

CAUSED CLASH IN A CHURCH.

Stories About Sanford White Brought Out by Shooting Results in Objection to His Work

Trinity Episcopal Church at Roslyn, L. I., in which Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay worshiped, lost last night the Rev. Isaac Peck its rector for 16 years. Mr. Peck resigned and the vestrymen, who a little while ago declared loudly that they were "solid" for the minister, considered it wise not to discuss his going. Mr. Peck was at his mother-in-law's funeral when his letter of resignation was read and accepted.

It was last summer that Roslyn folk first discovered that Trinity's dove of peace was out of its coop; that all was not well between Mr. Peck and Mrs. Mackay. In a few days they learned that discord had been born of objections made by the rector to certain designs made by the late Sanford White for a new $40,000 church, a gift of Mrs. Mackay to the parish in memory of her mother, the late Mrs. William Alexander Duer.

Soon after Mrs. Mackay came to live at Roslyn she became prominent in the affairs of Trinity. With her wealth she was enabled to meet its needs as no other parishioner could. A year and a half ago she gladdened the congregation with the announcement that she intended to give $40,000 for a new church building and $25,000 to replace the weather-beaten parish house. When she said that she had engaged Stanford White to be the architect of the building everybody was sure that Roslyn would have two structures of which her people could boast.

Until June last all went smoothly in the planning for the new church. Mrs. Mackay and the rector were apparently in accord. Then came the Madison Square Garden shooting, with its aftermath of sensational charges against White. Coincident with these disclosures it became known that Mr. Peck had objected to White's plans. Perhaps he had objected to them before the shooting, but Roslyn ever since has wondered why he never heard of it until the architect had been killed.

After the discord between Mrs. Mackay and the minister was first discussed the Rev. H. O. Hutton, rector of the Church of the Nativity, at Mineola, visited Mrs. Mackay. It was reported that she introduced him to friends as "Trinity's new rector." Mr. Hutton denied that then and wrote to Mr. Peck that there was no ground for anybody's saying that he was to be his successor. Trinity's vestrymen said Mr. Peck was going to stay at Roslyn and that they would stand by him to the last ditch. Mr. Peck would not say anything last night about his resignation. Nor would Mrs. Mackay.—New York World.

Prices Will Never Be Lower.

First thing you know prices for real estate around Greenville will be going up in leaps and bounds. A man who can buy a lot at a certain price now, and sees it worth double the money a few years hence, will be very sorry that he did not buy. Sam White is yet holding his property at reasonable prices, but if you keep holding off until a few more houses go up on it, the new railroad gets in full operation, and the training school for teachers in located, then see what you can buy a lot at.

A Texas Method That Would Put Divorce Courts Out of Business.

Lamar county furnishes a case of marriage after probation that is unique and suggestive.

A widower farmer desiring a wife was introduced to a widow with children temporarily abiding in a charity institution. Both were favorably impressed on first acquaintance but the lady had a saving sense of prudence and suggested that she keep house for the farmer for a week and at the end of that time each could more intelligently determine the grave question of a union for life. Accordingly, she went, with her children and was duly installed as housekeeper.

The experiment was eminently satisfactory to both parties and the end of the week they were married.

The example is not altogether practical of emulation, and perhaps it will shock the sentimental and the romantic, but it contains the wise suggestion that folk desiring to become husband and wife should be sure of knowing each other in their common clothes and under workaday conditions. Parlor manners on the part of the lady and picnic gallantry on the part of the gentleman are not conclusive indexes of character, nor is the yum-yum ecstasy of infatuation sufficient evidence of compatibility.

If the man may not put the woman to a practical test in housekeeping, he may at least find occasion to observe her everyday temperament and her household accomplishments. If the lady may not test the man's disposition to hand over his pay check on Saturday nights she may learn whether he is decent to his sister or his mother and whether his church assessment equals his bar bill.

Keeping company nowadays runs too much to bon-bons and embossed stationery. Of course, there is abundant opportunity to get acquainted after the engagement, but it is before the avowal that the pair ought to put each other through the practical paces.

It would save many a heart-ache, though it might play the dickens with the business of the divorce lawyers.—Fort Worth Record.

RUNAWAY VIRGINIA COUPLE.

Come to Greenville and Get Married.

Greenville was made the "Gretna Green" for a couple of lovers from across the border in Virginia Saturday. The evening train brought in quite a nice looking young man and young lady who took a carriage at the station and drove to Hotel Macon. Not wishing to lose any time the young man hunted up Register of Deeds F. Williams and went with him to the court house for the necessary license.

When the license was complete it disclosed the identity of the parties as Frederick Moore and M. Blanche Lumpkin, both of Petersburg. Rev. J. E. Ayscue, pastor of the Memorial Baptist church, was sent for, and married the couple in the hotel parlor, a few of the guests being present as witnesses. We did not learn why the young people run away to get married. They left on the north bound train Sunday morning, presumably to return to Petersburg.

All Red Men are earnestly requested to be at the lodge room to-night at 8:30 o'clock.

"The Clansman's" Triumph.

In the second year of its triumphal progress "The Clansman" comes to the Masonic Temple opera house on Feb. 25, 1907. This is an event that is being eagerly awaited by hundreds of our citizens. "The Clansman" has now definitely established itself as the classic of the Reconstruction period. That terrible era in which the New South was born is pictured with marvelous fidelity. Its hero is a young Ku Klux who organizes the Klan in the State of South Carolina and smashes the carpetbag-negro government. With the beauty of its Southern scenes, the romance and pathos of its love story, the laughable comedy of its darkies, and above all the splendid courage and chivalry of its principal characters, "The Clansman" entertains, thrills, pleases and instructs as does no other play of this generation.

STATESVILLE SOCIAL EVENT.

Complimentary to Miss Mary Higgs. Statesville, N. C., Feb. 23 Wednesday evening the home to Mayor and Mrs. J. C. Steele was the scene of one of the most enjoyable social functions of the season, when Miss Elizabeth Steele entertained thirty members of the Pleasure Club at progressive games, in honor of her guest, Miss Mary Higgs, of Greenville. A number of games were played, among which were the old favorites, domino and trail. The ladies' prize for the evening, a beautiful piece of cut glass, was won by Miss Mary Carlisle, who presented it to the guest of honor. Mr. D. J. Craig won the gentleman's prize, a handsome burnt leather case containing a number of coat hangers.

The Steele home was decorated for the occasion and the color scheme, pink and white, was shown by numerous white and pink carnations. After the games a course of refreshments consisting of cream and cake, coffee and almonds etc., was served.

The affair was a very pleasant one in every particular. Miss Higgs is a charming young woman who has won the friendship of all who had the pleasure of meeting her. Miss Steele more than retained her reputation as a model hostess.—Raleigh News & Observer.

Be on Time.

Bear in mind that the curtain will rise on "The Clansman" at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night, at which time all holders of tickets should be in their seats, as no one can be shown to their seats while an act is in progress.

It tried to snow a little early Sunday morning, but soon turned to rain.

We hope this two hours late schedule of the evening train is not going to keep up.

CARD FROM PROF. RAGSDALE

Expresses Appreciation of What Has Been Done.

Editor Reflector:

I know I do, and I am sure Governor Jarvis does, appreciate the kind expression your paper had of us in Friday's issue. As Chairman of the Committee of 80 from Greenville and Pitt county, I have probably had the best opportunity of any man in town to observe what has been done in winning the "Teachers' Training School" for the East. I desire to say that but for the work of the "men behind" the guns we carried never would have won. I desire to acknowledge my appreciation of the support that has been given by every man both in and out of Greenville in this magnificent fight and to say to these men that the committee has not gone into winter quarters but is doing business at the same old stand. A recruiting officer will be on hand every day to enlist volunteers for the battle royal which is yet to come and in which Pitt county is to win even greater honors than have already come to her. To one and to all I would offer a word of cheer and say that we will not cease our efforts until there shall be established in fact a training school in Eastern Carolina (in other words in Pitt county) that shall give every woman an opportunity to fit and prepare herself well to teach the thousands of boys and girls that are and ought to be in the schools of this great section of our beloved State.

W. H. Ragsdale, Chairman of Com. of 80.

We are not given to boasting but we are proud of the farmer boys of this vicinity. They are, with rare exceptions, a healthy, intelligent and happy class of young men. We feel like taking our hat clear off when we meet them upon the streets, and no class is more welcome to our office. Too many boys leave the farm where they would have made substantial and good citizens, and go the city where only one in a thousand succeed in life's battle. There are farmers who fairly drive their boys away. There is no excuse for this. The farmer boy is entitled to his vacations, to several relaxations, his visits to the city, good books, magazines and his home paper. To the observing one it is plain to be seen that the old farm is the best place in the world for the average young man and never fails to bring a happier and more useful life than the city. Young men, you who till the soil and earn your bread by the sweat of your brow, we are proud of you; our latchstring is always out to you and will always have a friend in this paper. Come and see us and give us the news from your neighborhood.—Gastonia Gazette.

CURIOSITY HUNTING.

Some Instances of Finds of Much Value in Unlikely Places.

Some years ago in Yorkshire a man went to a farm for a day's shooting with the farmer. In the morning as they were about to start a pointer dog was unkenneled to accompany them. The sporting friend noticed that attached to the dog's collar was apparently a brass ring, which the farmer explained his servant had plowed up the day before and tied to the collar. When the ring was removed the friend pronounced it to be gold, and he offered to take it into town and get it valued. The farmer assented, but he said he would rather have some silver spoons than money. These the jeweler readily agreed to give, and he afterward sold the ring for £30. The next time the ring changed hands it brought £350, and it is now in the British museum.

It may be said that this is quite an exceptional case, says a writer in Chambers' Journal on curiosity hunting, and a man might live a hundred years and never get such a chance. But how many people ever make the attempt?

It is certainly easier to frequent curiosity shops in town, but you must know something about everything worth buying. I remember once being in a well known jeweler's shop, and while I was looking at some old rings and trinkets my eye caught sight of a ring which had in it a stone with a lion cut on it and above the lion a single star. I knew it as a Roman gem, and it was the constellation Leo. When I asked the price the dealer hesitated, and, looking hard at me, he asked me if it was a Roman gem. I replied that was what I wanted to know from him. He tried all ways to get me to confess I knew about such things, and when I presently put down the ring and was going out he told me he wanted 30 shillings for it as it was, but if it was a Roman gem he wanted more. I took advantage of his offer and bought the ring.

It is always advisable to turn over the loose stones you sometimes see exposed in the window of a small jeweler's shop, generally lying in a saucer. I got in that way a head which was appearing out of a bath. The stone was a yellow carnelian, but just where the neck was there was an accidental streak of brilliant red in the stone representing blood very faithfully. It proved to be a Roman gem and is now, I believe, in the Ashmolean museum. Antique gems are not commonly met with even abroad, and this way of picking them up in England is worth trying when you are hunting up curiosities.

He Probably Guessed It.

"No, I don't want it cut, and I don't want it trimmed," snarled the shaggy haired young man, seating himself in the chair and glaring savagely at the barber, "and I'm not a football player or a pugilist, and I haven't taken any rowing to have it cut. Perhaps that will save you the trouble of asking questions. All I want is a shave."

"Yes, sir," the barber worked in silence for ten minutes.

"I have a brother," he remarked at last, "that's got a head shape just like yours. He has to wear his hair the same way."

Those expecting the senate to stand by the house in the railroad rate matter have been disappointed, while those expecting the senate to go contrary to what the house had done have got what they were looking for. The house passed a bill for a two cent passenger fare, while the senate passed one for a two-and-a-half cent fare. Just what will be the outcome of this is not easy to predict. One thing is sure: The time for adjournment of the legislature is drawing near, and unless the two branches are quick to get together on a rate measure the session will end with nothing done in that direction.

HEIRLOOMS.

Colonial and Revolutionary Relics Collected for the Centennial Exposition.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 23.—The patriotic associations of the country have taken the deepest interest in the Jamestown exposition and the hall of history will be a post-graduate institute for students of American history. The archives of the original thirteen colonies, the private collections from the homes, historical societies and associations and museums, have been searched for exhibits in this department, which will bring clearly to the mind of every observer the salient features of our nation's history, the pivotal events of the several eras; the factors which combining germinated the seed planted at Jamestown, until it became a colonial grove which has developed into a mighty forest of commonwealths.

The Jamestown exposition will be more historical than any previous exposition and as an educational factor along this and many other lines it will be unsurpassed. From the Virginia State library will come the portraits of Virginia's governors and many old documents and manuscripts; from the Jamestown Island collection will come the silver service once used in the church and from every section of the State will come colonial heirlooms and war relics of many kinds. In the North Carolina exhibit will be the valuable collection of the Guilford Battleground Company. In the Connecticut display will be an exhibit of colonial clocks, the Bishop Seabury collection of historical pictures and the Guilford antiquities the latter comprising the rarest pieces of furniture in America, a thousand-leg table, a Hepplewhite sofa, Chippendale chairs and tables, etc. Massachusetts will contribute a fine historical exhibit of portraits, engravings, lace samplers, silver and jewelry, books, manuscripts, autographs, furniture and china. Georgia, Pennsylvania and Maryland will each send a valuable collection of treasured heirlooms. Each of the original colonies will contribute largely to this collection but it will not be confined to this territory by any means for from nearly every State will come contributions to this most interesting exhibit.

Among the special historical exhibits will be the great wooden eagle which, as a figurehead, graced the bow of Commodore Perry's flagship, the Niagra. John Smith rock upon which the head of the colonist was laid when rescued by Pocahontas, the anchor of the Merrimac which was lost during the engagement with the Monitor and which was but recently recovered; the Liberty Bell; a tree from which Daniel Boone once shot a bear; old cannon captured at Yorktown and thousands of other relics and historic articles.

The collection for this exhibit are being made by the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Colonial Dames, the Society for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, the Daughters of the Confederacy, the Society of Colonial Wars, the Sons of the American Revolution and the various historical societies of the several States.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucus surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they have offered One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. PANACEA MINERAL WATER CURES.

Read one among a hundreds of such testimonials. "I have suffered with NERVOUS Dyspepsia for past 10 years and have received more beneficial and lasting results from the use of PANACEA MINERAL WATER than from any other remedy of the many I have had prescribed for me. It gives me great pleasure to testify to its marvelous results in my own case and many others I have personally observed. Mrs. Martha P. Taylor, Newport News, Va. Send orders to Geo. S. Two Dyspeptics

If you are too fat it is because your food turns to fat instead of muscle—strength. If you are too lean the fat producing foods that you eat are not properly digested and assimilated.

Lean, thin, stringy people do not have enough Pepsin in the stomach, while fat people have too much Pepsin and not enough Pancreatine.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

contains all the digestive juices that are found in a healthy stomach, and in exactly those proportions necessary to enable the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all foods that may be eaten. Kodol is not only a perfect digestant, but it is a reconstructive, tissue building tonic as well. Kodol cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Palpitation of the Heart and Constipation. You will like it.

Digests What You Eat

Rests the stomach, rebuilds the tissues and gives firm flesh.

Small bottle holds 25¢ worth as much as the trial, or 50 cent size.

Prepared at the Laboratory of E. H. Wills & Co., Chicago, U.S.A.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had. For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.

STORIES OF DR. HOLMES.

A Young Woman Who Didn't Like His Literary Taste.

The story is recalled of a young Virginia country girl dining in Boston some years ago, in the days when Dr. Holmes went to dinners. Seated next to her was a homely little old gentleman whose name she did not catch. He began to talk with her and asked her how she passed her time in the country.

"Oh, we read, my father and I," she said.

"And what do you read?" asked the little man.

"Well, the 'Autocrat of the Breakfast Table' for one thing," she answered.

"I should think you would not care to read that more than once," remarked the little old man, with a sign of disappointment in his tones.

"My father and I may not be judges of literature," said Miss Virginia airily and with a faint accent of scorn, "but when we get to the end of the 'Autocrat' we generally turn back to the beginning and read it over again."

The little old man smiled at this and was disposed to be friendly, but Miss Virginia was so displeased with his tone concerning the "Autocrat" that she met him with chilly indifference.

As soon as the guests went into the drawing room her hostess whispered reproachfully to her:

"You didn't seem to find Dr. Holmes as interesting as I hoped."

"Dr. Holmes!" shrieked Miss Virginia. There was a tableau and an explanation.

Another story of Holmes' wit is told. One day old Dr. Peabody was to meet him at a certain place.

The venerable professor rode in a carriage. When he got there he was met by Holmes, who had walked. Near by was a statue of Eurydice. And Holmes said:

"Ah, you ride, I see!"

"Capital, capital!" cried Peabody.

That night he went back home and said to his wife:

"Holmes got off a good joke today."

His wife asked him what it was.

"Why, I was to meet him down at the statue of Eurydice, and when I arrived he said quite happily, 'Oh, you came in a carriage!'"

And then the genial professor wondered why his wife didn't laugh.

Themistocles.

Themistocles, the hero of Salamis, was sent into banishment by the practice of ostracism. This was a purely Athenian device to prevent any citizen becoming too great. When any man acquired such prominence as to be unsafe to the state, a number of citizens demanded a vote, which was taken by writing on shells the name of the too prominent citizen. If a majority voted against him, he was sent into exile not because he had done anything, but for fear he might do something. He stayed away from five to ten years, then returned and resumed his standing as a citizen without loss of property or reputation. Themistocles was ostracized and went into exile, where he was soon accused of treasonable correspondence with the Persians. He was about to be arrested, but fled to Persia. He gained great influence at the Persian court and projected an invasion of Greece, but died, it is supposed, by poison, before his plans could be realized.

Michael Angelo.

Michael Angelo was equally great as painter, sculptor and architect. In order to paint figures properly he devoted twelve years to the study of anatomy alone. His monument to Pope Julius II. was on so grand a scale that the church of St. Peter in Rome was altered with a view to affording a suitable place for its reception. The tomb was afterward modified in plan and placed in another church. His "Last Judgment" required seven years to execute and was finished when the artist was nearly sixty-eight. A few weeks before his death the aged artist was met one day in the street walking through the snow with great difficulty. When asked where he was going, he replied, "To school to try and learn something."

He Satisfied Her.

Time, 11 p. m.
"They tell me your gait was esteemed one of the finest in the regiment."
"You flatter me, Miss Snodgrass."
"No; Lieutenant Wagstaff said you marched magnificently."
"The lieutenant may not be a good judge."
"I fancy he is. To my mind there is nothing that makes a man more presentable and really attractive than a graceful walk. My curiosity is greatly aroused. May I ask a favor of you?"
"Certainly."
"Then I would like to see you walk." And she handed him his hat.—London Mail.

A BASEBALL STORY.

The Pictures of a Pitcher That Were on Exhibition.

Dad Clark, once a pitcher of the New York club, who was perhaps the most unconscious humorist the game has ever known, could be made to believe the tallest story ever told, provided the teller kept a serious face, and this sublime faith of Clark's caused him to be "stung" on many occasions.

One of the most notable cases wherein Dad got "stung" happened one morning when that genial soul and prince of good fellows, Parke Wilson, the New York catcher at that time, came hurriedly into the clubhouse just when the fellows were preparing to don their baseball clothes for morning practice and excitedly exclaimed:

"Say, men, what do you think? As I came to the park this morning I walked by Siegel, Cooper & Co.'s place and saw a big crowd gathered about their largest show window."

"Getting curious myself, I went up to see what the trouble was, and what do you imagine caused the street to become blockaded? Why, nothing more than this—they have the entire window filled with canned goods, and on each can is the picture of Dad Clark!" shouted Parke.

"What!" shrieked Dad as he began pulling on his street clothes. "Me pieter on cans in Siegel-Cooper's window? Now, you fat heads, see whose de popular guy of dis punk outfit! I'm de little boy who's fillin' up dis park every day, an' I'm goin' ter strike for a t'ousand dollar raise in me salary right away. Me pieter on cans in Siegel-Cooper's window! If de folks at home could only see me now!"

All during this spiel Dad was hustling on his duds, and the moment he got the last garment fastened he tore out of the clubhouse and raced for dear life toward Siegel & Cooper's big store.

He arrived there all right, and rushing up to the window, he saw the cans, just as Parke Wilson said they could be found, and on the front of each can was the picture of a great fat red lobster.—Luth Herald.

A CLEVER PICKPOCKET.

He Was a Russian and Alarmed and Surprised a Grand Duke.

One day at the dinner table of a Russian grand duke a French ambassador extolled the dexterity of his fellow countrymen, as exemplified, among other things, in the cleverness of the Paris pickpockets.

"I should not wonder if the St. Petersburg pickpockets could give them a start," replied the grand duke. And, seeing an incredulous smile play around the features of the ambassador, he added, "Will you bet that before we rise from the table your watch or some other valuable will not be taken from your person?"

The ambassador accepted the wager for the fun of the thing, and the grand duke telephoned to the chief constable, asking him to send at once the cleverest pickpocket he could lay his hands on. The latter was to receive the full value of every article he managed to "annex" and be allowed to go unpunished.

The man came and was put into livery and told to wait at the table along with the other servants. The grand duke told him to give him a sign as soon as he had accomplished the trick. But he had to wait a long time, for the ambassador, whose watch was the article to be experimented upon, always kept on the alert and even held his hand to his job when conversing with the most distinguished guests at the table. At last the grand duke received the preconcerted signal. He at once requested the ambassador to tell him the time. The latter triumphantly put his hand to his pocket and drew forth a potato instead of his watch! There was a general burst of laughter, in which the ambassador himself joined, though with a wry face, for he was unmistakably annoyed. To conceal his feelings he would take a pinch of snuff—his snuffbox was gone! Then he missed the seal ring from his finger and lastly the gold toothpick which he always carried about with him in a little case. Amid the hilarity of the guests the sham lackey was requested to restore the articles, but the grand duke's merriment was changed into alarm and surprise when the thief produced two watches, two rings, two snuffboxes, etc. His imperial highness made the discovery that he himself had been robbed at the same time.—Neue Blatt.
