THE COTTON STALK COMPANY.

Philadelphia capitalists have been engineering a scheme for the establishment in the South of factories to make paper, denatured alcohol and other things out of cotton stalks, which are no more trouble to the farmers than cotton seed were, fifteen years ago. There seems to be some trouble about getting operations started in the South and the first mill, instead of being located in Montgomery, Ala., as originally proposed, will be located in Philadelphia and will be in operation next August. This will necessitate the freighting of the stalks from the field to the mill, but if the Philadelphia plant is a success, cotton stalk mills will spring up all over the South, just as cotton seed oil mills have done. Some Southern capitalists have stock in the company. One of the directors of the company, speaking in a prospective way of the opening of the Philadelphia plant says:

"We will begin the manufacture of, not only paper and denatured alcohol, but also of acetone, smokeless gun powder, celluloid and pyroxylin, out of the 30,000,000 tons of cotton stalks produced annually in the cotton growing States which have heretofore been considered waste. The fact that Mr. Vandiver has been unable to raise the $25,000 he expected to obtain in the Montgomery section, will not retard the progress of the company in any way, for an ample supply of funds is pouring in from other directions. We already have enough assured to guarantee the completion of the largest plant in Philadelphia, which will cost approximately $200,000."

The company has much faith in the enterprise and the officer quoted says that later on smaller plants will be built in Texas, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Louisiana, North Carolina, South Carolina, Arkansas, Mississippi, Oklahoma and the Indian Territory. Each of these plants will be sufficiently large to handle from 100,000 to 250,000 tons of the raw material annually. The success or failure of the Philadelphia plant, therefore, is of momentous consequence to the South.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Mr. C. C. Moore, president of the North Carolina division of the Southern Cotton Association arrived Thursday evening.

He will address the mass meeting of farmers and business men at the court house tomorrow.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE.

Appropriate Sermon and Delightful Music.

Special services were held in the Methodist church on Thanksgiving day, at which time the pastor, Rev. J. A. H. Hornaday, preached a forceful and logical sermon appropriate to the occasion. The text was selected from Psalms, 116:12-17-18, "What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits toward me? I will offer to Thee the sacrifice of Thanksgiving, and will call upon the name of the Lord. I will pay my vows unto the Lord now in the presence of all His people."

Suitable music had been carefully selected, and greatly delighted all present.

At the close of the service a collection was taken for the Methodist orphanage at Raleigh. To this most worthy cause the members of the church responded in their usual prompt and liberal manner. In only a few minutes the entire assessment of the church for the orphanage was raised. This, together with the voluntary contributions which had been previously made by the church and Sunday school amounted to $215.00. Indeed, this speaks well for the generous and willing hearts of the Methodist of our town community.

And nothing is calculated to give a self-made man a harder job than a bill of fare in French.

If a man is unable to make good on his own account he usually points with pride to his own ancestors.

A woman is always ready to admit a man's superior intelligence if he'll admit that she knows more than he does.

Unless a man has more money than he knows what to do with he can't afford to believe that poverty and happiness trot in the same class.

Mildred and Rouclere.

Mildred and Rouclere, who always give a mighty good show, are better this season than ever before. These splendid illusionists appeared at the Grand last night before a small but appreciative audience. There was not a dull moment in the performance and local theatrepatrons who did not attend missed the best show of its kind that has ever been presented here. The program was varied and the entertainers were given enthusiastic applause.—Greensboro Record.

Odd Fellows Elect Officers.

At the last meeting of Covenant lodge No. 17, I. O. O. F., the following officers were elected for the next term:

J. R. Corey, N. G.
J. C. Tyson, V. G.
J. G. Watson, R. S.
A. C. Holloman, F. S.
D. W. Hardee, Tr. as.

These with the appointive officers will be installed at the last meeting in December.

AWFUL WRECK ON SOUTHERN.

President Spencer Among the Killed.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 29.—Samuel Spencer, president of the Southern Railway Company, recognized as one of the foremost men in the development of the Southern States, was killed this morning at 6:10 o'clock in a rear end collision, in which two fast passenger trains were involved, ten miles south of Lynchburg and a mile north of Lawyer's depot. In the same wreck three of his guests were killed. Only Mr. Spencer's private secretary, E. A. Merrill, of New York city, and one of the porters, survived the accident.

The dead: President Samuel Spencer, Washington.

Charles D. Fisher, Baltimore; Md.

Philip Schuyler, New York City

Francis T. Redwood, Baltimore.

D. W. Davis, Alexandria, Va. private dispatcher to Mr. Spencer.

J. W. Shaw, colored, Spencer, N. C., fireman. Died in Lynchburg hospital.

An unknown person, whose head and limbs are burned off short, who is believed to be the third porter on the private car, who is missing. His name cannot be learned.

Another Use For Hogs.

Capt. George F. Bason, of Gastonia, was telling yesterday of a new use one of his friends has found for hogs.

"The fellow manufactures brick on a small scale," said the captain, "and he utilizes his drove of hogs in the process. He sprinkles corn on his bed of clay, plows it under, adds the necessary amount of water and turns the hogs in. When they get through with it the mud is ready for the machine."—Charlotte Observer.

A Dress of Postage Stamps.

At a ball in Bermuda a wonderful dress was worn, in the making of which over 100,000 postage stamps were used.

Years were spent in collecting the stamps, and three weeks in the making of the dress, which was of the finest muslin. The lady called upon her friends to help her, and the dress was covered with the stamps of all nations. They were not put on any way, but in an elaborate design.

On the front of the bodice was an eagle made entirely of brown Columbian stamps. Suspended from the bird's talons was a globe made of very blue revenue stamps. On each side of the globe was an American flag, having stripes of red and blue stamps. On the back of the bodice was a collection of foreign stamps in the form of a shield, in the center of which was a portrait of Sir George Summers cut from old revenue stamps.

A picture hat, covered with red and blue stamps, was worn with this remarkable dress.—St. Louis Republic.

AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH.

Delightful Thanksgiving Day Service.

There was a very large congregation at the Thanksgiving day service in the Baptist church and each one present seemed to enter heartily into the spirit of the service and enjoy it. The music was a strong feature of the service, an appropriate anthem and duet being well rendered by the choir.

The sermon of Rev. J. E. Ayscue was a most fitting one for the occasion. He took no text for his sermon but read several Psalms for a lesson. He first mentioned the first Thanksgiving service, showing that it grew out of real experience. He then divided his sermon into two parts. The first half was taken up with the discussion of things calling forth our deepest thanks. The second half was directed personally to the future. The appeal was that each one present so live this year that his life may not cause any one to have sorrow or suffering during the coming year.

One of the enjoyable features of the service was the offering for the orphanage. Without any appeal the offering amounted to $24.74 This was exceedingly gratifying, and showed the love and good spirit of the people, since it was just last fifth Sunday when they made an offering of over $60 for the orphanage.

Don't Meddle.

One of the most irritating feelings against which the best people need to be on their guard is meddlesomeness. The chances are that by our meddlesomeness we mar more than we mend. The probability is that the cook broiled the breakfast bacon better than we could have done it, and the tailor cut the coat better than if he had followed our directions. No one can ever be happy in this world who fancies himself or herself born to "set it right." It would do us all good at times to sit with the pupils instead of taking uninvited the seat of the master and the critic. One of the most useful lessons any man can learn is to let things alone. Let the chair stand where the maid placed it. Let the dinner be served without protest as the good wife ordered it. And remember the world will have to get along without us some day; that if we keep hands off from it for a little while it may be learning, as it must learn, to eventually get along without our suggestion or interference.—Temple Bar.

The Fun That's in Magic.

No end of funny stories and incidents come out of the entertainments of these royal illusionists, Mildred and Rouclere. At every performance there's something doing in the audience, somebody being fooled so cleverly and giving expression to surprise so quaintly that new mines of amusement are being continuously opened and the brilliant show is the talk of the town for many a day after its departure. Mildred and Rouclere are booked here Wednesday, December 5th.

Greenville's Thanksgiving.

It is characteristic of the people of Greenville to fittingly observe Thanksgiving day. Nearly every business house in town was closed throughout the day and the services in the different churches were well attended. The liberal contributions for the orphanages shows the benevolent spirit of our people.

The afternoon portion of the day was enjoyed in various ways, and upon the whole it was a very pleasant Thanksgiving.

The Odd Fellows of Greenville sent $40.20 to their orphanage at Goldsboro as a Thanksgiving offering.

Canoe and Water Trick.
Get a good sized cork or bung. Upon it place a small lighted candle. Then set it afloat in a pail of water. Next, lower an inverted drinking glass down over the light and push it carefully down into the water. You will see the candle burn under water. If you take a large pickle bottle, cut off the bottom and use it in place of the drinking glass, the candle will burn much longer under water.

He says: "I suffered with a terrible cough, and doctor gave me up to die of Consumption. I was reduced to 90 pounds, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Now, after taking 12 bottles, I have more than doubled in weight and am completely cured." Only sure Cough and Cold cure. Guaranteed by Jno. L. Wooten Druggist. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Kodol is sold here by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

METEORIC BODIES.

Mineral Masses That Are Whirling Through Space.

The realms of space contain probably innumerable masses of solid iron or other minerals which are whirling along at an incalculable rate. Occasionally these masses come within a comparatively few miles of the earth's atmosphere, and then instead of crashing to the ground, carrying devastation in their paths, they suddenly become terrifically hot and melt away into an incandescent gas. This is what is going on when we see what is wrongly called a "shooting star." Stars do not shoot. The sudden flash we see is the result of the friction between the meteoric body and our air. The former travels at such a rate as to generate an enormous heat. Occasionally, however, solid masses do not become completely vaporized, but fall to the earth with a great force. A stone fell in 1855 on the coast opposite Zanzibar. It was picked up by some children herding cattle, and all the tribe gathered to anoint it with oil and ornament it with stuffs and pearls as a true divinity come from heaven. The missionary warnings were unheeded. One day the warlike Massai attacked the tribe and slaughtered them, whereupon the survivors lost faith in their fetish and sold it to the Munich museum.

At Wold Newton, in Yorkshire, England, a meteorite fell over a century ago. Scientists were only then seriously considering such falls. On a Sunday afternoon, Dec. 13, 1795, in misty weather during thunder and lightning at a distance suddenly there came a noise like an explosion. A farm servant was so near that he was struck by some of the earth thrown up by the stone as it plunged into the ground. It excavated a hole more than three feet in diameter and was found imbedded fast in the chalk rock.

This meteorite is about as big as a man's head and can be seen in the British museum. Aerolites pass with enormous speed across the vault of the heavens. As the aerolite falls its speed is greatly reduced as it passes through the ever thickening atmospheric strata until finally it descends to the earth.

Philosophy of a Clown.

The late Charles Bliss, the famous star of the Dan Rice circus—he was the original "human fly"—imputed his success to thoroughness. "Don't attempt a new trick," he said one day, "till you are a thorough master of it. The only way to succeed is to be so thorough in everything you undertake that failure is altogether an impossibility. If you are going, for instance, to be a stump speaker, if you are going to address a lot of farmers, don't talk farm unless you have studied it up. Don't be like a stump speaker I know who yelled at a crossroads meeting:

"He who puts his hand to the plow must not turn back!"

"Wot's he to do, then, when he gets to the end o' the furrer?" shouted a hired man in blue overalls."—Denver News.

Not Too Cold For Him.

The unconscious humor of the English peasantry is shown in a story told by the London Tribune. A Lady Bountiful was calling on a devoted old couple with such creature comforts as the doctor said were suitable for the old man, who was dying and being tenderly nursed by his consort. Entering the cottage, she saw the old dame leaning over the fire. "Ah, Susan," she said, "and how's John?"

"He be goan, mum; he be goan," muttered the old lady. "Leastway I can't say that for sartain sure, but he did seem a-gwine just now. But, there, it's that mortal cold up there that I had to come down to warm my hands."

Did the Dog Reason?

The late Duke of Beaufort, who was an excellent observer, notes in his diary how (he was hunting the hounds himself) the pack drove down to a wall and flashed over—all but Bachelor. This hound missed the scent as he reached the top of the wall and, standing there, waved his stern as if in thought. Then it seemed to flash across him, "If the fox has not crossed he must have turned short under the wall." So Bachelor dropped back into the road and went along, pick-

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

The Girl Graduate Was Equal to the Emergency.

"So you break our engagement, Gwendolen!" he exclaimed bitterly. "They in your presence let me end the life which you have blighted."

Drawing forth a vial marked "Poison," he put it to his lips and drained it to the last drop. As he sank back unconscious did the beautiful girl fling herself upon his breast in an agony of remorse and burst forth into frenzied sobs? Scarcely!

Hastily quitting the room, she returned presently, her lovely face tragic, yet composed. Kneeling beside the young man, she forced between his lips the following: (1) One cup of turpentine; (2) one pint of milk; (3) a bowl of warm soap-suds; (4) a small bottle of aromatic ammonia; (5) a cup of black coffee; (6) a glass of mustard water; (7) a gill of vinegar; (8) juice of a lemon; (9) the beaten whites of six eggs; (10) one cup of flour and water.

"Algernon," she observed coldly as he began to revive, "it is evident you did not know that I am a graduate of a correspondence course in first aid to the injured. My one regret is that, since it was impossible for me to ascertain whether the poison you took was an acid or an alkali, I was compelled to administer all the antidotes of which we had learned."—Woman's Home Companion.

FRIDAY NOV. 30, 1906.

A white boy in a Pittsburg school was chastised by the superintendent because he refused to march by the side of a negro girl. The father of the boy with an attorney went before the school board and demanded that the superintendent must be removed or he would take the matter into court. Please note that this occurred in the North and in the strongest Republican State in the union.

With a negro mob gathering in Philadelphia to prevent the appearance of Tom Dixon's "Clansman," and a negro mob gathering in Chicago to prevent Senator Tillman speaking in that city on the race question, it is time for the hot air blowers of those sections to get quiet on mob law in the South.

In spite of threats made against him, Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, delivered that speech in Chicago and handled the race question with "tongs and hammer."

Killed While Hunting.
Oxford, N. C., Nov. 29.—An accident occurred today near Oxford, which has cast a gloom over the community. Mr. Percy Parham, son of Mr. J. B. Parham, was shot by accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of his young nephew, a little son of James Parham, who accompanied his uncle and his two little boys hunting. They were crossing a ditch when the gun accidentally went off and the entire load of shot entered the back of Mr. Percy Parham. His sons ran home for assistance, but the wound proved fatal. His death before a physician reached the scene of the accident.

"Turkeys is Ripe."
New York, Nov. 29.—In one of the schools here the teacher put the question to the pupils: "Why does the President always appoint a day for general thanksgiving?" These are some of the answers: "Because the President always gets a turkey." "Because Columbus discovered America." "Because the President's party won the election." "Because turkeys is ripe."

A TATTOOED EYE.

Good Results From a Delicate and Costly Operation.

An Irishwoman who owns a little stationery shop in the upper part of Manhattan frequently surprises customers with whom she falls into conversation over the counter by asking:

"Which of my eyes do you think is the blind one?"

The customer invariably exclaims that surely it is not possible that either eye is blind, for both are dark blue, sparkling and seem just the same. The shopkeeper, however, proceeds with the information that the left eye is quite without sight.

"That's my tattooed eye," she explains proudly. "It cost $1,000. I didn't pay for it, of course. A rich lady had it done for me."

"You never heard of a tattooed eye? Shure, I never did myself until I came to having one. It was after I was blown up by an explosion—oh, dear, yes, a terrible experience it was! I was living with the lady at the time as her maid. I had been with her five years, and she thought a heap of me, and it was at her house the accident occurred."

"When I lost the sight of the eye she felt bad enough, but when the bandages were removed and it was seen that a white film had spread over the eyeball she was terribly distressed."

"It ruins your good looks entirely, Mary," she said. "You'll never get a husband looking like that. But I know of a physician who can make it look as good as the other, even if he can't make it see. It will cost $1,000," she says, "but I'd have it done for you if it was $5,000."

"So I went to a fine private hospital, and the doctor tattooed an other iris and pupil on the white film. And he matched the blue exactly, now, didn't he? I could scarcely tell, when I looked in the glass afterward, which one I was looking out of at all."

"Did I get a husband? It's my friend that I'm living with now,"—New York Press.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

The Toothsome Banana and How It is Ripened Artificially.

Nearly all boys and girls like bananas and would be glad to know perhaps something about the way they are handled before and after importation, says the Chicago News. The plant bears fruit every month in the year. The bananas are shipped while green. Otherwise they would rot before they reached this country. The dealers here treat them differently in different seasons. In winter they are hung up in a room heated to 70 degrees by gas. It is said that any other kind of artificial ripening would make the fruit shrivel or ripen too quickly. In the spring they are allowed to ripen naturally, but in summer they are hung in cellars, because the outside air rots them. They are one of the best and most nutritious fruits we have, but of course we miss the delicate flavor that they have when taken ripe directly from the tree.

Game of Birds, Beasts and Fishes.

Two boys take their slates and each one writes down the first and last letters of the name of some bird, beast or fish, first stating from which category the name is selected, and puts a cross for each of the intermediate letters. For example, A elects to write down the name of a beast and marks on his slate as follows: Hxxx. B will perhaps select a fish and mark on his slate Hxxxx. They then exchange slates, and each tries to guess the name of the beast or fish indicated and fills up the blanks accordingly. It is evident that those indicated above are respectively horse and herring.

Words That Hear.

Did you ever count the number of words which have ears? Now this question may sound absurd, but nevertheless there are many words which possess each an ear. Not a pair of ears, mind you, but one ear. A few of the words that are so blessed are given here. After reading them over try to find as many more as you can: Tear, smear, dear, fear, hear, near, rear, pear, dear and bear.

You will notice that the ear always comes at the end of the word.

To Mark Knives.

This is the way boys can write their names on knife blades: Take the knife and warm the blade. Rub on a coating of white wax. Let it cool, and when hard mark through the wax with a sharp pointed tool of steel. Then apply nitric acid and let it stand for a minute. Then wash off the acid and again warm the blade and rub off the wax with a rag.

Snow at a Cent a Pound.

Snow is sold in the north of Italy, where it fetches about a cent a pound. It is a government monopoly, and the Prince of Palermo derives the greater part of his income from it. The snow, which is gathered on the mountains in felt covered baskets, is widely bought in the cities for refrigerating purposes.

Deer Race.

All stand in a line on the farther side of the yard and at a signal run across the wall or building. The winners of the race are those who reach the other side first. The winners of the race are those who reach the other side first. The winners of the race are those who reach the other side first.

Barbecued Rabbit.

Secure a young rabbit and after skinning lay it in salt water for half an hour. Then dip into boiling water, wipe dry and rub the surface with olive oil or sweet butter. Dust with pepper. Put a gridiron over a bed of live coals, lay the rabbit on it and cook tender, turning frequently, so that the surface will not become hard and dry. When done and nicely browned transfer to a buttered serving platter. Have ready a sauce made of four teaspoonfuls of vinegar, one of currant jelly and a pinch of mustard. Pour this over the rabbit, rubbing it in well, and serve at once.

Washing a Sweater.

Use pure soap and water not too hot in washing a sweater. Never rub soap on the sweater. Make suds instead. Rinse the sweater in water of exactly the same temperature as that of the soaping water. Every laundress knows that rule for woolens, but not one in a thousand follows it conscientiously. Never hang a wet sweater up to dry. It will sag and stretch and be ruined. Lay it on a clean cloth on the grass in the fresh air and sunshine if you can. If not, lay it on a flat surface on a board or hang it up in a cheer cloth bag and let it dry that way.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

A Few Helpful Hints For the Economic Housewife.

A good beefsteak, however well cooked, will not be at its best unless served directly it is cooked.

Every saucepan that has been used and finished with should be filled with cold water, a lump of soda put into it and set to boil out.

To utilize scraps of lemons, having removed the yellow rind and the juice for flavoring, the pulp should be dipped into salt and used for cleaning copper pans.

Make potatoes look white and floury by boiling in as little water as possible, strain and take at once to an open door. Give the potatoes a vigorous shake in the pan, let it remain uncovered at the side of the stove for five minutes before serving.

Lamps should be filled daily and the chimneys polished at the same time. Once a month either wash the wick or have a new one.

THE 360 DAY YEAR.

Why It Had to Give Place to the System Now in Use.

There is a story in Plutarch which must convince every reader that one myth at least relates to an alteration made in the Egyptian calendar to extend the length of the year from 360 days to 365. A year of 360 days existed in Egypt at an early period. The lunar month, from new moon to new moon, being twenty-nine and one-half days in length, the convenient round number of thirty days was taken as a standard, and twelve months, or thirty days each, made up the year. The solar year is more difficult to observe than the lunar month, the intervals being longer, and a year of 360 days was a very convenient and reasonable approximation to it. At any rate, the year of 360 days came into use, and a curious custom at Acanthæ, near Memphis, seems to allude to it. A perforated vessel was filled with water by 360 priests on each day of the year. In the island of Philæ, again, 360 pitchers were placed around the tomb of Osiris, for making funeral libations, and were filled every day by the priests with milk. With 360 days in the year the Egyptian circle of the heavens, as represented in the charts, would be divided into 360 equal parts, and we must regard it as a relic of this time that the circle is still made to consist of 360 degrees. But so erroneous an estimate of the length of the year would soon be corrected by experience.

It is evident that in about seventy-two years a cycle would be accomplished in which the New Year's day would sweep through all the months, remaining only six years in each. The same month, so far as its name was concerned, would now be in the inundation time, now in the season of sowing and anon in the time of reaping, and the agriculturist must have been perplexed. A text in the papyrus Anastasi makes reference to such perplexity and may receive its explanation here. Goodwin translated it: "May Amen deliver me from the cold season, when the sun does not shine, the winter comes instead of the summer, the month is stormy, the hours shortened." Similar confusion would overtake the religious festivals, the New Year, for example, coming five days before its proper time, and then ten days before, and so on, and it might be thought that its observance at the wrong season would displease the gods. The year of 360 days had to give way and ultimately did so in favor of one of 365 days. The precise date of the change is not known, but it is referred to in inscriptions of the time of Amenemha I. (circa 2100 B. C.) and may of course have been introduced much earlier. When this was done the original months were not altered, but a "little month" of five days was interpolated at the end of the year between the month Mesori of one year and the Thoth of the next. —Westminster Gazette.

Two of a Kind.

The Rev. Mr. Roberson was called upon to attend to two workers who had received fatal injuries in a riot. The reverend gentleman was most anxious that the men should confess who had been their accomplices. One of them died without uttering a word on the subject. As the other lay at the point of death he beckoned Mr. Roberson, who hastened to his side in the full expectation that he was about to learn the fateful tidings. This belief was strengthened by the first words of the sufferer. "Can you keep a secret?" he gasped.

"I can," was the eager response of the clergyman.

"So can I," said the dying man, and immediately afterward he calmly passed away. —Westminster Review.
