

SENATOR HOLT GOT ENOUGH.

It is not often that one dose of office is enough for a man. Usually when he tastes it once he smacks his lips and cries for more. Not so with State Senator J. A. Holt, of Guilford county. One dose seem to have cured him, as the following letter, he wrote to his home paper, the Greensboro Record, indicates:

In a humorous way you ask me what I am a candidate for. I am going to answer seriously. I am a candidate for restoration to the position of first lieutenant in the little home I left at Oak Ridge sixty days ago. When I get back into that little Eden I expect an angel to stand at the gate with a flaming sword forever forbidding me to pass its portals again into the political field beyond.

I accepted the call of my party and my countrymen and I have tried as best I could to act for the people. My votes and speeches so far as they might affect matters of public welfare have invariably been cast for those inherent principles of human liberty and civic righteousness for which the Democratic party stands. The result of the work of the legislature is before the people for their approval or disapproval. On all public questions my vote is on record.

I thank the people for their suffrages and expressions of approval, as well as for the confidence shown in me.

Respectfully,
J. Allen Holt.

Mice That Were Tipplers.

A correspondent writes: In Quetta some years ago I had occasion to go early one morning into a miscellaneous store kept by a Parsi, who also kept a liquor bar. As I entered the shop I noticed a mouse reeling across the floor, and I remarked to the shop-keeper that the mouse seemed to be hurt, but his reply astonished me.

He said that mouse and several others that infested his shop were confirmed drunkards. During the night they regularly drank all the liquor which remained in the glasses which the soldiers had used in the evenings for their drinks.

Meat Burned.

On last Friday morning W. J. Braxton of near Reedy Branch church, had the misfortune to lose a great quantity of meat in his smoke house, in fact all that he had put up for the year. Not only his, but also the meat of one of his tenants was burned. Fortunately the house was saved by strenuous efforts. It is supposed that some of the meat fell into the smoke pit in which there was some fire prepared to smoke the hanging bacon, that it caught in a blaze and soon wrought much havoc before it was discovered and the fire extinguished.—Ayden Baptist.

Big Crops.

Who says small-grain raising is a thing of the past with us? A colored man, tenant on the Burwell Canady place, sowed five pecks of wheat last season and reaped a crop of 165 bushels therefrom. Over in Pitt county Mr. William Cox on one acre of land sowed five bushels of oats and raised enough grain to feed four mules, one horse and one steer for one year. That shows what can be done, if our people try to do it.—Kinston Free Press.

A Smart Drummer.

A Seaboard train for Hamlet pulled into Monroe last Thursday morning at 5:15 o'clock, backed, went forward and was then shunted to a side track, the air brakes whistled, then all became quiet. Daylight was a long time coming and with it leaden clouds and the whirr of sleet. Eight o'clock came and the train was still there. Then the passengers noticed a bright-faced traveling man—a young, alert fellow, of course—get up with no signs of weariness and go out to the telegraph office. He came back in a few moments, picked up his sample case and hurried up town through the sleet. He had learned that the train was held by a freight wreck at Brown's creek and that it would not leave until 10 o'clock. Fifteen minutes before the train pulled out, he came back with a smile on his face that indicated a happy drummer. He had sold a big bill of goods and had stopped in at a hotel for breakfast. At Polkton the red flag was out, indicating another hold-up. He went into the telegraph office, learned that there would be a wait of an hour, then hurried back to the car for his grip and put out for the leading store in the town. Pretty soon he came back with another page of his order book filled. Here was a drummer, who, instead of promenading up and down the car, fuming and fretting at the delay, turned the delay to profit. He saw his chance to secure business for his house and he got it. We did not learn his name, nor the house he represents. It was sufficient for us to watch his movements and to conclude that there is a young fellow who is going to make his mark in life.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Strid Times at Louisburg.

Last week a man stopped up to us and said he would pay us every cent he owed us if he lived till Saturday night. We presume the man died. Another man said he would pay us in a day or two as sure as we were born. Query: Did the man lie or were we never born? Another said he would settle as sure as shooting. We presume shooting is very uncertain. Another man said he hoped to go to the devil if he did not pay us within three days. Haven't seen him since; suppose that he has gone but trust he did hope in vain. Quite a number said they would see us tomorrow. They must have been stricken blind, or tomorrow has not come. One man told us six months ago that he would pay as soon as he got some money. The man would not lie, of course, he has not got a cent since.—Franklin Times.

G. L. to Put on Another Train.

On April 10th, the Atlantic Coast Line will substitute for the Kinston-Tarboro passenger train service, which now reaches Kinston at 12:20 and leaves at 3:25, a Kinston-Weldon service. Capt. Bill Wooten's train, which runs between Kinston and Tarboro, will be put on the Plymouth branch and run from Parmele to Plymouth, making connection with the new Kinston-Weldon train. The official schedule has not been announced yet, but it is presumed that the new train will leave Weldon about the same hour in the morning that the A. C. L. passenger leaves Kinston for Weldon.—Kinston Free Press.

PITT COUNTY TEACHERS' MEETING.

A Great Occasion Last Saturday. Reported for Reflector.

Saturday morning, March 9th 1907, a most interesting meeting of the Pitt County Teachers' Association was held in the Greenville graded school building. A large crowd was present, and each one enjoyed the interesting and instructive program.

The meeting was opened with "Come, Thou Almighty King," after which Rev. J. E. Ayscue read a Scripture lesson and led in prayer. A few announcements and encouraging remarks were made by Prof. Ragsdale. He congratulated the association on the large attendance.

Miss Peace read an excellent paper on "How to teach reading in the fourth grade." Her thoughts and suggestions were most helpful, not only to fourth grade teachers but to all present.

Dr. J. B. Carlyle, of Wake Forest college, addressed the association. All were delighted to see the famous orator among us. He was introduced by Prof. J. A. McArthur, the president, in a pleasing and appropriate manner. Dr. Carlyle's words were full of wisdom and beauty. His eyes sparkled mischievously now and then as he sprinkled his address with bits of humor and wit that would make a Stoic turn his earliness into laughter. His words remain with us as a sweet memory and as a strong inspiration to attempt nobler things, and to expect greater results.

At the conclusion of the address, Prof. McArthur said, "I told you so," and the storm of applause that followed corroborated the statement that the "told you so" had come true.

At one o'clock the meeting adjourned, after which a short session of the Woman's Betterment Association was held.

At the next meeting, the second Saturday in April, the Woman's Betterment Association is to furnish a program. Prizes will then be awarded to the successful contestants for the Grimes and Aarthur medals. No doubt this, the last meeting for the present school year, will be another great occasion.

"Dorcas" Pleases.

A fair sized audience greeted the Ethel Morton Company in the comic opera "Dorcas" in Masonic temple opera house, Wednesday night, though the attendance was not as large as the company merited. It was really a pleasing performance from beginning to end and the audience enjoyed it. There are some excellent voices in the cast and they sang with brilliancy. The "chess duet," sung as the game was played, was especially good. Manager Courtney expressed his intention of bringing the company here next season, and if he does he can be assured of a large house.

FRENCH SHIP BLOWS UP.

Powder Magazine on Board the Iena Explodes With Effect

Toulon, March 12.—A terrible disaster occurred here this evening. The powder magazines on board the French battleship Iena blew up at 35 minutes past one and as a result Capt. Adigard, the commander of the battleship, Capt. Vertiez, commander-in-chief of staff of the Mediterranean squadron, and from 70 to 80 blue jackets are dead. While Rear Admiral Maceron and hundreds of other men are suffering from injuries, some of them horrible in their extent. Naval circles are aghast, and the public is stunned by the appalling catastrophe coming so soon after the loss of the French submarine boat Lutin, in which 16 men met death.

The Power of a Voice.

When you live in hotels a great deal as have I more or less this summer, you realize the power of the human voice to soothe, or quiet the opposite.

O, what a lot of harsh, disagreeable voices there are in this world—women's voices too! The pity of it!

The other morning I was on the beach at the bathing hour when I heard some one call "Tommy!" in discordant tones that set my nerves a-tingle with their acid sharpness. The child so called frowned and answered back in a peevish way.

I turned, expecting to see some uncouth nursemaid, and to my surprise I beheld the extremely elegant mother of the boy.

Now, that woman's husband is always irritable and peevish, just like the boy, and who shall say her voice is not responsible for it?

One of the worst tempered men I know married a woman with a sweet, low voice and an even disposition. He is now completely changed. You know, you simply can't quarrel all by yourself when everything is peaceful and soothing all peaceful and soothing all around you. It seems to me if more women realized this there would be more happy homes.—Kate Cludk.

Leading up to it.

"Beg pardon, sir," said the man in the suit of faded black, "but are you carrying all the life insurance you want?"

"Yes, sir," answered the man at the desk, "I am."

"Could I interest you in a morocco-bound edition of the works of William Makepiece Thackeray?"

"You could not."

"Don't you need a germ proof filter at your house?"

"I do not."

"Would you invest in a good second hand typewriter if you could get it cheap?"

"I have no use for a typewriter."

"Just so. Would an offer to supply you with first-class imported Havana cigars at $10 a hundred appeal to you?"

"Not a cent's worth."

"How would a proposition to sell you a Century Dictionary, slightly shelf-worn, for only $40 strike you?"

"It wouldn't come within forty miles of hitting me."

"That being the case," said the caller, "would you be willing to buy a 10 cent box of shoe polish just to get rid of me?"

"Great Scott! Yes."

"Thanks. Good day."—Chicago Tribune.

Women Investors.

There are 10,000 women who own stock in the Pennsylvania Railroad. This is the surprising statement made by Vice-President Thayer. About half, or, to be more exact, 47 per cent, of all the shareholders of the world's greatest railroad are women.

While it is not to be presumed that the army of the fair sex owns half the 6,000,000 shares of the company, their portion must still be very large.

That they might, if they so desire, exert a powerful influence in the management of the railroad's affairs cannot be doubted. But they are not shareholders for speculative reasons. They bought Pennsylvania stock for investment purposes only, and they are wisely content to let the men manage its affairs.

What this great aggregation of women investors want is a sure dividend. Many of them own only a few shares, but the income must be in many cases a real factor in life.

THURSDAY, MAR, 14th, 1907

Wednesday's News and Observer was the tames: one since Christmas. Guess the boys were getting back their sleep after chasing the legislature for two months.

Every now and then we read that some town or city has gone dry. That is the way the temperance sentiment keeps growing and it will be no great while before there are none but dry towns. The most remarkable thing about it is the inability of the whiskey sellers themselves to see their finish is coming.

The Greenville Reflector is hereby notified the The Chronicle has taken due note the legislature has elected to establish a training school in the east and it hopes that the school will be located in Greenville.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Thanks very much, brother. We thought your good judgment would bring you around to our way of thinking.

Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, has challenged Dr. Kilgo, president of Trinity college, for a joint debate to determine whether Senator Tillman represents the best people and the best sentiment of the South, Dr. Kilgo having been quoted in a recent New York speech that he (Tillman) did not. If the challenge is accepted there will be something interesting doing.

It is always gratifying to find colored people upholding law and honor. There are many law-abiding citizens among the colored race, but the criminal element so often overshadows the better element, and the latter so often keep silent if they do not actually sympathize with the criminals of their race, that the best element of the colored people do not often get the credit they deserve. These remarks are called forth by the action of negroes at Fayetteville, where a negro violator of law shot and killed two policemen and dangerously wounded a third. At a meeting of colored people the following resolution was adopted:

"We, the undersigned colored citizens of Fayetteville, wish to hereby express our hearty disapproval of lawlessness and condemn those of our people who against our best advice and with detriment to the best welfare of all, persist in violating the law. We commend and thank the good white people of our city for the way in which general order was preserved under the intense excitement incident to the sad occasion. We also offer our assistance at any time in preserving order and continuing the peace and happiness that has always characterized our city and people. We speak for all well thinking people of our race and we know whereof we speak."—Statesville Landmark.

His Way of Pairing. A number of years ago at a small town in Maine an important local election was to take place, and there was strong rivalry between the Republicans and Democrats. Old Hiram Morse, the blacksmith, was a strong Democrat, but many of the farmers were Republicans. On the morning of the election a farmer came to have his horse shod. The blacksmith said to him: "We're both busy. You're a Republican, and I'm a Democrat. Let's pair off. We'll neither of us vote, and it will amount to the same as if both went to the polls." This was agreed upon. After election it was found out that Morse had paired off with five Republican farmers.

STAT OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, LUCAS COUNTY.

The Height of the Craze in the Time of Louis XIV.

The oldest buttons at present in the museums and among the collections are the gold buttons discovered at Mycenae at the time of the excavations undertaken by Dr. Schliemann and also those found in the tomb of Childeric I. The latter were exhibited at the Louvre in the Musee des Souverains. They are made of gold and of colored glass, imitating garnet. Buttons detached from copes and religious garments of the middle ages and of the renaissance have also been discovered.

But the richest things of the kind beyond a doubt are those that were worn by Louis XIV. M. Maze-Sencier in the "Register of Diamonds and Presents to the King," at present preserved in the ministry of foreign affairs, gives an official account of the buttons of that pompous sovereign. It is as follows:

"Feb. 3, 1685.—Montarcy presented to the king eighty diamond buttons, valued at 180,030 livres.

"May 7, 1685.—Made and delivered by Sieur Bosc six diamond buttons, 30,000 livres.

"July 26, 1685.—Handed over by Montarcy to the Marquis de Seignelay for the king seventy-five diamond buttons, 786,703 livres.

"Aug. 1, 1685.—Two diamond buttons, 67,803 livres.

"Aug. 11, 1685.—Three diamond buttons, 60,500 livres.

"Dec. 20, 1685.—Four diamond buttons, 83,775 livres."

Another item in the same year: "July 26, 1685.—Furnished by Montarcy for the king's vest, forty-eight gold buttons, each set with a diamond, and ninety-six clasps, forty-eight of which were composed of five diamonds each and forty-eight of one diamond each, 185,123 livres.

"Also 384 clasps for the doublet of the king, 162 of which were formed of five diamonds each and 162 of one diamond each, 1,006,345 livres.

"In addition there were seven ornamental clasps of three diamonds each, 201,270 livres.

"Sundry presents, thirty-three ornamental clasps, 574,266 livres."

That foots up a total of about 3,000,000 livres for the buttons of the "great king" for the single year 1685. The preceding year Louis XIV. received a lot of buttons that were valued at 1,071,000 livres. In these enumerations there is no mention of the diamonds for the shoes, the garters, the cuffs and the hats of the monarch.

We are obliged to admit, with our coats and overcoats garnished with miserable little cloth and bone affairs, we cut a poor figure in the fancy button business compared to the dukes of the days of Louis XIV. —Paris Figaro.

are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart. Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

Digests what you eat, takes the strain off of the heart, and contributes nourishment, strength and health to every organ of the body. Cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the Stomach and Digestive Tract, Nervous Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach.

After eating, my food would distress me by making my heart palpitate and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—coaxes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasantly delightful. Gently though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure. If it's painful period with women, same cause. If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet stops it in 30 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unusual blood pressure. Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply common sense. We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

THE HOODOO IN INDIA.

Obsession in the Orient is Due to a Peculiar Religious Rite.

Why are obsessions so numerous in India? In India the notion among the Hindoos is that when a man has died it is necessary to cause his release from earthly bonds by an offering called pinda, made in his name in the sacred city of Gya. So long as this is not done the soul of the dead man remains tied to earth and cannot rise high. It so happens that a Hindoo spirit finds that he has become a ghost—that is to say, an earth bound soul. He very naturally thinks that his misfortune is due to the fact that no pinda had been offered in his name, and he makes gigantic efforts to see that it is done. But he finds that he cannot communicate his wishes to his relatives, friends or fellows who are yet on earth. Such souls make gigantic efforts to be able to hold communication with men who are not dead. Sometimes they succeed. And then they explain what they want. If they get hold of a friend, it is all right. They at once ask the latter to release them. But this is not generally possible. So what they do is this: They possess a woman or a man and make themselves disagreeable in as many ways as they can. Ghost doctors are summoned. They open communication with the spirit, who refuses to leave his medium until it is promised to him that a pinda will be offered in his name in Gya. When he has been able to extort this promise he leaves the body he had possessed, says the Hindoo Spiritual Magazine.

This explains why cases of true obsession are so frequent in Hindoo, India. Ninety-nine out of a hundred in India have seen cases of obsession.

A ghost makes itself very disagreeable. The exorcist is summoned. He opens communication with the spirit—in short, the spirit speaks through the party he has obsessed, and a conversation like the following ensues:

The Exorcist (to the ghost)—You must leave the body of your victim.
The Ghost—I am willing to go if you promise me one thing—namely, if you will offer a pinda in Gya in my name.

The promise is made, and the ghost leaves his victim. That is the way such cases are treated generally. This is the reason why cases of obsession are so numerous in India. Indeed, they are so frequent in this country that there are many rojas (exorcists) who live by curing obsessed men and women. What is more, in India there is a hospital for obsessed people, a unique institution the like of which is not to be seen in any other part of the world. This hospital is a temple in the holy place called Hari Hareshwar, in Kocond, in south India. There possessed men and women are carried, and they are sent back cured.—Exchange.

His Editorial.

It was the practice of a certain London editor some years ago to write his leading article or articles at home the night before publication. The rest of the week he did nothing. One night his articles had not come to hand at the office. Ten o'clock came, 11, 12, and still no sign of an article. There was commotion in the office, and at last a messenger was sent to the editor's house. He found him with a glass of brandy and water before him and newspapers scattered about. There was no article written. "What do you want?" asked the editor. "The article for tomorrow." "Didn't I send it?" "No—at least it has not come to the office." "Give me the Times." The Times was found and handed to him, and with unsteady fingers he cut out one of its leading articles. This he stuck upon a sheet of paper and then, taking his pen, wrote at the top, "What does the Times mean by this?" In that form and with that introduction it appeared next morning as the editor's leading article.

Brought Him Alive.

A farmer hired a green Irishman. One of the first tasks assigned the new hired hand was to bring into the cow lot dead or alive a refractory bull that had broken into the cornfield. The Irishman was given a shotgun and told to shoot the bull if the animal showed fight. Jauntily he went about his task. The farmer stood at a safe distance to watch developments. As soon as the bull saw the Irishman enter the cornfield he bolted at him, bellowing madly. The Irishman blazed away with the shotgun and emptied the load in the beast's breast. On rushed the bull, madder than ever. The Irishman took to his heels, with the bull after him.

"What are you doing?" screamed the farmer at the fleeing Irishman. "I'm bringing him alive, sir!" shouted the Irishman between breaths.—Washington Herald.

HOW WE WALK.

The chief muscles concerned in walking are those in the calf and back of the leg, which, by pulling up the heel, also pull up the bones of the foot connected with it, and then the whole body, the weight of which is passed on through the bones of the leg. When walking the trunk is thrown forward so that it would fall down prostrate were not the right foot planted in time to support it. The calf muscles are helped in this action by those on the front of the trunk and legs, which contract and pull the body forward, and, the trunk slanting forward when the heel is raised by the calf muscles, the whole body will be raised and pushed forward and upward. This advancement of each leg is effected partly by muscular action, the muscles used being (1) those on the front of the thigh, bending it forward on the pelvis; (2) the hamstring muscles, which slightly bend the leg on the thigh; (3) the muscles on the front of the leg, which raise the front of the foot and toes, preventing the latter, in swinging forward, from hitching in the ground.

When one foot has reached the ground the action of the other has not ceased. There is another point in walking. The body is constantly supported and balanced on each leg alternately and therefore on only one at once; hence there must be some means for throwing the center of gravity over the line of support formed by the bones of each leg, as it supports the weight of the body. This is done in various ways, and hence the difference in the walk of different people. There may be slight rotation at the hip joint, bringing the center of gravity of the body over the feet of this side. This "rocking" motion of the trunk and thigh is accompanied by a movement of the trunk and leg over the foot placed on the ground and is accompanied by a compensatory movement of the hip. The latter is done by alternatingly from one side to the other, or as its center of gravity, the center alternately over one or the other leg, and the correct position of the bones is altered with the varying position of the weight.—London

THE HONEST APOLOGY.

Never Be Ashamed to Say That You Are Sorry.

Don't be afraid or ashamed to say that you are sorry.

It may be hard, but remember that it takes two to make a quarrel, and the chances are that you were as much in the wrong as the other person.

Of course it would be better not to quarrel in the first place, but after all we are only human, and sometimes our temper gets the best of us.

But the false pride that keeps us from acknowledging ourselves in the wrong is even more deplorable than the unruly tongue that gets us into trouble in the first place.

A quarrel that does not amount to much in the first place can grow into a perfect mountain of trouble through brooding.

Don't wait for the other person to express regret. Come right out like a man or woman and say: "I'm sorry for my share of the offense. Let us forgive and forget."

Never part from any one with hard feelings between you.

Remember that "many go forth in the morning who never come back at night." Don't run the risk of having to go through life with an agony of remorse in your heart.

And remember also that every quarrel leaves a scar. If you would prevent those scars from being ugly wounds, do not hesitate to do your share of "making up."

Sweethearts will quarrel over needless trifles as much for the pleasure of reconciliation as anything else, but it is a foolish pastime and gets them into the habit of dispute.

If you are a wife, never let your husband go away in the morning with an unforgiven quarrel between you. It will rankle in your heart all day, and nothing will seem right or sweet. It is twice as easy to express sorrow immediately after the quarrel as it will be if you wait a day.

It is usually a sulky person who finds it hardest to express contrition. The quick tempered person is as ready to make up as he was to take offense, but the sulky person, even though he may feel desperately sorry, cannot bring himself to say so, and the result is that he goes through a great deal of unnecessary suffering.

Don't be the kind that won't acknowledge the blame. Say you are sorry, and say it sincerely. There is no disgrace in an honest avowal of having been in the wrong.—St. Louis Republic.

Weight Dead and Alive.

It is a very popular idea that a person when dead weighs heavier than when living. One reason that a dead body is thought to be heavier than a living one is probably this: In carrying a living person we have the center of gravity adapted by the person carried to suit the convenience of the carrier and maintained in a position as far as possible to fall within the base of his body. Again, the elasticity of the structure of the body, especially the cartilages, though not in reality diminishing the weight, gives an appearance of lightness, as we see in the beautiful movements of the stag, and this would seem to corroborate the notion that living creatures are lighter than dead ones. It has also been asserted that the breath makes the living body lighter than the dead. But we need hardly say that a man when dead weighs no more than when alive.

Too Small to Be Seen.

Not long after his introduction into national life as a member of the house Tim Sullivan of New York conceived a violent dislike for the man then at the head of one of the executive departments. It was observed that whenever Sullivan, much to his disgust, was obliged to consult the official in question he invariably left in anything but the pleasantest of humors. One morning Sullivan had been cooling his heels in the secretary's anteroom when the private secretary entered, saying, "I am awfully sorry, Mr. Sullivan, but you can't see the secretary this morning." Sullivan, by this time in a white heat because of his long wait, dramatically exclaimed: "Merciful heaven! Is he so small as all that?"

The Face of the Clock.

When the first clock, resembling those in use today, was made by Henry Vick in 1370 for Charles V. of France, surnamed the Wise, the king found fault with the Roman numeral IV. He said it should be IIII. Vick ventured to suggest that the king was mistaken, whereupon Charles roared: "I am never wrong! Take the clock away and correct the mistake at once on pain of my displeasure." The figure was altered to IIII and has so remained ever since.
