

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, it hath pleased the Allwise Ruler of the Universe to send the Angel of Death into the home of our friend and brother, Joseph Rawls, and remove therefrom his devoted sister.

Whereas, we bow in humble submission to Him who doeth all things well, yet we would extend to our friend and brother Pythian our deep and heartfelt sympathy in the loss which he and those near to him have suffered.

Resolved, therefore, first that the members of Tar River Lodge No. 93 unite in sending to Brother Rawls this expression of their sympathy for him in the death of his sister.

Second, that a copy of these resolutions be furnished The Daily Reflector for publication.

Third, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our lodge and a copy sent Brother Rawls.

A Dangerous Sermon

"My preacher said the other day that debt was a bad thing and that he wished the clothes that had not been paid for would fall off of the persons who wore them," declared a Charlotte church woman.

"Why, that was dangerous, for if they had begun to drop off right there I'm afraid the meeting would have closed with—the good old song, 'we are all smiles tonight,' or rather, 'We are nothing but smiles tonight.' I heard one man say all that he would have left would have been his paper collar.

"I looked for a catastrophe there that night. But, all the same, the preacher spoke the truth. About half the people in this town live six months behind their debts"—Charlotte Observer.

R. F. D. Meet.

Over 60 per cent of the R. F. D. carriers of the county were present Thursday, May 30th, and an enthusiastic meeting was held.

The absence of our promised speaker was regretted, but Mr. S. C. Wooten came to our rescue and entertained our association with an interesting and encouraging speech, for which the thanks of the association are returned.

We wish to say for the association that if we can claim the encouragement of our country patrons the height that we will attain can only be measured by the enthusiasm of the carriers.

Unveiling of the Monument to Jefferson Davis.

Special to Reflector:

Richmond, Va., June 3.—The drawing event of the great assembling of the United Veterans of the entire South in a great reunion, comes off today, when the monument to the former chief of the Confederacy, Jefferson Davis, is unveiled in the presence of at least two hundred thousand Confederates.

This monument was hauled to its destination by school children, five thousand of whom had hold of the ropes, and pulled it along as they sang their little hymns. The sight was very inspiring, and the streets were filled with spectators. The ropes with which the tiny hands of the children pulled the ponderous statue along were three city blocks long, and the children were strung along for the same distance, and each one pulled as though he or she was the only one attached to the rope.

Grown folks impulsively rushed in to give a little help as it seemed to be needed, and to the stirring music of the Continental fife and drum the proud procession pressed gayly forward. Today the "banner of the lost cause" was the most striking feature of the exercises. The children occupied a platform inside the Lee circle, the combination of colors in their attire representing the red, white and blue and the thirteen stars of the Confederacy.

Harry Thaw Gets Twenty Thousand Dollars a Year.

Special to Reflector.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 3.—The Fidelity Title and Trust Company, as trustee presented today to the judges of the orphans court the accounts of the estate of the late father of Harry K. Thaw. Harry Thaw is shown to have received the second largest income of any of the heirs, nearly $60,000 having been paid to him from this source alone. This sum is exclusive of the income he derives from various other bequests under his father's will. The account of Harry Thaw shows that there is due him, under the direct legacy allowed by his father, the sum of $439,534.46. The income from this during the three years is $93,903.20. From this sum expenditures have been made covering the necessary expenses of the estate, bringing the amount actually paid him down to something less than $60,000.

Death From a Little Thing.

Miss Marie Gruber, a member of the well known Gruber family of musical fame, died in Marion last week from blood poisoning contracted in this way. She picked a pimple on her lip with a brass pin. The next day the lip was slightly swollen, and later pained her severely. A physician was called and pronounced it the deadly poison. Six days later she died suffering all the time the most intense pain.—Greensboro Telegram.

Funeral of Mr. Evans.

An Alphabet for Boys and Girls.

Mr. J. S. Farmer, who is known personally—and to their advantage—to more Recorder readers than to anybody, learned the following alphabet in his youth. Probably, if some of our young people will learn it now they will turn out to be as strong and useful as he:

A—A boy who feels timid about doing anything mean is far from being a coward.

B—Be prompt in all your school engagements, that you may learn to be prompt in all of your business engagements.

C—Conquer your bad habits, just as you conquer hard problems in arithmetic; the former is more important than the latter.

D—Do not eat after your appetite is satisfied, we are more apt to overeat than to eat too little.

E—Every time a boy lies he belittles himself, not only in the eyes of his school-mates, but also in his own estimation.

F—First make up your mind what you desire to do, be sure it is right, then do it, be it ever so difficult.

G—Get not in the way of cackling, even a donkey knows better.

H—Hasty tempers break good resolutions.

I—If ever unjust, be honest enough to admit it.

J—Join hands with no man who loves not his own country.

K—Keep pennies, and you will never want for dollars.

L—Laziness and carelessness are twins.

M—Make no promise you cannot keep.

N—Never resign a position until you have secured a better one.

O—Object to be led into what you know to be wrong.

P—Profanity has never made a gentleman, and has ruined thousands.

Q—Quarrels are like eggs—they grow worse with age.

R—Refuse to do a mean act, be it ever so small.

S—Sympathy makes stronger and better friends than gold, silver or flattery.

T—The events of childhood will be remembered longer and better than anything else; so live and act then, boys and girls, that in the future when recalling them they can bring naught but pleasure.

U—Understand yourself, and you will the better understand others.

V—Vain people are seldom happy, from thinking of themselves too much.

DW.—When sweeping a room do not forget the corners.

X—Xenophon's prudence, activity and vigor made him a leader of ten thousand Greeks, when but a young man.

Y—Yield not to the flattery of one of whom you have reason to respect.

Z—Zeal rightly applied will make comparison worth knowing.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to return sincere thanks to the people of Greenville and community for their attention and great kindness during the recent sickness and death of my husband. His mother, brothers and sister join with me in this expression of gratitude.

Mrs. R. S. Evans.

The Ladies Aid Society of Memorial Baptist church will meet at 4 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, with Miss Maggie Doughty.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Greenville, N. C. June 3, 1907.

To the officers and members of Jarvis Memorial Sunday school M. E. church, South.

Again God has seen fit in His wisdom to visit our school with death, this time our senior class was the one to furnish the victim in the person of Brother R. S. Evans. In the death of Brother Evans we have lost one of our very best members, one who loved his Sunday school, his church and all of its institutions.

He gave his life to Christ in early manhood and continued a faithful member of his church to the last. He served as steward almost from the time he joined the church and did all he could for the furtherance of the cause of Christ. Brother Evans was an obedient son, a loving husband and father, a kind and affectionate brother and a true friend.

Therefore resolved,

1st, That we tender to his wife and two little sons our heartfelt sympathy in this their sad hour and bid them go to the God he served for comfort for "He alone hath the words of eternal life," and to the aged mother, brothers and sisters we pray God's blessing upon them, and may they also live that in the home beyond the river they may meet where parting, sorrow, sin and death are felt and feared no more, and may have the consolation that brother Evans has lost to them a good name which Solomon says "is rather to be chosen than great riches."

2nd, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Sunday school, a copy sent to the family and one to The Reflector for publication.

WINSTON-SALEM TO RALEIGH.

Reported That Road Will be Built by the Norfolk and Southern.

Raleigh, N. C., June 1.—Several months ago your correspondent stated it was reported that a railway was to be built from here to Durham or some other point on the Norfolk and Western railway to give the latter a coast connection. Some sort of a survey is now being made and stakes have been set west of here. The last legislature chartered over 40 railways and among them the Raleigh and Winston-Salem. It is now stated that this line will be built by the Norfolk and Southern Railway Co., which is already into Raleigh. The distance between Winston-Salem and Raleigh is ninety miles. The connection would give coal to Beaufort, which is to become of some importance as a coaling station.

The Norfolk and Southern and Norfolk and Western are very friendly. The Carolina and Northwestern railway today served a complaint on the attorney general and corporation commission to prevent the reduced passenger and freight rate from being put into effect. Judge Pritchard will hear the matter June 27th.—Wilmington Messenger.

RANDOM REFLECTIONS.

By a Contributor.

"What's the matter at Panama?" asks the Topeka Journal. "Nobody has resigned for three weeks". Just now, we understand they are too busy fighting mosquitoes to fill out resignation blanks.

Quite a number of newspapers in this country are asking when we are to have tariff revision. We suspect it will be about the time airships are sold for a dollar down, and a dollar a week.

Senator Pettus says the Brownsville inquiry is making him tired. And he has the satisfaction of knowing that younger men than he are making the same complaint.

Senator Allison says, "The tariff is going to be a live issue soon". Same old story; not yet, but soon.

Colonel Watterson's dark horse may wear a mustache and even then not be able to keep a stiff upper lip.

So far this season honors are about even between the automobile owners and innocent bystanders, so far as getting killed is concerned.

Jack London, Chas. G. D. Roberts, and Rev. Wm. Long got theirs from the president all right. But we are at a loss to know whether they are "undesirable citizens" or just common liars.

Japan has gone and cornered the camphor market right here when we are in the midst of packing a way the winter clothes.

A Chicago woman says she is going to "try to stop smoking on the streets and in all public places." It might help her some if the men would refuse to give her a light.

If that hobo feast at Chicago has not given the Newport people a new idea, they are certainly not awake to their opportunities.

The fact that "September wheat" reached one dollar in "the pit" will cause not even a ripple of excitement in Kansas. "September wheat" during the month of May, is not the market which interests the wheat growers. But "dollar" wheat in September will encourage Kansas to unload its 90,000,000 bushels crop.

The Raleigh correspondent of the Charlotte Observer says the large number of moonshiners recently in attendance upon the Federal court in Raleigh "seemed suspicious of each other; the revenue officers say they will steal from each other whenever they have an opportunity and that they have been known to steal stills." Nothing more natural than that, for when a man gets mean enough to engage in running a moonshine still he is mean enough to commit any crime under the sun. The moonshine distillery marks about the lowest depth of depravity.

The idea of the railroads is government by injunction, instead of government according to laws enacted by the people.

The praise given certain railroads for their supposed acquiescence to the rate regulation laws will all have to be taken back.

The railroads throughout the South stopped all trains for five minutes at two o'clock today, in honor of the unveiling of the Jefferson Davis monument at that hour in Richmond.

Uncle Remus's Magazine, edited by Joel Chandler Harris and published at Atlanta, has made its appearance. We judge from the first number that it is to be a fine magazine and prove very popular.

Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves". Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write to-day for sample and free Book. NAMING THE STARS.

African Bushmen Called the Milky Way the Ashen Path.

From the memorial the heavens have been the object of investigation and amazement of the inhabitants of the globe, and to the student of astronomy nothing is more interesting than the great similarity of the stories that have grown up about the stars among the most widely separated peoples.

The constellation which today is called the Milky Way was known to the primitive Indians and to the African Bushmen as the Ashen Path, the cinders of which were conceived to be hot and glowing. The ancient inhabitants of Britain called it Watling Street, or the path of the mythical giants, the Watlings.

To the casual eye the gulf between the highly civilized, ancient Greeks and the American Indians is well nigh impassable. Yet the constellation known colloquially to modern Americans as the Dipper was called the Bear by both these peoples.

The imaginative Indian thought of the four front stars as a bear, those in the tail as pursuing hunters and the small star on the end as a pot in which they were to cook their victim. In England the Great Bear is known as Charles' Wain, and it is interesting to note in this connection that Dickens mentioned them in "Hard Times" as the names of two different constellations.

The aboriginal inhabitants of Australia showed an ingenuity almost equal to that of the Greeks in naming the planets. The constellation of the Pleiades, which is composed of seven stars, was considered by the Greeks to be a band of maidens. In explanation of the dimness of the seventh star they said that one of the maidens fell in love with a mortal and thereafter hid her light through envy of her sisters, who were beloved of the gods.

To the Australians, on the other hand, they were known as a queen with her six attendants. Like the Greeks, the Australians also sought to account for the dim star, and so the myth grew that the queen had been stolen by a neighboring constellation, the Centaur.—St. Louis Republic.

The Fool and His Umbrella.

The man who doesn't know how to carry his umbrella is quite as much an English institution as American. Maybe the English type is worse than the American. He is extremely dangerous when he enters an omnibus, for, carrying his umbrella with a grasp about its middle and its sharp iron point uppermost, there isn't an eye or a tooth in the omnibus that is safe. The London Saturday Review, which is considerably agitated over the question of "the fool and his umbrella," wants the omnibus companies to point the finger of scorn at the fool by posting a notice that his "other end up, grip around the middle fashion of carrying his umbrella will not be allowed."—New York Times.

Four Widows.

The chronicles of births and deaths kept by the minister of a New England parish in the eighteenth century afford much interesting and some amusing reading even at this late day. In the records of deaths in one Massachusetts town is chronicled the departure from life of three widows three successive years. Their names are so odd as to bring an involuntary smile to the face of any reader who may chance upon them. They are recorded in the following order:

- 1742. The Widow Duty.
- 1743. The Widow Yell.
- 1744. The Widow Lull.

A few years later in the same town the "Widow Silence Dumm" went to her rest.

A Janitorial Squabble.

"Our janitor has broken his own rule of not allowing children in the house," said the flat dweller. "He has six. I don't know whether they were born before he became janitor or what, but there they are, six, all ages from three years to nineteen. I don't know but what he has a right too. Janitor children come in mighty handy. One sweeps off the steps, another cleans the windows, another takes down the debris, and when the elevator man goes off on a tear two grown sons take turn about running the elevator and distributing the letters."—New York Press.

Origin of "Dunce."

It is a strange fact that the word "dunce," meaning a stupid person, comes from the name of one of the most eminent scholars of his time, Duns Scotus.

In the reformation the works of the schoolmen fell into disfavor with the reformers, and Duns, who was the leader of the schoolmen, was often spoken of with scorn by the votaries of the new learning. As time went by the name of Duns became a byword for utter stupidity.—Pittsburg Post.

CLEANING THE MINTS.

Even the Dust is Robbed of Its Particles of Gold.

It has been said that no miser guards his treasure more religiously than Uncle Sam watches the precious metal that passes through his mints. Moreover, precautions against waste are almost innumerable. Every evening in each of the mints of this country the floors of the melting rooms are swept cleaner than a good housewife's kitchen. The dust is put carefully aside, and about once in two months the soot scraped from every flue is transferred to the same precious dust heap. This is then burned, and from its ashes the government derives no inconsiderable income. The earthenware crucibles used in melting are employed no more than three times. Then they are crushed beneath heavy rollers, and in their porous sides are found flakes of the precious metal.

In the melting room when the casters raise their ladles from the melting pots a shower of sparks fly from the molten surface of the metal. For the most part they are bits of incandescent carbon, but clinging to the carbon is often a minute particle of metal. Lest such particles should escape, the ashes and clinkers below the furnaces are gathered up at night. This debris is ground into powder by means of a steam crusher and then is sold to a smelter, like ordinary ore, at a price warranted by the assayer.

The ladles that stir the precious metal, the big iron rods, the strainers and the dippers all are tested in a most curious fashion. After considerable use they become covered with a thin layer of oxidized silver, closely resembling a brown rust. The implements are then laid in baths of a solution of sulphuric acid, which eats away the iron and steel and leaves the silver untouched.

Gradually the ladle, or whatever the implement is, will disappear, and in its place remains a hollow silver counterpart of the original, delicate as spun glass. These fragile casts reproduce the ladle with perfect accuracy in all its details, although their surfaces are perforated with innumerable little holes. Scarcely have they been molded, however, before they are cast into a crucible, to become in time dollars, quarters and dimes.

In one corner of the melting room there is a large tank, into which newly cast silver bars are dropped and left to cool. Infinitesimal flakes of silver scale off and rise to the surface of the water, which acquires the metallic luster of a stagnant pool. Here is silver that must not be lost. So beneath the pipe through which the tank is emptied is banked a thick layer of mud. As the water filters through it the mud retains the precious residuum. Four times a year this mud is removed, and each experiment discloses the fact that some $50 has been saved.—Minneapolis Journal.

Knows by the Sign.

William Henry, Jr., aged seven, has an inordinate appetite for buckwheat cakes and maple sirup. At breakfast one day his grandfather watched him with amazement, counting the cakes as they disappeared.

"Junior," he asked, "have you ever in all your life felt you had all the buckwheat cakes you could get away with?"

"Yes, sir," replied Junior; "lots of times I've felt that I had enough."

"How do you know when you've got enough?"

"Oh, I just keep eating till I get a pain, and then I eat one more to make sure."—Memphis News-Scimitar.

Prehistoric Man.

What, it is asked, was man doing during the 2,000 centuries before history began? Man's brain was slowly increasing in size, and its case, the skull, was getting larger and of better form. The forehead was rising and filling forward, and the intellect was developing. Speech was improving and manners undergoing amelioration. Animals were being tamed, and the supply of food was becoming more abundant and more varied. In a word, the human being was gradually becoming fitted to take advantage of future discoveries.—London Museum Gazette.

Beauties of Our Language.

Two members of the Princeton faculty, according to Harper's Weekly, during a hurried trip to New York were on a Broadway car when it was stopped by a blockade. As they were near their destination, they decided to get out and walk. The block was, however, soon lifted, and the car overtook them.

"When we left the car," said one of the "highbrows," who, by the way, has a bit of the Celt in him, "I thought we should get on better by getting off. But, after all, we should have been better off if we had stayed on."

are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart. Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

digests what you eat, takes the strain off of the heart, and contributes nourishment, strength and health to every organ of the body. Cures indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the Stomach and Digestive Tract, Nervous Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach.

After eating, my food would distress me by making my heart palpitate and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it orders real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

TWO FAMOUS SONGS.

"Home, Sweet Home," "Old Folks at Home," and Their Composers.

No two songs have ever come nearer to the world's heart than have "Home, Sweet Home," and "Old Folks at Home." So many untrue stories have been circulated about the former that it is well occasionally to review the true origin of the composition. John Howard Payne, the composer of "Home, Sweet Home," first heard the air for which his song was written while strolling along a quiet country road in Italy. The sweet voice of a peasant girl tolling the plaintive air as she wended her way to the city with her basket of fruit and flowers caught his fancy that he accosted her and asked the name of the song. This the girl was unable to give, but at Payne's request she repeated the song, and while she did so he wrote down the notes. Soon after this Payne composed the words and, with the aid of a musician named Bishop, incorporated the song in his opera "Clari, or the Maid of Milan." This soon gave him worldwide fame, although it never brought him great pecuniary profit. "Home, Sweet Home," made the fortune of almost every one connected with it except that of its composer, although the popular story that its author wandered homeless and friendless from place to place is without foundation. Payne was cosmopolitan from choice, and, although in his latter days he suffered many pecuniary misfortunes, he was never without home and friends. The leading actors and literary men of his day loved him for his kindly nature and many personal attractions.

Stephen Foster's "Old Folks at Home" is the only rival to "Home, Sweet Home," among English speaking people. As a musical critic has said, "If Foster had not made the song local by introducing the Suwannee river, it might have equalled Payne's melody as the home song of the world." Foster was born in Pennsylvania in 1826. He was of a peculiar and retiring nature, and a writer who knew him in New York city in 1852 relates that his favorite haunt was an old tumble-down grocery near the Bowery. Here one at least of his famous songs was composed. Whether it was "Old Folks at Home" or "My Old Kentucky Home" is not known. Foster was a true poet as well as a musician and always composed the words and airs of his songs. Unlike Payne, he reaped some of the monetary benefit of his compositions. "Old Folks at Home" is said to have yielded him $15,000. Foster died in 1864, and at his request his favorite song, "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," was sung at the funeral.—Sarah Kennedy Winkler in Circle Magazine.

Do it Tomorrow!

It was a profitable venture. It cost Mr. Neermein very little to buy the texts, and he hoped that they would have the same effect on his employees as if he had raised their salaries.

Think of the difference in the price! So it happened that on Monday morning there appeared above every desk the words "Do it now!" framed with an embossed gilt border.

But, alas, they took the advice too literally!

Next day the lady typist eloped with the bookkeeper, three clerks asked for a raise, the cashier took a holiday with the contents of the safe, and the office boy became a highwayman, holding out till Thursday before he was caught and disarmed.—London Answers.

Italian Lizards.

F. H. Herrick in "Bird Lore" describes a peculiar state of affairs, which, he says, exists in Italy in consequence of the merciless slaughter of birds of all kinds in that country. Spring and fall the Italian markets are filled with birds, and the land is virtually depopulated of winged inhabitants. The farmers, Mr. Herrick thinks, would suffer greatly from the ravages of insects but for the singular compensation that nature furnishes for the absence of the birds. This consists in the multitude of lizards, which dart about everywhere and display the utmost agility and admirable appetites in capturing and devouring insects.

Her Day Would Come.

A large funeral procession was wending its way through the gates of a cemetery in the neighborhood of Glasgow. As the crowd of spectators was very large, the police had some difficulty in preserving order and repressing the untoward curiosity of a certain section of them, mainly composed of old women. "Aweel," indignantly exclaimed one venerable dame to a policeman who barred her further progress, "ye may keep me oot the noo, but the day'll come when I'll gang up in spite o' ye."—Strand Magazine.
