RICHARD WILLIAMS, Register of Deeds.

WINTERVILLE ITEMS.

Winterville, N. C. Dec 1st 1906.

Rev T. H. King and family spent Thanksgiving day with Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hunsucker. They returned to La Grange Friday morning.

Newton Henderson, of Hubert, is visiting his sister, Miss Cora, who is a student of W. H. S.

Thanksgiving services were held in the Baptist and Episcopal churches Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. T. H. King, the pastor of the Baptist church, was present and preached a most excellent sermon on David's gratitude to the son of Jonathan in taking him into his own household, thus making the application that we ought, as a debt of gratitude to God for his manifold blessings, to go out and find some on whom to bestow a blessing. He spoke very tenderly of the great orphanage work and its needs. A collection amounting to about $35 was taken for this object.

At the Episcopal church the service was led by Bro. Butt in a very impressive manner and all present joined most heartily in it.

At 3:00 p. m. Rev. B. E. Stanfield preached a most fitting sermon for the occasion in the Methodist church. Sometimes the question comes to us, "Is the world growing better?" From the excellent and befitting manner in which our citizens observed the day here, they showed an excellent spirit by manifesting such reverence for the day set apart to meditate upon God's goodness toward us. We must be growing better.

Miss Lucy Manning of Grindool is visiting her many lady friends here.

Misses Lala and Kate Chapman, who are both teaching, came home to spend Thanksgiving.

Miss Daisy Tucker is visiting relatives here this week.

R. Croom and his little girl left Friday evening for Kinston to visit relatives there.

Winterville High School has always given most excellent entertainment and it fully sustained that reputation Thursday evening. The exercises were under the auspices of the Philo-altean society.

By 7:30 o'clock the large auditorium was filled by students patrons, friends and old pupils who always come to bring us cheer and encouragement by their most respectful and appreciative attention. The program was chosen and prepared with greatest care and every part rendered was received with applause. The members of the society should congratulate themselves upon their success in this entertainment. The program was as follows:

"At Twilight,"
Chorus class.
Recitation "Kate Shelley," Katy Gold Warren.
"Turkish Rondo" Mozart.
Elizabeth Powell.
"Hoop Drill," 16 girls
"Minuet" Mozart.
Rosabel Taylor.
Recitation—
"Music on the Rappahannock,"
Ward Moore.
Play "Dr. Gertrude Mason."
(a) "Albumblatt" Grieg.
(b) "Gypsy Dance" Lichner.
Venetia Cox
"Santa Lucia"
Chorus class.
Among those visiting ourtown

DANIEL ARNEY.

Written for Reflector;

It has been at least sixty years since Mr. Arney died, but my recollection of him is fresh even now. He was a Northern man and came from Washington, a merchant, and married the daughter of Capt. Benj. Bell, a comely, but petted lady. He was a live merchant in his day and bought and sold everything from home knit socks and dried fruit to bales of cotton. We remember the blocks of spun cotton stacked at his door ready to exchange for cloth with any good housewife of the neighborhood, as did other merchants.

His store was on the spot Ed Hoell built his restaurant, and on busy days it was a very bee hive. With a genius for trading, Yankee-like, Mr. Arney was ready at any time for business, and looked ahead for chances to increase his profit and capital.

And while cogitating, it chanced one day as usual, with an eye to business, and to attract the people generally, he heard of a remarkable sea bird. Nothing like it had ever been seen or heard of before in this country, the creature having been blown in a recent storm out of its reckoning in the direction of Greenville. He sent for the bird at once, and invited everybody, far and near, to see the great curiosity. His store was immediately filled with customers from the beginning, and this feature was a great success.

He then secured a large black bear to amuse his friends, and possibly for practical lessons in natural history to those interested, but Bruin having grown fat and not satisfied with the dainties he got every day, snapped his chain one night and proposed to investigate the town.

The name of the intrepid citizen has not preceived, who, like Paul Revere, rang the bell to save the women and children on this memorable night, but with the exception of some rough handling of hens nests his bearship was satisfied to return to his quarters, and his owner anticipating a visit from the city fathers, the great brute was doomed. Years after Mr. Arney died there was still a large number of little square bottles of aromatic tallow in existence, and the boys would sometimes jocosely propose to advertise Arney's bear oil, and pelican grease for sale. T. C. Davis.

during Thanksgiving were Miss Ida Mooring, of Stokes; Miss Susie Moore, of Grimesland; Jimmie Galloway, of Grimesland; Sam McKeel, of Speight Bridge; B. W. Gay, of Castoria; W. C. Vincent, of Bethel; Heber Mumford, of Ayden; Miss Nina Cannon, of Ayden; Sugg Fleming, of Pactolus; Chas. Hurst, of Oak City; S. E. Hines, of Oak City.

Miss Lizzie Combs, a student of W. H. S. left this morning for House where she will spend Sunday with Miss Maud Mooring.

Hassell House, a student of W. H. S., left for House this morning to spend Sunday.

COMING THIS WAY

And Some Going the Other Way.

Mrs. J. A. Person went to Richmond today.

N. S. Fulford, of Washington, came in Friday evening.

Mrs. Ada Cherry returned Friday evening from Baltimore.

J. F. Smith returned Friday evening from Petersburg.

Prof F. C. Nye, manager of the Winterville department of The Reflector, was in to see us Friday evening.

Mrs. R. O. Jeffress and her sister, Miss Annie Braeme, returned home Friday evening from Helena, Ark.

Mrs. W. A. Clark, of Elizabethtown, came in Friday evening to visit her father, I. A. Sugg.

Miss Kate Hines, of Wilson, who has been visiting Mrs. G. W. Baker, returned home today.

Miss Mabel Barnhill, of Bethel, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. J. H. Barnhill, left this morning.

CATARRH CANNOT BE CURED

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as it cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional by cause, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country, 17 years ago and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful result in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipations.

For chapped and cracked hands nothing is quite as good as an application of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Put it on before going to bed, use an old pair of gloves and see what a difference the morning will bring. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

It is a mistake to use a violent cathartic to open the bowels. A gentle movement will accomplish the same results without causing distress or serious consequences later. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are recommended. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

Open the bowels and get the cold out of your system. Kennedy's Laxative, (containing) Honey and Tar opens the bowels and at the same time allays the inflammation of the mucous membranes. Drives out the cold and stops the cough. Absolutely free from any opiates. Conforms to the National Pure Food and Drug Law. Pleasant to take. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

A man with a sprained ankle will use a crutch, rest the ankle and let it get well. A man or woman with an over-worked stomach can't use a crutch, but the stomach must have rest just the same. It can be rested too without starvation. Kodol will do it. Kodol performs the digestive work of the tired stomach and corrects the digestive apparatus. Kodol fully conforms to the provisions of the National Pure Food and Drug Laws. Recommended and sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

After all when it rains it settles the dust, and when the sun shines it dries up the mud, Town and Country paint withstand both rain and sun, sold by Baker & Hart.

Pictures Framed to Order.

Putting Away Screens.

Never use a broom on a screen. The wire is too delicate for such rough treatment. Dust it lightly in an upright position on both sides and then lay it flat and brush thoroughly with a stiff brush. Then rub the mesh with a cloth saturated with coal oil. The application of coal oil should never be neglected at the end of the season when the screens are to be stored for the winter.

Washing Brush.

A long handled curved brush such as is used for cleaning silver will do much to lighten the disagreeableness of dish washing. It perfectly displaces the dish cloth and does twice as effective service in every way as a mop. After a little practice it will be found that one need not put the hands in the water at all.

To Clean Musical Instruments.

An excellent cleaner for guitars, violins and other stringed musical instruments is made of one-third each of linseed oil, turpentine and water. These shaken together in a bottle form an emulsion or cream. Rub the instrument with a cloth dampened in the cream. Wipe dry and polish with a woolen cloth.

Uses of Parsley.

A bit of parsley eaten just at the close of dinner is a very good thing to sweeten the breath and has been known for ages, the Roman matrons using it for that purpose. With us parsley is generally used more for ornamentation than for any other purpose, but the leaves may be chewed as a breath sweetener.

For a Burned Kettle.

If in preserving the fruit is burned or caught on the bottom of the kettle, cover the burned portion at once with fresh fat and heat. It will be absorbed, and the substance will peel off, leaving the kettle uninjured. The fat must be strictly fresh, as salt would cause it to adhere.

Grease Stains on Leather.

Grease stains on leather may be removed by carefully applying benzine or perfectly pure turpentine. The spots must be washed afterward with well beaten white of egg or a good kid reviver.

Scaling Fish.

To scale fish easily pour on hot water slowly till the scales curl, then scrape quickly. Wash in several waters, having the last cold and well salted, and no slime will be left.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

Fresh Water a Valuable Disinfectant in the Cloakroom.

Pure fresh cold water is one of the most valuable disinfectants, inasmuch as it is a powerful absorbent. Every room should have a large vessel of clear water, frequently renewed, placed near the bed or even beneath it. This not only absorbs much of the hurtful vapor, but by its evaporation it softens and tempers the atmosphere, doing away with the dryness which is so trying and depressing to an invalid or even to persons in health, for that matter. It has frequently been shown by actual experiment that troubled sleep and threatened insomnia are corrected by so simple a thing as the placing of an open bowl of water near the sufferer's bed. On the same principle water which has been standing in an open vessel in a sleeping room or a sickroom should under no conditions be used for drinking. Nor should any liquid intended as a beverage be allowed to thus stand open to contamination.

Cleaning Carpets and Rugs.

A preparation for washing rugs and carpets is made of four ounces of any good white soap dissolved in four ounces of boiling water. When cool add five ounces of ammonia, two and one-half ounces of alcohol, two and one-half ounces of glycerin and two ounces of ether or chloroform. Bottle and cork tightly. To clean a carpet add a teaspoonful of the preparation to a pail of tepid water and wring the soap from the carpet. The same preparation is also useful for cleaning men's clothes. Two tablespoonfuls to a pint of water will remove the most obstinate stains.

Whitewashing Walls.

To whiten walls scrape off all the old whitewash and wash the wall with a solution of two ounces of white vitriol to four gallons of water. Soak a quarter of a pound of white glue in water for twelve hours, strain and place in a tin pail in a kettle of boiling water. When melted stir in the glue eight pounds of whiting and water enough to make it as thick as common whitewash. Apply evenly with a good brush. If the walls are very yellow, blue the water slightly by squeezing in it a flannel blue bag. Boston Traveler.

WEDNESDAY DEC. 1, 1906.

The killing of President Samuel Spencer in a wreck on his own road, deprives the Southern railway of its most able official. His life is a sacrifice to the greed that predominated that great railway system. Its highest aim has seemed to be its ability to earn large dividends for the stockholders, and this has been done at the expense of efficiency and to the danger of those who risked their lives on its rails. It has conducted its immense business with a force of employees far too small to handle it with safety, men have been overworked until they became mere like clogged machines than cool-headed human beings, and the result has been numerous wrecks that were disastrous to life and property. Since the head of this great railroad has fallen a victim to its grasping policy and inefficiency, it is to be hoped his successor and other officials will see the need of so increasing its force of employees as to insure reasonable safety to those who travel on it.

Capt. John Stikeleather, of Iredell county, is a candidate for door keeper of the next House of Representatives. Capt. Stikeleather was color bearer of the 4th N. C. Regiment in the civil war, and several companies from the eastern part of the State were in the same regiment with him. When Gen. Bryan Grimes was colonel of that regiment Capt. Stikeleather was his right hand man, and in Col. Osborne's history of the regiment he is referred to as "the bravest of the brave." The comrades of Capt. Stikeleather now living would rejoice to see him chosen for this position to which he aspires. There are not many of the gallant old Confederates now left, and when ever we can we should honor them.

If it is known a house is to be built in Greenville, work hardly starts before there are numerous applications to rent it. This shows that the town needs more houses. People cannot come here unless they can get houses to live in.

Col. Bill Fife, who has achieved much mining stock notoriety, says his income is $2,000 a day. Somebody is paying for it.

My friend, help the editor in his wild-eyed search for news. When your friends come to see you, if you are not ashamed of it, tell him; when your wife gives a tea party if you have recovered from the effects of the gossip, drop in with the news; when a boy arrives fill your pockets with cigars and call; if you go to a party steal some of the good things, and leave 'em with the item in our sanctum. If your wife licks you come in and let us see your scars and tender sympathy through the paper; if your mother-in-law has died don't be bashful about it; give in all the common place news. In short, whatever makes you feel proud, sad, lonesome or glad submit it to our 24 karat wisdom and see our matted locks part and stand on end with gratitude, which will pour from every pore like moisture from dew-be-sprinkled earth. —Mt. Olive Tribune.

Meeting of Farmers.

President C. C. Moore, of the North Carolina Division of the Southern Cotton Association was here today and spoke to the cotton farmers in the court house. It is remarkable that a very small number of farmers were in attendance. If they are not interested in matters for their own benefit they cannot expect others to be. The meeting was too late in the afternoon for a report of it to be given today.

If the farmers will continue to raise tobacco for eight and ten cents a pound when they can get from fifteen to twenty cents a pound for chickens, geese and turkeys, it is perhaps useless to say more to them about it. —Durham Herald.

THE CHARITY CLUB.

"A Little Child Shall Lead Them."

There is a society of little girls here with fifteen members who call themselves the Charity Club. Ruebel Forbes is president of the club and Nellie Williams secretary. These little girls took up a collection among themselves and with the money purchased some clothing and food. On Thanksgiving morning, accompanied by their teacher, Miss Bennett, they walked out to the home of Mrs. Braxton, a poor woman living a mile and a half from town, and gave her the articles they had purchased. This was sweet charity in its truest sense, and we doubt not that a smile of approval from Heaven came down upon these dear little girls as they went on their mission of love "in His name." Greenville people do nobly in benevolence, but what these little girls have done surpasses them all.

A Confederate Veteran Dead.

Mr. Lewis Hudson, the oldest white man in Greenville, died suddenly Friday morning at his home on Cotanch street. He was going about the day before in apparent usual health, but was taken sick that night. Friday morning he got up and was walking across the floor when he fell and passed away in a few minutes.

Mr. Hudson was in his 82nd year and leaves a wife and two children, Mr. J. L. Hudson, of Kinston and Mrs. Alex Speight, near Greenville. He was a Confederate veteran and will be missed by his few remaining comrades at their future reunions.

The body was taken out to Red Banks for interment, the funeral service being conducted by Rev W. H. Laughinhouse.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

The Toothache Caused and How It is Ripened Artificially.

Nearly all boys and girls like bananas and would be glad to know perhaps something about the way they are ripened here and after importation, says the Chicago News. The plant bears fruit every month in the year. The bananas are clipped while green. Otherwise they would rot before they reached this country. The dealers here treat them differently in different seasons. In winter they are hung up in a room heated to 70 degrees by gas. It is said that any other kind of artificial ripening would make the fruit shrivel or ripen too quickly. In the spring they are allowed to ripen naturally, but in summer they are hung in cellars, because the outside air rots them. They are one of the best and most nutritious fruits we have, but of course we miss the delicate flavor that they have when taken ripe directly from the tree.

Game of Birds, Beasts and Fishes.

Two boys take their slates, and each one writes down the first and last letters of the name of some bird, beast or fish, first stating from which category the name is selected, and puts a cross for each of the intermediate letters. For example, A elects to write down the name of a beast and marks on his slate as follows: Hxxxx. B will perhaps select a fish and mark on his slate Hxxxxg. They then exchange slates, and each tries to guess the name of the beast or fish indicated and fills up the blanks accordingly. It is evident that those indicated above are respectively horse and herring.

Words That Hear.

Did you ever count the number of words which have ears? Now this question may sound absurd, but nevertheless there are many words which possess each an ear. Not a pair of ears, mind you, but one ear. A few of the words that are so blessed are given here. After reading them over try to find as many more as you can: Tear, smear, dear, fear, hear, near, rear, pear, drear and bear.

You will notice that the ear always comes at the end of the word.

To Mark Knives.

This is the way boys can write their names on knife blades: Take a knife and warm the blade with a coating of wax. Let it cool, and then mark through the wax with a sharp pointed tool of steel. Then apply nitric acid and let it stand four minutes. Then wash off the acid and again warm the blade and rub off the wax with a rag.

Snow as a Food is Found.

Snow is sold in the north of Italy, where it fetches about a cent a pound. It is a government monopoly, and the Prince of Piedmont derives the greater part of his income from it. The snow, which is gathered on the mountains in far covered backlands, is brought to the cities for refrigerating purposes.

Barbecued Rabbit.

Secure a young rabbit and after skinning lay it in salt water for half an hour. Then dip into boiling water, wipe dry and rub the surface with olive oil or sweet butter. Dust with pepper. Put a gridiron over a bed of live coals, lay the rabbit on it and cook tender, turning frequently, so that the surface will not become hard and dry. When done and nicely browned transfer to a buttered serving platter. Have ready a sauce made of four teaspoons of vinegar, one of mustard jelly and a spoon of sugar. Pour this over the rabbit, rubbing it in well, and serve at once.

Washing a Sweater.

Use pure soap and water not too hot in washing a sweater. Never rub soap on the sweater. Make sud instead. Immerse the sweater in water of exactly the same temperature as that of the washing water. Every laundress knows that rule for washers, but not one in a thousand follows it conscientiously. Never hang a wet sweater up to dry. It will set and stretch and be ruined. Lay it on a clean cloth on the grass in the fresh air and sunshine if you can. If not, lay it on a flat surface anyway or hang it up in a clean place and let it dry that way.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

A Few Helpful Hints For the Economic Housewife.

A good beefsteak, however well cooked, will not be at its best unless served directly it is cooked.

Every saucepan that has been used and finished with should be filled with cold water, a lump of soda put into it and set to boil out.

To utilize scraps of lemons, having removed the yellow rind and the juice for flavoring, the pulp should be dipped into salt and used for cleaning copper pans.

Make potatoes look white and floury by boiling in as little water as possible, strain and take at once to an open door. Give the potatoes a vigorous shake in the pan, let it remain uncovered at the side of the stove for five minutes before serving.

Lamps should be filled daily and the chimneys polished at the same time. Once a month either wash or burn the chimney to have a new one.

QUEER STORY OF A PRESENT.

In the Revue de Paris M. Raymond Reconvy tells the following: After the visit of Nicholas to France the Parisian press deemed it proper to make a present to the czar. They had an aquarelle painted by Detaille and sent the magnificently framed picture to St. Petersburg to be delivered to the emperor. Three months elapsed, and the committee of the Parisian press received no answer. The committee began to wonder. Had the present reached its destination? Frenchmen living in the Russian capital were asked to make inquiries, and finally they learned that the czar had actually received the aquarelle. It even pleased him to such an extent as to cause him to place it in the best part of his study. But why had he not answered? The astonishment of the Paris newspaper men increased. They made further inquiries and at last found out that the picture had been sold to the czar by some official and at a high price. As the czar had to pay for it, he did not think that thanks were due to any one.

Pleasant For the Patient.

Dentistry as practiced in London, with all the latest appliances for preventing pain and drawing the teeth before the patient knows what has happened, is in sharp contrast to the methods still followed in remote country towns among the poor. A writer in the London Standard relates that he went into an apothecary's little shop to make some purchase. "He did not appear at once, and I heard two or three strange muffled sounds coming from a room at the back, half curtained off. I tapped smartly again, and this time the apothecary appeared. He was slightly flushed and smiling, and he said as he got down and wrapped up my goods: 'I'm drawing a tooth, and it won't come. I think it must be hooked up somehow.' Then, giving me my change, he went back to his patient."

The Kaiser and Brown Boots.

The German emperor is a regular frequenter of the fiords of Norway, but he allows no liberties to be taken with his sacred person. On one occasion when the Hohenzollern anchored off a little town the German consular agent, as in duty bound, went aboard to pay his respects, but not being possessed of a uniform, it did not appear to him necessary to appear at midday in the comic opera kit of evening dress on board the vessel. He therefore presented himself in an attire that compromised the official correctness of a frock coat by brown boots. His majesty, however, resented the informality, called the attention of the consul general at Bergen to the decision and announced his intention of ceasing to honor the place with any further visits. — London Exchange.

Stupidity and Sangfroid.

Commander Gambier of the British navy tells in his book this story of a soldier servant named Andrews, a fellow of stupidity and sangfroid: "We were practicing with a saloon pistol in my brother's quarters, and Andrews was in a small dressing room adjoining when a ball went through the door and took the tip off his ear. Most men would have made some remark. He did not, and we knew nothing about it until by chance, looking into the room, we saw him groping about under the table for something he had lost. 'What are you looking for, Andrews?' said my brother. He drew up, stood at attention and replied in an apologetic tone—as if pleading his master's wrath, 'I'm only a-looking for a bit of powder as come off when you fire that shot through the door, sir.'"

Early Protest Against Tea.

The introduction of tea into European communities met with considerable protest. In Germany tea dealers were considered immoral, and many pamphlets were published condemning the use of tea in any form. Tea was first brought to England from Holland in 1666, and on the drinking of it became fashionable in London, and a pound of the leaves sold for 60 shillings. Thomas Garway was the first dealer in tea in England. He recommended it as a cure for all disorders and sold great quantities of it at a large profit. Records show that tea at times been sold in England as much as £10 a pound.
