We were glad to see Elder Bland, one of Ayden's best citizens, here Thursday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank James, who had been visiting for quite awhile in the Oakley section, returned home today.

Improvements in the school grounds are being made. When the songs of the birds sound spring like, the boys like to get out and do some work to improve the appearance of the school campus. So the ball has begun to roll.

S. J. Chapman, of Grifton, was here today.

John Stokes and J. S. Cox, of Greenville were here Thursday evening.

Misses Agnes Dixon and Nora Smith of Ayden were visitors in our town Thursday afternoon.

We are glad to make another pleasant announcement, Dr. R. T. Vann Pres. of the B. U. V. at Raleigh will preach the annual sermon at the closing exercises of W. H. S. May 17.

The Philo Alteen Society of W. H. S. rendered a most delightful program Friday night in honor of Washington's birthday. The boys of the Vance Literary society were present in a body to enjoy the feast of delightful music, recitations and excellent papers read on the life of Washington. The work done in these societies will never be fully estimated in this life.

The Red Men held their regular meeting last night and several from the country and other towns were here in attendance.

EASTERN TRAINING SCHOOL.

Matter Again Heard by Legislative Committee.

The matter of the training school asked to be located at some point in Eastern North Carolina was again heard Thursday night before the joint legislative committee. Senator Fleming, the introducer of the bill in the senate, stated that some misconception having arisen over the words normal school being used in the bill, leading some to believe that the purpose was to establish a school in competition to the Greenville normal, he wished to assure the committee that there was no such intent, and gave notice that the bill would be amended by striking out the word normal and inserting the word training, as the purpose of the bill was only to establish a training school for teachers of the common schools.

Ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis, of Greenville, began the argument before the committee. He thanked them for patiently hearing him on this question a week ago and was glad to have the opportunity of appearing before them again. It is no new thing for him to be at work in behalf of education, as he was at it before some now before him were born. He recited some experience during his career as governor and appropriations he had recommended for the cause of education, how presidents of certain colleges hastened to Raleigh and said it would kill the institutions of which they were the head for such appropriations to be made, but he was glad to state none of them had ever been killed in that way. He wanted to say the same thing of the matter now pending. This movement was not for the purpose of antagonizing the normal at Greensboro, but he stood ready at all times to come here and urge the legislature to make all the appropriation possible for that institution. He is ready to work any where to establish a school that means better education for the children.

He stood here now to urge the establishment in Eastern North Carolina of a training school for teachers, and whether it was done or not, he could say that every man in the Eastern part of the state would be loyal to the normal at Greensboro. He was once a school teacher and quit teaching to go in the army and thought he had made a good swap. In Eastern North Carolina we need a school to train teachers to better equip them for teaching our common schools. He thought every man in the State should be patriotic enough to wish to develop the whole State and called on those from the West to come to our rescue in establishing this institution in the East. He told of the difficulty of getting teachers for the schools of Eastern North Carolina even though we pay them good salaries.

When he was in public life he knew no East or West in State lines, but felt an interest in the whole commonwealth, yet he recalled that every institution he helped to locate was in Raleigh or west of Raleigh. The East is entitled to recognition and he hoped this legislature would begin it by establishing this school. The East needs developing and he hoped the committee would give a favorable report on this bill so the good work could be taken up in this section.

Rev. Dr. J. M. Grier, of

Washington, next spoke. He said when a minister spoke he was expected to appeal to the consciences of people, but he wanted to be like the Scotchman and say to the committee if any of their consciences were against the East in this matter he wanted them to put aside that conscience. While he was from the western part of the State he has been in the East long enough to realize the needs of that section for trained teachers. He spoke of the grand work the State had done in establishing the normal school at Greensboro and also the two other training schools in the West. It would be equally as grand a work to establish the school asked for in the East. When you remember the wide section lying east of Raleigh that cannot get the graduates from the Greensboro normal to teach in the schools, the needs of that section become apparent. He was struck with the modesty of the bill and was surprised to learn that there was any opposition to this proposed school in the East by friends of the normal at Greensboro.

Major J. B. Leigh, of Elizabeth City, said it was needless to say he was proud of every institution in North Carolina, or that this movement is not antagonistic to the normal at Greensboro. Next year the gavel will fall on illiteracy in North Carolina. We adopted the constitutional amendment and told our young men that every provision would be made for their education so as to qualify them for the electorate. We should keep that promise. In the East much better provision has been made for the negroes than for the whites. There are normal schools for the negroes and none for the whites. That is not treating our white children right. We should know no section in North Carolina but every spot in the State should be dear to us. It is only a small pittance we are asking for to give the white children of Eastern North Carolina as good a chance for getting an education as we have given to the negroes. Our boys and girls need training and they need trained teachers to instruct them. Help us educate our children and we will show you a citizenship the equal of any in the State. Boys and girls cannot be educated without teachers, and teachers cannot be trained except in a training school.

Dr. Charles Laughinghouse, of Greenville, said we need a factory in Eastern North Carolina, a teachers factory to enable young women to take charge of our schools. We have to look to the women to teach our schools, but those of the West are afraid to come East because of climatic conditions. The men come among us and grow fat, but the women seem afraid to come. We need teachers bred in the East to teach our schools.

J. F. Tayloe gave some statistics of the schools of the East. Twenty six counties in Eastern North Carolina paid last year $156,734 54 taxes into the State treasury, while the entire State paid only $324,190.93. Taking this basis and pointing out the little that had been done educationally for the eastern section of the State he made an earnest brief appeal for the school.

Prof. W. H. Ragsdale then spoke. He said as long as he lived he would be ready at every opportunity to raise his voice in behalf of educating the women of North Carolina. He spoke of his own work in education and the disadvantage at which he was placed as county superintendent in getting teachers for the schools under his supervision. All over the State for twenty years the men and women of the State have been talking education until the demand for teachers cannot be supplied. It is a mistake to try to get a community to increase its school facilities when teachers for the schools cannot be supplied. It is impossible to teach children in a school unless the school can be made worth the time given to it. The children cannot be kept in school without competent teachers. There is hardly a community in North Carolina in which you cannot get a good school house and a local tax if you will just put good teachers there. We are not asking for a college to be established in the East, but we only want a training school to prepare teachers to take charge of our common schools. Unless the educational lines are changed and better opportunities be given to the East, injury to the State would result. He believed there was no measure before the legislature that would do more good to the State than the establishment of this training school. If this bill is passed, for every dollar the State puts into it another will be placed by the people of the East.

Two members of the committee who are representatives from the West, spoke briefly in favor of the bill, declaring that they were impressed with this appeal from the East, just as they had been when the cry came up for help in carrying the constitutional amendment, and were ready to again go to the rescue.

It was again noticeable that not a word was spoken before the committee against the bill, though there was known to be some opposition and some hidden influence against it. As soon as the argument closed Senator Turner, of Pasquotank, moved that the bill be given a favorable report, but Representative Gordon, of Guilford, moved that the committee go into executive session and this was adopted. The executive session lasted an hour and a half during which the committee discussed it among themselves, and it was decided to appoint a sub-committee of five to draft a substitute bill removing every feature that might be construed in competition to the normal at Greensboro and report back to the full committee Wednesday night, 20th.

Part of Greenville's delegation returned home Friday, others remaining over in Raleigh until this morning. Those who remained a day longer again talked with prominent members of the general assembly and State officials, and came home feeling confident that opposition to the school has been removed and the bill establishing it will be passed.

A Card of Thanks

I wish to express my appreciation for the kind help of the many thoughtful persons who rendered aid in fighting the fire at the Wilson farm yesterday morning. Although I was absent, the people on both sides of the river showed their loyalty, and I am very grateful for such a manifested spirit to render assistance in time of need.

Very truly,

Tall Stories.

A couple of witty fellows were conversing together recently, and their arguments finally occasioned a bet between them. Each agreed to tell a peculiar incident, and the reciter of the strongest episode was to receive the stakes, a sovereign. No. 1 commenced and said he knew a lady who was "turned into wood."

"Impossible!" said No. 2. "Explain yourself."

"You see," was the reply, "the lady was placed on a vessel, and then she was a-board!"

"Very good," said No. 2, "but listen to this: Once I knew a man who had been deaf and dumb for twenty years, but last week he regained speech in one minute."

"Nonsense!" rejoined No. 1. "But proceed."

"Well," replied No. 2, "the man I mean went into a bicycle shop with a friend, and, stooping down, he picked up a wheel and spoke."—London Telegraph.

Found Drunken Man Nearly Frozen In Snow.

Saturday night while on his way to his home a short distance to the northwest of the city, Mr. E. G. Tyndal saw a man lying in the sleet and snow in the road and upon investigation found the man to be nearly frozen to death. Summoning help Mr. Tyndal got the man to Mr. Ed. Sutton's store, where a fire was built and the man "thawed" out. His name was learned to be John and he was from Hookerton. The young man had been drinking and when he started home his mule ran away and threw him out of the buggy into the sleet and snow, where partly from stupor and partly from injuries he lay until Mr. Tyndal happened to come along.—Kinston Free Press.

A number of Greenville people went up to witness it and were delighted with the play and their stay in Tarboro.

The Golden Egg.

The New York Weekly is responsible for the following specimen of arithmetic as seen through rose-colored glasses:

Pateer—Now, see here! If you marry that young pauper, how are you going to live?

Sweet Girl—Oh, we have figured that all out. You remember that old hen my aunt gave me?

"Yes."

"Well, I have been reading a poultry circular, and I find that a good hen will raise twenty chicks in a season. Well, the next season that will be twenty hens, and as each will raise twenty more chicks, that will be a hundred and twenty. The next year the number will be eight thousand four hundred, the following year one hundred and sixty-eight thousand and the next three million three hundred and sixty thousand! Just think, at only 50 cents apiece, we will have $1,680,000. Then, you dear old father, we'll lend you some money to pay off the mortgage on this house!"

SATURDAY, FEB. 16th, 1907.

Many of the Greenville delegation to Raleigh called in a body on Governor Glenn, and cordiality with which he received them and the enthusiasm expressed for the school they wish to secure for the East, drew the esteem of every one who more closely to the government.

It cannot be told yet what the result will be, but if some hidden effort should kill the movement for an Eastern training school for teachers before the present Legislature, it is a matter that will not stay killed. Eastern North Carolina is determined to have such a school, and the sooner the State comes to the rescue the better.

Greenville has every cause to feel proud of the committee of representative business men who went to Raleigh in the interest of the training school for Eastern North Carolina. The personnel of the delegation and their earnestness in the matter in hand was freely commented upon by those with whom they came in contact. Greenville does not suffer by sending out such specimens of her manhood.

The Reflector has seen more of the present legislature and observed more of its workings than ever of any former like body. This experience has convinced us more than ever of the correctness of Representative Laughlin's position that there are too many lawyers sent to the legislature. Not that we have anything against lawyers, they are all right in their place. Some are needed in the legislature to properly balance it, yet with so many there the impression is created that not a few of them are working solely for the purpose of getting laws on the statute books that will make larger business for them when they get back home.

We were present in the legislature Thursday when the vote on the second reading of the railroad regulation bill was taken and carried by a vote of 83 to 28. This bill provides for a two cent rate of passenger fare on railroads earning $1,550 per mile, two and a half cents on $1,900 per mile, and three cents on less than $1,000 per mile. Notwithstanding the large majority voting in favor of the bill at that rate, it was noticeable that many who so voted did not favor it, but voted for it in order to impress their constituents that they were carrying out the party platform. In fact one member stated on the floor in explaining his vote that he did not like the bill but was going to vote for it, as he, like many others on the floor occupying the same position, felt sure it would never get through the senate in its present shape. This struck us as being both a very peculiar position to take and admission to make.

Race Riot is on.

Roanoke, Va. Feb. 14.—A report reaches here tonight that a race riot is in progress at a railroad construction camp, near Naaxton, Va., about 15 miles west of Roanoke, and that three or four negroes have been killed. A number of armed men from a Roanoke detective agency have been hurried to the scene of the disturbance. The trouble arose this morning over the discharge of some workman by a foreman and it is said that shooting has continued throughout the day.

It's a pleasure to tell our readers about a Cough Cure like Dr. Dr. Shoop's. For years Dr. Shoop has fought against the use of opium, chloroform or other unsafe ingredients commonly found in cough remedies. Dr. Shoop, it seems has welcomed the Pure Food Drug Law recently enacted, for he has worked along similar lines for many years. For nearly 20 years Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure containers have had a warning printed on them against opium and other narcotic poisons. He has made it possible for mothers to protect their children by simply insisting on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Sold by Brown's Drug Store.

Two Dyspeptics

If you are too fat it is because your food turns to fat instead of muscle—strength. If you are too lean the fat producing foods that you eat are not properly digested and assimilated.

Lean, thin, stringy people do not have enough Pepsin in the stomach, while fat people have too much Pepsin and not enough Pancreatine.

Kodol

Dyspepsia Cure

contains all the digestive juices that are found in a healthy stomach, and in exactly those proportions necessary to enable the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all foods that may be eaten. Kodol is not only a perfect digestant, but it is a reconstructive, tissue building tonic as well. Kodol cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Palpitation of the Heart and Constipation. You will like it.

Digests What You Eat

Rests the stomach, rebuilds the tissues and gives firm flesh.

Small bottle holds 2 1/2 ounces as much as the trial, or 50 cent size.

Prepared at the Laboratory of E.C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, U.S.A.

Indigestion

Stomach troubles but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had. For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and shallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.

DOG POINTED A LION.

All Game Looked Alike to This Plucky Little Fox Terrier.

The following incident is perfectly true and absolutely unique:

As a member of a colonial mounted corps, the British South Africa police of Mashonaland, Rhodesia, South Africa, it fell to my lot in April, 1903, to enumerate for official statistics the white residents of Rusapi district, which is 180 miles southeast of Salisbury, the capital, and sixty-four miles west of Umtali, near the Portuguese border. It was upon my return journey to the main camp that the following dog incident occurred:

On the 15th day of April about 4 p. m. I reached an outlying farmhouse close to the railway and in the vicinity of very suggestive looking hills. As I knew the owner, I decided to outspan there for the night. My horse having been sent to water with a native boy, the farmer and I entered the house. In a few minutes a Mashona herd boy dashed in unceremoniously, crying: "Baas! Baas! A lion is down near the cattle!" After questioning the boy, who was much excited, we set off, accompanied by a fox terrier, and upon arriving where the cattle were grazing we at once found his majesty's spoor (track), which we followed until lost on the hard ground.

After searching the most likely places we gave up hope of finding him and, turning about, headed for home. After crossing a vlei (open grass land) we entered a thick bush and proceeded a short distance. Then I missed the dog and, looking back, descried him pointing in the orthodox style, the hair on his back fiercely bristling and body as rigid as a statue. Retracing my footsteps and looking over the bushes where he was, imagine my complete surprise to behold a magnificent lion, full length, with face toward me, barely fifteen paces off. At sight of me he gazed softly, and then I shouted, "There he is!" But by the time my friend had run up and I had recovered from my surprise the lion was bounding off, much to the chagrin of my friend. The bush was thick, and we had to fire at random, and he got clear away.

Needless to say a few choice epithets were slung at me by the other fellow, but it all happened very quickly, and I was totally unprepared for such a close view. Moving around behind the bushes, we found the skin and entrails of a sheep, which had been devoured, bearing out the statement that the lion will not eat the intestines of his prey. All this time the dog was jumping around and at last started off on the trail, and we had a hard job to get him back. The evening was getting dark, and we had no wish to meet the lion among the bush in the dark. After reaching home the farmer placed some strychnine on a piece of meat and placed it on the veldt, but our visitor did not return that night.

It is not often a dog has the opportunity to point such royal game.

Talking about dogs, I remember seeing an Irish terrier rout out a hedgehog, and there ensued a terrific onslaught, ending in the death of the spiny one and leaving Boxer, the terrier, full of quills, which I plucked, much to his discomfort.—Forest and Stream.

No Infallible Success Rules.

Power to see the future has a certain place in business, an exceedingly humble one, however. It is employed professionally by some ladies and gentlemen at an average price of about a dollar a sitting. They can see things afar off, but not the landlord who is coming up the stairs to throw them out or the policeman who is coming around the corner to run them in. Prescience and clairvoyance have no place in the equipment of men who are able to make a living in less hazardous and persecuted callings, says Will Payne in Everybody's. There are plenty of infallible rules for success. Some men who have succeeded are rather fond of laying them down for the guidance of the young, but nobody, least of all their authors, ever infallibly succeeded by them.

Cuneiform Writing.

On the old Babylonian and Persian monuments there were wedge shaped characters, or arrow headed or nail headed characters, as they were sometimes called, which constituted what was known as cuneiform writing. After the reign of Alexander the Great this writing became obsolete. The Persian cuneiform writing contains sixty letters and the Assyrian 600 to 700 characters, partly alphabetic. The most celebrated inscription in cuneiform writing is that in the ancient city of Behistan, Persia, cut on the face of a rock 1,700 feet high and recording part of the history of Darius.—Argonaut.

Bureaus.

It is interesting to learn from one authority that the name bureau was derived from the days when tables were the only writing desks. These tables were covered with a thick woolen cloth called "bure," and from this beginning the name has clung to the modern glorified piece of furniture. It was not until the reign of Louis XIV. that either writing-tables or dressing tables reached their height in beauty of design and comfort. Strictly speaking, a bureau is a desk, or what we call a secretary, from which the term bureau, or department, is derived in a broader sense. The article of bedroom furniture commonly called a bureau nowadays is really an improved dressing table combined with a chest of drawers.

Algol, the Mystery of the Skies.

Algol, "the variable star of the constellation of Perseus," is regarded among astronomers as the greatest mystery of the heavens. Its light usually remains constant and uniform for a period of from forty-eight to sixty hours. It then commences to gradually fade from view and in less than four hours diminishes to an insignificant point of light. After remaining in a state of semiobscuration for a period of time, varying from fifteen to thirty minutes, it again regains its former brilliancy. Astronomers believe that some large dead and dark world revolves between us and Algol, but this is the disputed point, a mystery which will in all probability never be satisfactorily explained.

A Candid Confession.

Father of the Bridegroom—Before cementing this close relationship I think it but right to tell you that I once had a little unpleasantness which involved the loss of my liberty for a considerable period. Both my daughters are, I am sorry to say, rather flighty, my dear wife is suffering from kleptomania, and my son was mixed up in a little forgery affair. Won't that make any difference?

Father of the Bride—Not the slightest. From the fact that I am quite in favor of our alliance you may judge how unimportant my family.—Berlin Journal.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucus surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they have offered One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
