

Mansfield's Young Son A Dramatist.

Special to Reflector.

New York, March 30.—Although his oft-expressed wish to see a performance of one of the many classical plays presented by his father has been steadily opposed by his parents, eight-year old Gibbs Mansfield, only son of Richard and his wife, has written three acts of a five act drama entitled "The Adventures of Prince Marvel". The play is laid in the chivalric period when "Knighthood was in flower." Master Mansfield not only proposes to complete it, but with his father's consent to stage the production before he reaches his teens. Notwithstanding that the boy has been under the supervision of a governess and subject to severe discipline in a private school, he has managed to acquire technical qualities of playwriting and seems to have provided for plenty of costumes, fascinating scenery, bloodthirsty villain, and a noble hero, who rescues a princess in captivity. Mrs. Mansfield says Gibbs is not precocious, but has heard his father rehearse selections from Shakespeare preliminary to their production on the stage, and has always been writing without their being able to stop him.

Pittsburg Barbers Want More Pay.

The barbers desire to have the masters pay a uniform rate. It is said that some of the men are now receiving $13 a week while others are receiving $12 and they ask that they will receive $14 a week. They also want a percentage on all receipts over $22 after their wages have been paid. This last is the demand that is expected to meet with the opposition of the masters.

Paraguay's Exposition.

Special to Reflector.

New York, March 30.—Tomorrow is the day on which the exposition of Paraguay will open, the postponement from the earlier dates having been caused by the drought, which had had a very disastrous effect upon the country. The exhibits from this country are very creditable in quality and quantity, all parts of the United States having taken an interest in the undertaking. Especially has this country excelled in sending exhibits of gasoline and kerosene engines, hot-air engines for pumping water on cattle ranches which have been worked so that the farmers could see them in operation. Many cotton gins, flour-mills, starch-making machinery, fibre machinery, and machinery for making butter, cheese, the laboration of coffee, rice, peanuts, and breaking of palm nuts, and they are here in great quantity, and are exciting a lively interest among the agriculturalists. Much trade should result to the United States as a consequence of exhibiting in the far-off land.

DEADLY WORK OF GAS.

Aged Couple Found Dead in Their Philadelphia Home—Presumed to Have Been Accidental.

Philadelphia, March 29.—Lying side by side on a bed in their home here, Thos. Sherlow, 68 years old, and his wife Annie, 62 years old, were found dead this afternoon, asphyxiated by illuminating gas. A fox terrier lay dead beside them.

A deputy sheriff, who had gone to the house to serve a summons for debt, made the discovery. Judging from the fact that Friday's newspapers were still on the doorstep, the police are inclined to believe the couple have been dead since sometime Thursday night.

The stop cock of a gas jet in the kitchen was turned on and the house was filled with gas.

Sherlow had a good position and had no apparent reason for suicide, save the few debts which the deputy sheriff went to the house to collect. When last seen Thursday night both the old man and his wife seemed to be in good spirits and the policemen who investigated the asphyxiation was an accident.

The fact that the couple were fully dressed when found, however, and were stretched crosswise of the bed lends a touch of mystery to the case.

The article referred to was a paid advertisement and Mr. Fineman agreed to assume all responsibility for it before The Reflector would publish the same. The Reflector hereby disclaims any purpose to injure the gentlemen referred to in said article and desires that the entire responsibility therefor be placed upon Mr. Fineman who paid for the article just as any other advertisement is inserted in the paper.

The Useful Telephone.

A woman who entertains a good deal makes a serious complaint against the telephone. She charges it with having made New Yorkers the most unscrupulous people in the world about breaking an engagement. "It seems," she says, "as if they accepted every invitation provisionally, relying on the use of the phone to release them should any thing more desirable turn up at the last moment. In London or Paris, where phones are few, people have better manners in this respect. A dinner engagement once made is kept in spite of a slight indisposition or a change in the weather. A hostess has not the chagrin of having prepared for too many. I might think it a reflection on my dinners if all the women I know were not having the same experience. At least one guest is always sure to telephone at the last minute that he can't come. Teachers of various sorts tell me they are subjected to the same annoyance by their pupils, who find the phone a convenient means of escaping a lesson.

The Ladies Aid society of the Presbyterian church will meet with Mrs. Thomas Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

THE RADIANT CHRIST.

The new religion lies in being kind; Faith works for men where once it knelt to pray.

Faith knows but hope where once it knew despair.

Faith counts its gain where once it reckoned loss.

Ascending paths its patient feet have trod.

Man looks within and finds salvation there.

Release the suffering Savior from the cross.

And give the waiting world its radiant God!

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox in THE DELINEATOR for April.

THE JOYFUL SUNDAY.

By Newell Dwight Hillis, D. D.

Christmas is the day for childhood, but Easter Sunday is the day for the mature. No wonder Christ enveloped the grave in a golden cloud! What a procession of great ones marching toward the tomb! Gone all the heroes of the Victorian era in England! Gone all our Concord school of essayists and poets! Gone the leaders in the world of finance and invention! Gone our fathers and mothers and little children! But this Easter morn tells us that the all-loving and all-powerful hand of God has lifted the soul over that little rivulet named death, and set it down in that land where the day has dawned and the shadows fled away, where the wicked cease from troubling, where the weary are at rest. Christ found death the king of terrors. He left it the king of mysteries. He found the grave a black hole where the soul vanished into nothing. He left it a golden door where God and the soul met in the name of an eternal friendship. He found death described by the skeleton and the scythe; He left death an event so beautiful that earth's lilies are not sweet enough to garland a man's tomb. He found death with one color, black, and turned the black to gold; He found death with one song, a dirge, and transformed it into a symphony. What philosophers hoped, Christ knew. Speaking with authority, He said, "Let not your heart be troubled. In my Father's house are many mansions; I go to prepare a place for you." These words make soil rich indeed for the flowers of Easter, to wave on the day dedicated to the immortal hope—The Delineator for April.

What Charlotte would like to do--find Jones.

Some people act very much like they thought a man could do business indefinitely without money.

This between seasons of the year puts up a problem to the housekeepers as to what to get for the table.

So many people are looking at Greenville now because they realize this town will be doing things in the near future.

Charlotte has climbed up to be the biggest town in North Carolina. Its splendid newspapers have had much to do with getting it there.

They are telling it on J. B. Duke, the tobacco king, that he is courting again. And it is another widow, too. He ought to have had sufficient experience by now.

It will be easier now to get people to serve as registrars and judges of election, as the last legislature passed a law increasing the pay from $1 to $2 per day.

A million dollar fire is a big loss to a town. One that size visited South Boston, Va., Thursday, destroying the plant of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company and a large number of business houses.

Wellman, the Chicago North pole would-be explorer, has been heard from again. He is in Paris rigging up a balloon in which to conduct the voyage when he gets beyond the point where walking is not good.

When a town already has prohibition it takes a backward temperance step by establishing a dispensary. That is what Dunn did the other day in voting by a majority of ten to establish a dispensary in that town.

Mr. E. S. Simmons, the blind lawyer of Washington, died Friday evening of pneumonia. Mr. Simmons was a remarkable man, and though he was totally blind for the last twenty years of his life, he continued the practice of his profession and was a brilliant lawyer. He also took keen interest in public matters and stood in the front rank of those advocating the upbuilding of his town and State.

The Farmer's Union of Mississippi is said to have originated a plan to regulate the price of groceries and other supplies. The union proposes to send to its members bulletins giving the maximum price they should be charged for any commodity. These will be issued as often as changes in prices occur. It is planned to have the members keep the contents of these circulars secret, and to force the country merchants to cut off a considerable portion of what they have been charging, in the form of what the Farmer's Union calls "excess profits." Of course, the s... keepers are expected to submit with good grace to this plan... taking charge of their business... community interest... This... but the rankest form of socialism that has yet been sprung upon the country. If the plan could be successfully worked, which it cannot be, it might be called a scheme to get free rations. --Charlotte Chronicle.

A FAMILY AFFAIR.

It Was Nice to Have the Children of the House Help Out.

The Family Whist club had assembled at the home of one of its leading spirits on the upper west side when it was discovered that two members were absent, and therefore there were two hands short. The ladies were in a quandary till the hostess announced that her two children, Clarence, aged eleven, and Gwendoline, aged thirteen, had picked up a little knowledge of the game from watching their elders. She suggested that as it wouldn't do to call the game off after so many had taken the trouble to come, and as she could think of no other way to get two substitute hands, the two children would at least help to fill out the tables—that is, if every one was perfectly agreeable.

"Just the thing!" declared all the ladies in chorus. The hostess was urged to bring them in at once. Every one would be just delighted. Clarence and Gwendoline were duly summoned and introduced. They took their seats modestly, the ladies promised to assist them on knotty points, and the game commenced.

There were two prizes offered, and both were of considerable value. Every woman present made up her mind to have one of those prizes at any cost. The game was entered into with abandon, and no quarter was shown to any one. So far from needing any assistance Clarence and Gwendoline seemed to hold their own pretty well. In fact, they seemed so perfectly at home that when in the stress of excitement a member failed to adhere strictly to the rules Clarence would call attention to the error gravely and Gwendoline with ladylike dignity. The upshot of the game was that when the afternoon was over and the final count was made Gwendoline and Clarence were in possession of both prizes.

The ladies took leave of their hostess in a body with profuse thanks for the pleasant afternoon, all declaring they had had just the loveliest time, and she had been so sweet to them all they really must thank her again.

But as the door closed after the last smile and goodby there was an ominous silence in the ranks of the Friday Afternoon Whist club.

"How nice to have children who can play whist so well," said one lady sweetly, with a small gleam in her eye.

"Isn't it?" agreed another. "It must be so nice to be able to buy lovely prizes and then keep them in the family!" And there was scarcely any sarcasm in her voice at all.—New York Press.

Calendar Curiosities.

There are some curious facts about our calendar. No century can begin on Wednesday, Friday or Sunday. The same calendars can be used every twenty years. October always begins on the same day of the week as January, April as July, September as December. February, March and November also begin on the same days. May, June and August always begin on different days from each other and from every other month in the year. The first and last days of the year are always the same. These rules do not apply to leap year, when comparison is made between days before and after Feb. 29.

Paid in Shingles.

The records of the squire's court at Blaine, Whatcom county, Wash., a little town near the British Columbia line, bear testimony to the financial stringency of the early nineties. Whatcom county is in the heart of the lumber country, and as there was no money to be had, "shingle scrip" became the currency of the land. The court records show that John Smith was "fined 10,000 shingles for drunkenness." The books show further that the fine was paid. It was an able judge who could so accommodate the law to prevailing conditions.—New York Sun.

Glove Money.

In the early days of English law it was a custom for the clients to send a pair of gloves to the counsel who undertook their cases and even to the judges who were to try them. These gloves were usually the cloak for a bribe, Mrs. Croaker, for example, presenting Sir Thomas More with a pair lined with £40, which he returned. A bribe given in such circumstances continued to be called "glove money" long after gloves had ceased to hold a place in the transactions.—Glasgow Herald.

Preventing a Shock.

"I owe you for a dinner I had the other night," she said to Henriette, the little girl waitress at the Italian table d'hote. "I am paying for it now. You won't forget, will you, to tell your mother?" "No," said Henriette. "I will try and remember to break the news to mother."—New York Press.

BUILT BY UNSEEN HANDS.

Jewish Legend of Solomon and the House of the Lord.

"So that there was neither hammer nor ax nor any other tool of iron heard in the house while it was building" (I Kings vi, 7). The above is a Scriptural quotation, to be found at the citation given, and is concerning the building of Solomon's temple. The reason therein assigned for the perfect quietude which existed in and about the great building while it was in course of erection is that the stones and timbers were all made ready before being brought to the site of the great building. Heber beautifully alludes to this in the little couplet, in which he says:

No hammer fell, no ponderous axes rung
Like some tall palm the mystic fabric sprang.

The Jews have a legend to the effect that Solomon did not employ men in building the great "house of the Lord," but that he was aided in the gigantic undertaking by the genii. Having a premonition that he would not live to see the building finished, Solomon prayed to God that his death might be concealed from the genii until the structure was finished. Immediately after he made a staff from a sprout of the tree of life, which was growing in his garden, and leaning upon this he died, standing bolt upright in the unfinished temple.

Those who saw him thought that he was absorbed in prayer, and they did not disturb him for upward of a whole year. Still the genii worked day and night, thinking that they were being constantly watched by him whose eyes had been closed in death many weeks.

All this time, so the legend says, little white ants (one account says red mice) were gnawing at the staff, and when the temple was finally finished the staff gave way, and the body of the dead Solomon fell prone upon the floor. Mohammed alludes to this queer legend in the Koran (see Sura xxxiv), where he says, "When he (God) had decreed that Solomon should die, nothing discovered his death unto them (the genii) except the creeping things of the earth."—St. Louis Republic.

Satisfaction.

On one occasion some remarks of Incedon, the once famous singer, gave offense to a man who resolved to have "satisfaction" for his wrongs. Accordingly he hunted up Incedon the next afternoon, finding him at dinner in a noted hotel. "Mr. Incedon," said the visitor, entering the room in a towering passion, "you have been making free with my name in a very improper manner, and I've come to demand satisfaction!" After some parleying Incedon rose and, striking a graceful attitude in the center of the room, began to sing "Black Eyed Susan" in his most delightful style. When he had finished the song he said coolly, "There, sir, that has given complete satisfaction to several thousand people, and if you want anything more I've only to say you're the most unreasonable fellow I ever met!"

Space Fillers.

Two chance acquaintances on a train between Washington and Philadelphia discovered that they had come originally from the same neighborhood in Delaware and fell to conversing about old times.

"By the way," said the passenger in the skullcap, "whatever became of Harry Mullins?"

"Oh, he's a special writer on one of the New York papers," replied the passenger with the red tie. "Gets $10 a column. Good thing."

"And his brother Dick?"

"Dick's a fat man in a museum. Weighs 410 pounds. Gets a good salary."

"Well, well," mused the man in the skullcap. "Both of 'em have achieved success as space fillers, eh?"—New York Times.

Better Bait.

Teddy's father had brought home some rare old cheese, and after hearing his praise of its strong points Teddy was manfully struggling to make away with a small piece of it. Seeing the cheese still on his plate and Teddy's nose perceptibly elevated, his father said: "What is the matter, Ted? Don't you like that fine cheese?"

"Yes," answered Teddy, with the air of a connoisseur. "This cheese is very good, but I think I like just plain, common moure cheese better."—Harper's Magazine.

Politeness.

Politeness is a just medium between formality and rudeness. It is, in fact, good nature regulated by quick discernment, which proportions itself to every situation and every character. It is a restraint laid by reason and benevolence on every irregularity of temper, of appetite and passion. It accommodates itself to the laws of custom and fashion as long as they are not inconsistent with the higher obligations of virtue and religion.

A LIQUID GOLD CURE

—AND—
LAXATIVE COUGH SYRUP

The Red Clover Blossom and the Honey Bee on Every Bottle.

"A Cold or a Cough nearly always produces constipation—the water all runs to the eyes, nose and throat instead of passing out of the system through the liver and kidneys. For the want of moisture the bowels become dry and hard." Nearly all other cough cures are constipating, especially those containing Opium. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar moves the bowels, contains no Opium.

KENNEDY'S LAXATIVE HONEY AND TAR

Relieves Colds by working them out of the system through a copious action of the bowels.

Relieves Coughs by cleansing and strengthening the mucous membranes of the throat, chest, lungs and bronchial tubes.

For Croup, Whooping Cough, La Grippe, Influenza, Bronchitis, and all Coughs, Colds, Lung and Bronchial affections no remedy is equal to Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. Children like it.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—moderate force. Feebly, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really lies at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more powerful energy, more controlling nerve strength. Without that the heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and lungs also have these same controlling nerves. This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is the cause of all this painful, but distressing, softening heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds, strengthens; it gives real, genuine heart help. If you would have strong hearts, clear digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with
