into a very noisy game and was arrested, but not before he had been cleaned out of everything he possessed.

"Well, young man," said Mr. Paige, "this is nice, isn't it?"

"Well, s'r, you told me to get my name before the public."

"Oh, yes," Mr. Paige replied, "but I didn't tell you to have a judge and jury go with it to fix the advertising rates."—Boston Herald.

A TEXAS WONDER.

There's a Hill at Bowie, Tex., that's twice as big as last year. This wonder is W. L. Hill, who from a weight of 90 pounds has grown to over 180. He says: "I suffered with a terrible cough, and doctor gave me up to die of Consumption. I was reduced to 90 pounds, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Now, after taking 12 bottles, I have more than doubled in weight and am completely cured." Only sure Cough and Cold cure. Guaranteed by Jno. L. Wooten Druggist. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

E. C. DeWitt & Co., of Chicago, at whose laboratory Kodol is prepared, assure us that this remarkable digestant and corrector for the stomach conforms fully to all provisions of the National Pure Food and Drug Law. The Kodol laboratory is a very large one, but if all the sufferers from indigestions and stomach troubles could know the virtues of Kodol it would be impossible for the manufacturers to keep up with the demand. Kodol is sold here by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

It is noticeable a cold seldom comes on when the bowels are freely open. Kennedy's Laxative, (containing) Honey and Tar is the original Laxative Cough Syrup. Taste as pleasant as maple sugar. Free from all opiates. Conforms to the National Pure Food and Drug Law. Sold by Jno. J. Wooten's Drug Store.

The average young woman of today is busy. Beauty is only another name for health, and it comes to 99 out of every 100 who take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. Tea or Tablets.

LUDICROUS LEGAL LORE.

A Legend of the Early Jurisprudence of Michigan.

The early history of the jurisprudence of Michigan, if faithfully chronicled, would furnish forth an entertainment abounding with the soul and point of humor. Many of these little legends yet float around the scenes which have given birth to them and serve sometimes to give zest to a bar dinner or to enliven a bar meeting. Among them is the following:

Judge B., a plain and worthy man, but no lawyer, was once county judge of Oakland under the old system. A case came on for trial before him on one occasion in which the action was founded in tort, and the plea of the defendant, which was special, was such as to give him the affirmative of the issue, upon the strength of which he claimed the right to open and close the case. This point was denied by the counsel for the plaintiff, "who never in the whole course of his practice had heard of such an enormity as the defendant's presuming to open the case." Authorities were brought and cited, however, and the judge, after mature consideration, determined that such was the defendant's right and so pronounced his decision. After a short pause, during which the plaintiff was grumbling his dissatisfaction, the court told the defendant's lawyer to go on.

"Your honor," said he, rising, "I am not quite ready to open the case. When I get ready I will let the other side know!" This opened, if not the case, at least the eyes and mouth of the other side, who sprang to his feet and bellowed forth denunciation upon the stupidity of the judge, whose absurd decision had placed him in such a dilemma. "You see, your honor, what you have done. You have actually placed the case in the hands of the defendant. He took possession of our oxen, and when we brought an action to recover them he took possession of that also." "I can't help it, sir," said the learned judge, with great sternness. "The decision is made, and it is too late to alter it. The law must take its course. You must withdraw your action and sue again."

"If he does, your honor," said the defendant's counsel, "I shall plead the pendency of this action in bar and beat him." "Then, Mr. —," said the judge, "I see no other way for you but to sit down quietly and wait till the defendant gets ready to try this case." The plaintiff took the judge's advice, but the "time appointed" has never elapsed, and he is waiting yet. — Philadelphia North American.

A Surprised Preacher.

When a clergyman in the course of his sermon asks a question he doesn't expect any one to answer it. At a watch night service at St. Paul's church, Brixton, England, the vicar was preaching a sermon on the prodigal son, in the course of which he said: "Last year some people came to watch night service from a neighboring public house, and some of them were drunk. Is there any one here like that to-night?"

"Yes," said a respectable looking man seated in the aisle; "I'm here, and I'm drunk."

The effect on the congregation was electrical. The preacher was startled for a moment, but after saying, "Poor fellow, poor fellow!" proceeded with his discourse.

"I tell you I'm drunk," said the intruder.

"Hold your tongue," said the vicar. "I am speaking now and must not be interrupted."

A Fine Piece of Work.

"I tell you," exclaimed the young medical student, "our professor is an eminent surgeon."

"How's that?" asked his chum.

"Well, a fellow was brought in with a crushed leg. The professor said it must come off, but by some means or other he cut off the wrong leg."

"Do you call that a fine piece of surgery?"

"Wait a bit. The professor said it would be terrible for the poor fellow to go about with no legs at all, so he splinted up the crushed leg instead of cutting that off, too, and now it is as good as ever. An ordinary surgeon would have left the fellow legless. Wonderful skill, the professor's!"—Strand Magazine.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Co. victor

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure it would accomplish. The result of the trial was therefore a great surprise instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly state of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make statement. What they do claim, that it will positively cure diarrhoea, enteric pain in the stomach and bowels and has never been known to fail. For sale by J. L. Wooten

The Ideal Duster.

A soft chamois skin, not too large, soaked in cold water and then wrung out, is the ideal duster. It can be used on the finest woods, leaving a clear, bright surface. After every piece of furniture has been wiped with the moist chamois the rooms may be considered really "dusted."

Canker Sores.

What are known as "canker sores" occur very often with those troubled with indigestion, and a mixture of an ounce of pure honey, a dram of tincture of valerian and a quarter dram of powdered borax is a specific. Take a teaspoonful twice a day and rinse the mouth with alum water.

A Dilemma.

Young Bellarine had at the same time a sore throat and pains in his stomach. So he went to the doctor, who said that he must take something sweet for his throat, but he protested, saying that it would be bad for his stomach. "And," said the doctor, refusing to listen, "for your stomach you must take something strong."

"But," protested once more the victim, "that will be bad for my throat."

"Dear me!" exclaimed the doctor, out of patience. "You are a little too much. Decide instantly whether you prefer a sore throat or stomach trouble."—H. Riso.

FRIDAY, NOV. 23, 1906.

It cost Hearst over $250,000 to get defeated for governor of New York, while Hughes got elected on an outlay of $600. So it would seem that money does not always count.

The negroes throughout the country have jumped on the president so hard about discharging the three companies of negro soldiers, that he is about to take water.

Five Durham young men run down to Raleigh and undertook to "paint" the town, creating one of the greatest disturbances the capitol has had of late. The result was the young men spent a night in the lock up and paid liberal fines in the police court next morning. The fact is not stated, but we suppose the usual claim can be made that the young men are of good families and claim to be gentlemen.

TO SOLVE THE NEGRO PROBLEM.

Governor-elect Hoke Smith, of Georgia, is of opinion that a large influx of foreign immigration to the South would go far toward solving the race problem. He says that in that case the negroes who are now segregated in the South, would scatter themselves over the country, which in his opinion, would be better for the South and the negro both. The Richmond Times-Dispatch, which takes knowledge of everything, passes judiciously upon this suggestion, approves it, and presents a modern instance, showing how well the idea has worked once in its own State. We copy:

"The Springfield Republican, which has a very tender regard for the negro in the South, commends this saying of Mr. Smith's, and thinks that there is much reason in it. This much at least is sure, if the negro population is distributed throughout the whole country, so as to give to each and every State its fair proportion of the black race; the negro problem will then become a national and not a sectional problem. The South is quite willing that other sections shall have their just proportion of negroes, if other sections can induce them to emigrate from the South and settle in the North and West.

There is one Northern man, at any rate, who has shown a disposition to do his part in removing the negro from the South to the North, and all Northerners who are like-minded may, if they choose, follow his example, with the full consent of the South. We refer to the Massachusetts gent who came down to Danville, Va., captured a negro woman, of whose charms he had become enamored, and took her home to become his wife. This incident may afford our Springfield contemporary a text for further observations on the negro problem."

All of which is respectfully submitted.—Charlotte Observer.

GREENVILLE COTTON MARKET, REPORTED BY
J. R. & J. G. MOYE.

COTTON

The South has as great an advantage over Europe today, as Europe had over the South a few years ago, when Europe got her Cotton at a price less than the cost of production. Today cotton is relatively lower than any other product of the earth. Foreign spinners recognize this. We have the demand this year as shown by the exports this season far exceeding last season up to this date. It matters not what the crop is, so much as what the size of the demand is. You have seen small crops sell at low prices. Every bale will be wanted this year unless prices go above 12 cents.

Buy cotton futures now and wait for 12 cents. We execute orders in lots of 25 bales and upwards. Will loan 90 per cent of the value on spot cotton shipped to us.

STRENGTH OF THE TIGER.

How This Tiger Killed a Bull and Carried it to the Prey.

I have taken considerable trouble to find out how tigers kill large game, writes an assistant controller of forests at Penang. Some time ago I was asked to come and see a full grown bullock that had been killed by a tiger. On examining it I found the animal had its neck broken, and there were claw marks on the nose and shoulder and nowhere else. There was no doubt that the tiger had jumped at the bull and landed on the shoulder, and when the bull turned his head to gore the tiger he must have put his claw out and with a sudden jerk broken the neck.

On another occasion I went to see a young buffalo which had been killed by a tiger and found the same thing had happened. There were similar marks on the nose and also on the near shoulder, which clearly indicated that this animal had been killed in the same way. Malays who have actually seen a tiger killing a buffalo told me they saw the same thing happen; also that in dragging off a heavy carcass, such as buffalo or bull, he gets most of the weight across his shoulder.

This must be fairly correct, as I have often followed a kill, and the marks left indicated that only a portion of the animal was trailing along the ground. I have known a full grown bull which ten men would not move dragged two miles by a tiger in a heavy jungle, where roots of trees and swamp had to be gone through. In no case have I seen the pug marks facing the wrong way except when stopping to feed, which proves he must carry a portion of the animal over his shoulder.

The old idea of a tiger killing large game by a blow from his paw is nonsense. Besides, in this country a tiger never faces his prey, but attacks him on the flank, unless charged. Another curious fact that may seem very like a fairy tale is that a tiger does not seem to mind a small lamb being tied over a kill about ten feet high, but will come and feed. I have known three occasions when this has been tried, and each time a tiger has come to feed upon the carcass.—London Field.

Art of Pleasing.

A woman cannot charm because she wants to. A man is not agreeable because he sets out to be. The proper effect must, like repartee, be spontaneous and unpremeditated. It must be radiated naturally, like light and love. Books there are that pretend to tell how it is done. They do so quite as completely as grasshoppers teach entomology. The ability to charm, to be agreeable, to entertain perfectly and to be perfectly entertaining is an art apprehensible only through influence—generally prenatal, but always prolonged. The mere technique is so volatile that it must be inhaled. Like the Mayfair intonation, little by little, it must be absorbed, says Edgar Saltus in the Delineator. Kings and thugs may abash the amateur in the art of teasing, but the artist is at home with them. He puts himself in harmony with them. In the ability to do that is the whole secret of the art of pleasing.

Various How Are You's?

"How are you?" in German is "Wie befinden sie sich?" (How do you find yourself?) It is also "Wie geht's."

The Dutch say "Hoe vaart gij?" (How do you fare?) The Italians ask, "Come state?" (How do you stand?) The French, "Comment vous portez-vous?" (How do you carry yourself?)

The Greeks ask what you are doing, the Chinese want to know if you enjoy your rice, and the Russians inquire how you are living.

The Arabs, a devout people, say, "God grant his favors to you." The Turks, no less devout, say, "Be under God's care."

Forehanded.

The London Telegraph tells of a small girl who entered a grocer's shop in Whitechapel and said:

"Please, sir, I want 'arf a pound of butter and a penn'orth of cheese, and muvver says she will send a shilling in when farver comes home."

"All right," replied the man.

"But," continued the child, "muvver wants the change, cos she 'as got to put a penny in the gas meter."

THE MELANCHOLY DANE.

Supposed Source of the Plot of Shakespeare's "Hamlet."

While Shakespeare no doubt wrote the tragedy of "Hamlet," as it is found today, he borrowed many of his data from an earlier writer, Saxo Grammaticus, a Danish historian who died about 1204. His writings were in Latin, and in Shakespeare's time they had not been translated into any modern language. The story is to be found in Belleforest's collection of novels, begun in 1564, and an English translation of it was published entitled "The Hystorie of Hamblet, Prince of Denmarke." Horvendile in the novel is the name of Hamlet's father, Fengon that of his uncle and Geruth that of his mother. Fengon traitorously slays Horvendile and marries his brother's wife. In the second chapter Hamlet counterfeits the madman to escape the tyranny of his uncle. Through the machinations of his uncle he is tempted by a woman, the uncle thinking thereby to undermine the prince and find out whether his madness is counterfeited or not.

In the third chapter Fengon, the uncle, tries a second time to entrap Hamlet in politic madness and causes one of his councilors to be secretly hidden in the queen's chamber behind the curtains to hear what speeches pass between Hamlet and the queen. Hamlet kills him and thus escapes danger. In the fourth chapter Hamlet is sent to England by Fengon, with secret letters to have him put to death. While his companions sleep Hamlet counterfeits the letters willing the king of England to put the two messengers to death." Here he finds the resemblance between the history and the play. The Hamlet of the history returns to Denmark, slays his uncle, burns his palace, makes an oration to the Danes and is elected king. He goes back to England, kills the king of that country, returns to Denmark with two English wives and finally falls through the treachery of one of these ladies. This is the supposed source of the plot of Shakespeare's "Hamlet."

A Pardonable Excuse.

A Columbia university man who makes frequent use of foreign words and phrases in his talks and his literary products was under fire for this practice. The feeling among his antagonists was that the English language is a good enough means of expression. "Well," said the expert in word pictures, "to me the number of these foreign phrases give an interesting history which their use recalls. I plead guilty to sentiment for just this kind of thing. Take the expression 'sub rosa.' Its English substitute is 'privately.' I prefer to think of the rose as an emblem of secrecy in Greece, and the custom which had one of these pretty flowers hung over the table where guests were entertained in token that nothing said there was to be repeated; hence the expression 'sub rosa.'"

A Lively Court Scene.

They had a lively scene in a court at Algiers when thirty thieves were brought up for their sentences. The judge had just sentenced the prisoners when a notorious thief flung a foot at him. It hit the presiding judge squarely on the nose, making blood spurt. This was a signal to the other prisoners, for immediately a storm of boots, caps and other articles hurtled through the air, and amid the confusion the band of rascals made a dash for liberty. The gendarmes had to draw their swords before order could be re-established. All the prisoners were caught and lined up again before the judge, who gave them all three months more at hard labor for committing an outrage on the magistracy.

Persian Justice.

Professor Williams Jackson tells his "Persia Past and Present" some stories illustrating character of the land of Omar Khayyam. One of a man who, suffering from injured eyes, went to a horse doctor for treatment. The veterinary gave him some of the salve that he used on animals, and the man lost his sight. He then brought suit in court to recover damages. The judge, after weighing the evidence in the case, handed down his decision as follows: "There are no damages to be recovered. The man would never have gone to a veterinary if he had not been an ass!"
