

All About Greenville.

And the Location of the Eastern Training School.

What the Newspapers of the State Are Saying About Us.

The Reflector thinks it can give its readers nothing better to entertain them today than the very kind reference the papers of the State have been making to Greenville as being the location of the Eastern Training School. These articles show that the people throughout the State approve the choice of the State Board of Education in placing the school here, and that all want to see it become an institution of which the entire State will be proud. The Reflector here expresses its appreciation of all that has been said and promises that Greenville and Pitt county will leave nothing undone to make the school all it should be, EASTERN TRAINING SCHOOL.

Yesterday many people of Eastern North Carolina were divided into seven camps, each advocating the location of the Eastern Training School in the town of their choice.

Today, from the ocean to the hills, all are for Greenville and all ready to cooperate to make that school the leading factor in the educational revival and development of rapidly growing and prosperous section of the State. There were those who doubted the wisdom of establishing that institution at this time, but they are all now ready to do all that the most ardent advocate of the establishment of that school could desire to make it all that its earliest champions desired.

The school having been located at Greenville, the duty and the pleasure of all the people will be to aid the enthusiastic people of Pitt in their desire to make it an institution that will meet the educational needs of Eastern North Carolina. Pitt has made great progress in public education and no county in the State has a better educational spirit among its people. This was shown in the practically unanimous vote in county and town to give money to secure the location of the school. That was the first time the people of any county in North Carolina voted bonds to secure the location of an educational institution. Greensboro voted $30,000 to secure the State Normal and Industrial College. To show the progress in liberality Greenville voted $50,000 and the County of Pitt an additional $50,000 to secure the Eastern Training School. This would have been impossible ten years ago. It would be impossible now but for the wonderfully enthusiastic campaign in that county led by County Superintendent Ragsdale. Every town and village in the county has a fine graded school with good buildings, and many rural districts have a local tax and good school houses. On Monday twenty seven new school houses were ordered built in Pitt county, evidencing the fact that the good work goes on steadily as well as enthusiastically.

The Teachers' Training School, as will be seen, is located in a town and county alive with the true educational spirit—the spirit that believes in educating all the people and being taxed to do so. No other education spirit will make this an educational commonwealth. Pitt is a Democratic county where the people believe in a fair chance and equal opportunity. They have provided constantly increasing facilities for the education of their children. They were united and zealous to receive this new institution and will give it of their time, thought and the best efforts of a people united to give to their section educational advantages second to no other part of the South. It will deserve and receive the cooperation of the whole State, particularly the Eastern section of North Carolina.—Raleigh News and Observer, 11th.

GREENVILLE GETS IT.

The East Carolina Teachers' Training School goes to Greenville.

We congratulate our Pitt county neighbor on her success. Greenville has been wide awake to her interests in this matter, has fought a good fight, and has won. The Free Press hopes that the school may prove as great a blessing to her and her people as she has anticipated.

When the school was authorized by the legislature we saw clearly that for a while—at any rate—the school would be almost purely local, and that its material and social benefits would accrue very much more decidedly to the town in which it was located than to any other community.

This must necessarily be the case from the nature of the institution established. Recognizing this fact we made every effort to secure for Kinston the location of the school. But Kinston did not put up the most cash and she lost the school—for "cash" is the key note of the modern world.

However Kinston has made a noble showing, and we think the state board was impressed with this fact. We feel sure that the town has been strengthened and benefitted by the contest. If the contest had been determined purely on the merits of the site offered and the physical location of the school we feel that our chances would have been much better than they were.

But let us all rally to the support, not only of this East Carolina Teachers' Training School but to the cause of popular education generally. The strenuous contest that has been carried on since the day the training school was authorized has undoubtedly strengthened the desire for and interest in public education in Eastern Carolina.

The Free Press has never opposed the establishment of a school of the character of the one that goes to Greenville. We did oppose the state's going into another normal college undertaking; but schools of this secondary character are all right and the more of them the better.—Kinston Free Press.

GREENVILLE THE LOGICAL SITE.

That Greenville's bid for the Eastern Training school was the one finally accepted is not only a matter of congratulation for the county seat of Pitt, than which no county in the State has done more in the cause of education, but it's peculiarly appropriate also. For it is a fact that the movement for the establishment of the institution by the last legislature had its inception in Greenville. Senator Fleming started to Raleigh at the opening of the session with the bill for the Eastern Training school in his pocket, and it was his bill that was enacted by the general assembly, friends of the proposition in the lower house uniting upon it.

Then the bid of Greenville, $100,000, was a very handsome one. The county voted a bond issue of $50,000 for the purpose, and the town voted $50,000. The enthusiasm for the school was tremendous throughout the county. One incident will show this better than columns of declaration. It was feared that there might be some opposition in the county districts on the ground that the town was getting the material improvement in building and property. So a clause had been put in the bill to the effect that any surplus not used for the school was to be expended on road machinery and road improvement. But lo and behold! those Pitt county farmers, with almost one accord, demanded that every cent of the money should be used for the school. And the county commissioners had to sign their names to an instrument of writing guaranteeing that disposition of the funds before the bonds could be voted. That tells the story of the farmer of Pitt and his belief in the school as a factor of the best life.

As to situation Greenville is the geographical center of the country east of Raleigh. Her railroad facilities are unusually good, and will be immeasurably improved with the completion of the Raleigh and Pamlico division of the Norfolk and Southern.

Altogether Greenville was the logical site for the new school that is to be for the east what the State Normal has endeavored to be for the whole commonwealth.

By the way, speaking of Pitt county and education. In a few months every old school house in that county will be eclipsed by a modern one. County Superintendent Ragsdale and the board of education there have arranged for the building of 30 new school houses in the county during the coming fall. That will leave not a single old school house in the county as a reminder of the days that are past in the history of the public school system of North Carolina. Pitt will be the first county in the State to replace her old school houses with new ones even to the last one.

If ever a man was consecrated to any work, Supt. Ragsdale is to the schools of Pitt county. The results that have been accomplished there under his direction are little short of marvelous. And the happiest thing about it all is the state of the public sentiment on the subject, as shown by the incident related above.—Raleigh Times.

THE SCHOOL FOR GREENVILLE.

The news that Greenville is to get the Eastern Carolina Teachers' Training School relieves the tension for a number of progressive North Carolina cities in the eastern part of the State but at the same time it must bring regret to all save the lucky town. Still each city can take glory to itself for having made energetic efforts for the institution and for having shown great liveness in the matter. The good natured fight has been a strong one and has demonstrated that the cities of eastern North Carolina take a big interest in educational matters are fully alive to accept opportunities in a prosperous condition. The fight has been worth while if for nothing else but the lesson it has taught. There were some splendid offers made, but about the relative merit of each we are not qualified to express an opinion as to which was the right place for the school, though we take it for granted that the committee made a thorough investigation and decided according to an unbiased opinion.—Wilmington Dispatch.

THE LESSON OF THE CONTEST.

The roll of Eastern North Carolina towns and counties competing for the Eastern Carolina Teachers' Training School should be called: Edenton, Elizabeth City, Greenville, Kinston, New Bern, Rocky Mount, Tarboro, Vanceboro, Washington, capitals of Chowan, Pasquotank, Pitt, Lenoir, Craven, Edgecombe and Beaufort counties, with Rocky Mount representing Nash and Edgecomb and Vanceboro, the second Craven county town.

The offers of all the localities for a school of the class named in the law is not only magnificent, out magnificent. It all demonstrates the wonderful public spirit of a section of the State which another section is slow to realize the great actualities, as well as potentialities, because of its almost strict agricultural enterprises.

If this contest teaches no other lesson than this educational one to the balance of North Carolina, and its significance of the progress of agriculture as contrasted distinguished from the more heralded industrial and manufacturing towns of other sections, it will be one well waged. Could any other eight towns in North Carolina in close proximity have offered such monetary inducements for a school, for the education of both sexes not above the Freshman class of the State University at Chapel Hill, and the State Normal College at Greensboro? When this question is answered, it will be in order to say more about Greenville and all the others of the Eastern towns.—Raleigh News and Observer.

GREENVILLE GETS THE NORMAL.

Mr. W. L. Cahoon, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Thursday morning was in receipt of a telegram announcing that Greenville, N. C. was the lucky bidder for the Eastern Normal school.

The State Board of Education visited the different towns in the east several days ago to inspect sites, and the decision was to have been made immediately afterwards, but on account of some irregularities, the bids were opened again until July 10th inst. The decision was made in favor of Greenville which town had out bid all the other contestants.—Elizabeth City Tar Hill.

SHORT BUT APPRECIATED.

We congratulate Greenville on its good fortune in winning out over its competitors and in securing the Eastern Carolina Training School. Greenville is anything but a bad location for such an institution, and while other towns that entered the contest might have been equally as desirable, we believe none are more so.

The establishment of the Eastern Carolina Training School is a contribution of no little significance to the cause of education in this state by the last legislature.—Charlotte News.

The Chronicle several weeks ago said that a good guess would be that Greenville would get the eastern normal school, and the decision in favor of that town was rendered yesterday. A better choice could not have been made, although good advantages were offered by a half a dozen other eastern North Carolina towns. We believe the choice of the board will be received with satisfaction throughout the State.—Charlotte Chronicle.

A telegram to The Tribune yesterday after going to press announced that Greenville gets the Eastern Training School. We might say that we had no preference in the matter but rather rejoice with Greenville for the reason that she put up such a nice brisk fight for the location of this institution. Greenville is progressive and no one need be surprised at her getting the school.—Concord Tribune.

These green-towns have a way of getting what they want it seems. Greenville gets the training school. The surprising thing about the contest, however was the pretty fight which each of the live towns in the race put up for the institution. Eastern Carolina is on the jump and its progressive towns rightly think that there is nothing too good for them.—Greensboro Telegram.

The State Board of Education has selected Greenville as the location for the Eastern Training School for Teachers. Eight towns—Greenville, Washington, Edenton, Elizabeth City, Tarboro, Rocky Mount, New Bern and Kinston—asked for the school and all of them offered inducements. Greenville seems to have put up the biggest pile.—Statesville Landmark.

We extend hearty congratulations to our friends over at Greenville on securing the Teachers' Training School. Here's pledging our best efforts, with a sincere purpose, to help along the enterprise in any way we possibly can.—New Bern Sun.

Greenville is to make a great celebration over getting the training school, and all the towns that were defeated in the competition will be asked to participate. Perhaps it is best for all to rejoice with Greenville in her good fortune. Her people worked hard and deserved to succeed.—New Bern Journal.

Among the assets Greenville had in the contest was ex-Governor Jarvis. He had drawn the bill that passed the legislature establishing the school and he adds weight to any side upon which he stands.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Since New Bern couldn't get the school we had no choice among the other towns, and can cordially shake hands with the winner.—New Bern Sun.

Those eastern towns went after the training school in a way which indicated that they didn't expect it to remain a training school always.—Greensboro Telegram.

Greenville gets the training school after a hard fight. Well it's always a great victory after a long battle.—Durham Sun.

Greenville gets the Eastern Training School. Congratulations Bro. Whichard.—Louisburg Times.

They Met Here to be Married.

A pretty romance will have its culmination this evening when an elopement marriage ceremony will be performed by Rev. J. M. Owens, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church, at his apartments in the Merrimac, corner of Freemason and Boush streets. The contracting parties are Hugh Sutton Sheppard, of Greenville, N. C., and Miss Katherine Williams Hines, of Wilson, N. C. Mr. Sheppard is traveling through Southern Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina for a Chicago house, and the bride-elect came on here to meet him and for the wedding of which her family and friends will know nothing until she wires them after the ceremony this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Miss Hines is now stopping with friends on Bramble on avenue. The couple will leave tonight for New York and Niagara Falls.—Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch 13th.

All but the last sentence of the foregoing is true. Instead of going to New York, Mr. Sheppard came to Greenville Sunday evening to bring to his people the news that the telephone had beat him with several hours. He left his bride with friends in Norfolk, but she joined him today at Tarboro. The groom is a son of Mr. Henry Sheppard, of Greenville, and a very popular young man. The bride is also well and favorably known in Greenville, having visited here several times.

Sheriff F. D. Markham, of Durham county, died Saturday morning. He had filled the office many years.

If there are any doubters that Pitt county is taking rapid strides in the march of progress, they need only look at recent events to be convinced that it is true.

The county has contracted for a $41,000 steel bridge to span Tar river at Greenville, and has also joined with Lenoir county in contracting for a $14,000 bridge across the river that is the dividing line between the two counties.

New Order As To Postal Cards.

Postmaster General Meyer has promulgated an order, effective August 1st, providing that the face side of a postal card may be divided by a vertical line placed approximately one-third of the distance from the left end of the card.

Urbanity.

A shopgirl entered the car. Every strap was fully occupied. But was she compelled to stand on her poor, tired, aching feet all the way home?

Oh, no! Three or four men promptly jammed her up among them in such a way that she could not possibly fall down.

American are no doubt the politest people in the world. As for the French, if you speak of them, they have no such opportunities.

He Never Quarreled.

In 1815 Benton went to Missouri, then a territory inhabited by a fierce population, where his fights continued with the usual result. What the result was may be inferred from a declaration he made in the senate after a senator had referred to what he called "a quarrel" of Benton's.

The True Phonetic Speller.

The child is the true phonetic speller. Little Elsie had been staying in a quiet woodland place—the cockney girlie was convalescent from a severe illness. Her letters were full of the joys of country life and reckless spelling.

The Doctor's Joy.

Doctor Doane was demonstrator at a clinic which had under advisement a patient suffering with a carbuncle of unusual proportions. In a burst of scientific rapture the demonstrator delivered something in the following vein: "Perfect specimen! Perfect specimen! I never saw one superior. A beautiful inflammation. There isn't that a gem?"

He Was Willing to Oblige.

A young North Carolina girl is charming, but, like a great many other charming people, she is poor. She never has more than two evening gowns in a season, and the ruin of one of them is always a serious matter to her.

"Of course I'll dance with you, but if you don't mind, won't you please use your handkerchief?" The man looked at her blankly a moment or two. Then a light broke over his face.

"Why, certainly," he said. And he pulled out his handkerchief and blew his nose.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Benton and Calhoun.

A short time after Calhoun's death, a friend said to Benton, "I suppose, Colonel, you won't pursue Calhoun beyond the grave?" to which he replied: "No, sir! When God Almighty lays His hand upon a man, sir, I take mine off, sir."

Never Again.

One day a learned judge was listening to a case that had been appealed from one of the lower courts. The young lawyer who appeared for the appellant was long and tedious; he brought in all the elementary textbooks and quoted the fundamental legal propositions.

"Can we not assume," he said suavely, "that the court itself knows a little about the law?" "That's the very mistake I made in the other court," answered the lawyer. "and I don't want to let it defeat me twice!"

Jackson and the Mutineers.

While General Jackson was conducting his campaign against the Creeks in Alabama the privations and hardships the law levies had to endure were too much for a company of Tennesseans. They mutinied, declared their intention of returning home, and set out, every man with his arms.

Joe Jefferson Found Out.

The late Joseph Jefferson once received a cable dispatch from his son Thomas, who was in London, asking his father to remit to him £100. The father was doubtful, and so he wired back, "What do you want it for?"

The Drummer and the Dukes.

A commercial traveler got into the same railway carriage with the Duke of Northumberland and the Duke of Argyll and conversed with them freely, not knowing who they were. The Duke of Northumberland got out at Alwick, where a handsome equipage was in waiting. The traveler said with surprise, "I'll bet you that's some big nob we've been talking to."

Literally the Truth.

Two or three generations ago Dr. Samuel Reed was one of the prominent physicians of Boston. His large practice included many patients outside the city limits, and these he visited in his buggy.

One day he bought a new horse, with which he was much pleased until he discovered that the animal had an insurmountable objection to bridges of all kinds and could not be made to cross one.

As, at this period, it was necessary to cross some bridge in order to reach any one of the surrounding towns the doctor decided to sell the horse. He did not think it necessary to mention the animal's peculiarity, but was much too honest to misrepresent him, and, after some thought, produced the following advertisement which he inserted in a local paper:

For Sale.—A bay horse, warranted sound and kind. The only reason for selling is because the owner desires to leave Boston.

When the Lion Wags His Tail.

Some years ago George H. Peck, formerly of Kansas, after he became general solicitor of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Company, was called to South Dakota to argue an important case before the federal court. He was accompanied to the seat of justice by Alfred Beard Kittredge, the local attorney of the company, who has since become a United States senator.

Mr. Peck made a fine argument and afterward walked to the hotel with the judge of the court. "I liked your argument this afternoon, Mr. Peck," the judge said. "It was a masterly presentation of your case. I don't think you left anything unsaid that could have been said."

Mr. Peck thanked the judge for the compliment and afterward went to Mr.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nervous sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Pills or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.

About That home Do You Contemplate

Owning One?

If so the first thing to consider is a good lot in a desirable location and you can not be better suited in a lot than the

Sam White Property.

No property surpasses this for a desirable home. Lots can be bought there now at reasonable prices and on easy terms. There is every indication that property around Greenville is going to be higher, and the longer you defer buying the lot the higher it will cost.

This property is located only 5 minutes walk from the business part of the town. See Sam White and let him explain prices and terms.

Notice of Dissolution of Partnership.

The partnership heretofore existing between A. H. Taft and W. H. Ricks in the town of Greenville under the firm name of A. H. Taft and Company is this day dissolved by mutual consent. A. H. Taft will continue to do business in the store next to Taft and VanDyke and W. H. Ricks in the store next to Fleming and Mooring. Those indebted to the firm will make their payments according to their contracts with the firm and a prompt settlement is requested. Each debtor will be notified at which store to make his payment but no one need wait for such notice to make his payments. He may call at either store and each of us will be glad to see him and all other friends to whom we return thanks for their patronage and of whom we solicit a continuance.

Business Advertisers.

In the large city of Greenville many clubs, and so many of the business men live in the suburbs, the club life plays comparatively little part in business except during the luncheon hour. This period has therefore grown to be a highly appreciated part of the business day. Meeting at such a time men come to know their competitors or customers or those of whom they do their own buying on the basis of a social, friendly and perhaps gossiping hour. It is recognized as an adjunct of business without which conditions would indeed be very different. No one will dispute, says the Iron Age, that such places have a vast advantage over those where the manufacturers meet but seldom, and their usually by chance and without the intimate friendliness which comes with repeated social hours together.

Not His Fault.

"Please, ma'am," said the unlaunched hobo, "would youse kindly gimme er dime 't git sumthin' t eat with?"
"I would if I was sure you would use it for that purpose," replied the kind hearted lady, "but that red nose of yours looks very suspicious."
"Dat's me misfortune an' not me fault, ma'am," explained the beggar.
"De cheap soaps us pore folks has 'use is orful hard on de complexion, ma'am."—Chicago News.

Who Has 729?

This number, 729, won the free railroad ticket to the Jamestown exposition at the drawing at C. T. Munford's store Saturday night. As no one was present with the ticket, the holder of 729 can call at the store and get a free railroad ticket to the exposition or the value of it in cash.

Mr. Munford has decided to give away another railroad ticket to the exposition next Saturday night and will give purchasers this week tickets entitling them to a chance at it. The special sale prices at his store will continue through this week with bargain still open to purchasers and a chance to get a free railroad ticket to the exposition.

The Savory Seamless Roaster.

Is far superior to any other Roaster made, not an ounce of substance lost. Other roasters waste from 10 to 20 per cent. The Savory seamless roaster needs no water, grease or attention of any kind. It simply asks to be let alone. Retains all juices and flavors, renews the youth of the toughest fowl. One great feature of the Savory roaster is the oval bottom, with the ordinary flat bottom roaster the moisture brought out of the meat by cooking has no chance to accumulate and is burned and dried up in the bottom of the pan. In the oval bottom this meat juice flows continuously to the lowest point of the bottom, where it is turned into steam and condensed on the surface of the meat. This condensation continues until the roaster has become heated through to the temperature of the atmosphere in the roaster, when the condensation stops and the brown ing of the roast begins.

The Savory roaster is self basting and self browning. The bottom is raised off the oven by the outside heat retaining jacket, which applies a uniform heat to the roast from all sides.

The Savory roaster is in a class to itself. Is guaranteed to give satisfaction when used according to directions. Buy one, take it home, go by the directions, use it thirty days, if not all we claim forth, return it to us and we will give you back your money, providing the roaster when returned, is in good condition.

See our window display of the Savory roasters. We will be glad to show you. Call and see them.
