

THE LAUGHINGHOUSE BILL.

The Laughinghouse bill to enlarge the powers of the corporation commission should become law. Fifty members of the legislature requested the commission to indicate additional powers desired by that body to make it a more effective branch of the government. The result was the Laughinghouse bill.

An impotent commission is just about as useless a thing as masquerades under the cloak of legal authority. The corporation commission has been greatly impotent. Its necessary powers have been restricted. Its wings have been clipped. People have often times asked of it bread and received a stone; not because its members desired to treat its suitors so but because the people had not authorized the body to exercise those powers that would really make it as efficient as possible. Now that they have indicated the powers that experience has taught them that they need, the legislature should amend their powers in the interest of the public welfare.

This being done railroad "legislation" at least in all of its minor aspects, should be left to the commission. The Democratic party should see to it that the body is composed of honest, courageous and capable men; and it should hold them responsible for necessary railroad reforms.

Railroading is an intricate business, in many of its aspects. It is a semi-public business, and as such should be under the careful supervision of men who are capable of supervision and who are equipped with the power necessary to make their rulings of as much value as possible to the public.—Kinston Free Press.

How to Quit Tobacco.

Three men were discussing tobacco using in The Dispatch office one day last week, and each gave in his experiences. One was chewing cloves at the time, and he said he had quit in January. It made him so nervous that when he picked up his saucer to drink coffee, his hands trembled so that he spilt it all out before the saucer got to his mouth.

Another was chewing tobacco, and he said that he quit once for two years, and then went at it again and used more than ever before. His conclusion was that it was better not to quit at all.

The third man had got so tobacco made him sick, and so he quit a long time ago. One day soon after he quit, a raging desire came upon him for a good big chew, and it hurt more than the tooth ache. "I was just bound to chew something," he said, "and near my work was a small peach tree. I ran to it and broke off a limb and chewed it up, and after awhile the desire for the weed left me. At times afterward I et on that peach tree until I behaved if I didn't eat it up!"

His advice was to chew peach trees.—Lexington Dispatch.

Watch the Ground Hog.

Tomorrow the ground hog will make his appearance and regulate the weather for the next forty days. If he fails to see his shadow he will stay out and give us spring weather, but if he sees his shadow he will go back in his hole and let winter rage until he comes again.

STATE NEWS.

A man near Reidsville died from the effects of being bitten by a horse.

The body of W. P. Fife, who died suddenly Sunday in St. Louis, was brought to Fayetteville for interment.

Plans are on foot here to convert Kenilworth Inn, located between Asheville and Blount, into a preparatory school for young women.

Berry growers of the Wilmington section say the strawberry acreage will be reduced 25 per cent this year. Insufficient labor and shortage of cars to handle the crop is given as the cause of reduction.

When Mrs. Green, wife of a tenant on the farm of Mr. John Glosson in Clear Creek township, near the Cabarrus line, heard last night that the barn was on fire she fainted. She afterward regained consciousness but had lost the power of speech. It is presumed that this is only temporary though she had not been able to speak up to an early hour this morning.—Charlotte News.

He Bagged the Game.

John S. Heald, of Portland, has been connected with the Maine Central railroad for about thirty years as claim agent, and has had some mighty funny experiences. He was a witness to the following years ago in the station at Waterville, Me.

An old "hayseed" looking man walked up to the lunch counter, seated himself on a stool, placed his bright colored carpet bag on the next stool, and partook of a hearty lunch. He passed the young man a $1 bill to take out the price of his lunch, 50 cents, and was surprised when the young man said:

"Not any charge, sir; your carpet bag occupied a seat and we must collect for that."

The old man looked amazed for a second only, and then replied: "All right," and, opening the bag, "old carpet bag, I have paid for your lunch and you shall have it."

Quicker than a flash he threw in a mince pie, a plate of doughnuts and several sandwiches, and departed amid the shouts of every one in the station.—Boston Herald.

Ten Ill in One Family.

Statesville, N. C., Jan. 30.—The family of Mr. Ed Campbell, in North Iredell, is greatly afflicted. Thursday night at the Campbell home, in Olin township, Mrs. Campbell passed into the great beyond, death resulting from a complication of measles and pneumonia. Mrs. Campbell, who was about 40 years old, is survived by her husband and ten children. The husband, however, was the only member of the family able to attend the funeral which took place Friday at Macedonia church. Every one of the children are sick with the measles and two or three of the cases have developed into pneumonia and recovery is not expected.

The National Bank.

The statement of the National Bank of Greenville made at the close of business on January 26th, and published in this issue, makes an excellent showing for an institution that is only nine months old. It is constantly growing in estimation with the public.

They Will Find the Way.

In his letter to Governor Johnson, President Hill of the Great Northern Railroad company, says: "It is not by accident that railroad building has declined to its lowest within a generation, at the very time when all other forms of activity have been growing most rapidly. The investor declines to put his money into enterprises under ban of unpopularity, and even threatened by individuals and political parties with confiscation or transfer to the State."

Well, if individual investors decline to build railroads, it may be necessary for the government to do so; for certainly the public is not to be deprived of railroad facilities, simply because individuals decline to engage in railroad construction, for fear the laws may be so framed as to make the railroad the servant rather than the master of the people.—The Commoner.

Engine Destroyed.

About five o'clock, on Monday evening last the engine of the Ayden Milling and Manufacturing Company became ungovernable and before it could be checked it was an entire wreck. The larger part of the engine went into atoms and small pieces. Many parts went through the top of the building and some scattered in various parts of the vicinity. The loss will probably be about $800. It was exceedingly fortunate that no one was hurt in the disaster. The engine will, no doubt be replaced by a new one at an early date, and the work of this enterprising company will go on as heretofore.—Ayden Baptist.

Pied a Form.

The Reflector met with the mishap of getting one form knocked into pie Thursday evening. Fortunately the accident occurred just after the form had been taken from the press, hence did not interfere with the paper, but it put the force in bad shape for today. Only those familiar with the inside workings of a print shop can realize what it is to have a pied form on hand.

Lawrence. After the ceremony the couple and a number of friends left for the home of the groom, near Whichard, where a reception was held.

More Sensations in the Thaw Trial.

New York, Jan. 31.—Sensations were frequent in the Thaw murder trial today, and before the two sessions of court had ended three sworn jurors had been released from further service in the case, making five in all summarily excused from the trial panel during the last three days. In the case of two of the released jurors no explanation was made in court. The third was allowed to go upon a physician's certificate that his life would be imperilled by the close confinement of jury service. Three satisfactory talesmen were found to replace the excused jurors, so that when the rapidly shifting situation underwent a survey at the close of the day there were again eleven men in the jury box, the same number that had been seated at the close of yesterday's session. Rumors were current tonight that the end of the jury changes is not yet in sight and that further chapters may be added to what has already become an unprecedented record in criminal procedure in New York city.

THREE NEGROES ARE RELEASED.

Negroes Charged With Murder of Lysterly Family are Released.

Statesville N. C., Jan. 31.—The cases against Della Dillingham, Henry Gillespie and George Irvin, was formerly settled today, when the judge rendered a verdict of not guilty.

The case was practically ended yesterday evening and last night the officers carried the negroes to the outskirts of town, gave them enough money to get away on and advised them to set sail for South Carolina. When released, however, the three negroes chose a different route and the last time they were seen they were hustling up the railroad afoot, bound presumably for Asheville.

The testimony of all the witnesses examined yesterday afternoon showed that the guilt of the murders of the Lysterly family rested entirely on the three negroes who were lynched at Salisbury, and there was nothing in any of the testimony to implicate the three negroes on trial in the medley of the murders.

The judge stated in the crowded courtroom this morning that he nor Solicitor Hammer had been able to find anything to convict either of the three negroes on and so he would turn them at their liberty.

It is thought the trial begun yesterday was more for the purpose of quieting the sentiment that the negroes might have been implicated than anything else.

"Always Comes Late."

A gentleman talking about trains coming in so much behind time, said nothing else could be expected on the Atlantic Coast Line. When asked for a reason for his opinion he said "Why, just look at the letters A. C. L. They mean always comes late."

THE LEGISLATURE

What the Law Makers Are Doing.

Thursday the ten year separation divorce bill passed the senate by just one majority and became a law. It was claimed in the discussion that this bill was drawn to meet the particular case of one person who wants a divorce. There were committee reports on quite a number of bills that had been referred, and many new bills were introduced. Some of these were: To authorize and require every county to levy a special tax to support one or more public schools; to promote and encourage the immigration of trained farmers.

In the house there was also a large number of new bills, among the important ones being: To provide for pay of election officers; to amend the revisal relating to procedure in condemning lands; to prevent the escape of dangerous criminals; to protect the forests of Western North Carolina and the State's interest in public lands; to regulate labor in cotton mills.

FRIDAY, FEB. 1st, 1907.

Carrie Nation was denied an audience with the president and off went her mouth.

Three notable days in February are ground hog day, St. Valentine's day and Washington's birthday.

The order of the judge sitting on the Thaw case forbidding the newspaper correspondent making any more sketches of scenes connected with the trial, threw a bomb of consternation in the midst of the reporters. But we bet the papers continue to have pictures all the same.

The ties between Charlotte and Salisbury have been drawn closer. "Medicine for the cook" not being plentiful in Charlotte, one of that city's police officers took a spin over to Salisbury where it flows more freely. He tanked up and got on such a jag that his brother officers had to run him in.

Gastonia wants a public building and has adopted an unusual method to get one. A mass meeting of the citizens was held at which it was decided to give a nice lot belonging to the town to the government provided the latter will put up a building on it. That beats charging three prices for a lot because the government wants one in a town. Gastonia ought to get the desired public building in short order.

RAILROAD ACCIDENTS DUE TO SLOVENLY MANAGEMENT.

The demoralized condition of the railroad service of the country is chiefly responsible for the great number of railroad accidents, the worst of which are so appalling that they cannot be kept out of the newspapers, while the lesser ones of daily occurrence escape public notice. It has been asserted by high railroad authority that it has become habitual to disregard the cardinal principle of the block system which many roads have installed for purposes of safety, and to this fact must be attributed some of the recent disasters. But the root of the trouble goes much deeper than the recklessness of engineers or the mistakes of signalmen. It lies in the bad management that overworks the train crews, dispatchers, and men on duty in signal towers; that makes regularly in train-running the extreme exception; and that has brought American railroading into the position of being the most slovenly of all our great business organizations, whereas it ought to be the most precise, methodical, and alert. All sorts of business undertakings nowadays have a tendency to become elaborate, specialized, and highly organized.

There was a time when railroad men could carry an air of mystery and treat the public with a certain condescension, as meaning well but not capable of understanding so difficult and technical a business as operating railroads. But that period is past and gone forever. The veil of mystery has been ruthlessly torn away, and the gentlemen of the railroad world are now in a position where they must put in a decade of hard work in trying to "make good." Meanwhile, there cannot be too many public investigations, and there is no danger of any harm to the traveling public or the shipping public from the doctrine that railroads exist principally for the convenience and the service of the people, and that the people are entitled to have a good railroad system safely and well operated.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for February.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney eyes. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the lungs, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide them.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the kidneys alone, is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of distressing or dangerous kidney disease, Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a mouth-blessing and see what it will do for you. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is the only one recommended and called.

FRAUDS IN OLD BOOKS.

Ancient and Rare Volumes Doctored, Restored and Faked.
A well known collector acquired what he took to be a book published by Aldus in the year 1489. He paid $1,000 for it and believed that it was an original Aldus, because the publisher's press mark, a dolphin coiled round an anchor, appeared upon it. When the book was shown to an expert it proved to be beyond a shadow of doubt a modern antique—that is to say, it was simply a copy of the original work printed by an ingenious book faker. So clever was the imitation that only an expert could tell it from the original and rare book. Scores of persons during recent years have bought facsimiles of rare works under the impression that they were getting the originals. Dickens' "Sunday Under Three Heads" has been faked many times and sold as original to collectors who no doubt treasure them as rarities. Genuine copies of this little book are worth a good sum, and some unscrupulous dealers, taking advantage of the circumstances, have had it reprinted and palm off the copies on unsuspecting bibliomaniacs for the genuine first edition.

Many men make a living by "doctoring" old and rare books for unscrupulous dealers. These men are adepts in the art of book restoring and are quite able to make good any part of an imperfect copy. For instance, if a rare book has a leaf missing it is handed over to a restorer, who reprints the page with battered type, the paper upon which it is printed being afterward discolored with chemicals or tobacco water in order to give it the true antique hue.

The first folio Shakespeare is, of course, of great value, and it is safe to say that every possible deception has been practiced in fitting up copies of this work for sale. At one time the manufacture of first folio Shakespeares was quite a trade. A first folio having several leaves missing had leaves inserted from the second folio, while in one case the entire play of "Cymbeline" was reprinted and inserted in a first folio. The "faked" pages were so cleverly done that several experts were at first unable to detect them when turning over the pages of the work in question. Book restorers, as a rule, are most ingenious artists, and they can produce an imitation of a page of a rare book which will deceive hundreds of collectors. One particular restorer has "doctored" more than a thousand old books during the last two years, producing pages in facsimile and supplying colophons or decorated capitals. There is not a thing wanting to make a book complete that this man cannot skillfully "fake."—Brooklyn Eagle.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Don't bet on your popularity. About the hardest thing in this world to handle is a jealous disposition.

When some people get into trouble they enlist a lot of people to help them out.

If you have to keep demanding your rights all the time you are asking for something not coming to you.

What a comfortable world this would be if people didn't take such delight in making trouble for each other!

A doctor has two classes of people to contend with—those who swear by him and those who swear at him.

How you resent it when any one interferes in that which you consider "your business!" And how often you interfere with the business of others!—Acheson (Globe).

The Poet and the Beauty.

One of the finest houses in southern England is Penhurst Place, the birthplace of Sir Philip Sidney. Under the trees of its park Edmund Waller paid his addresses to the haughty Lady Dorothea, whom he celebrated as Sackarissa. But the heart of Lady Dorothea Sidney—who was the most beautiful woman of her time—was untouched by Waller's amatory verses, and she rejected the poet in favor of the Earl of Sunderland. Many years afterward the countless met Waller and, reminding him sentimentally of the old days at Penhurst, asked him when he would again write verses about her. "When, madam," said the poet rudely, "you are as young and as handsome as you were then."

Properties of Chlorine.

Chlorine is a greenish yellow gas with a disagreeable smell. It is soluble in cold water, only slightly soluble in hot water. It destroys color in wet fabrics and is also a strong disinfectant. Both of these properties are said to be due to its power of decomposing hydrogen compounds, such as water, combining with the hydrogen and liberating oxygen, which in a nascent state oxidizes coloring matter, rendering it colorless. As a disinfectant it oxidizes the germs of disease and is in consequence largely used for this purpose.

Strange Mistake.

Old Mrs. Jones entered the drawing room unexpectedly and spoiled a very pretty tableau.

"I was just whispering a secret in Cousin Jennie's ear," explained Charles.

"I'm sorry," said the old lady gravely, "that your eyesight has become so bad that you mistake Jennie's mouth for her ear."—London Tit-Bits.

Her Line.

"Now our check has gone away I don't know what we shall do."

"I thought you told me your wife was such a good cook!"

"Not a bit of it. I told you my wife was an expert in broils, roasts and stews."—Baltimore American.

POKE BERRIES.

The Plight of the Partridge That Had Been Eating Them.

One night a little after dusk as we were about to go into the house our younger brother saw something dark moving behind the dog kennel. The older boy reached in as far as he could, and with the help of his father, who stood at the other end of the kennel, he drew out a fluttering female partridge that acted so queerly we could not make out what was the matter, for she did not seem to be hurt. There were no blood stains on her feathers, no marks anywhere, but she could neither walk nor fly, and what was the strangest of all, she did not appear frightened, and every one, I think, knows that nothing living is slier than a partridge. We marveled at the sight as she sat quietly in the older boy's hand, breathing very fast, but showing absolutely no fear.

Suddenly our younger boy exclaimed: "Oh, I know what ails her! She's drunk! She's been eating poke berries!" Sure enough. We had all read about partridges getting drunk on poke berries, but had forgotten it.

We took her into the house, and she sat on the table while we ate our supper. How indescribably funny she looked sitting there by my plate, allowing me to stroke her smooth, brown mottled back, permitting—the wild woods thing—familiarities from each one of us! Her bill would partly open and shut, and if we put her up on her feet she would sway and totter, with half closed eyes and drooping tail and wings. How we laughed, and how we regretted that we had no camera and so were unable to take her picture! What a chance for Mr. Job! Not another such chance would any one be likely to have in a lifetime!

As I held her up against my face and felt the soft, faint little puff of breath from her bill against my cheek, she seemed the very spirit of quaintness of all that is wonderful, remote and inaccessible—yet yet there she was, right in my hand—dozily, dizzily, dauntlessly drunk! —B. A. Hitchcock in Outing Magazine.
