

United States Appraiser to Sell Many Seized Articles.

Special to Reflector:
New York, March 28.—The United States Appraisers department is making ready for one of the biggest sales it has ever held, which will not be concluded until the last article is disposed of and goes out of the warehouses, which have been accumulating in them for years. The sale will begin on the 2nd of April, and is expected to take a long time, as there are many things in separate packages to dispose of. A novelty of the sale will be that there will be seats for women. They have been cordially invited, and the Government officials will make it pleasant for them in every way, so that a large number of buyers will be attracted, it is expected. One of the most curious offerings is "Consul", Bostock's trained chimpanzee, which in life contributed to the safety of royalty on the other side, and to the entertainment of the "4000 on this side. Prior to his death three years ago "Consul" was much in demand at social affairs where his elegance of manners coupled with correct dress for all occasions, won him entrance into the most exclusive circles. At the zenith of his popularity the animal carried a life insurance policy of $20,000. His value at date of examination is stated at $10. The variety of the articles is truly bewildering, and embraces everything from ladies' waring apparel to cement.

Andrew Carnegie Guest of The U. S. Military Telegraph Corps.

Special to Reflector:
New York, March 28.—Andrew Carnegie is one of the guests tonight at the reunion and dinner at the Manhattan hotel of the United States military telegraph corps. It was at Carnegie's suggestion that at the outbreak of the civil war that four operators were sent from the Pennsylvania lines to Washington, and the corps, from this small beginning, was enlarged to about twelve hundred men. David H. Batts, one of the original four, suggested this special reunion and dinner. He and Albert Chandler and Charles A. Tinker were cipher operators in the war department, and none, it is said, were closer than they in confidential relations to President Lincoln. They were known as the "Sacred Three". The corps now number less than two hundred, about sixty of whom promised to be present at the dinner tonight.

Meeting of Railroad Conductors and Brotherhood Trainmen.

Special to Reflector:
Buffalo, N. Y. March 28.—Delegates from East and West, representing the organizations of the order of Railway Conductors and the brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, meet here today, and have a large attendance. They are expected to ratify the action taken at the union meeting of the same orders March 27th, when the grand chiefs of the orders were empowered to summon a meeting of their general chairman of the different systems, wherever needed, and a joint advisory board to be obtained that will act on the complaints of other organizations. The union does not affect the integrity of the present separate orders.

THE GROCER'S HEAVEN.

Last evening I was talking
With a grocer aged and grey
When he told me of a dream he had—
I think 'twas Christmas Day.
While snoozing in his office
This vision came to view,
For he saw an angel enter,
Dressed in garments white and new.
Said the angel, "I'm from Heaven,
The Lord just sent me down
To bring you up to glory,
And put on your crown.
"You've been a friend to every one,
And worked hard night and day;
You've supported many thousands,
And from few received your pay.
"So we want you up in glory,
For you have labored hard,
And the good Lord is preparing
Your eternal just reward."
Then the angel and the grocer
Started up to glory's gate,
But when passing close to Hades,
The angel murmured, "Wait—
"I've a place I wish to show you;
It's the hottest place in Hell,
Where the ones who never paid you
In torment forever dwell."
And behold the grocer saw there
His old patrons by the score,
And grabbing up a chair and fan,
He wished for nothing more.
He desired to sit and watch them,
As they'd sizzle singe and burn;
And his eyes would rest on debtors,
Whichever way they'd turn.
Said the angel, "Come on, grocer,
There are pearly gates to see!"
But the grocer only muttered
"This is heaven enough for me."

Strong Combines Formed by Dry Goods Jobbers.

Special to Reflector:
New York, March, 28.—A new and what promises to be an important development, in the dry goods jobbing business has come to the front in the formation of the Empire Dry Goods Company, along lines suggested, more or less remotely, by the C'flin Company and its string of allied stores. This company is primarily a combination and the outgrowth of opportunities and needs that appealed especially to several of the larger stores for retail located in Boston, Buffalo, Rochester, and Akron, Ohio.

Czar's Attack on Finland to Commerce.

Special to Reflector:
London, March, 28.—This is the day that the Czar according to a St. Petersburg dispatch, ordered Grand Duke Nicholas Nicolaievitch to occupy Finland, as commander of the military and naval forces of the empire: The report has seemed incredible, but preparations has been made by the Grand Duke.

Railroad Can Issue Stock.

Special to Reflector:
St Paul, Minn., March 28.—The Supreme court of this State today returned a decision that the Great Northern railroad has the right to issue $60,000,000 stock.

Bank Fails.

Special to Reflector:
New York, March 28.—The Carolina Banking Company made an assignment today, G. R. Adams, a lawyer, being named as assignee.

National Bank Statement.

Under a call from the comptroller of currency the National Bank of Greenville makes a statement of the standing of its business March 26th, which will be found published in this paper. This statement shows a considerable increase of business over the one made two months ago, and speaks well for the growth and management of the institution. It is making a fine record for a bank not quite a year old and is a credit to the community.

A STRANGE STORY.

A Sneak Bill That was Gotten Through the Legislature to keep a Lawyer Out of the Penitentiary.

A remarkable story comes to us from an unexceptional source in a town in Western North Carolina, nameless here forever, and the personate dramatis shall be likewise nameless, though we are in possession of all the names, which could be furnished upon application of any doubter of the story, which is absolutely true, and runs in this wise:

In the town in question is a lawyer who has been in practice for twenty-five or thirty years, and of whom during that time it has been notorious that he has been pilfering small articles from stores—books, including law books of the State in the supreme court library and money, when opportunity presented itself. About a year ago some one selected four or five old charges of stealing, most of them dating back ten or fifteen years and from these the solicitor of the district selected a presentment for the stealing of a pocket book ten or more years ago when the lawyer was in a drug store and a physician saw the theft and told the druggist of it. But we are getting too fast. It is said that recently the merchants have been in the habit, when a clerk sees him coming, to have the clerk to make out bill against him for stolen articles, which as a rule he pays without question. The theft referred to was a felony, not barred by statute of limitations.

During the recent session of the legislature a bill was started in the senate and pushed through the legislature so quietly that even the member of the house from the country under consideration, though a lawyer, did not detect its character, which provided that larcenies of property of less than ten dollars in value should be misdemeanors and prosecutions for them barred in two years. Court is in session in that county now and on the 12th of this month a certified copy of the act was drawn on the judge and solicitor, to the surprise of both, when the case against the lawyer was called. The judge was asked to have an order made dismissing the bill against the defendant. This he refused to do but offered to impanel a jury and let the statute be argued before it in open court in the usual way. This was declined and the case continued until the next week to permit the leading counsel with a half dozen other lawyers for the defendant to be present. The leading counsel referred to is said to be the member of the house who saw the bill through that body, and is said to have been associated with the defendant in various cases in courts in west; while the senator who introduced the bill is supposed to be a gentleman who has practiced with the defendant in certain western counties.

These are the facts, and with them legitimate inferences. And isn't it a dainty dish to set before the king?—Charlotte Observer.

EASTER GOWNING.

No Hard and Fast Styles, says Mrs. Osborn.

The incongruity of turning Easter into a dress carnival has become as widely recognized as the absurdity of receiving callers indiscriminately on the first day of January, writes Mrs. Osborn, famous arbiter of styles, in the Delineator for April.

Easter gowning as a general observance, an annual outburst hard on the heels of religion, met its death at the hands of this fine decade of ours, in which breath is individuality, independence.

Now, while of itself interesting, the change in Easter customs is only a phase of conditions prove conclusively that woman as a sex is increasingly courageously in matters of dress.

Daily I see evidence of this gratifying development. There is no longer any hard and fast law as to styles for women, and the intelligent are aware of it, indeed are responsible for the new condition.

Let me illustrate: Extravagant dress is possible only to the comparatively few. The average woman is obliged to limit her wardrobe. Now there was a time when the average woman's conformity to the familiar would have made her select her few garments so as to be in keeping with the so-called fashionable. Her clothes were often extreme, and soon tied off.

Today it is very different. One frequently meets women who appear smartly dressed and who possess only one costume that may be strictly called "everyday." The smartness of these women is not induced by chance. Rather it is the result of intelligent planning. They realize that because they have only one dress, it must be strictly correct.

Corporation Commission Should Not Permit Such Mean Practices.

One of the little mean practices that are too often seen now in railroad circles was witnessed at Pembroke Saturday afternoon. The Seaboard, westbound, and the Atlantic Coast Line, southbound, due there at the same time were about the same minutes late. On this particular occasion the Atlantic Coast Line passed right in front of the nose of the Seaboard engine and kept going. There were from three to five passengers on the Seaboard train that wanted to go to points south of Pembroke. They were off the Seaboard train and within 50 to 75 yards of Atlantic Coast Line train when the latter pulled out. One of the passengers did catch on to the Pullman of the Coast Line. The others had to spend the night in Pembroke. The night before part of them had had to do the same thing. Do we wonder that it is sometimes so easy for a verdict to be obtained against a railroad?—Lumberton Robesonian.

Human Depravity.

It is hard to imagine why any man could be so depraved as to remove a child from the home of its parents, no matter what the judge. A man guilty of such a thing is on a level with the beasts of the field, and should be placed where he can do society no further harm.

If Harrison is guilty of such outrageous conduct and it seems the people of his section so believe, the twenty years in the penitentiary is a very proper verdict.—Wilson Times.

HOTEL CHARGES AT THE EXPOSITION.

The people of Norfolk and Portsmouth, or rather the people of all the coast towns and cities, should while holding meetings to remonstrate against high railroad rates to and from the Jamestown Exposition not neglect a much weightier thing. They say nothing about hotels and eating houses. Now the visitors from all over the country who go to the exposition will spend many times more money at hotels and lodging houses than they will in defraying railway expenses. We have hardly seen a word from anywhere on the coast except Newport News rebuking the high rates charged in the Norfolk hotels, and Newport News was merely exposing her rival's cupidity. The people of this section will pretty generally go to the exposition if expenses do not amount to more than they can stand. It will pay the persons who purpose entertaining guests to look into the question and place the charges at the smallest practicable to make a reasonable profit. It is to the interest of the citizens and especially of those engaged in promoting the celebration as managers, to obtain pledges from the hotel keepers and lodging house proprietors not to fix excessive charges. If the gouging plan is resorted to, as reported and believed, comparatively few persons will attend, and those who go will not stay very long. As the State of Virginia paid $200,000 towards the proper celebration of the ter-centennial the people of this State feel they have the right to expect the people of the lower cities and towns to curb the rapacity of those who cater to the needs of the visitors.—Danville Bee.

Greenville real estate is something worth while to watch. The man who contemplates owning some of it would show wisdom in not waiting to make the purchase. There is no likelihood that prices will be any lower.

Grover Cleveland has been a consistent advocate of tariff reform. But tariff reform could not be had without somebody losing some money and some community being hurt in a business way. In fact no great reform is ever had without loss to somebody. Any one who advocates reform and insists that it must come without injuring somebody in a business way is not in earnest.—Greensboro Telegram.

Surely it will hurt somebody, but the main point to consider in making a reform is the benefit to the many and not the harm to the few.

The Charlotte News quotes Mr. S. Wittkowsky as saying "there has been a shrinkage of $3,000,000 in the financial world in the last 30 days." If there has been an actual shrinkage of that much money, the wonder is where it has gone, but if only that much water has been squeezed out of stocks we fail to see that any harm has been done. Surely there is no less money in existence.

No wonder there is complaint about the inability of shippers to get freight through on time. The cause is cropping out here. We knew of course that a great deal of liquor was coming here from outside the State, but we had no idea the empty jugs were returned, but they are. The other day one man alone shipped back 1,115 empty jugs, all of them to one place, Danville.—Greensboro Record.

One distillery company in Kentucky turns out every seven days 2,208 barrels of sweet mash whiskey. The output for a year would be 26,400 barrels. The cost of all this to the manufacturer may be fairly estimated at $374,000 and they receive from the wholesalers a profit of from $1 to $2 per barrel. The government comes in for a nice little rake-off, but the fellow who has to pay it all, including transportation charges government and local license fees, salary of bar-keeper, and rent of building is the man before the bar, and for 6,400 barrels of booze he lets go of $24,761,673 and then goes home and beats his wife because sapper isn't ready.—Ex.

WAYS OF A MOLE.

The Manner of Eating and Burrowing of This Peculiar Animal.

"While fishing I noticed a very small mole hill," says a writer. "After a short time a quantity of earth was shoveled out, and so I quickly scraped away the loose earth and found the hole. I traced the tunnel until I noticed movements in the soil and caught sight of some black fur, which immediately began to disappear in a downward direction. I had some difficulty to dig it out, and when I at last caught it it gave me a series of scratches with its powerful fore paws, causing me to release it, when it ran along the ground, prodding the soil as it went in its endeavors to find a soft enough place to begin burrowing. I soon caught it again and imprisoned it in my bait can. It seemed to resent being handled and uttered a peculiar hissing noise. I carried it home, and placed a large box half full of earth at its disposal. The mole had a ravenous appetite. When given a piece of raw meat it would place its large fore paws on the flesh and tear off huge pieces with its teeth. In eating worms it would place one fore paw on each end of the worm, beginning to eat from the middle.

"Its senses seemed very acute, for when a dog came near to its box when it was on the top it would immediately burrow underneath at a great rate, and when I placed it in a tin and put my hand anywhere near it it usually came and smelled it directly, never attempting to bite. Even when handled it only tried to force away my hand with its fore paws. When the earth in its box was loose, it burrowed at a tremendous pace, forcing back the loose earth with its hind legs. When I packed the earth tightly down, it would run about the box, poking its long snout into the ground as it went until it found a soft enough place, when it would immediately start burrowing.

"Its eyes were very small, and it seemed only able to distinguish between light and dark. It disliked sunshine and never cared to come up of its own accord when the sun was out. Its front paws were possessed of tremendous strength, while its hind legs were comparatively weak. It seemed to be quite healthy as long as I had it, some three weeks or so, and it took a great deal of exercise, honeycombing the earth in its box with tunnels. I eventually let it go."—Chicago News.

Where Woman Is Boss.

Captain Tuckey was commissioned by the British government to explore the Kongo region in west Africa early in the nineteenth century. One of the discoveries made by the captain proves that a select few of the Kongo women had reached a stage beyond the utmost dreams of present day woman suffragists. The sovereignty of one tribe he found to be hereditary in the female line. Daughters of the mighty chief were allowed to choose their own husbands, over whom they became "most absolute mistresses and can even extend their prerogative to the selling of a refractory spouse to slavery." Little wonder, reflected the captain, that the honor of a royal alliance "is a matter of but little emulation among the gallants of the Kongoese court." As the chief had as many as fifty wives the demand for eligible partis for royal princesses was fairly steady.

A Graceful Getaway.

Mr. Makinbrakes, who had been urged to stay for luncheon, was trying to make a graceful getaway. "Awfully sorry," he said, "and ever so much obliged, but I couldn't think of it. It's a lot of bother to have people drop in on you unexpectedly and to feel that you've got to invite them to stay and eat with you—er—just to be polite, you know—I mean that it's always a lot of bother for me, of course, particularly when—when it happens to be somebody that you don't care for anyhow—speaking of myself, you understand—or perhaps I should say I don't mean myself in this particular case—well, anyhow, I have an engagement besides, or it would afford me great pleasure, I assure you, to—to—well, good afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Varney."—Chicago Tribune.

Circumlocution.

The tiresome preacher finally finished his almost interminable sermon. The congregation had slowly filed out, save one man, who lagged behind to speak with the pastor. "Do you know, minister," he said in a confidential tone, "that your sermon this morning reminded me more of a wheel than anything else that I could think of?" "A wheel!" said the startled divine. "How could it do that?" "Oh, merely that in a wheel the longer the spoke is the longer is the tire."—Harper's Weekly.

TOO LIFELIKE.

Curious Reason For Rejecting the "Portrait of a Doctor."

Concerning the prize, "Portrait of a Doctor," by Seymour Thomas, there is a very amusing story. Several artists had made paintings of the gentleman who is represented in this celebrated picture, but the family decided that none of them was "lifelike enough." After visiting the Thomas studio the gentleman's relatives commissioned this artist to essay the task.

The work went on well, and the picture was completed. Every one was delighted. All declared—friends, family and enemies—that it was a "living likeness."

One day, before the picture had been sent home, the wife of the doctor called with her sister-in-law. This woman had been suffering from nervous prostration and had come to spend several months with her brother for a rest.

Instantly on entering the studio she threw up her hands and exclaimed in a hysterical, horrified tone:

"Oh, my dear, my dear! How much like Robert that is! Oh, it is horrible! I couldn't stand it in the house a moment. Why, it looks just exactly like him, and I'd almost think him about to speak. Don't take it—it's uncanny!"

Abashed into silence, embarrassed beyond description, the wife and sister-in-law later left the studio.

"And what do you think," said Mr. Thomas, with a gentle smile. "A few days later I had a note from the wife asking me if I could not 'make the picture a little less like the doctor—a little less lifelike?' Did I do it? Well, I guess not! That was one of my best pieces of work, and I know that in trying to please everybody you are apt to be in the same predicament as the man with the donkey—in the end you'll lose the donkey and will have pleased nobody. Give me changeable sitters, but deliver me from the family."—Scrap Book.

No Contract.

Those who desired to secure Philander Hay's services as a wood sawyer were obliged to take him on his own terms. "I'll saw an' split all you got here an' tier it up for ye in good shape for $1.75 a day," said Mr. Hay after an inspection of the summer resident's shed yard.

"There are just three cords of wood to be sawed and split," said the summer resident briskly. "How much will you charge for the job?" "I don't do work that way." And Philander surveyed his victim with a relentless gaze.

"If I set out to saw an' split by the job, what with the wear an' tear on my saw an' hatchet an' the limiment that has to be put on my back nights, when you get it all reckoned out there wouldn't be any money in it, an' I wouldn't have had a minute to set down an' see how I was getting on either."—Youth's Companion.

Uncomfortable Shaving.

The traveler, who had just returned from abroad, sank back into his accustomed barber's chair with a sigh of relief. "This is the first time I've had the prospect of a comfortable shave for three months," he remarked. "They have improved in a good many things abroad," he continued, "but the barbers over on the other side still stick to those uncomfortable chairs of theirs in the most absurd way.

"I asked the man who shaved me in London, and nearly broke my neck at the same time, why they never used American chairs in the barber shops of London.

"I don't know, sir," he said, "except for the reason that they are made in America, sir."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

He Had an Opinion.

At the time of the ecclesiastical trial of Professor Woods of Andover Theological seminary for alleged heresy, a retired New Hampshire clergyman while making a journey by rail was absorbed in reading the details of this trial as reported in the Congregationalist. A sporty looking individual who sat beside him was absorbed in the pages of a different periodical.

"My friend," said the clergyman, "what do you think will be the result of the great contest that is now agitating the nation?"

"Think!" said the other. "I think that John L. Sullivan will knock the stuffing out of the presumptuous cuss in the first round!"

The Sirloin.

The term "sirloin" of beef is a corruption of "surlain," from the French word "surlonge," meaning over or upper portion of the loin; also because King James I., when dining at Houghton hall, in Lancashire, in one of his fits of humor said to an attendant, "Bring hither that sirloin, sirrah, for 'tis worthy of a more honorable post, being, as I may say, not surlain, but Sir Loin, the noblest joint of all."

A LIQUID COLD CURE AND LAXATIVE COUGH SYRUP

THE NEW IDEA

The Red Clover Blossom and the Honey Bee on Every Bottle.

"A Cold or a Cough nearly always produces constipation—the water all runs to the eyes, nose and throat instead of passing out of the system through the liver and kidneys. For the want of moisture the bowels become dry and hard." Nearly all other cough cures are constipating, especially those containing Opium. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar moves the bowels, contains no Opium.

KENNEDY'S LAXATIVE HONEY AND TAR

Relieves Colds by working them out of the system through a copious action of the bowels.

Relieves Coughs by cleansing and strengthening the mucous membranes of the throat, chest, lungs and bronchial tubes.

For Croup, Whooping Cough, La Grippe, Influenza, Bronchitis, and all Coughs, Colds, Lung and Bronchial affections no remedy is equal to Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. Children like it.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling force governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds, strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help. If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

GREENVILLE COTTON MARKET, REPORTED BY J. R. & J. G. MOYE, Middling 10

What Ailed the Speech.
At the close of the sessions in the trial of Walter B. Wilson, Jr. most of those who had gathered in the auditorium, remained up and down the room in his peevish, pompous way, scolding out portions of the speeches of Fox and Sheridan, but saying not a word about Burke's. Burke sensitive at this omission and anxious for some commendation from the great authority, could at last contain himself no longer and burst out:
"Doctor, didn't you like my speech?"
"No, Edmund," replied Dr. Parr, calmly eyeing his excited questioner. "Your speech was oppressed with metaphor, dislocated by parenthesis and debilitated by amplification!"

His Shaky Seat.
A small Canadian ventured into the room while his eldest sister was entertaining a masculine caller.
"Mr. Harris," the youth finally interrupted, "I wish you would take me with you some day."
"Take you with me!" echoed the caller. "Where do you want to go, Bobbie?"
"I heard Mr. Grant, next door, say you were on the water wagon and he guessed you'd soon fall off. I'd love to help you drive."—Canadian Courier.

Eloquent Silence.
There are silences of all sorts, as there is speech of all sorts. There are silences that set one's teeth on edge—it is always a relief to break them—and there are silences that are gentler, kinder, sweeter, more loving, more eloquent than any words and which it is always a wrench to interrupt.—Marion Crawford.

Not to Be Fooled.
"He wanted me to order a basket of champagne," declared indignant Mr. Nuritch.
"Well?"
"I may be ignorant, but I know that champagne comes in bottles."—Washington Herald.
