

Ashley Horne, of Clayton Candidate for Governor

Clayton, N. C., June 8, 1907. To the Democrats of North Carolina:

Ashley Horne, of this place, is a candidate for governor, subject to the action of the democratic state convention.

I have known Mr. Horne all of his life, and feel that it is not out of place for me, of my own knowledge to state what manner of man he is. He is a native of Johnston county; is sixty-five years old; had a common school education, but in early manhood volunteered as a private in the Confederate army, and following the fortune of the army of northern Virginia for four years, and surrendered with it at Appomattox. His record as a soldier is without blemish.

After the war he had neither the time nor ability to complete his education. Necessity required him to go to work. The first year after going home he cultivated a crop, then clerked in a store, and in 1837 began merchandising for himself. He prospered, made friends of his customers, and many of the men who began to trade with him forty years ago are still his customers and friends.

As a farmer and as a business man he has been successful and he has also embarked in other lines of business. Now he is regarded as one of the most successful men in the state. While he has other large lines, and is engaged in banking, insurance, manufacturing, merchandising, he is still a large and active farmer. He is not merely a farmer on paper, but every day during the crop season a visitor would be apt to find him in the field, actually carrying on large, active, and successful farming operations. And so well formed does he keep himself on market prices of farm products, that many will recall that during several recent years has published cotton letters which have contained whole some advice to the farmers with regard to holding their cotton. This advice has proved to be well founded, and there is no estimating the money it saved the farmers of the state, and they were not slow in expressing their gratitude to him. In fact he is on all business propositions a very practical and wise counsellor.

He was one of the organizers of the Cotton Growers' Association, and he has established warehouses somewhat on the line of the bonded warehouse system now advocated by that association.

He has always been a straight, regular and organization democrat. He has voted the democratic tickets as they were printed.

In the early 90's when populism was making such headway among the people, he opposed it, but he understood the hard conditions under which the farmers were suffering; and, instead of denouncing their movement as many unwise men did, he treated them with kindness and sympathy, dissuading them from leaving the democratic party, but never denouncing them. In the country immediately contiguous to Clayton, populism never made any headway, and one of the reasons it made no headway, was the wise and kindly manner in which the farmers were treated by Mr. Horne and other Democrats. After the fusion of populism and Republicanism carried the State, and when many Democrats felt that it would be best for us to make some arrangement with the populists by which the state could be redeemed, Mr. Horne was outspoken in his denunciation of the movement. Six or eight years before he had been moderate and conciliatory in dealing with the populists, for he understood the burden which the farmers were then staggering. But in 1898 he had no sympathy for any movement looking to a fusion with Butler, Russell, and Thompson. He was outspoken in denouncing any such proposition. He came to the state convention in 1898 and threw his whole influence in favor of a straight fight.

If there is one idea in Mr. Horne's mind, or if there is one motive in his life which predominates over all others, it is his opposition and hatred of monopolies and combines. He has always stood for the individual and in favor of the freest competition. He does not believe in any law which gives one man an advantage over another, and he believes that any agreement between two or more men, or two or more companies to restrict competition, or to create a monopoly is a crime against human right and ought to be punished in the severest manner. He is a practical trust fighter. Not a trust buster on paper, but a man who has systematically and earnestly fought monopolies in the only way he found it practicable to fight them.

When the cotton-oil industry became important he was one of the men who organized the first cotton-oil mill in Raleigh. When he ascertained that the American Cotton Oil Company had obtained control of that mill, he sold every dollar of his stock and retired. When it appeared that the fertilizer business was going into the hands of large concerns, he was one of the men who helped organize the Raleigh Phosphate & Fertilizer Works, near the city of Raleigh. Propositions were made to buy that mill and Mr. Horne opposed it and offered to become responsible for the future of the mill himself provided it was kept independent. A few years ago, when it appeared that the American Cotton Oil Company and the Southern Cotton Oil Company would control the cotton seed market of the south, and they possibly might combine and regulate prices, immediately Mr. Horne assisted in the building of an independent mill at Clayton, which mill is now owned and controlled by Clayton people and run independently. It provides an independent market for seed, and furnishes independent of other companies fertilizers.

He is president of the Clayton Cotton Mills. In 1902 many North Carolina mills favored going into a combination, so as to effect it was said, large economy. The proposition was made to Mr. Horne to have the Clayton mills included in the merger. He declined to even submit the proposition to the stockholders. The fate of that merger justified the wisdom of his course.

He was one of the first men to advocate the formation of home insurance companies, both fire and life, and to stop the outflow of North Carolina money for insurance. He was one of the early stockholders of the North Carolina Home, and is an officer and director in a number of successful life and fire companies.

One of the rules of his business life is to give the preference where practicable to do so, to local and independent companies, rather than to foreign companies or large combinations of capital. As far as it is possible to do so, he taboos trusts and monopolies. From the purchase of the oil which lubricates his machinery to the placing of insurance upon his property he always gives the preference to local dealers and independent companies.

Mr. Horne is not identified with any particular faction of the party. He is neither conservative nor radical, so called. He is a Democrat plain. If elected to office, he will not endeavor to build up any faction, nor to create any personal following looking to his future advancement. He will be content to serve the people in the office of governor for four years, and at the end of the term return to private life. He will not attempt to use the great office of governor as a stepping stone to any higher honors.

Mr. Horne will not make a canvass of the State prior to the convention. If nominated, he will take the stump and ably uphold the Democratic cause. He is able to make, and will make, a strong and vigorous canvass, but he will not expect busy people to come out and hear him speak when he is canvassing for himself and not as the standard bearer of his party.

Mr. Horne's personal life is without spot or blemish. No person, however much he may differ with Mr. Horne in politics or otherwise, can be found who would impugn his personal honor or believe him guilty of improper act. He has been a sober, moral man all his life. He was a temperance man when temperance and prohibition were not popular. As far back as 1881 he voted for prohibition. He has always stood for temperance, for the home, and the church.

He has always been a progressive man and, while by far the largest taxpayer of his section, he has always voted for special taxes for schools and good roads, and has favored everything that promoted the welfare of his community, regardless of its financial effects upon him.

Mr. Horne favors the strict enforcement of the laws passed by the last general assembly regulating railroads and requiring them to give better service at reduced rates. He believes in holding corporations to their duty and within the law, and doing this with a strong bold hand. He has always favored requiring railroads to perform their duties vigorously, and at the lowest possible rates and he never rode a mile on a railroad pass, believing that railroads should serve and not boss. More than thirty years ago when the rates on cotton between Clayton and Raleigh were too high, he organized a wagon train and sent the cotton through the country until the railroads, in disgust, asked him to name what he thought was a fair rate. This he did, and this rate between Clayton and Raleigh has never been exceeded. He has always opposed the granting of special favors to railroads. In 1885 he was a member of the State senate. The Richmond and Danville railroad proposed to build to Murphy, if the State would donate free the use of several hundred convicts. Mr. Horne was anxious as any to see that work completed, but he thought the Richmond and Danville was under obligations to build it at its own expense. He voted against the donation of the convicts, and was one of the senators who signed a protest against the measure.

This is a brief account of Mr. Horne's life. He is in the race today. He is encouraged by promises of support from every section of the State. We believe he will be nominated.

In conclusion, I beg to say if you want to support a Confederate soldier for governor, Mr. Horne is the man. If you want a successful business man, and a life-long farmer, for the office, Mr. Horne is the man. If you want a man who has been a consistent and lifelong enemy of trust and combination, Mr. Horne is the man. If you want a man who has been a leader in the industrial development of his section, Mr. Horne is the man. If you want a man who has always stood for good roads, for temperance, education, and morality, Mr. Horne is the man. If you want a man for governor who will give his whole time to that office and who will not aspire to other positions, Mr. Horne is the man. If you want to support a straight, fire-tried democrat, who has never turned either to the right or to the left, but who has consistently fought the party's battles for more than forty years, Mr. Horne is such a man. If you want a man for governor who will fill the office well, who has never done and will never do an unworthy or improper act, who will never do anything that will require defense, apology, or explanation, Ashley Horne is such a man.

AMONG HIS NEIGHBORS.

Lincoln Paraded in a High Hat and a Linen Duster.

While "stumping" in Illinois in 1860 Carl Schurz had an appointment to address an afternoon open air meeting in the capitol grounds in Springfield, Mr. Lincoln's place of residence. In "Reminiscences of a Long Life" Mr. Schurz tells of being invited to dine with Mr. Lincoln and of his impressions of the candidate for the presidency of the United States.

"At the table we conversed about the campaign, and his genial and simple hearted way of expressing himself would hardly permit me to remember that he was a great man. He was in the best of humor, and we laughed much.

"The day was blazing hot. Mr. Lincoln expressed his regret that I had to exert myself in such a temperature and suggested that I make myself comfortable. He made himself comfortable indeed in a way which surprised me not a little, but which was thoroughly characteristic of his rustic habits. When he presented himself for the march to the capitol grounds I observed that he had divested himself of his waistcoat and put on as an upper garment a linen duster, the back of which had been marked by repeated perspirations and looked somewhat like a rough map of two hemispheres. On his head he wore a well battered 'stovepipe' hat which had seen several years of hard service. In this attire he marched with me behind the brass band, and after us came the local campaign committee and the Wide Awakes. Of course he was utterly unconscious of his grotesque appearance. Nothing could have been further from his mind than the thought that the world conspicuous distinction bestowed upon him by his nomination for the presidency should have obliged him to 'put on dignity' among his neighbors.

"Those neighbors who from the windows and the sidewalks on that hot afternoon watched and cheered him as he walked by in the procession behind the brass band may have regarded him, the future president, with a new feeling of reverential admiration or awe, but he appeared before and among them entirely unconcerned, as if nothing had happened, and he nodded to his acquaintances as he recognized them in the crowd with a 'How are you, Dan?' and so on, just as he had been accustomed to do."

Horace Greeley's Digestion.

Horace Greeley was exceedingly absentminded. One night when there was callers at the house, says an exchange, and he was deeply engaged in some political discussion his wife passed around some indigestible refreshments in the way of cake. Mr. Greeley, completely absorbed in his discussion, took the plate when it was passed to him and proceeded to eat the entire lot of cake. His wife disliked much to interrupt him, so she watched him with horrified gaze while he ate the whole mess. Knowing that ancient cheese was a good digestive, she passed the cheese plate to him as she had the cake, and he proceeded to dispose of all the cheese. It is recorded that he never felt any ill effects from this repast, and his wife's faith in cheese as a digester was greatly strengthened. — Exchange.

EIGHT BAPTIZED.

Beautiful Service in Memorial Baptist Church.

After the conclusion of the regular service in Memorial Baptist church, Sunday night, Rev. J. E. Ayscue administered the sacred rite of baptism to eight persons who had united with the church as a result of the recent protracted meeting. It was the first baptism to take place in the new pool that has been constructed in the main auditorium of the church. The pool is in the choir gallery, between the organ and pulpit, and commands a good view from all parts of the room. The pool surrounded with palms and flowers, with the minister and candidates in the midst, made a beautiful scene. The baptismal service was very impressive.

The church will extend the hand of fellowship to the new members at the communion service to be held the first Sunday in July.

MONDAY JUNE 24th 1907.

Durham and Wilson occupy unenviable position in the date lines giving record of crime.

The four of the State Board of Education inspecting sites offered for the location of the Eastern training school, no doubt convinces them that the East is a fine section and has some good towns.

The statement is made by a Washington City correspondent, that the construction of the channel between Pamlico sound and the ocean is to be let by contract. This will be a contract with considerable money behind it, and bidders for it may be active. The proposed channel is one of the connecting links in the inland water way system, the measure that Congressman John H. Small has been working faithfully on for many years, and toward the construction of which congress has made a large appropriation.

The walls of the office of County Superintendent W. H. Ragsdale are decorated with pictures showing the recent educational progress Pitt county has made. There are photographs showing the old school buildings in many parts of the county and the new buildings that have supplanted them. The record indicated in these pictures is one the county can point to with pride. We noticed that on the visit of the State Board of Education here Friday, the gentlemen showed much interest in these photographs and marveled at the advancement Pitt county has made. It is safe to say that it impressed them that a county making such improvement in school buildings is a good place for the location of the training school.

MONROE'S TAXES.

It seems that the neighboring town of Monroe has also adopted a schedule of special license taxes. The table, as printed in The Journal, affords an interesting study. A special tax of $100 is levied upon "each railroad company," for carrying on business in Monroe for twelve months from May 31, 1907. Usury joints are taxed $100. The Standard Oil Company is required to pay tribute all right. Each agent or broker selling oil must pay $50; each dealer delivering kerosene must pay $15, and each oil delivery wagon is taxed $50. It costs a lightning rod agent $50 to do business in the town. Of course the circus catches it, being required to pay $100 for each performance. Dealers in pistols, bowie knives, dirks and brass knuckles are taxed $50. The telephone and express companies are assessed $50 each. The opera house tax is $20 and there is a tax of $25 for each performance. All sorts of shows come high in Monroe, but a man may run a flying jenny for $5 a year. The steam laundry is taxed $25, but the Chink can do business for $5.

The soda fountain tax is $25, and the skating rink levy $50. The merchants and all sorts of traders have to pay tribute. The Monroe town government evidently needs money for some purpose and is going for it.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Which reminds us to say that such unreasonable license taxes is a good way to check the progress of a town, and drive men with money to invest elsewhere to engage in business.

AN IDEA FOR A CARD GAME.

It is curious what original ideas people sometimes have in connection with the subjects that they know absolutely nothing about," remarked a lawyer. "I was trying to teach a friend bridge the other day. He had never played any game of cards but seven up. When I tried to explain to him that one trump suit was better than another I suppose I did not express myself very clearly, because he asked me afterward if hearts would always win diamonds and diamonds clubs, and so on, and when I told him no he wanted to know if there was any game of cards in which all the suits were trumps at the same time, so that if you had none of one suit you could trump the trick with a card of the suit which was next in rank above the suit led. Well, I spent a whole evening looking through my Hoyle to see if there was any such game. I found almost every conceivable twist and turn in the way of card ideas, but not that. Why is not that an absolutely new idea for a card game?"—New York Sun.

Microphone Detective.

In France M. Hardy has invented an application of the microphone to detect fire damp in mines. This is its principle: If sound waves from two pipes of equal pitch impinge on microphones connected in series with a telephone, a clear note is heard, but if one of the pipes emits a slightly different note, beats will be heard in the telephone. Here is the application: One pipe is placed in the mine, the other above ground, and they are blown simultaneously. If the air in the mine is charged with fire damp, it will produce a different note from that produced by clear air owing to the difference of density, and in consequence a series of beats in the telephone gives warning of the presence of fire damp. The same apparatus is very sensitive to the presence of coal gas.

Lather and Litigation.

A sequel to Emperor William's journey to Munich last fall appears in the form of a curious libel suit. His majesty stopped at a wayside station to get shaved, and a local Socialist newspaper stated that the members of an association of military veterans stormed the barber shop to obtain the lather scraped from the royal face, adding that the delectable mess was distributed among them while a band played the national anthem. The veterans did not like this story and sued the paper for libelous insult. The trial, which has just taken place, convulsed everybody, including the judges, with laughter, but the court decided that the editor must pay a fine for overstepping the bounds of fair comment.

The Whistling British Boy.

The whistler, oddly enough, is English, though the name has been made famous by an American. Among all the noises you hear in Paris—surely the noisiest city in the world—the whistle is not prominent. In New York, sufficiently noisy, you will seldom hear a whistle, though it sent us the first great siffleuse. But in London the whistle is insistent. It is not only the cab whistle, two for a hansom, one for a growler, with frequent "encorees." It is the boy. This is a fairly quiet flat in a fairly quiet neighborhood, but there is scarcely a waking moment in which you cannot detect the sound of the boy and his whistle.—London Chronicle.

London's Foodstuffs.

According to a recent estimate of the secretary of the public health committee, London annually consumes nearly 1,800,000 tons of foodstuffs. Of this amount rather more than two-thirds arrives by water and less than one-third by rail. The shipments include 1,000,000 tons of meat, fish and milk, butter, eggs, lard, etc.; 500,000 tons of fruit and vegetables, including sugar and preserved fruits, and 1,400,000 tons of grain and flour. It is pointed out in the committee's report that the system of inspection is inefficient and that oleomargarine is largely sold as butter.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. Panama Canal—Eric Canal.

Machinery is digging the Panama canal a thousand times quicker than the shovel dug the Erie.
Machinery produces the L. & M. paint at 50 times less cost for labor, than if made by hand.
The L. & M. gives the best job in the world, because L. & M. Zinc hardens L. & M. White lead and makes L. & M. paint wear like iron for 10 to 15 years.
It only requires 4 gallons of this celebrated paint and 3 gallons of Linseed Oil at 60 ct. per gallon, to paint a moderate sized house.
If any defect exists in L. & M. Paint, will repaint house for nothing.

There is no case of indigestion, no matter how irritable or how obstinate that will not be speedily relieved by the use of Kodol. The main feature in curing the stomach of any disorder is rest, and the only way to get rest is to actually digest the food for the stomach itself. Kodol will do it. It is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids containing the very same juices found in a healthy stomach. It conforms to the Pure Food and Drug Law. Sold by John L. Wooten.

Music has charms in the country where the houses are a mile apart.

All stomach trouble are quickly relieved by taking a little Kodol after each meal. Kodol goes directly to the seat of the trouble, strengthens the digestive organs, supplies the natural digestive juices and digests what you eat. It is a simple, clean, pure, harmless remedy. Don't neglect your stomach. Take a little Kodol after each meal and see how good it makes you feel. Money back if it fails. Sold by John L. Wooten.

It's a pity that poets can't live on food for reflection.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves". Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write to-day for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by Bryans Drug Store.

Many a married man is a silent hero.

It is the original laxative cough syrup and is unrivaled for the relief of croup. Drives the cold out through the bowels. Conforms to the Pure Food and Drug Law. Sold by John L. Wooten.

THE TIPPING NUISANCE.

Sway Within and Without the Theaters of Paris.

"When a Parisian hits on the unhappy idea of going to the theater," writes one of them, "he has to run the gantlet of a rare collection of nuisances and plunderers. First there is the crowd outside the theater, and then there is another gang inside."

"He must give one tip to the coachman who drives him and another to the nimble person who springs to open the carriage door, even if he opens it himself. Then come the flower girls and the ticket speculators and the programme vendors. They stand in his way and importune him. He has almost to use violence to rescue his coat tails from their clutches."

"At last the theater foyer swallows him up. He is saved from one bad thing, but new persecutors are ready. There is, first, the refreshment counter attendant. Won't he buy oranges? No, he won't. Then won't he buy candy for the lady? No. Then maybe a sandwich to eat between the acts, and so on. Next to this plague comes, second, the programme peddler—only authorized and official programme, of course—and, third, the opera glass man."

There is a fourth, too, but the fourth interior plague of the theater takes a great deal of space and ill temper to describe it. She is the ouvreuse, the official box opener and seat finder, the counterpart of the usher in New York, but displaying an itching palm and a very unpleasant disposition when not paid to be genial. The ouvreuse is the worst parasite of the Parisian theater, and few indeed are they from whom she fails to draw blood.

Her hand is not extended until the close of the performance, but she begins to get her fine work in at once. Not that she makes any pretense of finding the boxes or seats that the tickets presented to her call for. The kicker defies any one in Paris to come forward and swear that she ever found his place for him. Nobody could make such an affidavit without committing perjury, he says. But what she does is grab his hat and overcoat and walking cane. These she locks up in a chamber of horrors which she calls the cloakroom, and thenceforward the victim is at her mercy. He can not escape without paying tribute.

It is no wonder that the ouvreuse devotes more attention to collecting her revenue than to seating the audience. It is a serious matter for her. Not only has she to make her living out of it, but she must also make up the quota of "the house." In one theater the ouvreuse pays 7 francs, or $1.40, a night for her privilege. Sometimes it is more or less, but always somewhere between 5 and 10 francs, except in two or three of the best theaters, which have tried to reform the system. One or two go so far as to pay a salary, but even in these there is such a pleading look in the poor woman's eyes as she surrenders one's light baggage that no man with a tender heart can keep his hand out of his change pocket. He knows the woman is under heavy expenses. She must be expensively dressed in up to date style to keep her job.

But occasionally a man will revolt. One tells how one June evening he went to a variety theater alone. He dodged the ouvreuse at a busy moment, slipped down the aisle, found his seat by himself and sat down in it with an expression of unconscious innocence. As it was warm, he had no overcoat, and he hid his hat under the seat. All the same, toward the end of the performance the ouvreuse appeared with outstretched hand.

"What for?" he asked.
"For service," she answered.
"What service?"
"The customary service."
"But you gave me none. Why should I give you anything?"
"Oh, pardon," she explained in a good audible tone. "I did not recognize that monsieur was a dead-head."

This brought him to time, and he gave her a franc.—New York Sun.

Making Panama Hats.

The panama hat industry is carried on in the departments of Cundinamarca, Tolima, Antioquia and Santander, in the republic of Colombia, but mostly in the last named department, where it is the breadwinner to more than one-half of its population. There are no regular factories, but the hats are hand woven by thousands of peasant women in almost as many households and old or traded in the local stores in exchange for provisions or articles of clothing, the hat being in these regions a convenient medium of exchange, the housewife exchanging the product of her labor for so many pounds of flour, sugar, etc. Panama hats are made with the veins of fibers of a palm leaf, the tissues of which are scraped off or combed in much the same way as hem.—Baltimore Sun.

are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart. Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

THE SENSE OF FEELING.

A Simple and Convincing Experiment in Touch Delusion.

The various "optical illusions" by means of which straight lines are caused to appear crooked and objects of equal size are rendered to all appearance decidedly unequal are more or less familiar to every reader, but there are other striking deceptions of the senses that are not so frequently experimented with. A French savant pointed out several surprisingly easy ways in which we are misled in our perception of heat and cold and of pressure.

A simple and convincing experiment of this kind may be made in the following manner: Take two silver dollars and place one of them upon a marble table or mantel, while the other is rubbed briskly between the hands. In this manner a slight difference of temperature between the two pieces of metal will be produced.

Then ask some one to incline his head backward, closing his eyes. Lay the warm dollar upon his forehead for a moment, remove it and quickly substitute the cold one. You will hardly be able to convince him that they are of equal weight. The cold piece always seems to be much heavier than the other.

The explanation of this phenomenon is that the metal which has been rubbed between the hands has assumed nearly the temperature of the body, and when it is placed upon the forehead the sense of touch is affected by the pressure alone.

But the metal which has been cooled, being at a lower temperature than the skin, affects the sense in a double manner, and the subject of the experiment, not being able to distinguish clearly between the effects, instinctively ascribes the entire sensation to pressure alone.

The Fullness of Country Life.

In the country every morning of the year brings with it a new aspect of springing or fading nature, a new duty to be fulfilled upon earth and a new promise or warning in heaven. No day is without its innocent hope, its special prudence, its kindly gift and its sublime danger, and in every process of wise husbandry and every effort of contending or remedial courage the wholesome passions, pride and bodily power of the laborer are excited and exerted in happiest union. The companionship of domestic and the care of serviceable animals soften and enlarge his life with lowly charities and discipline him in familiar wisdoms and unboastful fortitudes, while the divine laws of seedtime, which cannot be hastened, and winter, in which no man can work, compel the impatience and coveting of his heart into labor too submissive to be anxious and rest too sweet to be wanton.—John Ruskin.
