

CHILD CHOKES TO DEATH.

Unable to Release His Head From Grasp of Iron Bars in Bedstead, the 18-Months-Old Infant of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Ecard Dies—Funeral Yesterday.

Death in a distressing manner came yesterday morning to the 18-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Ecard, who live in Villa Heights. Some time between midnight and 2 o'clock the child's head became caught between two of the upright rods at the head of the iron bed in which he was sleeping. When found, about 2 o'clock, by an older sister he was dying and although a physician was summoned his efforts were unavailing. Death resulted from strangulation.

Unusual features of the affair are the facts that both of the parents of the child are deaf and dumb, while he possessed these faculties. Whether or not his parents' infirmity contributed aught to his death through their inability to hear his cries is not known. The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon from the residence at 5 o'clock, being conducted by Rev. W. J. Smith. The interment was in Sugar Creek graveyard.—Charlotte Observer.

The True Freedom.

A ship sailing from the Orient brought a large number of caged birds. When they were about in midocean, one restless bird escaped from his cage. In an ecstasy of delight he swept through the air, away and away from his prison. He fairly bounded with outstretched wings! Freedom! How sweet he thought it! Across the pathless waste he disappeared. But after hours had passed to the amazement of crew and passengers, he appeared again, struggling toward the ship with heavy wings. Panting and breathless, he settled upon the deck. Far, far over the boundless deep, how eagerly, how painfully had he sought the ship again, now no longer a prison, but his dear home. One of the passengers who had been greatly interested in the incident, afterwards wrote: "As I watched him nestle down on the deck, I thought of the restless human heart that breaks away from the restraints of religion. With buoyant wing he bounds away from church the prison, and God the prison. But if he is not lost on the remorseless deep, he comes back again with panting, eager heart to church the home, and God the home. The church is not a prison to any man. It gives the most perfect freedom in all that is good, and all that is safe."—Sunday-School Times.

As to Marriage.

"The unrestricted marriage laws of South Carolina have resulted in blighting the hopes of hundreds of parents in North Carolina who have seen the opportunities of life closed to a son or daughter, who at an early age, under a craze which they called 'love,' hurried to South Carolina and got married when they knew no more about married life than a six-month-old yearling."

"If young people would always wait to reach the ages of 25 or 30 years before marriage there wouldn't be so many examples that an argument that 'marriage is a failure.' While it is true that through natural mental weakness a giddy-headed pair of things at an age that wear pants, cloth and calico may sometimes marry quickly through 'love at first sight,' it is not often that 'marriage is a failure' if the couple carry with them a sufficient amount of age and experience to be guided by mature judgment and common sense."—Our Home.

THE MEETING CLOSED.

Seven Present Themselves for Membership in the Church.

The protracted meeting that had been in progress for ten days in Memorial Baptist church, came to a close Wednesday night. Rev. W. F. Fry, pastor of the First Baptist church of Goldsboro, was here to assist in the meeting and preached twice each day. His sermons were a delight to his hearers and Christians of the different denominations attending the services were strengthened in their faith and duties. The meeting was a blessing to Greenville and its influence for good will long be felt.

After the closing sermon Mr. Fry spoke of the pleasure to himself to have been here for ten days and said he had never preached to a people whose interest and kindness had more impressed him and drawn his heart more closely in love to them.

The pastor of the church, Mr. Ayscue, speaking for the congregation and people of the town, expressed the pleasure of all in having Mr. Fry here and listening to his helpful sermons.

The doors of the church were opened and seven presented themselves for membership. An opportunity will be given others to unite with the church at Sunday morning's service, and the ordinance of baptism will be administered Sunday night.

Show Value of Play Grounds.

Special to Reflector.

Chicago, June 30.—A practical demonstration of organized play for 7,000 school children of all ages will be a feature of the convention of the playground association of America, which opened here this morning for a session of three days. The object of the association, of which President Roosevelt is the honorary president, is to encourage municipalities and volunteer societies throughout the country to maintain, as part of an educational system of physical training and character building, play-grounds conducted by persons qualified especially for this purpose.

A Drug Clerk's Error and the Disastrous Result.

The 5-year-old son of Mr. J. W. Kiser, of Charlotte, died Friday night as the result of a drug clerk's fatal error. A prescription was sent to Jordan's drug store and Mr. Chas. Kidd, a clerk who had just returned from his vacation, took it in charge. By misreading the prescription, or having his mind on something else, he put in carbolic acid instead of castor oil. When the first dose of medicine was given the child he spit it out, saying it burned. All unconscious of what the medicine contained, the parents administered a second dose, and death resulted in about an hour.

The affair was most distressing. The drug clerk and the father of the child were fast friends and the young man whose unintentional error brought so grave and distressing results has suffered greatly.—Statesville Landmark.

To Inspect Sites.

The State Board of Education today began its tour of inspections of the sites offered by the different towns for the location of the Eastern training school. Rocky Mount and Tarboro were visited today, and the board will reach Greenville on the midday train tomorrow. The members of the board will be met at the depot by a committee of citizens with carriages and taken around to the different sites offered here. Aside from this Greenville will make no demonstration whatever over the visit of the board, but complies strictly with the wishes of the gentlemen.

COTTON BANKS

The latest scheme of the Southern Cotton Association, according to a special from Columbia to The Charleston News and Courier, is the organization of cotton banks. The proposition to be placed before the farmers and business men of the whole South during the month of July, the special says, is the organization of what may be called "cotton banks." In other words, it is proposed to do a banking business with cotton as capital. In the language of E. D. Smith, cotton is the South's currency and there is no reason why it should not be utilized as a basis for banking as well as silver or gold, in any community where the farmers and local business men can secure $50,000 or $100,000 as capital it is planned that they shall organize a company and erect a warehouse, which must be built according to regulation plans. Then they will be ready for business and will propose that any farmer or any number of farmers deposit with them their cotton, just as they might deposit money with a bank. Supposing that 400 bales of cotton are deposited in this way and placed in the warehouse, with insurance guaranteed by the company and no storage charged, the company would proceed to utilize this cotton just as the bank utilizes the money deposited by its customers.

Taking the warehouse receipts for 400 bales of cotton, the company would go to a bank, or any other concern or person having money to lend, and borrow money upon these receipts at the current rate and the current price of cotton. With this money so borrowed the company would go into the local market and purchase other cotton, say 300 bales, which would be placed in the warehouse. Then upon these 300 bales the company would again go to the bank and borrow money and with this money again go into the local market and purchase other cotton, say 200 bales. These 200 bales would then be placed in the warehouse and upon them the company would borrow money with which again to enter the market and purchase other cotton, say 100 bales. This operation could be kept up until the borrowing capacity of the cotton was exhausted, but this would hardly be necessary at any time, and it would be possible to return the original 400 bales whenever the owner made demand.

All of this reads mighty well on paper, but to our mind the Southern Cotton Association is putting too many irons in the fire. The warehouse plan is all right—is practical and sure—but when the farmers undertake to do a banking business with cotton as capital, they are more than likely to get into trouble. We hope the Mecklenburg farmers will think twice before investing in the cotton banks. At the price sand is selling now, it would be probably more profitable for them to invest in sand banks.—Charlotte Chronicle.

RAIN WON'T LET BIRDIES SING.

By Mrs. W. G. Williams.
O the dripping rain, falling down all day,
It stops the birds, sweet tune.
(Doesn't seem like June.)
And the children want to play.
We need no hydrant at the door,
But just a little tub or two,
Or a little canoe.

COTTON FACTORY.

List Open to Subscribe Shares.

Some days ago The Reflector made reference to a movement in progress to establish a manufacturing plant here with not less than $100,000 capital. Numerous inquiries were made by people wanting to take part in the enterprise as to whom they should apply for shares, but the information was not ready to give out at the time.

Now for the convenience of those who are interested, a subscription list has been placed at The Reflector office where those desiring to do so can subscribe for the number of shares they wish to take in the factory. The shares will be for $100 each, and the company will be organized when the total subscriptions reach $100,000.

This is a home enterprise, and a cotton factory is one of Greenville's needs. You can show your faith and interest in development of the community by coming promptly to subscribe shares to help organize this manufacturing company.

The spirit of co-operation that has taken hold of Greenville in late years, ought to make it easy to secure enough subscriptions to establish this cotton factory. The sooner the requisite number of shares are subscribed the sooner organization can be perfected and work on the factory begin.

CENSUS OF LOVERS ON WHY THEY LOVE.

Dr. Hall Finds Eyes, Hair, Size, and Even Feet, Are Chief Among Attractions.

Precisely what it is—what attribute or physical characteristic—in the youth or maiden, the man or woman, that most attracts one of the opposite sex, is a problem of which Dr. G. Stanley Hall, professor of psychology in and president of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., has set out to find the solution. To this end he has taken a census of young lovers, with a view to learning what in each case has most endeared to him or her the object of their affection.

It was Dr. Hall who recently declared that 50 per cent of college women failed to marry, thus contributing to race suicide. The complete result of this census of lovers Dr. Hall has not yet given to the public, but he has made known an abstract of what he has learned. With hundreds of lovers heard from, Dr. Hall states that the characteristics specified by them are, in the order of their frequency, as follows:

Eyes, hair, size or stature, feet, brows, complexion, cheeks, form of head, throat, ears, chin, hands, neck, nose, finger nails and contour of face. Which is to say that more of those lovers interrogated have found the loved one's eyes or hair the chief attraction than anything else.

The women replying to Dr. Hall's suggestions have also specified these charms in the men they loved best:

Regular teeth, broad shoulders and white teeth; and most popular among men have been long lashes and arched brows.

According to some of those replying, a rousseau nose, freckles and a long neck have been the chief charms.

The voice cuts an important figure among the charms. With some it is a high voice; with others a low voice. Even a lisp has been stated as a charm. Laughter, carriage, gait, gesture movements of the eye, pose of head and shoulders have also been specified in the replies.

Ships Sink to the Bottom.

Professor Davis of Harvard university, author of a noted physical geography, says, "Anything which is heavy enough to sink at the top will sink all the way to the bottom." Water is almost incompressible, and for this reason its density, even at the greatest depths, varies very slightly from that at the surface; hence steel will be of greater density than water at any depth and will consequently sink to the bottom.

An Old Story.

Senator Tillman was discussing a recent quarrel among financiers.

"These men threw a good deal of mud at each other," he said, smiling, "and most of the mud stuck. It was an interesting squabble. It reminded me of an incident in a Southern jail."

"There were two prisoners in this jail. One was for stealing a cow. The other was for stealing a watch."

"Exercising in the court yard one morning the first prisoner said tauntingly to the other:

"What time is it?"
"Milking time, was the retort."—Washington Star.

THURSDAY JUNE 20th 1907.

Greenville is attending strictly her own business.

With the prospect of cotton prices next fall, the farmers who have sold their crop in advance around ten cents are going to realize their mistake.

When one town can advance its claims only by running down some other town, it is getting down to small business. The same rule will apply to individuals.

Since the president has slipped away to Oyster Bay for the summer, the Ananias club seems to be doing business elsewhere than at the capital. Or possibly a new club is organizing in opposition to his.

We quarrel a lot with the Lord but he brings things out all right. People imagined from the quality of the weather for the past two months or more that the wheat and corn crop would be short, but farmers who know say that wheat is the best in years, while the prospect for corn so far is excellent.—Greensboro Record.

Sermonette to Boys.

My dear boys I want to bring you an example of a man who, today, is worth millions of dollars but who as a boy was poorer than anyone of you before me. I speak of him not because he was successful in making money, but because of the honest labor and attention to business which he carried with him all thro' his life. We know him today as Andrew Carnegie, who has given so much for the establishment of libraries and the cause of education. Remember he was once a messenger boy in a telegraph office in Altoona. As a boy he was honest in all he did. He did well what he had to do. In addressing a company of gentlemen recently he used these words:

"Gentlemen, I was born to poverty. I wouldn't exchange with the richest millionaire's son who ever breathed. What does he know about a father and a mother? Ah! I tell you it is the mother who is seamstress, cook, washer, angel and saint—no servant to intervene. In his father the poor boy has guide, philosopher and friend.

"I am honest and think there is very little in wealth that can add to human happiness." When a boy he said, "he never cared so much for salary as he did for position." His mind was on his work not on "how much," he was going to get. My boys, you should learn that to succeed requires above all else, hard work and honesty.

COURTSHIP IN ZUNILAND.

Women Do the Weaving and Pop the Pills, Question.

The process of courtship in Zuniland, where the women do the weaving and pop the pills, is particularly favorable to them in domestic matters. These peculiar liberties are manifest before marriage as well as after, for the alleged privileges of leap year hold rule continuously in Zuniland. When one of the daughters of the tribe takes an amorous liking for a young man she frankly confesses it, and her parents are informed of her choice of a prospective husband. If they approve, the interesting information is imparted in due time to his family, and if the as yet perhaps unsuspecting subject of the selection is suited, in turn he makes, through the mutual parents, an engagement to visit his admirer at her home. He is received somewhat formally by the maiden and her family when something like the following laconic conversation ensues between the young people, while the father and mother, with the other members of the household, sit apart, amiably pretending not to listen:

"Thou comest," she says. "Yes. How be ye these many days?" he answers.

"Happy. Gather and sit." And she motions him to a seat near her.

As a never failing hospitality on the part of the hostess when a visitor enters a Zuniland home, she places food before him and bids him "loosen his belt and lessen his hunger." But he appears preoccupied and partakes quite sparingly, to give the polite impression that he is a light eater—an important point in favor of a prospective husband.

"Thanks. I am satisfied," he says after dining off little more than a bird's rations.

"Eat enough. You must have some thinking of something. What have you to say?" she asks encouragingly.

"I don't know."

"Oh, yes, you do. Tell me," she coyly persists.

"I'm thinking of you," in a whisper.

"Indeed! You must be mistaken."

"No."

"Then do you love me?"

"I love you."

"Truly?"

"Truly."

"Possibly. We shall see. What think you, father?" as she turns in apparent perplexity to the family group.

"As you wish, my child," her parent replies.

She then appears to ponder the matter for the first time and after due consideration of the momentous question consents to become his ylu-kia-ni-na, or "his to be," and from that time on they are as devoted to each other as are lovers in any clime.—Pearson's Weekly.

Best Side of a Cemetery.

Probably few people know that there is a choice side to every cemetery. Thus in some parts of the world the eastern portion, without regard to its situation, is always deemed the most desirable. This preference arises from the old tradition that our Lord will appear from the east. It is also believed that the dead in the eastern portion will be the first to rise, then those in the southern, western and northern in order. In England it was once the custom of laying felons and other bad characters on the north side of the church. The custom of laying the dead in a certain direction is responsible for the Welsh designation for the east wind, "The wind of the dead men's feet."

Antiquity of the Oyster.

The oyster is an old citizen. The Roman satirist, Juvenal, sings his praises, and doubtless his flavor was well known to Caesar, Augustus and the other distinguished gentlemen of old Rome. It would not be pressing the case too far to assume that Plato and his old friends, Socrates, Pericles and Phidias, and the rest of the immortal group who made Athens famous, knew what it was to taste the "delightful bivalve." For that matter, the accumulations of oyster shells in the kitchen middens of the neolithic age show that oysters were appreciated for thousands of years before either Rome or Athens was heard of.

Time's Changes.

"I takes notice," philosophically said old Brother Dinger, who was a great hand to cogitate, "dat in dese days, whilst we are des as glad as we ever was when a sannah reffawns, we don't make so much fuss about it as we used to. We respects and indawses his action as much as we ever did, but we don't shout so loud. Nowadays de prodigal bring along his own calf. If he don't he's libbe to butt up ag'in disappointment. We's a heap mo' for solid business dese times and lots less for noise dan we used to was, yassah."—Kansas City Independent.

There is no case of indigestion, no matter how irritable or how obstinate that will not be speedily relieved by the use of Kodol. The main factor in curing the stomach of any disorder is rest, and the only way to get rest is to actually digest the food for the stomach itself. Kodol will do it. It is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids containing the very same juices found in a healthy stomach. It conforms to the Pure Food and Drug Law. Sold by John L. Wooten.

Some people think if they have a little money they are rich—what would they think if they were in Rockefeller's place.

All stomach trouble are quickly relieved by taking a little Kodol after each meal. Kodol goes directly to the seat of the trouble, strengthens the digestive organs, supplies the natural digestve juices and digests what you eat. It is a simple, clean, pure, harmless remedy. Don't neglect your stomach. Take a little Kodol after each meal and see how good it makes you feel. Money back if it fails. Sold by John L. Wooten.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves". Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write to-day for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by Bryans Drug Store.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

Literally Speaking, the Doctor Told the Truth.

Two or three generations ago Dr. Samuel Reed was one of the prominent physicians of Boston. His large practice included many patients outside the city limits, and these he visited in a buggy.

One day he bought a new horse, with which he was much pleased until he discovered that the animal had an insurmountable objection to bridges of all kinds and could not be made to cross one.

As at this period it was necessary to cross some bridge in order to reach any one of the surrounding towns, the doctor decided to sell the horse. He did not think it necessary to mention the animal's peculiarity, but was much too honest to misrepresent him, and after some thought he produced the following advertisement, which he inserted in a local paper:

For Sale.—A bay horse, warranted sound and kind. The only reason for selling is because the owner is obliged to leave Boston.

are caused by Indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart. Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

"WHO FEARS TO SPEAK OF '98?"

When the late John Kells Ingram, formerly senior fellow and vice-provost of Trinity college, Dublin, wrote the ballad "Who Fears to Speak of Ninety-eight?" by which he was so well known, he was a young student in his twentieth year. A writer in the Manchester Guardian tells that about the time when the ballad appeared preparations were being made for the arrest and prosecution of the "Young Irelanders" for high treason. The whole tone of Trinity college was then, as it is now, anti-Irish, and the college authorities took the alarm. His own friends and relations joined in persuading Ingram not to write any more ballads. The result of the influences brought to bear upon the youthful poet was that he never again wrote a word of what may be called Irish national literature. It is said that in after life he was anxious to let it be known that he had ceased to entertain the views of his student days, and a Dublin wag once said that the true answer to the question, "Who fears to speak of ninety-eight?" was "John Kells Ingram." But this imputation seems to be without foundation. — Westminster Gazette.

Mme. Marchesi.

In my opinion the greatest living teacher of singing is Mme. Matilde Marchesi of Paris. I think her a marvel of scientific method, and when she goes from us we shall have lost a personality impossible to replace. The spirit of her method—derived in turn from old Manuel Garcia and directly through him from the long line of Italian masters—may be crudely summarized as follows: "Change to the middle notes on F. Begin the head notes on F sharp, and once on the head notes always sing pianissimo." While with her I took only three short lessons every week. But I worked eight hours a day studying theory, tradition and technique—the old Italian technique that tells a pupil how to "flair il tuono"—to spin a tone as subtly and delicately as a spider spins its almost impalpable web of silk.—Nellie Melba in Century.

The Wood We Use.

Every person in the United States is using over six times as much wood as he would use if he were in Europe. The country as a whole consumes every year between three and four times as much wood as all of the forests of the United States grow in the meantime. The average acre of forest lays up a store of only ten cubic feet annually, whereas it ought to be laying up at least thirty cubic feet in order to furnish the products taken out of it. Since 1880 more than 700,000,000,000 feet of lumber have been cut for lumber alone, including 80,000,000,000 feet of coniferous timber in excess of the total coniferous stumpage estimate of the census in 1880. —Caspar Whitney in Outing Magazine.
