RESENTED COMPARISON TO GRAVEYARD.

Mr. Laughinghouse Told Mr. Jacobson He Looked Like "Something Had Crawled in Him and Died."

When Mr. Laughinghouse said to Mr. Jacobson at the meeting of the House fisheries committee yesterday afternoon that he did not propose to be talked to in that manner by a "man who looked like something had crawled in him and died," the committee expected trouble and several members acted just in time to avert it.

Immediately upon the enunciation of Mr. Laughinghouse's rather spicy description, he and Mr. Jacobson ran together wards with a common impulse. Others got between. Mr. Laughinghouse's whiskers quivered as though he smelt a rat and Mr. Jacobson's activity belied the suggestion that he was harboring a corpse.

Quiet finally came to the committee, which had been talking about fish Dutch nets. The controversy is usually as loud on these subjects as Dutch herring and yesterday was no exception to the rule.

Chairman Vann must have had a premonition of trouble when Mr. Laughinghouse came before the committee, for he reminded him that he was not a member and had no right to be heard except by invitation.

The committee was not so wary, however, and promptly asked Mr. Laughinghouse to address it.

Thereupon Mr. Laughinghouse proceeded by saying that two years ago the committee was packed against him, but he beat its report on the floor by seventy odd to thirty odd. Continuing, he said that the commission appointed by the Governor had been packed; that this committee was packed, but that he would beat it again.

Thereupon Mr. Jacobson arose and stated that Mr. Laughinghouse's argument seemed to consist of charges that committee had been packed. He resented the assertion and had some remarks in protest to offer. The matter was further complicated by Mr. Jacobson and Mr. Laughinghouse desiring a different day for the next meeting of the committee. Mr. Jacobson insisted and said something further about packed committees.

Replied Mr. Laughinghouse that he would take nothing of that sort from a gentleman who looked like he harbored a secret burying ground within his person, although what he said in fact has already been printed.

Then it was that Mr. Jacobson proved himself to be alive and Mr. Laughinghouse became active and all the committee went into an uproar.

No blows were stricken and Mr. Jacobson's appearance is unchanged.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Meeting of the Cotton Association.

A meeting of the Pitt county branch of the Southern Cotton Association is hereby called to convene in the court house at Greenville on next Saturday Feb. 2nd, 1907 at 11 o'clock a. m.

We do hope that the farmers of Pitt county will come together and show their appreciation for the association that has been so highly beneficial to them. A full attendance is earnestly requested.

Water Transportation.

The suggestion for the development of waterways for transportation purposes, is a good one. It has been pointed out that canals are not as slow methods of transportation, by comparison with the railroads, as was formerly supposed. It is gratifying to see that the national government has appropriated $150,000 to improve the Congaree river and gave Columbia water transportation to the sea. It may be recalled also that the State of New York is making a ship canal of the old Erie Canal. Reliance upon the railways for transportation has apparently reached its limit and in view of the fact that water transportation is much cheaper, and much of the freight need not be in a great hurry, and of the fact that the railroads don't carry it in a hurry whether it is needed in a hurry or not, there seems good reason to believe that many a canal project would be found ultimately profitable.

Hon. John Small's system of canals would come to the front if canal revival becomes the fashion.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Big Offices for Negroes.

President Roosevelt will have an opportunity of putting to the test those Senators who have proclaimed their undying affection for the negro. He has long wanted to make some appointments in the North, where meritorious negroes have been available for government service but always reasons have been advanced why negroes should not get important places, and generally they have been sidetracked.

The attitude which has been taken by a number of Senators over the Brownville order would indicate that the time is ripe for giving some thoroughly equipped negroes important Federal jobs.

Just where these appointments are to be made is not known, but it is said by those who share the President's confidence that he will make several appointments in the North which he long has had in mind.

It is said one of the appointments contemplated is for Ohio. Foral cr's State is Ohio.—Washington Dispatch to New York Times.

Moore--Moore.

A quiet home wedding occurred at the residence of Mr. David Henry Moore of Greenville township Wednesday afternoon four o'clock when Miss Mary Maud Moore was united in marriage to Mr. Guilford A. Moore. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. E. Ayscue, pastor of the Greenville Memorial Baptist church.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple together with many relatives and friends, drove to the home of the father of the groom where a beautiful and much-enjoyed supper was served. After a happy evening, their friends departed, wishing them a long and prosperous life.

THE LEGISLATURE

What the Law Makers Are Doing.

In the senate Wednesday Senator Fleming introduced a bill to establish and maintain a normal school in Eastern North Carolina. He also introduced a bill to authorize Pitt commissioners to work convicts on other work than county roads, and one to prevent theft of cotton.

The other new bills were of a local nature. A petition was presented from citizens of Bethel to extend the corporate limits, and to permit a vote on the question of dispensary, saloons and prohibition. A large number of bills passed third reading, and the divorce bill making ten years' separation a cause for divorce passed second reading by a bare majority of 2. This bill brought out a long argument.

In the house Representative Jacobson introduced a bill to establish a normal school in Eastern North Carolina.

Representative Doughton introduced a bill to provide for the maintenance and support of the State University. This bill stipulates on annual appropriation of $70,000 and a special appropriation of $50,000 for two years.

Representative Rodwell introduced a bill to repeal the crop lien law.

There were several new bills of minor importance. By special order the bill to enlarge the powers of the corporation commission was taken up and discussed at length. It passed second reading.

The joint committee on railroads and corporations continues daily to meet and hear argument relative to the bill reducing fares.

Ninety-One Die in Mine.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan 30.—There were 91 men in the Stuart mine in Fayette county, where an explosion of dust occurred yesterday. It is not believed that any of the men will be taken out alive, the force of the explosion being so terrific as to wreck the entire inner workings.

Horses Perish in Fire.

Norfolk, Jan. 30.—Forty-eight out of fifty-one valuable horses therein were cremated in the J. J. Dunbar stables on Wide, Calvert and Victoria streets, the old Norfolk horse car barns, which were destroyed by fire of an unknown origin early this morning. The loss will amount to $15,000 with insurance less than $2,000.

Petrified Child Removed.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 29.—A most remarkable surgical operation, which has mystified the physicians throughout the State, was performed at Suffolk yesterday, resulting in the birth of a petrified child. A woman hailing from Gates county, North Carolina, whose name is unknown, who had been suffering from internal tumor, as was supposed, and who had been similarly afflicted for three years, came here for treatment. The physicians deemed an operation necessary to save her life. The operation resulted in the discovery of the presence of the unborn child, which had turned to stone. The weight of the child was five and one-half pounds.

Thaw may be happy over it, but not more so than the yellow papers.

No brick manufacturing plant yet in sight, but all the same you can watch Greenville grow.

The legislature is overdoing the thing in appointing justices of the peace. It seems useless that so many extra ones should be appointed.

As The Reflector stated a few days ago, it is open to argument on the question of extending the boundaries of the town. The paper simply expressed its own opinion in the matter, but that does not imply that it is not open to conviction if better argument is produced. Of course there are those favoring both sides of the question, and any one wishing to be heard has the opportunity.

White Versus Negro Labor in Cotton Growing.

For years it has been the mental habit of the American people to associate cotton production with the idea of negro labor as its sole dependence. This is true to such an extent that most people are under the impression that practically the entire American cotton crop is the product of negro toil. As a matter of fact, more than half is raised by the white man. The inability of the negro, thus far, to hold his own in competition with the Northern white man has been demonstrated so often, and in so many ways, that it is no longer a debatable question. The fault is divided between the labor union, Northern economic race prejudice, and negro inefficiency, — in what proportions I shall not attempt to say. As a cotton-grower, however, his supremacy remains unquestioned in the popular mind. In investigating this popular fallacy some 13 years ago I reached the conclusion that, although the native Southern white man had always, even during the slavery regime, produced a much larger proportion of the cotton crop than was commonly believed, it was not he who was destined seriously to threaten the negro's hold on this branch of industry. I believed then, as I believe now, that it is through immigration that the South is to realize the ultimate development of her almost untouched resources, I believe that it is merely a question of time when the story of the West is to find its counterpart in the Southern States. The action may be artificially retarded or accelerated, according to the sentiment of the native white man in different parts of the South; but it can no more be prevented than can the final working out of any other economic law. — From Italian Cotton Growers in Arkansas, by Alfred Holt Stone, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for February.

It's a pleasure to tell our readers about a Cough Cure like Dr. Shoop's. For years Dr. Shoop has fought against the use of opium, chloroform or other unsafe ingredients commonly found in cough remediators. Dr. Shoop, it seems has welcomed the Pure Food Drug Law recently enacted, for he has worked along similar lines for many years. For nearly 20 years Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure containers have had a warning printed on them against opium and other narcotic poisons. He has made it possible for mothers to protect their children by simply insisting on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Sold by Bryan's Drug Store.

Two Dyspeptics

If you are too fat it is because your food turns to fat instead of muscle—strength. If you are too lean the fat producing foods that you eat are not properly digested and assimilated.

Kodol

contains all the digestive juices that are found in a healthy stomach, and in exactly those proportions necessary to enable the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all foods that may be eaten. Kodol is not only a perfect digestant, but it is a reconstructive, tissue building tonic as well. Kodol cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Palpitation of the Heart and Constipation. You will like it.

Digests What You Eat
Rests the stomach, rebuilds the tissues and gives firm flesh.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak Kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

THE DOOM OF VENICE

IT MAY BE TO LIE IN THE BOSOM OF THE ADRIATIC.

The Famous Bell of St. Mark's May Toll on Ocean's Depths Like Those of Old Port Royal—The Sunken Cities of the World.

It is believed by many that Venice is sinking into the Adriatic and that the gradually will disappear beneath the waters of the great lagoon from which her palace crowned islands arise. Other cities have gone that way before her, and ships now sail over spots which were once teeming with a populous life.

At the entrance to the harbor of Kingston, Jamaica, the original city of Port Royal lies fathoms deep beneath the blue and sunlit waters of the Caribbean sea. A narrow strip of land, on which are a small settlement and a fort, is all that is left of what was once the richest and wickedest town in the West Indies. It was the resort of pirates, who rested there from their depredations and made the city hideous with their revelry. But these pirates brought great stores of their loot to the city, and its commerce grew and flourished. Palaces and churches were built, a pirate often striving by a rich endowment of a church to square his accounts with heaven.

Throughout the greater part of the seventeenth century no town in the western world was so magnificent as to its buildings or so luxurious as to its habits as Port Royal. Then one day in 1692 the anger of the Lord shook the island of Jamaica, and the greater part of Port Royal sank beneath the sea, carrying with it hundreds of its inhabitants. Towers, churches, palaces and forts went down, many of them not tumbling in ruins by the shock, but sinking bodily beneath the waves.

On a bright day, sailing over the spot where Port Royal once stood, one can look far down through the clear water and see the remains of the city still standing there on the ocean bottom, with fishes swimming about among its towers and great tropical seaweeds waving from its sunken walls.

The negroes of Jamaica—and some white people, too—will tell you that before a storm the sunken bell of the great cathedral which went down with the city on that awful day in 1692 can be heard distinctly tolling below the waves, rung as a warning by the ghostly hands of the spirits of departed buccaneers which haunt the submarine city. People who do not believe in ghosts, but think they have heard the tolling of the bell, say the explanation is that when the city sunk the great bell of the cathedral was not thrown from its place, but still hangs as it originally did. The coming storm before it reaches Jamaica stirs up the waters of the Caribbean and sends in upon the shore deep waves, which roll through the sunken city and set the bell a-tolling.

Another sunken city of renown is Balae, that splendid resort on the Italian coast where Nero and Caligula "reveled and drank deep." A straggling village and heaps of marble ruins still stand upon the shore and bear the name of Balae, but the greater part of the city lies beneath the waters of the Mediterranean, and tourists from Naples go out there to gaze down into the waters and try to catch a glimpse of the submerged city.

The resort of all the wealthy nobles of Rome when Rome was mistress of the world, Balae was a marvel of luxurious splendor. Palace after palace was built on the shore, and architects designed magnificent structures extending out into the sea.

When Rome decayed and the Goths ravaged Italy, Balae was sacked by the invaders. Soon after the city began to sink. First the buildings which had their foundation in the water subsided beneath the waves, and then the sea made an attack on the land. Gradually the shore line receded, and the Mediterranean flowed through the streets where Hadrian had driven his imperial chariot and Horace had walked thinking of his next poem.

These promontories, crowned with grand towers and gorgeous palaces, were undermined and toppled into the deep until at last the major part of the splendid city was submerged. Its disappearance was not sudden, like that of Port Royal, and due to some convulsion of nature, but Balae went down to its death gradually, as Venice is said to be going.

In Holland the subsidence of the land has brought it about that many towns once populous are now covered by the sea. The old Roman camp at Brittenburg, after sinking beneath the waves, emerged again in 1520, only to disappear, and its remains now lie in deep water opposite the town of Katwijk. The original Katwijk itself now is beneath the waters, as also are the original towns of Scheveningen, Domburg and Egmond. In fact, a succession of towns bearing these names is now at the bottom of the sea, for they repeatedly have been rebuilt farther inland as the land sunk and the waves come in to take possession.

The Godwin sands, large and dangerous shoals off the southeast coast of England, were once above the water and formed a flourishing estate the property of Earl Godwin. There was no city on the Godwin estate when it subsided beneath the sea, but several small villages went down to the deep when the tract of country gradually disappeared beneath the waters.

There are legends which may or may not be true of lost cities sunk at the bottom of Swiss lakes.—New York Mail.
