

Advance on Iron Today.

Special to Reflector.
Dennison, Ala. April 1.—The postponement of the 25 cents advance on iron granted by the interstate commerce commission ends today. The time gained by the local shippers in the postponement from March 5, has been improved so that most of the sold iron has been shipped, the shippers saving the 25 cents which would otherwise have been added. The railroads made up their delay in shipping, they having caused the delay that meant so much loss to the shippers, and have hurried matters since the postponement was granted. The local shippers have thus made a profit of a quarter a dollar a ton, which means a great deal, as the iron awaiting shipment was of large quantity.

Thirty Evangelists to Work in Atlanta Revival.

Special to Reflector.
Atlanta, April 1. The Atlanta Baptist Conference commenced a great revival in this city today, the like of which has never before been seen in this city or in the South. There is one evangelist for each one of the 28 Baptist churches in the city. In addition, the head evangelist of the Southern Baptist church will be in charge of the work. Each church will provide for its own evangelist. The revival will last for a full month beginning today. All the pastors and evangelists will meet each day at noon at a central meeting to hold a conference in which all the features of the work will be talked over, and a general consultation held as to the method to be pursued in the coming meetings. Great results are expected from the grand combine upon the bulwarks of Satan.

To Strengthen a Miner's Union.

Special to Reflector.
Wilkesbarre, Pa. April 1.—President Mitchell, of the Mine Worker's Union, is expected here this week with a large force of organizers to make an effort to win back the many mine workers who have deserted during the past year. There are now only 30,000 members of the union out of the 170,000 mine workers in the anthracite region. The men lost interest in the union after the three years' agreement with the operators was made last May.

Other quantities are to cost correspondingly less. This is considered significant of the fall that will generally be registered throughout the State.

Albany, N. Y. April 1.—The vacancy made by the death of Assemblyman Burnett, will be left vacant for the remainder of the term. Special to Reflector.
New York, April 1.—The Thaw jury was called in court today and again dismissed until Thursday, it appearing that the lunacy commission will not be ready to report before that day. Thaw's lawyers feel certain the trial will go on and say that Jerome's only hope is in a disagreement.

Marriage in Italy.

Why does the signorina marry? In seeking the answer to this question, says the Italian sociologist, Ferriani, I chose very young women for my experiments, directing my questions to ninety-five between the ages of fifteen and seventeen years, scattered all over Italy, with the following results: Five answered that they married in order to go out walking alone, ten in order to have a good time, in contrast with the austerity of their life up to that time; five in order to travel, seven in order to have homes of their own and six-one for no reason at all in particular. Three really didn't want to marry anyhow, while only four dwelt upon the joys of home and home-making. Only four had been educated properly in the school of the household. To the majority marriage seems to mean only freedom from the convent-like seclusion of the young girl, the getting out into the great world and seeing something of life.

THE NORTH CAROLINA STATE NORMAL AND INDUSTRIAL COLLEGE.

Offers a Course of Study Leading to the Degree of Bachelor of Music.

Former students of the State Normal and Industrial College, as well as prospective students, will be interested to know that at the opening of the college in the fall of 1907 a new course of study leading to the degree of Bachelor of Music will be offered. This course is not strictly a new departure but rather a restoration of the music course which was discontinued at the time the present degree courses were adopted. When the new courses were adopted by the faculty the number of recitation periods a week was reduced from twenty-four to eighteen. With this reduction in the number of recitation periods the way did not seem open at that time for formulating a degree course in music, as the faculty did not see how a sufficient amount of time could be secured to do the academic and the practice work in music. After careful consideration, however, a plan for estimating the practice periods which meets the approval of both the academic departments and the music faculty has been worked out.

The course is designed to meet the demand for three classes of teachers.

For those teachers in the rural schools who wish to teach music in addition to their regular school work.

2. For the supervisors of music in our public schools as there is a growing demand for this class of workers in our cities and larger towns.

3. For the regular music teacher whose work is largely, of course, giving instruction in instrumental music.

It is generally agreed that the piano teacher should be able to sing and direct church choir or chorus and that the supervisor of vocal music should be able to play on the piano hence, during the freshman and senior years an option is allowed which will enable the candidate for a degree to devote most of her time either to vocal or to instrumental music.

In addition to the music feature the course is a strong one in language work, history, English, literature, etc. The old music course of the college, which lead to a diploma was a popular one and quite a number of young women who took it are now at work in the State, some teaching school, some teaching music exclusively, and others teaching both music and the subjects usually taught in our schools.

The recent Legislature has increased the annual appropriation and made it somewhat commensurate with the needs of the institution and consequently it will be possible to make further improvements from time to time.

Weather.

Rain and colder tonight, with freezing temperature in interior. Tuesday fair with warmer in interior.

EASTERN CAROLINA TEACHERS' TRAINING SCHOOL BIDS.

Minimum of $25,000 and Site of at Least 25 Acres for Which Towns or Counties Can Issue Bonds.

The State Board of Education has adopted rules governing the matter of the bids and the site of the East Carolina Teachers' Training School, ordered to be established at the recent session of the legislature.

There are a number of cities in East Carolina which are after the school, among these Elizabeth City, Edenton, Washington, Tarboro, Rocky Mount, Kinston, Greenville, while possibly there will be in the contest for the location New Bern, Goldsboro, and Wilson, with other places yet to be heard from. The rules to govern the selection are:

1. All bids will be received and all representatives heard in open meeting Wednesday, June 5, 1907, in Raleigh.

2. Under section 13 of the law, bids for less than $25,000 for the construction equipment of buildings cannot be considered. The site is not included in this amount.

3. No bid will be considered that does not offer, in addition to the minimum of $25,000 for building and equipment, site containing at least twenty five acres. It is desirable to secure as ample grounds as possible.

4. As soon as possible after June 5, 1907, the State Board of Education will visit and inspect all sites offered in the bids.

5. The election on bonds by any town or county may be held before or after the consideration of the bids and the selection of the site.—Raleigh News and Observer.

A drop from the 90's almost to freezing point inside of 24 hours is a peculiarity of the weather. No wonder folks catch cold.

The dust is gone for the time being.

NOTICE TO THE VOTERS OF PITT COUNTY.

Notice is hereby given to the voters of Pitt county that the board of county commissioners, at their meeting on the first Monday of April, 1907, it being the first day of said month, ordered that an election be held at the various voting places in said county on Tuesday, May 14th, 1907, for the purpose of taking the sense of the qualified voters of said county on the proposition to confer upon the board of county commissioners of said county the authority to issue and sell interest bearing coupon bonds of said county, not to exceed the sum of fifty thousand dollars to run for thirty years and to bear interest at a rate not to exceed six per cent. The proceeds of the sale of said bonds to be used in aiding in erecting suitable buildings at some point in Pitt county for a training school for white teachers, and the excess, if any, of the fund arising from the sale of said bonds, after securing the location of said school in the county, to be used in the purchase of machinery for the use of the convicts in working the public roads and to aid building and repairing bridges in the county of Pitt.

A new registration of the voters has been ordered for said election, so that it may be definitely and accurately ascertained who are qualified voters at said election. The law authorizing said election requires those favoring the issuing of said bonds to vote a written or printed ballot with the words thereon, "for bonds" and those opposed to vote a written or printed ballot with the words thereon "against bonds." The registration books will open on Thursday, April 11th, 1907, and close at sunset on Saturday, May 4th, 1907. Only those who register can vote.

BERNINI'S FOUNTAINS.

The Way the Great Artist Helped to Beautify Rome.

In 1629 Bernini, the famous Italian architect, painter and sculptor, who was one of the architects of St. Peter's, turned his mind to another branch of ornament for Rome. Many of the most beautiful fountains had already been constructed. In the preceding century Cardinal Ippolito d'Este had made his famous garden at Tivoli, containing no less than 360. Many of these were on a very large and elaborate scale, and it seems very probable that these, which in Bernini's time were still in good preservation, may have inspired him to emulate their splendor. He certainly often visited Tivoli, as he was employed to report on some new waterworks constructed there, and there are the remains of one fountain which appears to have been added about this time and in which a seventeenth century portico is supported by columns similar to that which Bernini copied for his baldacchino. However this may be, in Rome Bernini may claim to be the creator of the monumental fountain, a feature so conspicuous in the city.

Who that loves Rome but will acknowledge a debt of gratitude to the man who set the Baraccia or open boat at the foot of the Spanish steps, who reared the dripping Triton draining his conch shell on high on the piazza of the Barberini? Who will not thank him for his gift of the famous Trevi, with its splendid facade, its wild sea gods and plunging horses, its reckless prodigality of space and material, its wealth of spouting streams? For although erected many years after the death of Bernini, still the idea and the original plans are his, and Prince Doria possesses his sketch for the central group. At intervals all through the remainder of his life he found time to add to their number, and Rome owes to him no less than twelve of her fountains. They meet us in all parts of the city. In the Piazza Navona the little sea gods blow their horns around the Fountain of the Moor, and the colossal forms symbolical of the Four Rivers recline in sleepy grandeur. Others stand in the Vatican gardens, in the Villa Mattei, etc., and are all marked by the same fertile invention and largeness of conception.—Fortnightly Review.

How to Live Well.

Be courteous to all, but intimate with few, and let those few be well tried before you give them your confidence. The friendship is a plant of slow growth and must undergo and withstand the shocks of adversity before it is entitled to the appellation. Let your heart feel for the afflictions and distresses of every one, and let your hand give in proportion to your purse, remembering always the estimation of the widow's mite, that it is not every one that asketh that deserveth charity. All, however, are worthy of the inquiry, or the deserving may suffer. Do not conceive that fine clothes make fine men any more than fine feathers make fine birds. A plain, genteel dress is more admired and obtains more credit than lace and embroidery in the eyes of the judicious and sensible.—George Washington in a letter to his nephew, Bushrod Washnig, 1783, in Scrap Book.

They Shaved.

It all the German papers of August, 1838, appeared an ordinance signed by the king of Bavaria forbidding civilians on any pretext whatever to wear mustaches and commanding the police authorities to arrest the offenders and shave them by force. Apparently this was not necessary, for, according to a French account of the time, "mustaches disappeared immediately, like leaves from the trees in autumn. Everybody made haste to obey the royal order, and not one person was arrested." The ancient Anglo-Saxon was not so obedient. He wore long hair and a mustache, though no beard, and when he was conquered by the clean shaven Norman he wore his hair longer than ever, to exaggerate the difference between the two races.

Geography.

"How did you get on in school today, Robert?"

Tired Child (wearily)—Oh, I was wrong in my geography again! I forgot whether the Putumayo joined the Amazon east or west of the confluence of the Maranon and Ucayale rivers.

Same Child (years later, husband and father)—What do you want to know, my son?

Son (struggling over a primary geography)—Where is the Amazon river, father?

Father (after long reflection)—I think it's somewhere in Africa or Asia. I forget which.—Pearson's Weekly.

THE SILENT OPINION.

What Men Think of Women and Women of Men.

Most men have some silent opinions about women and most women about men. There are certain types of face, certain kinds of manner, certain methods of expression even, for which many men and women are utterly condemned in the minds of some of their brothers and sisters. A disposition to dislike certain types of face is at times so strong as to suggest a previous existence.

We do not openly say that all women with such and such eyebrows are hard hearted or that a man must be a charlatan if the color of his eyes and hair contradict each other. But we act continually upon notions hardly less unreasonable. Educated men with small vocabularies, for instance, are divided, as a rule, by clever women into fools by birth and self made fools, according to whether their want of equipment be ascribed to nature or to affection.

To the first they are indifferent. To the latter they have almost always a more or less active dislike. Such men are often able, a fact their own sex invariably recognize. The man whose words are few and ill chosen may be a man of prompt and reasoned action, who, having been brought up among the silent wise or the garrulous silly, deprecates the waste of pains occasioned by the game of talk. All mental athletics bore him just as physical athletics bore others.

In the same way the fact that a man pretends to know no more words than a savage may be a matter of awkward though genuine humility—a fear of pretending to a culture he does not possess—or an act of superficial conformity to a passing fashion among a small set. It may have no more to do with his real mind than an ugly or an ill cut coat. Circumstances will sometimes convince even a clever woman of these facts so far as a given man is concerned, but she will never alter her silent opinion as to the generality.

Clever women are very hard on the men they imagine to be fools. Able men, on the other hand, are not at all hard on women they know to be stupid. Where youth and beauty are concerned the fact is easily understood. But youth and beauty by no means explain the whole of this phenomenon. Many men are inclined to think that the kind of mental power in women which we colloquially call brains exists in inverse ratio to their common sense and serves only to carry them with fatiguing rapidity through verbal fallacies to a false conclusion.—London Spectator.

Manna.

An investigator has published the results of research into the origin and composition of the manna of the Bible, which even to the present day the Arabs, when traversing the desert, rely on as a means of existence both for themselves and their camels. He maintains that it is a kind of mushroom which under favorable conditions of soil attains a considerable size, many specimens weighing a pound or more. It has an agreeable taste and is slightly sweet. It is usually supposed that the manna of Scripture answers in its description very closely to the tamarisk manna, the Persian gazangubin. In the valleys of the peninsula of Sinai, especially in the Wady-el-Sheikh, manna is collected by the Arabs and sold to the monks of St. Catherine, who supply it to the pilgrims visiting the convent.

Full Satisfaction.

A musician and a young banker were dining at a continental restaurant, and a dispute ran high between them. At last the musician, a music hall "star," sprang up and pulled out a card, which the banker at once accepted and put in his pocket. Two days later they met in a public park. At once the musician exclaimed:

"Sir, you have not yet given me satisfaction!"

"That I have, and to the fullest extent," was the cool answer. "You gave me a ticket for your concert last night. I went and sat out the performance to the end. What more do you want?"—London Answers.

Bad Manners and Quick Wit.

The little viscount is receiving a few friends in his bachelor quarters. Among them is Boireau. The latter, having allowed his cigar to go out, throws it without ceremony on the carpet. In order to give him a lesson in good manners the little viscount stoops to pick it up, but Boireau, feigning to misunderstand his intention, interposes:

"Oh, leave the butt, my dear fellow. Take a fresh cigar." And he hands him the box.—Paris Figaro.

A LIQUID GOLD CURE AND LAXATIVE COUGH SYRUP

The Red Clover Blossom and the Honey Bee on Every Bottle.

"A Cold or a Cough nearly always produces constipation—the water all runs to the eyes, nose and throat instead of passing out of the system through the liver and kidneys. For the want of moisture the bowels become dry and hard." Nearly all other cough cures are constipating, especially those containing Opium. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar moves the bowels, contains no Opium.

KENNEDY'S LAXATIVE HONEY AND TAR

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds, it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help. If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

POISON IN FLOWERS.

Certain Death Lurks In Many of the Beautiful Plants.

Beautiful as flowers appear to the eye, there lurks behind their attractiveness certain death. They may be handled with impunity and their colors enjoyed without any danger, but let any one taste the juice of some of the sweetest, and with every drop he is taking deadly poison into his system. Even the bulbs of such dainty flowers as the snowdrop, narcissus, hyacinth and the jonquil are poisonous.

The oxalis also is not a safe thing to put between the lips, and all the lobelias will produce dizziness and general disease. The monk's hood and the beautiful foxglove are noxious affairs, from which powerful drugs are obtained, more than a few drops of their extracts being usually a fatal dose.

Certain of the crocuses if eaten, even if nothing is swallowed but the juice, produce vomiting. The bulb of the intricately beautiful lady's slipper poisons externally as the noxious ivy, dogwood and sumac. The quaint old jack-in-the-pulpit, although not a garden plant, is another enemy to health and life, and so also is the marvelous Queen Anne's lace, which now and then will creep in through the paling and looks so enchanting when far and wide it embroiders field and roadside.

The laughing little buttercup, that might be a drop of visible sunlight, is by no means as innocent as it looks. The cow in the pasture knows enough to avoid it. That and all its cousins, the rich, profuse peonies, the dazzling blue larkspurs and the rest, are full of toxic properties.

The elder tree that is set outdoors when spring comes and that lines the streets of various of our southern cities is another hive of deadly poison.

The superb catalpa tree, towering with its great leaves and its masses of white and fragrant flowers, is a charming thing in the garden, but its bark is exceedingly injurious, and the laburnum, that looks like a fountain of gold leaping into the sun, is poison in leaf and flower and seed, and even the grass beneath it is best thrown away when cut instead of being fed to cattle.

Would Be a Queen.

She was eight years old and had been reading fairy tales until she could think of nothing else. One day recently she astonished her mother by quietly saying, "Mamma, I'm going to run away from home and go to England."

"What in the world do you want to go to England for?"

"I want to go there to become a kitchen girl in the king's kitchen." "Gracious!" exclaimed the mother. "What put that idea into your head?"

"Well, perhaps if I became a kitchen girl some prince will see me and marry me and make me a princess, and then when the king dies I'll be a queen."

"I think," said the mother, "that you had better lay your fairy books aside and help me darn these stockings."—Columbus Dispatch.

Was a Collector Himself.

Saint-Saens while walking along one of the Paris boulevards one afternoon encountered a very miserable beggar, to whom he gave 2 sous and passed on. A wealthy Parisian hastened up to the beggar and said, "Here, my man, I'll give you 5 francs for these 2 sous that gentleman just dropped in your hat." "What's that for?" asked the astonished beggar. "I want them for my collection. The man who gave them to you is Saint-Saens, the poet." "What—him?" asked the beggar, pointing toward the fast retreating figure of the donor. "Yes. That's Saint-Saens." "That being the case," returned the beggar, "I think I'll keep the coins. I'm a collector."
