SOUND IN THE FAITH.

Old Darkey With Old Time Religion Still Sticks to Her Raising.

May be the time will come when the people will depend on science for their religion, but it is a long way off. The old lard-marks, the faithful—some of them—are still living and it is hoped more coming along.

This has been a most peculiar spring and summer; in fact we have had none—since March; it's been winter. During all these weeks the papers have been abusing—of course in a jocular vein—the man up at Washington because of the fiendish quality he is dishing out. One of the good old time negro women hereabouts has been hearing of all these goings-on and she is disgusted. She says she cannot read, but she has grandchildren who have been going to school and they read to her.

"I'll tell you what it is," she said today, talking in a Record man's hearing; "this here stuff and talk ain't right. Ha'ar is de newspapers a beratin' some smart man up dar at Washington about de weader just as if he had anything to do wid it; dey hops on him and 'buses him as if de poor mar had a thing to do wid it. Doan de people know dat de good Lord dishes out de wedder? dat he fixes it up for some good wise purpose an' dat when he git good an' ready he gwine to give us some summer wedder, not dat we deserve it, fur we doan, but kase he is merciful and long sufferin' towards us? Dere's too many smart men a growin' up all over de world; dey knows too much, or thinks dey does, and some day de Lord gwine to whack 'em one an' show 'em how little dey is. Talk about de men up yonder at de capital a fixin' up de wedder! Why, chile, he doan know a little bit about it. He may know which way a storm is comin' and de same about clear wedder, but when de papers claim dat he can make any kind of wedder to suit himself, dey is talkin' tomfoolery, 'Pears to me we fergits things mighty quick. A dry spell seem along an' de whole yearth seem like it gwine to dry up; den de peoples remember dere is a God an' dey git together and prays fur rain an' when dey 'sebles demselves together and prays wid de spirit an' de understandin' de Lord he answer de prayer an' sen' de rain. You knows dis is so, kase you done seen it, and still a fool man think he's smart an' he go on and talk like a dunce till he get real skeered, den he go to prayin'. What we needs is to skeer 'em oftener an' make dem pray more. If de peoples keep on payin' no attention de Lord he gwine to smite 'em. What we needs is more prayin' and less big talk. De Lord am a runnin' things an' he gwine to keep on."

This old woman has evidently not forgotten her raising and is sticking. Would it not be far better if we would all stick?—Greensboro Record.

"Do This One Thing Well."

Napoleon once said that God was on the side of the army of greatest number, best generalship and heaviest artillery, and the same statement applies to advertisers. The man who puts the strongest selling talk into his advertisement, that drives home the conviction hard, is the man that's going to win. Everything operates in favor of the honest and persistent advertiser. The public forms its opinion from the way you present the goods. Do this concisely and convincingly, just as if you were talking with your buyer in the store. Then you will have made one long stride toward success. Lord Bacon once said: "The secret of success lies not in doing many things, but in doing a few things well." Advertising is the vital of every mercantile business. "Do this one thing well" and get it before the eyes of your patrons in the surest and most inexpensive way possible—in the columns of your local newspaper.—Greensboro Record.

STATE NEWS.

Happenings in North Carolina.

A telegraph linesman while at work near the top of a pole, in Raleigh, was electrocuted by coming in contact with a live wire.

A night watchman at one of the furniture factories in High Point, accidentally fell into a vat of boiling water and was so badly scalded that he died in agony a few hours later.

William Uppenheimer, a 13-year old boy, was put on a train by his parents at Rocky Mount destined to Philadelphia. When he went to change cars at Washington City the conductor could not find him, the boy having completely disappeared.

John Campe and wife, of Gaston county, who were married in South Carolina 40 years ago and have since lost their record, recently applied to the register of deeds of their county for a license and were remarried in order to make the union legal. Mr. Campe is on the Federal pension roll.

At the preliminary trial of Dr. D. S. Rowland, at Henderson, charged with poisoning his son, the action was dismissed, a chemical analysis of the child's stomach failing to disclose any poison. As soon as he was released from custody Dr. Rowland was re-arrested under a warrant charging him with the murder of his wife's first husband at Raleigh. He was taken to Raleigh to answer that charge.

Gamble's Hill Monument Unveiled.

Special to Reflector:

Richmond, June 10.—Today the monument at Gamble's Hill was unveiled. This monument commemorates the first landing of white men at the falls of the James. The exercises were of a very simple nature and took place this afternoon. J. Taylor Eilysen, made the unveiling speech, and the monument was accepted in behalf of the city and of the people by Mayor McCarthy. Henry Sydney Harrison read an original poem on the first landing, and the school children of the city sang until the air. The monument was placed under the auspices of the association for the preservation of Virginia antiquities.

Georgia Day at Exposition.

Special to Reflector:

Jamestown, June 10.—This is Georgia Day, and a great crowd of people from Georgia are here, with many visitors from outside, while the international fleet is lying at anchor in Hampton Roads, and President Roosevelt is addressing the multitude, and the same time opening the negro exhibition which represents ten millions of blacks of the South, who have got together a remarkable collection of articles that exhibit their skill in agriculture, and in the mechanic arts. The bankers loaned half a million dollars in order that the exposition might be made complete by today, and matters are in better shape than they have been at any time since the exposition first broke ground.

The Law as to Enticing Cooks.

The following from the Concord Tribune will be of interest in statesville, and everywhere for that matter:

For several days past there have been many changes in the employment of cooks in this city, and for the benefit of the public a prominent lawyer hands the following to the Tribune, with a request to publish:

"Aside from the great impropriety involved in the act one renders himself liable to the not too severe penalty, $50 fine or 30 days imprisonment, denounced by the law for enticing a cook to leave the employment of another."

It might be added that the same law applies to employes other than cooks.—Stateville Landmark.

The Way of the World.

Columbus, the "dreamer," died "a vagabond beggar although his dreams had enriched the world, while a pickle dealer of Seville gave his name to the mighty continent Columbus had discovered."

And it is still so, one sows while another reaps, one digs in the dark of the mine that another may live in ease and luxury, one bores for oil and Rockefeller is known of all men. Some grub and others give. The grubber is unknown, the giver the "observed of all observers."—Farmville (Va) Herald.

Attention Red Men.

All the chiefs of Mohican tribe No. 56, Winterville, N. C., are requested to report at Wigwam on Friday night, June 14th, 1907, as important business will come before the tribe. Heber McLawhorn, Sachem. J. A. Manning, C. of R.

Protracted Meeting.

A protracted meeting has begun in Memorial Baptist church and will continue some days. Rev. W. F. Fry, of Goldsboro, who is to assist in the meeting, will preach tonight. The praise service will begin tonight at 8 o'clock and the regular service at 8:15.

Ready for Any Kind.

A man we know was getting short on underwear, so Saturday afternoon purchased a suit of light and a suit of heavy. He explained that it put him in readiness for whatever kind of weather bobbed up Sunday morning.

Birds' Power in Flight.

What is the difference between a butterfly and a balloon? Not so much as we might think. Prof. G. H. Bryan of the University College of North Wales says they are about equal in efficiency. They both can make headway in the still air. If it were not for the wind we might have aerial regattas with boats suspended from balloons using wings instead of oars.

A pigeon descending shows the great work of the wings increasing the downward and forward movement of the body, and this is difficult to imitate in a machine flight. Gulls are about the best aerial gymnasts known. They utilize the little eddies of wind thrown up by the crests and thoughts of the waves, and knows exactly where to go to get a lift from the wind.

All so-called sailing birds secure all the assistance they can from the air currents. They have to go to where the wind takes them to a certain extent and must rely upon the use of their wings if going in a particular direction. Birds possess much greater horse-power in proportion to their weight than man or animal.

The Army for Jilted Boys.

The love affairs of the very young men of Kansas City must be a duce of a state," said Lieut. Roger O. Mason, recruiting officer. "Today we have had 12 applications for enlistment, and all from boys who could not get the consent of their parents to join the army. That indicates that 12 young men who had tiffs with their sweethearts now are looking for lives of adventure and danger to make them forget their troubles, and incidentally to make the young women feel very sorry when they see the brave heroes they have scorned marching jauntily, clad in blue uniforms and brass buttons, while all the girls look on lost in admiration.

"Experience has shown that the main reason young men of good families find for wishing to enlist in the army is because of affairs of the heart which have turned out badly. Occasionally a wish for what he believes will be a career full of excitement or a boy's natural wish to be a soldier makes the young men who are under age enlist, but usually it is the heartache.—Kansas City Journal.

Why He Was a Partisan.

John Sharp Williams once ran afoul of Tom Reed. This is the way he tells the story himself: "I met Mr. Reed coming out of the cloakroom, and he said to me in that peculiar drawl of his: Williams whatever makes you such a bitter partisan?" "Well Mr. Speaker, that's pretty good coming from you, isn't it?" I replied. "Never mind me," he replied. "But why are you such a bitter partisan?" "Well I'll tell you, I said. You know I never saw a Republican until I was 38 years old, and I can't get used to them, somehow. He looked at me reproachfully and walked away without another word."—Kansas City Star.

Apples Preserved in Ice.

J. C. Braunbeck, of Walls Run, Locoming county, adopted a unique method of preserving his apples last fall. He built a bin in the orchard seven feet wide, 14 feet long and three feet high. In the bottom of this he put straw, then filled it with apples, putting straw on the sides and ends. Then he placed straw and cornstalks on top. He dug a ditch around it to keep the water from standing there.

Some water, however, found its way through the top and formed ice about each of the apples, but they were not disturbed until the ice had all melted. The apples are now sound, crisp and without a wrinkle.—Philadelphia Record.

Weather.

Fair tonight except showers in mountain districts. Tuesday fair.

As It Striketh Solomon.

Behold the eight dollar clerk. They toil not neither do they spin.

Seest thou a man diligent in business? He shall stand before kings.

The slothful servant goeth to his business like a lamb; but when he leaveth it he roareth like a young lion.

Who conquereth the man of energy will find a stubborn foe. He who followeth two hares is sure to catch neither.

If thou wouldst hire a servant, go not to the idle, but seek out him who is already working at another thing.

A fool worketh for his salary, but the wise man worketh for his employer.

Labor is the price of everything worth having.

There is an opportunity which cometh once and then is gone forever.

How to Waste Time.

By not trying especially hard to save it.

By being irregular in your habits.

By attempting to do three or four things at the same time.

By failing to ask the advice of veterans in your business.

By spending more time in telling someone else how to do a piece of work than it would take you to do it.

By sleeping so little that you are without vigor the next day.

By eating so rapidly that your stomach gives you trouble.

By having a watch that doesn't keep good time.

By being afraid to tackle a job the minute you see it is to be done.

Fire in Beach Hotel.

Special to Reflector.

Norfolk, Va., June 10.—The Princess Anne hotel at Virginia Beach was badly damaged by fire this morning. Two of the employes are unaccounted for and it is supposed they perished in the fire.

Auto Race Starts.

Original Observations.

June roses are wearing overcoats.

The rare days of June are raw and the frost is on the hat of straw.

Memory is the only paradise out of which we cannot be driven away.

Some men are locked up for safebreaking and some for safe-keeping.

Did you ever notice that the meanest people always have the longest memories.

Some men who join the procession when the band begins to play leave it as soon as the music ceases.

The more we do to add to the happiness of others the more sunshine and contentment comes to us.—Orange, Va, Observer.

Small Fire.

Saturday afternoon a barbecue kitchen below Turnage's stables, on Fifth street, caught on fire. The damage did not amount to much, though the building was pretty much demolished in putting out the fire.

It will not be long before house connections can be made with the street sewers.

Greenville Encampment meets tonight. Business of importance and every member requested to be present.

Dry Cleaning Laces.

To clean lace get a large paper bag and put the laces into it. Pour in a quart or more of Indian meal, and shake the bag up and down—not too hard, but steadily—for some minutes. Do this several days and four or five times a day.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Mrs. Munford has been in Wilson several days at the bedside of her mother and Mr. Munford went there Sunday. The message also stated that Mrs. Elam, a sister of Mrs. Munford, was critically ill and not expected to recover.

MONDAY JUNE 10th 1907.

There are more poor folks in June than any other time of the year.

Who will be Greenville's next mayor is coming along for occasional mention.

The fruit of one Orchard in Idaho seems to be very buggy.

It is a long time ahead yet, but after the convention is over some of them will discover that they only ran.

When the brethren finally get settled on those ten best things to eat, we hope they will pass some of them around, or get up a spread and send out invitations.

As it seems to be understood that the officer of commissioner of labor and printing will be filled by a newspaper man, several of the brethren are expressing a willingness to have it.

The wise man contemplating owning a home in Greenville should not wait until after the training school is located to buy a lot. It will be money in your pocket to buy now, and not be long about it.

As Kinston was far outdistanced in cash bidding for the Eastern training school, the Free Press takes another turn and says that town ought to get it because of its water. Oh, come off Bud! The board is not dealing in watered stocks.

The News and Observer is the only paper around Raleigh that does not seem to have found out anything about the Eastern Carolina teachers training school, and that Greenville was by far the highest bidder for it. But the News and Observer has showed from the beginning that it was against Greenville in the matter.

RANDOM REFLECTIONS.

By a Contributor.

Booker T. Washington has secured a summer home within three miles of the Roosevelt home on Sagamore Hill, but he will need sharp ears to "hear the dinner bell" at this distance.

A Texas judge has ruled that a common table fork is not a deadly weapon. Possibly it will now be easier to induce the Texans to make more general use of it.

During the president's visit to Lansing, Mich., the mayor prohibited the sale of peanuts. Perhaps he didn't want people to get the impression that an entire circus was coming to town.

The next edition of "Wild Animals I Have Known" by Ernest Seton Thompson, will doubtless include the president.

According to the census figures, there are 4,833,630 bread-winners among the women of this country. If there were that many good bread-makers among them, there would be a falling off in the demand for dyspepsia tablets.

A Memphis woman has sued the same man for divorce five times in seven years. After a while he will be getting tired of paying for that kind of amusement for her.

The ice cream soda crop should not be omitted from the list of failures for which eccentric climate is held responsible.

Well equipped summer resorts this year should provide furnished bathing suits and oil-stoves.

Isn't Foraker somewhat behind the times in talking about "the man on horseback?" The man in the automobile is the man of the hour.

Prices are on a higher level than they have been for seven-teen years, according to the bureau of labor. We are glad to know they are on the level if it is higher.

The charge of the straw hat brigade is not yet--but soon.

The Irish are threatening to boycott all goods bearing a portrait of the British lion. This is a new way of twisting that animal's tail.

A scientist has discovered that bullets carry disease germs, but we assure him that we needed no information of that kind to strengthen our determination not to stop any bullets if we can help it.

The peasant folk of the eastern Switzerland take their weather presages for the coming winter in a large degree from the character of "Gallus-Tag," the festival of their Scottish (or shall we say Irish) apostle, St. Gall. His festival occurs on Sept. 16. "If it rains on Gallus-Tag," say the folk of modern St. Gallen, "it will rain until Christmas." "As it is on St. Gall's day, so it will be through the winter." "It is St. Gall who makes the snow to fall." "Before St. Gall comes take your garden plants indoors." "A dry Gallus-Tag foretells a dry summer next year."—Westminster Gazette.

His Return Ticket. "Two duelists were taking the early train for Fontainebleau, their place of meeting," said a recent visitor to France. "A return trip," said the first duelist to the ticket agent. "Single for me," said the second man quietly. "Ah," blustered the other, "you are afraid you won't come back, are you? As for me, I always take a return." "I never do," said the second man. "I always take my return half from the dead man's pocket."

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. GENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves". Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write to-day for sample and free Bock. ### THE IRISH CODE.

Duelling as it Flourished Years Ago in the Green Isle.

In the Green Isle duelling flourished years ago as much as it did in France. When a Trinity college student asked the provost what books he had better bring to college the latter said: "Never mind the books. Bring a case of pistols." The students were in the habit of settling those little affairs either just before or just after morning prayers. All the distinguished Irishmen of the eighteenth century were duellists. Curran, Grattan, Sheridan, Barrington, Fitzgibbon, Flood, O'Connell, were often "out," and later the O'Gorman Mahon had twenty-two affairs to his credit. The bar led the list.

Lord chancellors and masters of the rolls fought like cornets of horse. Lord Norbury fought "Fighting" Fitzgerald and two others, besides "frightening" Naper Tandy, as the Irish historians tell us. Galway was great with the pistol, Tipperary with the sword. Two English "fines lames," Major Park and Captain Creed, went to Ireland to find foemen worthy of their steel and found them in Mr. Matthew and Mr. Macnamara, who fought with them in a private room at an inn, wounded them nearly unto death, nursed them back into health and were rewarded with their friendship. Colonel Barrington and Mr. Gilbert, two middle aged married men, had a desperate duel in 1759 because they did not wish to leave an unsettled quarrel as a legacy for their children. They fought on horseback with sword, pistol and "skeen," or Irish bowie knife. First the pistols were fired, Barrington receiving some of the charge in his face, but he rushed on Gilbert, killed his horse with his broadsword, dismounted and, putting his "skeen" to the other's throat, called upon him to "ask for his life on pain of death." Gilbert agreed to shake hands and be friends, but without condition or apology. Barrington consented.

"Fighting" Fitzgerald, a well known character, a cousin of the Earl of Desmond, an Eton boy, an Oxford graduate and an officer in the Sixty-ninth foot, fought eighteen duels and was thought by many to be mad. He hired a gang of ruffians, waylaid and killed a gentleman on the king's highway and was hanged at Castlebar. Among others he encountered Martin of Galway, the Rev. Richard Bate and Captain Harvey Ashton, afterward killed at Madras in a duel with Colonel Allen. The Ashton duel and another fought by Clive with a Calcutta civilian indirectly helped British arms to many victories. The first made way for a Colonel Welleley, afterward better known under another name, to an important command before Seringapatam. The second had, by displaying the desperate courage of Clive, secured him a military appointment in a time of emergency.—Cornhill Magazine.

Lives of Animals.

Domesticated animals as a rule live longer than their wild kindred. A dog may live twenty years. Wolves, foxes and cats live to fifteen years.

Pigs attain forty years. Horses reach twenty-six to twenty-seven years. But there is an instance on record of a mare attaining the ripe old age of sixty-two. Street car horses rarely ever last longer than twelve to thirteen years.

Despite his cheerful disposition a squirrel rarely ever lives to be older than seven, while, on the other hand, the sober minded camel manages to live 100 years.

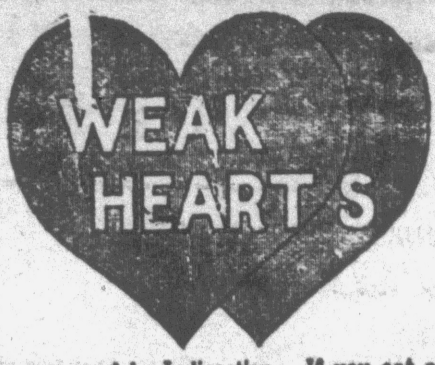

Bears die at twenty, lions a little older, but the patriarch of them all is the elephant. He is in his prime somewhere near 100 and only begins to feel the effects of age when he gets to be 300 or 400 years old.

A Passion For Buttons.

Louis XIV., the "grand monarch," had a positive passion for buttons. In 1685, when his craze was at its highest, he spent no less than $600,000 in this strange form of indulgence. Among the items of which this expenditure was made up are the following: Aug. 1, 1685, two diamond buttons, value 67,866 francs; 75 diamond buttons, value 586,703 francs. On the buttons for a single vest he spent $200,000. Of the 354 "boutonnieres" used 162 contained five diamonds each. It is estimated that during his lifetime this foolish monarch spent no less than $5,000,000 on buttons alone.

Not Satisfactory.

A party of tourists were visiting the ancient landmarks of England, according to a writer in the New Orleans Times-Democrat, and their guide was supplying them with valuable historic facts. "This tower," he remarked, "goes back to William the Conqueror." "Why, what's the matter," inquired one of his listeners, "isn't it satisfactory?"

are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart. Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

After eating, my food would distress me by making my heart palpitate and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured. MRS. LORING NICHOLS, Penn Yan, N. Y.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things have constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put on the label if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! Hereafter for this very reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chances then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

Medicine In Ancient Egypt.

There is in evidence in inscriptions and manuscripts that the ancient Egyptians practiced medicine and surgery extensively. Probably their practice was based on little knowledge of anatomy. Each physician treated only one or two diseases. The sick were exposed in public places, so that others who had suffered similarly might tell them of helpful remedies. Diseases of the eye were best understood and received both medical and surgical treatment. The most important medical manuscript found in Egypt is "Papyrus Ebers," written 3000 B. C. and discovered in Memphis. Disease, according to the Egyptians, was due to the anger of some deity, the triumph of evil in its struggle with good, an idea which is still very general throughout Africa and Asia, and which at some time has been prevalent in modified form in almost every race. —"Records of the Past."

A Memory With One Failing.

James, telling his friend Smith of an incident that had occurred some twenty-five years ago, and the latter remarked on the wonderful memory his friend possessed. The compliment seemed to please James. "My best," he said, "never fails me anything when it is once in there," pointing to his forehead.

Amusing Cheap Signs.

English boys always often provide amusing signs. A Rochdale clothier named Brown had his window sign led by a boy with a hand cart. Five minutes afterward the broken pane was covered by a square of white paper, on which these words appeared in bold letters: "An able-bodied beggar did this with a hand cart. Don't say, 'Poor fellow, let me come in and buy an orange,' for the door of a Whitehead's is only to be seen this sign, which does a great deal of humor here in the east end. 'Send your clothes here to be mended. I am deaf and dumb. Least said, soonest mended.' —Grand Magazine."

Two Helms Make One.

Violet and her two grown-up sisters and several brothers. A neighbor asked her how many brothers she had, and she answered correctly, "Four many sisters?" was then asked, "One," she replied. "That's right, Violet," said her mother, "and you're right. You know the name and there's Katherine." "Oh, I know, mamma," said Violet, "but they are only half sisters." —Chicago Tribune.

EARLY THEATERS.

London's First Playhouse and New York's Oldest Theater.

Few of the comedians who heap contumely upon Philadelphia with jokes built upon her alleged slowness realize the fact that the Quaker City furnished New York with its first theatrical company. This was on Monday, the 5th of March, 1750, at a theater on Nassau street. The play was "Richard III.," with Thomas Kean for Richard. The actors were billed as "the Philadelphia company in New York" and played a highly varied repertoire. They came over from England two or three years before and opened in Philadelphia, then the chief city in the British colonies, where they had the honor of presenting the first tragedy ("Richard III."), the first comedy (Dryden's "Spanish Friar") and the first musical piece ("The Beggars' Opera") ever given in America—or in English speaking America, at any rate—by a regular troupe. They were forced to leave Philadelphia for New York owing to an ordinance which called the attention of the authorities to "certain persons taking upon themselves to act plays." The site of their Philadelphia theater was Little Dock street, lying between Chestnut and Walnut and between First and Second streets.

London's first playhouse was called simply the Theater and was erected outside the city walls, on Finsbury fields, in the year 1576. Its builder was James Burbage, an actor, father of the more famous player, Richard Burbage, the original Hamlet. It was taken down some eighteen years later, and the materials were used in the erection of the Globe, Shakespeare's house, opened around 1598. The Curtain, London's second theater, in what is now Gloucester street, near Hollywood street, was so called, strange to say, not from the drop, but from the name of the manor house on the site of which it was put up a few months after the Theater was inaugurated.

The oldest theater now standing in New York is the Thalia, on the Bowery. It was first opened on Oct. 23, 1823, under the name of the Bowery theater, and as such became one of the most famous playhouses in America. The building was three times destroyed by fire—once on May 26, 1828; again on Sept. 22, 1836, and a third time on Feb. 18, 1838. On all three occasions the house was rebuilt and reopened in a remarkably short time. This theater has been the home of every form of amusement, from circus to Shakespearean performances, and upon its stage some of the greatest players America has seen made their debut.—Scrap Book.

Tit For Tit.

A college professor who prided himself on his correct English heard his wife remark, "I intended to tell Jane to bring a fresh bucket of water."

"You doubtless mean a bucket of fresh water," corrected the professor. "I wish you would pay some little attention to your rhetoric. Your mistakes are curious." A few minutes later the professor said, "My dear, that picture would show to better advantage if you were to hang it over the clock."

"Ah," she replied quietly, "you doubtless mean if I were to hang it above the clock. If I were to hang it over the clock we could not tell the time. I wish you would be more careful with your rhetoric, my dear. Your mistakes are curious."

And the professor all at once became very much interested in his book.—London World.

The Grave of Goldsmith.

That Oliver Goldsmith was buried in the churchyard of the Temple has been placed beyond doubt by the entry in the register. But the stone on the north side of the Temple church has been placed on a spot purely conjectural, for the exact position of the grave has never been discovered. The real site was remembered as late as 1830. In that year the sexton, a very aged man, who apparently was present at the burial, still venerated an elder tree which, he said, marked the site of Goldsmith's grave. This elder tree seems to have stood a few feet south of the present stone, near the old vestry.—Westminster Gazette.
