THE GARDEN OF EDEN.

And History of The Bible.

Rev. Ada C. Bowles, of Boston, delivered two interesting discourses here Sunday in Delphia Moye Chapel. The morning subject was "The Garden of Eden," and as a foundation she used this text: "Now is the man become as one of us to know good and evil"—Gen. 3:22.

The story of Eden is full of beautiful meaning, but has been robbed of all its strength and beauty by blind leaders of the blind for ages. Rightly understood, it is the olden objective lesson in physical and spiritual evolution.

Science today tells us that the history of one of a certain species is the history of the species as a whole. If we will then apply this fact to the story of the Garden of Eden, we will see its force. Every child born, is born into a Paradise of innocence.

The first demand is for food. Adam, representing the race, is supplied first with food as a primal need. Next intelligence in the child is developed, it distinguishes objects, is able to speak, to give names to things as did Adam. Next affection, demanding companionship; and now must come that higher development of the spirit, the ethical sense, and here in the home you may see every day enacted the Eden experience.

The mother places a fine vase of lillies on a bracket and warns the children not to touch it while she is absent. The girl is drawn first to the flowers, suggests that they stand upon a chair and just smell the perfume. Then between them the vase falls, is broken, and the children run away. The mother comes and calls. The little culprits are ashamed to show themselves. The naughty impulse has cooled down, the Lord God walks in the cool of the day in their little spiritual garden, and they heard his call before they heard the mother's "John, Mary, where are you?" "We were afraid and hid." "Why? Have you troubled the flowers?" Then John will lay the blame on Mary and Mary will lay it on serpent of temptation. Each will seek to shirk the moral responsibility laid upon them in that first act of disobedience. It has brought pain and shame to them, but the wise mother is glad that they feel the shame. She knows they will the next time tempted to disobey, hesitate longer, and perhaps conquer the impulse. What if they continued to do wrong because they could see difference between right and wrong, good and evil? Then they would be called innocents, that is idiots, and her heart would break at such a fate for them. But if there is no power to distinguish, then there is no temptation, an evil act would be as normal as a good act.

With this in mind come into this Garden of Genesis and ask why this serpent? Not against God's wish and plan is he here. God is all love. He has the good of the race at heart. He is a wise to plan for it. The serpent is the symbol of His wisdom; a wisdom that provided temptation as a means to open man's eyes that he might become as the gods knowing good and evil.

Among the earliest forms of worship was the tree and serpent worship. The tree represents life, its roots down deep in the kingdom of death, as the old Nome mythology maintained.

The serpent to the Egyptian was kneph the Creator. The ancestor of all being was represented as protected within the folds of the serpent. Serpents are sculptured by thousands on the temples of India, of Yuctan and Central America. To the Greeks the serpent was the symbol of health and good fortune. It was also the symbol of immortality and purification. It is still a household deity and fed with milk in many parts of the East and in India. If a dead cobra is found a coin is placed in its mouth and the carcass carefully buried. But you say these people were heathen, they had not Moses and the prophets, nor the Gospel. The Hebrews were no exception in reverence for the serpent. The rod of Moses is turned by God into a serpent which swallows other rods so transformed and becomes a mighty rod to smite the rock and work wonders. And when a fatal disease strikes the nation Moses lifts a brazen serpent upon a pole for their healing which is reverently cherished for hundreds of years in the temple. Be ye wise as serapents says Jesus, and John says "as Moses lifted up the Serpent so must the son of man be lifted up." But was not the Serpent cured? Yes temptation is to be put under foot, made to crawl in the dust and if you have any special temptation then fight it. The promise to the serpent was: I will put enmity between thee and the woman, between her seed and thy seed. It shall bruise thy head and thou shall bruise his heel." Do you ask what of the flaming sword turning every way to keep the way of the tree of Life? This is the great primal law of self preservation which forbids suicide, but holds a man to the battle, however hard, or brands him a coward.

So far then from the story of Eden's teaching a "Fall of Man" it teaches the rise of man, from innocence to virtue; from savagery to civilization. And in that beginning gives to woman a glory, the false theology of an enlightened age has long denied her.

THE HISTORY OF THE BIBLE.

By means of a diagram, enlarged from the Bagster's Teachers' Bible.

The history of the Bible from the beginning of the fourth century to the revised version of the nineteenth century was clearly shown.

All original manuscripts being lost in the first century and oral teaching depended upon, it was not until the close of the century that the gospels were collected as sacred writings.

FEES OF SOLICITORS.

Judge Allen Cuts Out Four-Dollar Items for Sci-fas.

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 23 — Incidentally growing out of a pre-election charge that Solicitor Brown of the Fifteenth Judicial District was collecting illegally $4 fees on sci-fa cases, the Supreme Court will be called upon to determine whether or not the solicitor in this district or any other district in the State is entitled to collect the $4 fee on sci-fa. The question of costs was heard by Judge Allen this afternoon on motion of Col. Lusk, to retax the costs in a certain case. Col. Lusk argued that both the clerk's costs and the solicitor's fee were illegal. The solicitors fee and the clerk's costs were the same in the case at issue as have been taxed in other cases.

After hearing argument Judge Allen held that the solicitor's fee of $4 was illegal. He said that there was a decision of the Supreme Court that so held. Judge Allen said that he was positive he had seen this decision many years ago, but admitting that in looking into the matter he was unable to find it. He held however, that the fee was not legal, and Judge Shuford, attorney for Solicitor Brown, appealed to the Supreme Court. It is probable that the case on appeal will be heard at once.

Relative to the clerk's costs taxed in the case at issue, Col. Lusk contended that the bill of costs of $15.55 was not legal; that only $2.05 should have been taxed. Judge Allen held that the clerk was entitled to all the costs taxed. Col. Lusk intimated that he would appeal, whereupon Judge Allen said he thought Col. Lusk's client should be satisfied.

The final decision of the the question will be of interest all over the State. The matter came up during the last election when Democrats charged that Solicitor Brown in taking $4 fees on sci-fas was accepting illegal fees. The Solicitor contended that Democratic Solicitors were taking the same fees that he was, and that there was law for such fee collections.

The sources of Bible making were the manuscripts in the original tongues, reaching into the third century, versions in other languages and writings of the Christian fathers from the second to the fifth century.

Not until the versions of the nineteenth century was the most perfect Bible made, by a careful study and comparison of the three sources were never before so compared.

Knowing the cost of its making, the blood and tears and martyrdoms, it should be doubly precious to students today.

Term Nearing End.

"SAVED FROM THE SEA.

The Edsall-Winthrope Co., Open a Three Nights Engagement Tonight.

The Edsall Winthrope Co., who open tonight at the opera house in the new maritime comedy-drama. "Saved from the Sea" with Miss Earl Winthrope as "Rose" and Master Clifford Hyland as "Little Nell," return to Greenville bearing the highest endorsement of both press & public of the entire Southern country. "Saved from the Sea" is one of the most successful comedy-dramas ever attempted by a company playing at "living prices." Plenty of comedy and a little love and pathos intermingled make it a play especially attractive and interesting to both young and old.

There will be no long weary waits for as the curtain descends on the close of an act it quickly raises on a specially engaged vaudeville feature. Mr. Edsall has spared neither time or money in making every small detail of his various productions "scenically" and "costumically" correct.

Remember "living prices" 15, 25, 35 cents.

One Pension Account Closed--Many Outstanding.

For the first time in her history the United States has closed one of her many pension accounts; that is of widows of veterans of the Revolutionary war. The last Revolutionary soldier's widow drawing a pension died in Vermont a few days ago, aged 92 years. She was the widow of Noah Damon who was 75 years old when she, at the age of 22 years, married him.

Soon after the Revolutionary war closed young women went into the marriage speculation, marrying old pensioners so they could secure a life pension after the death of their husbands, and many young women all over the land have carried on this species of marriage speculation after every war our country has had. The pension office records showed last June that there were still living 660 pensioned widows of the war of 1812; of the Indian wars 3,367 widows, while there were only 2,173 surviving soldiers of those wars; of the war with Mexico, 7488 widows, with only 3,984 pensioned soldiers. The number of pensioned soldiers in the war between the States would be too numerous to mention.

While the pension bureau has closed the pension list of widows of Revolutionary war soldiers, it has not closed that of the daughters. There are three living who are drawing pensions by special act of Congress. As the youngest of these is 85 years old it is most likely that there will soon be the second closing of a pension list by our government.

Judging by the length of time it takes to close the widows' pension lists of our earlier wars it is probable that the one for the war between the States will not be closed until toward the end of the present century.—Wilmington Messenger.

Woman Betrayed Him.
He sat in the smoking compartment of the parlor car complacently puffing a perfecto. His easy manner and his polished language proclaimed him to be a man of the world.

"Of one thing I am certain," he said, "and that is that I understand women thoroughly and completely."

His fellow passengers looked at each other uneasily and made various excuses to leave the compartment.

Two keepers boarded the train at the next station and took the solitary smoker into custody. He had escaped from an insane asylum that morning.

A Lesson in Etiquette.

Priscilla had, unknown to her mother, paid a visit to one of her small friends, and on her return Mrs. Parsons was disturbed to note the soiled dress her child wore.

"Priscilla, do you see that big spot? What do you suppose Mrs. Blake would say if she saw such a dirty dress?"

"I don't know," was Priscilla's prompt reply. "If Mrs. Blake saw it she was too polite to mention it."—Harper's Weekly.

INVALID HEROES.

Great Men Who Did Great Things in Spite of Infirmity.

A record of the magnificent courage of the world's invalid heroes is Sophia P. Shaler's book, "The Masters of Fate." One of these heroes was Green, the English historian, who could sign himself, "Faithfully (feebly, weakly, dizzily, mopily, faintly, dreamily, dully), J. R. Green." Another was Robert Louis Stevenson, who wrote, "I am about knocked out of time now; a miserable, snuffling, shivering, fever-stricken, nightmare ridden, knee tottering, hoast-hoast-hoasting shadow and remains of a man." "But," continues Stevenson, "the medicine bottles on my chimney and the blood on my handkerchief are accidents. They do not color my view of life." It was an octogenarian United States senator who, when asked for rules for longevity, replied, "Acquire a chronic ailment in youth, and nurse yourself through life—and work." Kant furnishes a lesson of this kind. Although the great metaphysician was never entirely well, he performed a prodigious amount of intellectual work and lived to be eighty years of age. "He obtained such control over his discomfiture," writes Mrs. Shaler, "that when suffering from a pain in his head he could concentrate his mind so perfectly on a chosen subject that the pain was treated as if it did not exist. By sheer force of will he would also overcome sleeplessness, caused by rheumatic attacks. 'That these,' he says, 'were not imaginary pains was proved by the glowing redness which was seen the next morning on the toes of my left foot.'"

That pitiful account which Johnson gives of Pope's physical condition rests upon the authority of an old servant of Lord Oxford, who knew him after middle age. "He was then so weak as to stand in perpetual need of attendance. He was extremely sensitive to cold, so that he wore a kind of fur doublet under a shirt of coarse, warm linen, with fine sleeves. When he arose he was invested in bodices made of stiff canvas, being scarcely able to hold himself erect till they were laced, and then he put on a flannel waistcoat. One side of his body was contracted. His legs were so slender that he enlarged their bulk with two pairs of stockings."

Great soldiers have borne afflictions they could neither overcome nor avoid. "Some of the world's foremost commanders—Julius Caesar, Napoleon, the Duke of Wellington and Archduke Charles of Austria—appear to have been epileptics. At the battle of Wagram the archduke, it is said, had a seizure which lasted about an hour. It was then that Napoleon gained the ascendancy. At the critical moment the fate of two great armies was in the hands of two epileptics. Cambyzes, the conqueror of Egypt; Alfred the Great and two of the greatest poets of Europe—Tasso and Byron—were subject to this disease, as was also the prophet Mohammed."

Many Languages of Buenos Ayres.

There are few cities in the world having more newspapers of varied tongues than Buenos Ayres. Altogether the number of dailies, weeklies, monthlies and irregulars published in the republic fluctuates about 180. Besides, of course, the "national" language, with its wide divergencies from Spanish, there are papers published in Castilian, in Catalan, in Italian, French, German and English, in Basque, in Norwegian and in Danish, in Arabic, Syrian, Hebraic, Servian and in several dialects, while in the Chubut territory the Welsh organ has a considerable sale and influence.—Buenos Ayres Herald.

"That's what Cora says."

"Well, I suppose you've made all the preparations—got your trousseau ready?"

"Long Ed" did not balk at the unusual word, as was expected.

"Yep," he returned; "Aunt Lize she bound my Sunday coat and put a new collar on't, and I've had my shoes tapped."—Youth's Companion.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of a trial was therefore a great surprise instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish but prefer to let the users make statements. What they do claim, is that it positively cures diarrhoea, cholera, and all the stomach ailments which have never been known before. For sale by J. L. Wooten.

The Ax.

The ax is of so great antiquity that its origin is lost, though the Greek legends attribute it to one of their mythical heroes. Stone axes have been found in many countries. Iron axes have been discovered in the Egyptian catacombs, and axes of bronze have been found in almost every land in Europe. Flint axes, for wood cutting, were in use among the Mexicans and other Central and South American tribes at the discovery of America. The axes of ancient times were badly made, being most of the weight in front of the handle, being thus uncertain of aim and ineffective in cutting power. Battleaxes are represented on the monuments of Nineveh and Babylon. The battleax of Robert Bruce was so heavy and used with such effect that, it is said, at the battle of Bannockburn he clove an Englishman in twain with one blow. The battleax of Charles Martel, it is said, weighed thirty pounds.

It Was Found.

A clergyman while going to church one Sunday morning lost a pocketbook containing valuable papers. After the service he made known his loss and said that whoever found the pocketbook and restored it to him would be well rewarded.

An old man immediately rose up at the back of the church and cried out:

"It's found, sir!"
"Oh, thank you, thank you, my man," said the clergyman. "Have you got it with you?"
"No, sir," answered the man, "but I comed that way myself after you did, and it wasn't there then."

ORIGIN OF TRADES UNIONS.

Journemen Bakers Struck In New York as Early as 1741.

The exact date of the origin of trades unions in America is unknown. It is believed, says the report of the Massachusetts bureau of statistics of labor, that there were no labor unions in the colonies, although a strike of journeymen bakers is said to have occurred in New York in 1741. Whatever of associated effort there was among workmen at this early period was of a temporary nature, having a single purpose in view, and when this was accomplished whatever compact existed was then dissolved. It was then the custom to call a "general meeting" whenever a matter of trade importance presented itself. Such calls were generally signed by one or two men of recognized influence in the trade, and the meetings were, as a rule, held in private homes. They were organized by the election of officers, a statement was made of the purpose in calling the trade together, and after a discussion resolutions were adopted embodying the views of those present on the question presented. When the meeting had decided what the attitude of the trade was to be all those present, if willing to do so, signed an agreement to stand by one another during the difficulty. Many if not all of the strikes in colonial times were undertaken with no more of an organization than this.

The first real understanding, so far as compositors were concerned, is said to have been in 1776, when the journeymen printers made a demand for an increase of wages, which was refused by their employers, with the result that a strike was called. This proved successful, and the association ended. Again, in 1786, an effort was made to reduce wages to $5.83 1-3 a week, and the trade was again called together and a statement issued declaring that the signers would not work for less than $6 a week.

The great period of growth for labor unions was in the latter part of the sixties of the last century, owing to the organization of great corporations and to the opening up of the whole country to the work of freemen. Local unions were everywhere formed, vigorous labor journals appeared, labor parties were organized, in some places representatives of labor were elected to office, and many of the largest and strongest national unions now existing were established.

A d now comes one Brigadier General Nobles, retired commander of forces at Fort Seward, Alaska, who gives out an interview that Colonel Roosevelt, of Rough Rider fame, was not at San Juan but two miles away when the famous charge and capture was made at that point in the Spanish-American war. Too bad to spoil the president's glory he has been claiming out of that charge up San Juan Hill. It recalls how Sampson tried to steal the glory from Schley of capturing the Spanish fleet at Santiago.

The Kinston Free Press says that at least ten per cent of the cotton now being marketed in that town is false packed, that is sorry cotton is put in the bale with a little good grade on either side so that when the buyer cuts into the bale to examine it he sees only the good cotton. The law makes it a felony to pack cotton in a false manner, and those who do so and are convicted can be sent to the penitentiary.

A New York restaurant keeper offered Count Castellane the head waitership at a salary of $10,000 a year, and the count got mad and wants to fight about it. Better be thanking his stars that anybody was foolish enough to think he is worth that much.

A new swindle is abroad in the land, according to the the papers. The swindler sells barbed wire fencing stretcher machines. He leaves the machine and forty rods of good fence for trial, requiring the farmer to sign for the return of the stretcher. The farmer signs for $3, which turns out to be $300. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Membership Growing—Banquet Next Wednesday Night.

The membership committee of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce has been meeting with splendid success in canvassing the town. Between ninety and one hundred names have been enrolled as members. Some business men were out when the committee called at their places and there may be others yet who want to become members. All such can have an opportunity of enrolling their names by seeing Mr. W. S. Atkins, chairman of the committee.

The Chamber of Commerce will have a general meeting and banquet on Monday night of next week and every member should be present at that time.

You can unlock the coal bin and get kindling wood in readiness again for colder weather.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

St. John's Parish, Pitt Co., N. C.
Nov. 11th, 1906

It hath pleased our Heavenly Father in his infinite wisdom to take from this world the soul of our beloved brother and co-laborer, Walter Mewborn, who died at his home in this Parish, Oct. 19th, 1906, in the 37th year of his age.

In his death St. John's Parish has lost a valuable member, an efficient treasurer and Sunday school superintendent.

As superintendent of our Sunday school, as treasurer of our vestry, as member of our guild and most important committees, he was ever faithful, earnest and zealous, devoting his time, talents and means to the Master's cause.

We the members of St. John's Parish, do deeply deplore the loss of our deceased brother, and offer our sincere and heartfelt sympathy to his grief stricken widow, sister and brothers assuring them that we too feel the loss as personal to us.

Resolved, that we set apart a page in our parish register to be devoted to his memory; that a copy of this memento be sent to the bereaved family and to the Mission Herald, Greenville Reflector, and Kinston Free Press for publication.

Walter F. Harding,

ABOUT OUR STATE.

Near Wilmington a 7-year old boy killed his 5-year-old brother. The boys were trying to get their father's gun down from the rack to play with when the weapon was accidentally discharged by the older boy and the load killed the younger one.

The Caswell monument at Kinston which was ruined by one of the fires in that town a few years ago, has been replaced with a new shaft. The new one is taller and handsomer than the old one.

ORPHANAGE OFFERING.

The Fatherless Ones Generously Remembered.
The Thanksgiving offering made Sunday morning by the Methodist Sunday school for the orphanage was immensely successful, every member of the school present contributing some useful article. As far as practicable the offerings were made by classes, that is each contributed articles alike or clubbed together in a large offering. In this way there were two whole barrels of flour and enough sacks to make another barrel, several cases of canned goods, and large quantities of sugar and coffee beside smaller quantities of other things. In all there was more than a thousand pounds and it was indeed a generous offering.

COTTON

The South has as great an advantage over Europe today, as Europe had over the South a few years ago, when Europe got her Cotton at a price less than the cost of production. Today cotton is relatively lower than any other product of the earth. Foreign spinners recognize this. We have the demand this year as shown by the exports this season far exceeding last season up to this date. It matters not what the crop is, so much as what the size of the demand is. You have seen small crops sell at low prices. Every bale will be wanted this year unless prices go above 12 cents.
Buy cotton futures now and wait for 12 cents. We execute orders in lots of 25 bales and upwards. Will loan 90 per cent of the value on spot cotton shipped to us.

THE MOUND BUILDERS.

Their Burial Customs Prevailed Until the Whites Came.

Mound builders of the Mississippi valley in the manner of burial of the dead were in close touch with those of the valley of the Ohio and had something in common with them, embracing the ideals displayed in the ancestor worship of the oriental as well as antedating the custom of setting a granite shaft as a mark of respect over the graves of our departed at the present time.

Formerly mound builders were supposed to have become an extinct race, occupying the territory in which these numerous burial mounds are found prior to its occupancy by the North American Indians, but in the light of more recent and more thorough investigation, writes Richard Hermann, in "Records of the Past," it has been shown that burial of the dead in mounds has been practiced by the Muskawakies of the Foxes, who occupied the territory up to and including some of the time when the first white people settled in the upper Mississippi valley.

The former erroneous supposition came about principally through the uncommunicativeness of the Indians. When questioned concerning the mounds and their contents he would invariably act the stoic, for according to his ideas of ancestor worship the subject was held sacred and was not to be touched upon, nor were any of the belongings which had been buried with him ever in any manner to be used again by any living man. For this reason when shown flint arrow or spear heads they would profess ignorance and insist that they were there before the arrival of the Indian.

The conical mounds, Mr. Hermann states, are generally individual or family burying mounds. The earth, sand or other material is carried there by members of the tribe or the nearest of kin and filled around the body. Apparently the farther the earth, sand or material of which the mound is being built is brought or the more laborious the work of carrying it to the place of interment the higher the respect paid to the dead. And in this respect they do not differ materially from white people. We would disdain to erect over a grave in the middle west a shaft made from the limestone of the local Galena formation, but instead get a granite shaft shipped from Vermont or elsewhere, equally as great a distance and at as great an expense.

Who Got the Baby?

Read over this little story and see if you can tell who got the baby:

Once upon a time when all living animals could talk together and understand each other an ugly old crocodile stole a tiny baby and was about to make a dinner of it, but the poor, frantic mother begged so piteously for her child, that the crocodile said:

"Tell me one truth and you shall have your baby again."

"You will not give him back to me," she replied.

"Then by our agreement I keep him," said the crocodile, "for if you have told the truth I am not going to give him back, and if it is a lie I have also won."

But the mother said, "If I told you the truth you are bound by your promise, and if it is not the truth it will not be a lie until you have given me my child."

Quite a Difference.

"Mary," said a lady to her servant, "I strongly object to your copying Miss Lucy in your dress."

"In what way do I copy her?" asked the cook haughtily.

"Why, the hat you wore yesterday is, I notice, exactly like my daughter's new hat."

"Hexcuse me, mum, it isn't. The feather in my hat is real hostrich, but Miss Lucy's is only himitation!" —London Telegraph.

The Oxford English Dictionary determines authoritatively the history of the word "picnic," so far as English is concerned. Toward the close of the eighteenth century the French used the word pique-nique (of obscure derivation) for a social entertainment to which each guest contributed a share. Early in the next century the English appeared to discover that this form of social co-operation was well adapted for excursions and open air repasts, so that about the middle of the century the word was dissociated from suppers and private theatricals, and so long as an entertainment was in the open air it was a picnic, whether its materials were jointly contributed or not. —London Standard.

Making a Name For Himself.

A New York business man says that he once had in his employ as office boy a lad named Magillicuddy. Naturally enough, this youngster received so many joking references about his name from his fellow employees that he became extremely dissatisfied with it. So when he applied for a place under another employer in the building he evidently decided to bestow a new name upon himself. When the man to whom he applied asked him his name the boy replied:

"Robert Recapitulation."

"That's an odd name," said the man after having the lad repeat it several times.

The boy looked surprised. "Haven't you heard of General Recapitulation?" asked he.

"No."

"Why, his name is in all the reports in Mr. Blank's office"—Wooten's Home Companion.

THE EARTH'S CRUST.

Its Rigidity is About Equal to That of Granite.

Professor T. J. See of the United States navy has investigated the rigidity of the earth by mathematical processes depending on the theory of gravitation. He found that, even if fluid, the globe would have a rigidity greater than that of wrought iron, owing to the tremendous weight. The earth's matter under this great pressure acts as a solid and so vibrates in an earthquake, and the average rigidity of the whole mass is nearly equal to that of nickel steel. Nickel steel is one of the strongest and hardest metals known. The globe is thus proved to be capable of withstanding enormous strain. Dr. See proves that the rigidity of the earth's crust is about equal to that of granite, which is one-sixth that of steel, and that toward the center the rigidity rapidly increases. At the earth's center the imprisoned matter is at an enormously high temperature, yet under the great pressure there at work it is kept three times more rigid than the nickel steel used in the armor of a battleship.

This method has been applied also to the other planets. It turns out that the rigidity of Venus is greater than that of platinum and probably about identical with that of wrought iron. The rigidity of Mars is about equal to that of gold, while the rigidity of Mercury, the moon and other satellites is about equal to that of glass. The average rigidity of the great planets—Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune—lies between eighteen and three times that of nickel steel. The great rigidity of these bodies is due to the great pressure acting throughout such large masses.

In the case of the sun the result is still more extreme. The average rigidity of all the sun's layers is over 2,000 times that of nickel steel. This result shows the effect of gravity in compressing and hardening a mass even when it is self luminous and at enormously high temperature.—Chicago News.

First Balloon Ascent.

The first public ascent by the Montgolfier balloon was made June 5, 1783. It was a spherical bag, consisting of pieces of linen buttoned together, suspended from cross poles. A fire was kindled under it, and the flames were fed with bundles of chopped straw. The loose bag filled out, assumed a graceful form and in a short time was completely distended. At a given signal the stays were slipped, and the balloon instantly ascended. Its velocity accelerated until it reached some height, then became uniform and carried it to an elevation of more than a mile. For ten minutes it remained suspended, then fell gently in a vineyard nearly two miles distant from the place of its ascension. The first adventurers to make an ascent in a balloon were M. Pilatre de Rozier and the Marquis L'Arlandes. In the basket of a balloon they on Nov. 21, 1783, rose to a height of about 3,000 feet.

The Domestic Problem.

"I once lost an Irish servant," remarked a German lady who was relating the trouble she had in keeping domestics, "because I could not convince her that 'mick' is a German name for a fly. One day my little baby daughter was seated in a chair near a window which opened on the piazza, where Bridget was at work. The window was closed, and a number of flies were busy bumping their heads against the panes in an endeavor to escape to the outside. They attracted baby's attention, who called out to me to look at them, at the same time saying, 'Mick, mick, mick.' Just then Bridget turned to speak to the baby and heard these words. And even today Bridget is firmly convinced that I instructed the baby to make fun of her."—New York Herald.

"Cannibalism."

The word "cannibalism" is really the name of a people. It is identical with Carib, many of the Caribs, who formerly flourished in the West Indies, having been consumers of human flesh. The letters "l," "n" and "r" are interchangeable in certain aboriginal American languages, so that Columbus found one West Indian island saying "Canna," where another said "Carib," while Shakespeare's Caliban is another variety of the same.
