The singing class from the Oxford Orphan Asylum will be here June 5th. Let us all turn out and give them a rousing time as well as a great big fat purse.

COMIC OPERA H. M. S. PINAFORE

Will be Presented at Opera House Friday Night.

The comic opera, "H. M. S. Pinafore," which will be presented by local talent of Washington Friday night, May 31st, is one of the most successful light operas ever composed. It is the product of the famous English collaborators, W. S. Gilbert and Sir Arthur Sullivan. Twenty-five years ago it was in great popularity and its catchy and melodious tunes were on every one's lips. Since that time it has naturally been superseded by more recent productions; but it still holds the affections of those who were captivated by it, so many years ago, and is still produced with great success by amateurs and occasionally by professionals.

The scene is laid on board the British frigate, "Pinafore." The principal characters are Sir Joseph Porter, first lord of the admiralty, "the monarch of the seas," Captain Corcoran, of the "Pinafore," "and a right good captain, too;" Ralph, Rackstraw, ordinary seaman at first but extra-ordinary seaman at the close; Dick Deadeye, a sailor rather triangular, "both in appearance and in character; the boatswain; Josephine, only daughter of Captain Corcoran; Cousin Hebe, one of the numerous female relatives of Sir Joseph, and Little Buttercup, a "gunboat woman," friend of the sailors, with a secret which produces a great change. There is a men's chorus of sailors, and women's chorus of the other female relatives of the First Lord of the Admiralty.

This opera will be in Masonic Temple opera house, Friday night. Seat sale opens at Reflector Book Store at 9 o'clock Thursday morning.

COLORED GRADED SCHOOL.

(Contributed)

The commencement exercises of the colored graded and industrial high school, held last week, was a decided success. Dr. John Whitted's subject was the "Ideal Citizen" and the address was a characteristic one, taking advantage ground.

An immense audience greeted those who appeared in the program, which was superbly rendered. Many white citizens were present and are liberal in their praise of the exercises.

The music was charming and reflected great credit on the musical director, who is the wife of the principal and teacher of the first grade.

Ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis presented the diplomas to the five graduates, whose papers received much favorable comment from him. He asserted that the spirit of the papers represented the kind of teaching given which was satisfactory to those in authority. He further stated that if each member of the race would practice the sound advice given by Dr. Whitted there would be no race problem.

Dr. Carr, Prof. Smith, Mr. W. B. Wilson, Jr., Dr. Bagwell, Mr. and Mrs. Ola Forbes and daughters, Mr. W. L. Brown and Agent Moore were present, and all are liberal in their praise of the exercises.

The principal, C. M. Epps, is one of the best and favorably known colored men in Eastern Carolina. He was for a number of years the superintendent of one of the seven negro normals established in this State. He has succeeded here as well as in Edgecombe and Plymouth. His commencement was a crowning success.

PROGRESSIVE GREENVILLE.

We have no automobiles, no street cars yet.

But these will come in time, you bet. If you think the town is moving slow, then it's because you don't know. And if you think our town is small, you haven't seen the town at all.

The finest horses you see each day quite late.

With driving parties up-to-date. If a residence you should choose And don't stop here there's no excuse. Another train and depot, too Will make it convenient for you. When on the river you wish to float. You'll find most any kind of boat.

A training school we hope to get So parents won't have cause to fret Visitors find a welcome here At any time of the year, There's no need for us to blush For surely we have got the push. We need a park, and that's the thing. Then Greenville will be on the wing.

Mrs. W. G. Williams.

Lying.

Does a circumstance ever arise through which the telling of a lie may be justified? This question has been raised by The Presbyterian Standard, which boldly says it believes that deception is sometimes justifiable, and as an instance it says that if you can scare a burglar out of your house by making him think you are going to shoot, when as a matter of fact you have nothing with which to shoot, do not hesitate to do it. "The Ninth Commandment," says The Standard, "was not made to keep us from lying when it is that, or the sacrifice of life to a murderer. But exceptions to the law must be made with great caution. A lie is such a handy thing that there is a strong temptation to use it too frequently. We do not vouch for the story of the Sunday school pupil who, in response to the question: 'What is a lie?' answered: 'A lie is an abomination to the Lord, and a very pleasant help in trouble.' But this is what he might have said, had he thought of it with a great show or plausibility.

A lie often relieves the embarrassment of a situation as nothing else will; and it often lends force to an argument where truth would spoil the whole thing. For all this, a lie should be resorted to very seldom."

The contention of The Standard may be open to debate, but its advice that "a lie should be resorted to very seldom" is not. The instance which it cites as a case of justifiable lying is not lying, but deception, but it is one form of deception that could be practiced with a clear conscience. We are inclined to the view that if the lie becomes justifiable in any shape, it will gain ground as has done the doctrine of the "unwritten law," and that it would be safer to keep the lie tightly chained to the stake.—Charlotte Chronicle.

The Same Act.

An old negro was recently brought before a justice in Mobile. It seemed that Uncle Mose had fallen foul of a bulldog while in the act of entering the henhouse of the dog's owner.

"Look here, Uncle Mose," the justice said, informally, "didn't I give you ten days last month for this same thing? Some henhouse you were trying to get into. What have you got to say for yourself?"

Uncle Mose scratched his head. "Mars Willum, yo' sent me ter de chain gang fer tryin' ter steal some chickens, didn't you?"

"Yes, that was the charge."

"An' don't de law say yo' can't be charged twice wid de same fence?"

"That no man shall be twice placed in jeopardy for the identical act, yes."

"Den, sah, yo' des, hab ter let me go, sah. Ah, 'ar after de same chickens, sah."

Two of Three Roads Wise.

The Seaboard Air Line and the Atlantic Coast Line are to be congratulated upon their decision to let the passenger rate of 24 cents a mile in North Carolina go into effect, at least for a while, under protest, and contest the matter later. Not only can a test be made of the new rate's actual workings but the public will recognize a conciliatory attitude in such action. That the Southern Railway company has not done likewise is matter for regret. We have never questioned that it is within its legal rights in enjoining the new rate on the constitutional ground that it is confiscatory, but there is a more important consideration. As the Apostle Paul tells us—would that the Southern Railway could be brought to accept this part of his teaching—there are some things which are lawful which are not expedient.—Charlotte Observer.

GREENVILLE IN THE FIGHT.

Below we publish an extract from the Kinston Free Press giving reasons why Kinston should get the training school. We do this that our people may see and know what some other people think in reference to this school that you have shown such commendable zeal in getting. We appreciate the prominence it is giving Greenville in this fight: Why Kinston Should Have the Training School.

Because it is the best town, Because it is worth $35,000 as an advertisement to have it officially determined that it is the best town in Eastern Carolina.

Because, this training school is going to be a great State institution. Don't you remember in 1885 that the Normal started out to be a teachers' training school? Look at it now—a great college advertising Greensboro, in every home in the State and bringing thousands upon thousands of dollars to Greensboro's merchants, doctors, dentists, druggists, laborers—to every class.

Because, this school is going to grow and become a great institution. The resources of the State are behind it. Where shall it grow and develop and feed and foster a community? Greenville or Kinston? Which do you say?

Because, everybody in Kinston in a few years can then give their children a first class education without having to pay the great expenses of board, etc., at a distance.

Because, this school is not in the same class with the graded school; and will not hurt but help the graded school. Suppose there were two graded schools in Kinston, could one hurt the other? Hardly.

Because, we can get the school so cheap. Think of it, only $35,000 for such a magnificent and perpetual return.

Because, the bonds will be paid by all according to the property they own. Isn't that right?

Because, Kinston cannot afford to lose this fight. It will never do to let a town of half our size, right at our door, capture this school. She would take precedence over us. The moral effect against us would be tremendous. She would sell more tobacco, people would move to Greenville instead of Kinston. There would be no homes to rent in Greenville. The sound of the saw and hammer and the song of the well paid carpenter and mechanic would be heard in Greenville. But Kinston, well, she would be left in the lurch.

Because, we cannot afford to be short sighted.

Because, we need outside capital to help us just now. Had you thought of it all of our home capital is pretty well employed

In the different enterprises here—and yet we are standing still at present. Let us pull together and get some of the state capital for investment here.

Because, the school will pay us better than any factory we have many times over.

Because, it isn't altogether a school we are after. This is a business proposition as well. It's the money, the hundreds of students will bring here and spend. Did you ever send a boy or girl off to school? If you have, you know how much money we would have spent here.

Because, there is no reason why we should not have it

Opened Her Eyes in Coffin.

On Tuesday of last week Mrs. J. L. Rosser, of Cape Fear township, was supposed to have died. Next day she was carried across the Cape Fear river for burial, and before burial the casket was opened for her relatives and friends to take their last look at her. They were surprised to find her eyes open and some moisture on the inside of the glass on the casket and her body limp. Dr. J. L. Shephard was at once sent for, but he decided on examination that she was dead and she was accordingly buried—Clatham Record.

Not Much Progress.

Such an exchange of courtesy as was chronicled in a German paper not long ago would hardly suit the taste of brisk Americans. The exchange was in the form of two advertisements.

"The gentleman who found a purse with money in the Blumenstrasse is requested to forward it to the address of the loser, as he is recognized."

A day or two later appeared the response, which, although so courteous, had an elusive air, to say the least:

"The recognized gentleman who picked up a purse in the Blumenstrasse requests the loser to call at his house at a convenient day."

Only Hearsay.

Witness—According to your own ruling, I don't know.

Magistrate—Yes, but—

Witness (interrupting)—Well, I am told that I am so many years old, but, as you know, it is only hearsay.—Chicago News.

It's a pleasure to tell our readers about a Cough Cure like Dr. Shoop's. For years Dr. Shoop has fought against the use of opium, chloroform or other unsafe ingredients commonly found in cough remedies. Dr. Shoop, it seems has welcomed the Pure Food Drug Law recently enacted, for he has worked along similar lines for many years. For nearly 20 years Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure containers have had a warning printed on them against opium and other narcotic poisons. He has thus made it possible for mothers to protect their children by simply insisting on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure Sold by Bryan's Drug Store.

FEMININE SMOKERS.

Ways of Women Who Indulge In the Tobacco Habit.

It is interesting to notice the different ways in which cigarettes, cigars and pipes are held by people. The writer has traveled a great deal in different parts of the world during the past eight years and has had a very good opportunity to observe the customs of smokers in Cuba, the land where the ladies smoke, as they do in the Philippines. The Filipino and the Cuban like to smoke. No matter how poor, he or she always has a supply of cigarettes to smoke. As the ladies and children smoke, too, one can observe some delicate hands supporting cigars and cigarettes.

While the ladies do not, as a rule, smoke pipes in the Isle de Cuba or the islands of the southern Pacific ocean, you can see the pipe in service in the grasp of females now and then.

But the ladies of Spanish origin of Cuba are unique in the managing of the cigars and cigarettes. They always act as if they thought the gentlemen were observing the manner in which they hold their cigarettes. They like to assume that they are old hands at it. They are pleased to make a good impression upon the visitor.

The ladies of Cuba do not all smoke. There are many Spanish and Cuban ladies who would never think of handling either the cigar, the cigarette or the pipe. The American and ladies of other nationalities in Cuba very seldom smoke. But there are certain classes of native born ladies who smoke a great deal.

They are pleased to begin the morning duties with smoking and to finish off the afternoon with a cigarette. Toward the final hours of the night, before retiring, they smoke. Some fall asleep smoking, and the servant has to look out for the cinders to prevent the bed-clothes taking fire. Some chew a cigarette in their dreams. The men of Cuba are great smokers, as are all people in the tropics.—United States Tobacco Journal.

The Boy and the Lawyer.
In the incident related below a boy of twelve years old conquered a smart and shrewd lawyer fighting for a bad case.

Walter was an important witness, and one of the lawyers, after cross questioning him severely, said:

"Your father has been talking to you and telling you how to testify, hasn't he?"

"Yes," said the boy.

"Now," said the lawyer, "just tell me how your father told you to testify."

"Well," said the boy modestly, "father told me that the lawyers would try and tangle me, but if I would just be careful and tell the truth I could tell the same every time."

The lawyer didn't try to tangle up that boy any more.—Massachusetts Sentry's Reason.

The Sentry's Reason.
A soldier at the Toulon arsenal was on sentry duty the other day outside a powder magazine when an officer came up smoking a cigar. "You must throw that away, sir," said the sentry, and after a moment's hesitation the officer obeyed. Almost immediately afterward the officer returned and saw the sentry smoking his cigar. He was about to call the guard when the soldier said: "I am not a smoker, captain. I was merely keeping it alight to show the corporal when he comes around that I was right in ordering you to throw it away." The captain smiled and walked on.—St. James' Gazette.

Like Old Clothes.
Little James had been imparting to the minister the important and cheerful information that his father had got a new set of false teeth. "Indeed, James!" replied the minister indulgently. "And what will he do with the old set?" "Oh, I s'pose," replied little James, "they'll cut 'em down and make me wear 'em."

are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart. Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

After eating, my food would distress me by making my heart palpitate and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional. The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, cures nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

LANDS ON ITS FEET.

The Fall of the Cat and the Curiosity of Scientists.

The curiosity of scientists knows no bounds. The French Academy of Sciences once had under examination and discussion the very interesting question, "Why does a cat always fall on its feet?" The old answer, "In order that it shall not break its back," did not serve in this investigation. Members of the academy were desirous of ascertaining not only the real reason, but the precise method by which a cat, when dropped feet upward, manages to turn over instantly in the air, with no object to brace itself against in order to procure the muscular reaction that would seem to be necessary for the revolution.

To assist its study the distinguished members of the academy had one of its scientists prepare a series of instantaneous photographs showing a cat in various stages of a fall from a considerable height. These photographs were obtained under the personal inspection of a committee, and several successful "drops," which the unfortunate cats must have been totally unable to account for, were necessary.

The photographs, it may be mentioned, failed to establish anything, except that the cat actually turned over in the air. As to how she did it, they afforded no clue. And as it was already known that she did it, the camera may be said to have contributed nothing toward the solution of the problem.

The committee next set itself about settling the matter by discussion. Several members presented their theories and compared notes. The laws of mechanics and geometry were applied to the known movements of the cat, with no other effect than to prove that a cat cannot possibly turn over in the air, which, however, it is well established that she does.

One academician maintained that the animal is able to displace its internal organs in such a way as to affect its center of gravity while in the air, causing it to turn, by a new center of weight, to one side and then, by another displacement, to throw the weight so that its back comes uppermost.

This claim, however, was but an unproved theory. Another man of science insisted that at the very instant when the cat is dropped, say, from the hands of the person who holds her, feet uppermost, she is able to make an impulsive movement, using the operator's hands to push against, as it were. At all events the cat begins to turn instantly upon being let go.

However, it has against it the fact that the cat turns successfully when there are no hands or other objects to push against—when, for instance, she is firmly held, back downward, by threads, which are cut at the right moment, allowing her to drop suddenly.—New York Times.

Historical Accuracy.

An American traveler visited Warwick castle during his tour of Europe. A tall young soldier took him through the historic house, pointing out each object of interest with a long stick.

"There, sir," he said in one of the state chambers, "here is an ancient old portrait of Queen Bess. A fine work."

The American looked at the portrait, and there was a long, impressive silence. To break this silence more than for any other reason the visitor finally said:

"Queen Bess, eh? She was a pretty old lady when she died, wasn't she?"

The guide shook his head. "Not pretty, sir, but very old," he said.

An Essential Article.

An artist was talking about Walter Appleton Clark, who died at the beginning of his artistic career. "And Clark," he said, "had a strong sense of humor. I remember going through a millionaire's stables with him one day. You know what a millionaire's stables nowadays are like—floors and walls of translucent white tiles, drinking fountains of marble, mahogany rangers, silver trimmings, and so forth and so on. "Well, gentlemen," said the millionaire proudly, "is anything lacking?"

"I can think of nothing," said Clark, "except a sofa for each horse."
