Conductors and Roads Expected to Agree.

Special to Reflector.

Chicago, March 25.---Reports concerning the grievances of the conductors employed on the western roads are somewhat exaggerated according to men supposed to know of the difficulties between the roads and the conductors, and it is regarded as sure that all differences of opinion regarding wages and time will be amicably adjusted today when the officials will be informed of the result of voting of the men.

Y., March 25.---Representatives of boards of supervisors and highway officials throughout the State have assembled in this city today, and will hold conferences until the 9th of April, to consider the "good roads" maps which have been prepared by the State Engineer's department for ratification by the legislature this session under the $50,000 bond act. UNIQUE DEPARTMENT STORE.

Handsome Establishment at Broad and Lombard Streets Recently Opened.

What is considered a unique venture in the business world of Philadelphia is a department store conducted entirely by colored people, at the corner of Broad and Lombard streets, which will have its "opening" tomorrow.

There is an evidence of progression and good taste about the establishment that not alone appeals to the eye, but leads one to believe that the best lines in the market have been secured to draw the elusive dollar from its patrons. The counters and shelves have been tastefully and prettily decorated and competent salespeople have been secured to wait on customers.

The establishment is known as the Samuel Brown Company, and is incorporated for $20,000, most of the stock having been subscribed for by colored people. Samuel Brown is the president and general manager and Robert S. Jackson is vice-president and assistant general manager. Philadelphia Telegraph.

Samuel Brown referred to in the above is a young colored man who was raised in Greenville and left here several years ago for the North. That he has succeeded so well is much to his credit.

The South Finding New Riches.

Will cotton paper make the South rich? The manufacture of paper from the fiber of the cotton stalk has passed the experimental stage. It is asserted that all grades of paper, from the best forms of linen to the lowest grade, can be manufactured from cotton stalks. In addition to this, a variety of by-products, such as alcohol, nitrogen, material for gun cotton and smokeless powder, also can be secured in paying quantities. It is estimated that in an area of land producing a bale of cotton at least one ton of stalk can be gathered. Upon this basis from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 tons of raw material could be secured for the production of paper, which would thereby largely increase the value of the southern cotton crop, nearly $10,000,000. A company has been organized under the laws of Maine with a capital of $3,000,000 for the purpose of manufacturing pulp and paper from cotton stalks.

A Man of Few Words.

As every one knows, the great Von Moltke never wasted words and despised anything that approached garrulity in others. German army officers are fond of telling an anecdote illustrative of this peculiarity:

Von Moltke was leaving Berlin on a railway journey. Just before the train pulled out of the station a captain of hussars entered the general's compartment and, recognizing him, saluted with "Guten morgen, excellenz!"

Two hours later the train slowed up at a way station. The captain rose, saluted and with another "Guten morgen, excellenz!" left the train.

Turning to one of his companions, Von Moltke said, with an expression of the greatest disgust "Intolerable gas bag!"--Harper's Weekly.

A Raleigh dispatch says that J. W. Bailey is to retire from the editorship of the Biblical Recorder to take up the practice of law. As good an editor as Mr. Bailey ought not to give up such a calling for the law.

Sunday's issue of the Raleigh News and Observer was a biennial legislative member. It contained portraits and sketches of the members of the recent General Assembly and printed the important bills passed. It is a paper worth preserving for handy reference.

"A Cold or a Cough nearly always produces constipation—the water all runs to the eyes, nose and throat instead of passing out of the system through the liver and kidneys. For the want of moisture the bowels become dry and hard." Nearly all other cough cures are constipating, especially those containing Opium. PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause in congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing so usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to cure it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets—takes blood pressure away from pain centers effect is charming, pleasantly delightful. Gentle cough safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.
If you have a headache, it's blood pressure. If it's painful periods with women, same cause. If you are restless, nervous, it's blood pressure—blood pressure. That surely is a remedy, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets take up in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute a natural blood pressure.
Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. In congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

MOUNT PELATTO.

How the Dazzling Peak of Pumice Stone is Mined.

Coming from Stromboli, as we approach Liparia we see a mountain so dazzling white that the eyes cannot rest upon it—Mount Pelatto, the mountain of pumice stone. It stands out against a background of dark volcanic mass under an intense blue sky. Below it lies the beautiful emerald green Eolian sea.

The pumice mines are worked with as little expense as possible. There are no galleries, no stays or pillars. There is no woodwork of any kind. The men who mine the stone are paid in proportion to the quality of the stone mined. Therefore their only care is to produce fine, light stone. When a man finds a vein of fine stone he follows the lead whether it is safe or not. If the roof caves in, so much the worse for him. The work is dangerous, but it pays relatively well. The stone is carried on the backs of the women and children of the miners to the workshops of Canueto. As soon as it reaches the shops it is sorted and put together according to quality. The lighter, finer stone is called "foam." The second choice is known as "first white" and the third choice as "second white," etc.

The pieces are packed just as they come from the mine, excepting one very careful treatment—all the sharp edges are filed down, because they cause breakage, and breakage lowers the mercantile value of the stone. The files used are very large, and the filing is done by women. As soon as a piece is filed it is wrapped separately in paper and then placed in the tun to be shipped. Pieces of inferior quality are not wrapped in paper. They are placed in the tuns in fine shavings. It is claimed that the filing is healthful work, but this is hard to believe. In the room where the women wield the files the air is a dense, powdery white. The fine pumice dust (silicate of alumina) is held in the air, and in such an atmosphere every act of respiration must load the mucous linings of all the air passages. The women who file the stone breathe the air from morning till night. Even a very brief inhalation causes an exceedingly disagreeable sensation of desiccation. So it is presumable that the industry is less harmful to the exploiters of the mines than to the women who pass their lives inhaling silicate of alumina. It has been said that the work brings in "relatively good pay." The expert filer's pay is 15 cents a day, but to earn that much a woman must work very fast. The pay is "relatively good" because labor is scarce in that country—scarce and ill paid.—Exchange.

Painters' Colic.

The painters and decorators were at work in the dining room, and the good housewife was anxiously sputtering about, giving orders as to how this and that should be done. One of the "artists" was telling about his attack of painters' colic when she said: "I should think you would get sick! Why don't you keep your mouth closed while you work?" "Huh, missis," replied the man, "I'd like to know what kind o' painter you'd make. You'd be dead with colic inside of a year. Your mouth is open all the while." The rest of the job was finished in silence.—New York Press.

A Puzzle.

"Twas a glorious night, and two lovers sat upon the cliffside, with the eternal ocean flowing at their feet with a calmness and placidity that was almost appalling. They were looking at the stars above, and he turned to his girl and said tenderly:

"My darling, I don't understand what you can see in me to love me so."

She replied, "That's what everybody says."

The silence was greater than ever.—London Telegraph.

A Witty Retort.

A motorist who was touring in Ireland one day met a native on the road who was driving a donkey and cart. Thinking he would have a little fun at his expense, the motorist began:

"What is the difference, Pat, between your turnout and mine?"

The native looked at the questioner a minute or so and then replied:

"Not a great deal. The donkey is in the shafts in the one and on the seat in the other."

His Retort.

The famous John Randolph of Roanoke, as he was called in his day, once met, while walking on a narrow pavement, a political opponent of his. The man pushed rudely against Mr. Randolph with his elbow, saying as he did so, "I never make wa—"

Lord Denman and the Hatter.

This odd story is told of the late Lord Denman, who, on being reminded by a west end hatter that a small account was "overdue," visited the shop and gave the manager a legal reply to the request for payment. "You state," he said solemnly as he stood over him, shaking his finger at him as though warning him to be careful, "that this account is overdue. Remember that a bill of exchange or bill of acceptance may become overdue, but a tradesman's account never. A gentleman pays when he thinks he will or when he has the money. But, to show that no ill feeling exists, I will pay the account and take another hat."

Your Nerve History.

You are unconsciously writing a history in your nerves, and this history you cannot wipe out at will, as you may wipe out a scrawl on a blackboard. It endures, and it reproduces itself. The thoughts of your mind, the purposes and impulses of your heart, your passions, your affections, your inspirations and your beliefs stamp themselves indelibly on your nervous system. They cut channels of habit. They react on your soul continually for good or evil. They shape your character, and your character is what you are, what you will be always.—Philip S. Mason, D. D., in "The Form of Life."
