A vote of thanks was tendered by the visiting members to Withlacoochee Tribe No. 35, of Greenville.

Following the district meeting in Masonic temple a delightful banquet was given in Perkins' opera house which was an enjoyable finale to the exercises. True to their nature the Red Men were hungry at this late hour after returning from their hunt, and the way the good things disappeared before them was pleasant to behold. The menu consisted of sliced turkey, chicken salad, ham sandwiches, cheese straws, beaten biscuits, saltine crackers, pickles, coffee with whipped cream, ice cream, cake and "Live Indian" cigars.

The menu was prepared by the Ladies Aid Society of the Baptist church, and the ladies received many compliments upon its excellence. There were 210 Red Men in attendance.

The I. O. R. M. is a flourishing order and the largest in this section. It is accomplishing much good for humanity.

Littleton College.

Its many friends will be gratified to learn that Littleton College, an advertisement of which appeared in this paper during the summer, has had the largest opening in its history. The growth of this school has been almost phenomenal, the enrollment last year showing an increase about 18 per cent over the previous year.

This institution is doing a most excellent work for the young women of the South and richly merits the esteem in which it is held by the public.

Any parent having a daughter to send off to school would do well to correspond with the management of Littleton college.

MOVEMENTS OF THE PEOPLE.

Those Who Come and Go—Some Know You—Some You Know.

W. G. Williams went to Cone-tee today.

The place of amusement opened Wednesday night and good crowds are attending. The admission is 10 cents, and for school children in the afternoon 5 cents.

WHERE THE MERCHANT FAILS.

An Iowa Farmer Tells Him He Should Advertise, and How.

An Iowa farmer contributes to the Des Moines Capital the following very pertinent suggestion as to why the mail order houses succeed in getting the business of the rural communities away from local merchants:

"If the mail order houses get $1,000 out of this country each month that belongs to the home merchants the fault is with the merchants themselves. The mail order houses advertise and give us prices on everything they offer for sale. They tell us what they have and what they want for it. Of course we get soaked once in a while and if we do we can try some other house. Most of the home merchants who advertise at all don't quote prices. They neglect to tell us what we want to know—the price. Of course we can go to the store and ask the price of this article, and that, by you know how it is—one doesn't know so well exactly what he wants to buy when he gets in a store as when he is at home. And there is where the mail order houses make their money. They send their advertising matter into homes and we read it when we have nothing else to do and every member of the family who reads their stuff usually finds something that he or some other member of the family wants and many orders are made up and sent out just at such times.

"Right here is where the home merchant fails down. If he talked up his business to us in our homes the same as the mail order houses do the people would be in to see him the next time they came to town, and in many cases extra trips would be made to get the things at once that we didn't know we wanted until they were brought to our attention.

"The home merchant can save the expense of getting up a catalogue. We people read the home papers more carefully than we do the catalogue, and if the merchant wants to talk business with us let him put his talk in the home papers, and put it in so that we know he means business. The home merchant likely, nine times out of ten, sells his goods as cheap as the mail order houses, and I believe on many things they are much cheaper but how are we to know if he doesn't tell us about it.

"A merchant must not think that even his best customers know his goods so well that they can tell what he has without being shown.

"It is none of my business how the home merchant runs his business, but I don't like to see these roasts in the papers all the time about us fellows who get a little stuff shipped in once in a while and never anything said on the other side. There are always two sides of a question, and I have given you mine. If it is worth anything to you you can take it."

Excursion to Raleigh Fair. The Norfolk & Southern railroad will run trains to Raleigh and return two days next week, on the 16th and 17th. The fare for the round trip, including one admission to the fair grounds, will be as follows: Greenville $3.25, Simpson $3.45, Grimesland $3.60, Bryan $3.70, Cawdron $3.80, Arthur $3.95, Farmville $2.85. Tickets sold on 16th will be good for return on 17th but those sold on 17th will be good for return only the same day.

Association Divided. At the recent meeting of the Tar River Association, Baptist held in Henderson, the association was divided, it being the largest in the State and was considered too large. The Wilmington & Weldon railroad was made the dividing line. West of the line the old associational name is held, and east of the line a new association will be formed.

Weighting Before Eating. Two men entered a Broadway restaurant and after putting a question to the head waiter went out again. "What did they want?" asked a customer.

"They wanted to know if we have scales here so they could weigh themselves before beginning to eat. That seems to be a fashion nowadays with dietitians who are concerned with the quantity as well as the quality of the food they eat. They allow themselves a certain number of ounces as each meal. They are not content with weighing the food, but jump on the scales themselves before and after eating to make sure that they neither overdo or underdo the process of eating. Unfortunately we are not prepared to so exactly gauge the indulgence of a man's appetite. They assured me that several other restaurants are so equipped, so they went on to look for one."—New York Sun.

Divine Providence bestows greater blessing on man than the ladies.

Life without woman is not worth living, or a home without one is no home at all. The world without them would not be complete. The perfect lady is next in the universe to the angels of God. The sweet, spotless, character of a gentle, loving, and kind-hearted woman is a magnetism that draws the love and sympathy of all men. What a wonderful blessing they are?

The men of Greenville are wonderfully blessed along this line. They have a host of charming women. Every day they are a study to check the treadfall march of Sherman or Napoleon, or soften the heart of the worst infidel.

But such women as those who so faithfully prepared the banquet supper at the district meeting of the Improved Order of Red Men when they met with Greenville Tribe, have done the good part and will occupy a special place in our respects wherever we go.

Without hesitating I take the authority of speaking for the meeting at large. No woman can surpass the women of Greenville.

The meeting was a good one but the part most enjoyed, as is always the case, was the part in which the women assisted.

After the meeting was over and we thought the pleasure for the night was ended, we realized the sunlight of joy was just rising.

We were escorted from the hall to a large banquet room where we enjoyed the Godsent blessings prepared by the Ladies of Greenville.

Surely we enjoyed our visit to Greenville, but a good percent of our most sincere thanks are extended to the good women for their hospitality during the meeting. Rev. D. A. Windham, Saratoga, N. C.

TWISTED TREE TRUNKS.

Curious twists are observed in many tree trunks, and the inquiry just begun in Europe suggests the surprising conclusion that they are produced by the earth's rotation, like the twists of storms and the whirls seen in water. Van den Broeck, the Belgian geologist, points out that if conditions of growth were the cause the torsion should follow the sun's apparent path. In at least 990 out of 1,000 trees the reverse is true, and it may be that the twist is usually to the left in the northern hemisphere and to the right, or with the clock, in the southern hemisphere, like the turn of the cyclonic storms and water vortices. This difference is due to the earth's rotation. Jean Brunhes notes that it was shown some years ago that the winds due to the earth's motion blow steadily at a season when vegetation is active and sensitive, and a slight continuous bending and turning then would be likely to affect the tree permanently. —New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Growth of Rural Delivery.

It is now only fourteen years since an appropriation of $10,000 was made for experiments with the project of rural free delivery. As recently as ten years ago the appropriation for this new service amounted to only $40,000; last year it was more than $25,000,000, while this year rural free delivery will cost $37,000,000.

Every route proposed must be inspected before it is accepted by the department, more than 30,000 rural carriers must be watched and paid, and all the minute requirements of the laws and regulations must be enforced. It is a great undertaking, and we in the cities should bear with some patience the shortcomings of the service which we get while this necessity of rural development, this boon to the toiling millions on the farms, receives the attention it so well deserves. All the improvements needed will come in good time.—Boston Globe.

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

Hints on Cleaning Woodwork and Furniture—Domestic Notes.

Since there is danger of soap taking paint off woodwork, it is best to wash it with clear water unless it has become too much soiled for that; then whitening should be used. Get the best quality. Dip a flannel cloth in warm water and squeeze until almost dry, then dip into the whitening and apply to the painted surface. Wash clean with water and wipe dry with a piece of chamois leather. The paint thus treated will look like new and will not be harmed in the least. For cleaning natural woodwork nothing is better than crude petroleum oil. Moisten a piece of flannel or cheesecloth with it and rub on the wood; then wipe with a clean cloth until all the oil is rubbed off. It is also excellent for furniture. Since much of the furniture nowadays is upholstered with leather, it is well to know that if it has become discolored or greasy looking it can be greatly improved by rubbing it with the white of an egg. Beat the egg well and put in a few drops of kerosene. Leather bound books can be treated in the same way.—Housekeeper.

Cement For Mending China.

Over a heaping tablespoonful of quicklime pour the white of an egg. Have ready a whey made of equal parts of vinegar and sweet milk; add a small quantity of the whey and beat the mixture thoroughly. Continue adding the whey, a few drops at a time, until you have a rather thin cement. When desiring to use, warm slightly and apply to the heated edges of the china, then press the china firmly in place. This is very durable, and a dish thus mended will stand constant usage.

Cottage Cheese.

Put thick sour milk in a pan and cover with boiling water from the teakettle. Let stand on the back of the stove a few moments until the curd separates from the whey, then pour into a bag and let it drip until dry. Salt well, sprinkle with pepper or add a tablespoonful of pepper grass cut fine. Add a little cream and melted butter to moisten and make into patties or pile lightly on a pretty dish. Minced olives or ground nuts are also nice mixed with the cream cheese.

Cotton took a tumble with the coming of frost, instead of going higher.

Is cotton really going to slip back to ten cents? It may do that unless the farmers do some tight holding.

Wouldn't it jar some of the congressmen if they thought the national capital would go dry? But it is coming to that some of these days.

The town of Snow Hill will vote on the 15th on the question of abolishing saloons. No doubt it will be another case of "good bye, booze."

"Makes homely women pretty" is the way the heading of a patent medicine advertisement reads. That medicine would not find any sale at all down this way. We have no homely women, they are all pretty.

This prohibition sentiment is going to keep right on growing until it sweeps the nation. And it will come in the life time of some of the present day folks.

The faculty of Wake Forest College did the right thing in suspending several pupils for engaging in hazing. It is a brutal practice that should be broken up in every college.

Mr. Stuyvesant Fish wants to know will a girl marry beneath her? That depends entirely on the taste of the girl, as she usually does whatever she takes a notion to do. And plenty of them do come down in the scale when they approach the altar.

The Standard Oil Company having bought a majority of the stock in the paper trust, may have it in mind to even up with the newspapers for the whacks they have taken at the oil trust. At any rate something is doing to cause the price of print paper to keep climbing up.

One would think from reading late issues of the Raleigh Times that it had discovered a "mare's nest." Possibly it is trying to hide its own misconduct in being caught with the four thousand. Not the first instance of trying to hide one's misdoings by kicking up a dust around somebody else.

A campaign of education is needed in this town with regard to the theater. A show with a stage full of half dressed women, high kickers and broad suggestions appeals too strongly to too many, while a high class drama gets the cold shoulder. Greensboro Record.

That is usually the case among theatre goers in most towns. It would never do to tell people in cold words how their tastes run, but the attendance upon the different plays mentioned by The Record usually tells its own story.

THE SHOEMAKER SAINTS.

Story of the Roman Brothers Who Perished by the Sword.

St. Crispin and his brother, Crispinian (always associated together in the calendar), were two natives of Rome who, having become converts to Christianity, set out for Gaul to preach the faith about the middle of the third century along with St. Quintin and others. The brothers settled at Soissons, where, in imitation of the apostle Paul, they preached publicly in the daytime and worked with their hands at night, earning their own subsistence by making shoes, though nobly born. They supplied the poor at a low price, and a legend tells us that an angel supplied them with leather. The heathen listened to their instructions and were astonished at the charity, disinterestedness, piety and contempt of glory displayed in their lives, and many were converted to the Christian faith.

After they had been thus engaged for several years the Emperor Maximianus Herculeus came into Belgic Gaul, and a complaint was made to him against the brothers. He, desiring to gratify their accusers as well as to indulge his own savage cruelty, gave orders that they should be brought before Rictius Varus, the most implacable enemy of the Christians of that time. The saints bore with patience and constancy the most cruel torments and at length finished their course by being beheaded with the sword about 287 A. D.

According to a Kentish tradition, their remains, being cast into the sea, were washed ashore at Romney marsh. In the sixth century a great church was built in their honor at Soissons, and St. Eligius richly ornamented the shrine.

From their martyrdom to the present time they have been regarded as the patron saints of shoemakers, who were accustomed to honor their day (and are yet in some towns) by great festivity. One special ceremony was a procession of the brethren of the craft with banners and music, while various characters representing King Crispin and his court were sustained by different members. -St. James' Gazette.

The Laurel and the Sunflower.

The laurel and the sunflower have been found, according to Country Life, to be of the greatest use in damp situations. People who live in such spots, especially near undrained land, think there is no help for them but by removal. Successful experiments have shown that it is possible materially to improve the atmosphere in such neighborhoods by the planting of laurels and sunflowers. The former give off an abundance of ozone, while the latter are potent in destroying the malarial conditions. These two, if planted even on the most restricted scale in a garden or any ground close to the house, will be found to increase the purity of the atmosphere and salubrity of the atmosphere.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never, touch your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cold mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label!" Polson are in your Cough Mixture. God! Very good! Hereafter for this year, mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's label—and none in the medicine, else it must be law to be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chances then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. GHEENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

I will mail you free, to prove merit samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves". Also flat bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write to-day for sample and free Book. D. with some... venom of the toad, which is... acrid, milky fluid concealed in the glands at the back of the head. It has been many times described by naturalists as harmless unless it touches some abrasion of the skin when it causes local irritation. But though not particularly virulent when swallowed by another animal yet injected into a wound it is very active and causes ulceration and all the symptoms of irritant poisoning. A dog which has once seized a toad and tasted this bitter fluid and burnt his tongue will never attack one again. Snakes will starve rather than swallow a toad.

"During the warm weather the skin is sloughed, and the ponderous toad shakes off the thin film that covers him and emerges in a new skin, fresh and bright. So also do the frogs change their skins in the course of the summer, assisting in the process themselves. The old cuticle divides down the center of the back and the two halves gradually fold and recede farther and farther from the center. By continued twitching the folds are brought down the sides, and then the hinder legs, first one and then the other, are brought forward under the arm, which presses down upon it and thus draws off the old skin inside out."

The Second Mate.
A widow coy and sweet was wooed by a bluff old sailor who thought the world of her; but, not trusting himself to make a direct proposal of marriage, he decided to speak to her in the metaphor of the sea.
"Kate," he said, "your boat is drifting down the sea of life, with no strong hand to steer it safely past the rocks. May I be your captain and sail it for you?"
"No, Jack," she answered, with an engaging blush, "but you may be my second mate if you like!"—Kansas City Independent.

Serves a Good Purpose.
Caller—I sent you a poem about three weeks ago. What have you done with it?
Editor—I'm holding it. Every little while I get to thinking that we are not getting out as good a paper as we ought to, and then I take that poem and see how much worse the sheet might be, and that makes me cheerful again. Say, how much'll you take for it?—Chicago News.

THE TOAD.
Its Eyes and Its Venom and the Changing of Its Skin.
"Moving slowly through the long grass is a small, rough skinned creature, almost the color of the earth that shows at the roots of the trees," writes a nature observer. "It is a toad just emerged, somewhat tardily, from his winter hiding place (a hole about as big as himself) and only now awake to external influences. Lethargic and sleepy though he is, he is quite sufficiently alert to know that I am looking at him and wondering to see how his skin has lost all its color from the long absence of the light. It is hardly possible to trace any shade of olive green and dusky yellow or ashen gray and brown upon the warty surface of his back. And the darker markings which sometimes form irregular bands over the back and legs are merged into the general dullness and dustiness of the soil which has covered him for so long. As a rule, toads and frogs and other hibernating animals are seen in the open as soon as the first warm days of spring restore their lowered temperature.
"Some people wonder what Shakespeare meant by the 'precious jewel in its head.' The brilliant eyes with their yellow rings, like a gold setting to the onyx, are as precious as any jewel upon its head. Wonderful eyes: they are in their range of vision and able to see meal worms placed to the rear far quicker than complished the winning rider is fully repaid for his pains. His ox is surrounded by the enthusiastic spectators and decorated with garlands and flowers, and the lucky owner receives a cash prize.—Pittsburg Post.

Lady of the Lamb.
In a certain Oxfordshire village there was formerly on the Monday after Whitsun a custom of providing a fat live lamb to be competed for by the maidens of the parish, the conditions being that each lass should have her thumbs tied securely and should run after the lamb with open mouth. She who succeeded in catching hold of and retaining the lamb by means of her teeth was declared the winner. After having been dressed with the skin on the animal was then slung on a long pole and was carried in front of the successful candidate to the village green, where music and dancing were the order of the day. The following day a third of it was baked, a third boiled and the remainder roasted and distributed among the lady's companions, who sat at table with her, she being designated Lady of the Lamb.—Modern Society.

Political Platforms.
No political party held a national convention prior to 1831 or adopted a platform of principles prior to 1832. Before these dates nominations were made by congressional caucuses and by the several legislatures. The anti-Masonic party was the first to hold a national convention. This was convened in Baltimore on Sept. 26, 1831. It named William Wirt for president, but adopted no platform. This example was followed by the Whigs, who met in December of the same year and put Henry Clay in nomination, but framed no declaration of principles. It was not until the Democratic party met in convention, also in Baltimore, on March 22, 1832, that the modern custom of stating the issues of the campaign was in-

A CURIOUS CONTEST.
Ox Race That Is Run Under Peculiar Conditions.

A race that in a peculiar sense is not to the swift is one that is run, if the word may be used in such a connection, every year in the provincial districts of Germany. Early in May during the celebration of a festival that to a certain extent corresponds to the English May day an ox race is held. The entrance fee is small, but the conditions are peculiar. Each ox must be ridden by its owner and ridden bareback. No whip, spur, yoke, harness or any means of guiding the animal is allowed. The rider must depend entirely upon his voice to accomplish the end he has in view, and as the oxen do not race on a track, but across a large open field, the training of the animals and the skill of the rider are severely tested. Speed is a secondary consideration in this race, for the rider who can induce his steed to go in a straight line is sure to win. The start is made at one side of a field a mile square, the finish at the opposite side. When the competitors are lined up and the signal is given the fun begins. Despite the efforts of the riders the majority of the oxen refuse to head toward the opposite mark, and as spectators are allowed in the field and are at liberty to do anything they wish to interfere with the rider except touch him or his mount the difficulties of the race are not inconsiderable. As is well known, oxen are not as a rule excitable beasts. But when they are confronted by the shouts of the spectators and the general hullabaloo that always ensues at such affairs as well as the exciting efforts of the riders to control them they are soon reduced to a state of complete bewilderment. It often happens that an hour has passed before one of the oxen has succeeded in getting "under the wire." But when once the task is ac-

HIS CHANCE IN LIFE.

An Incident Showing on What a Slender Thread Fate May Hang.
Talking to a New York newspaper man one day, a western millionaire said: "So far from feeling blue, it was more like a yellow streak I felt one day about twenty years ago in San Francisco.
"I stood outside of a restaurant without a dime, but was indulging in an optical feast, gazing at the display of good things, garnished and altogether lovely, in the window of that food shop. The song, or, rather, its refrain, 'Thou Art So Near and Yet So Far,' was whispered to me by the gaunt brownie of hunger. Then a prosperous looking man who was flipping a half dollar in his hand dropped the coin, which tinkled through an iron grate and fell into the cellar below.
"The man gave an almost unconcerned glance in the direction the coin had gone and then walked away, humming a popular tune.
"I was determined to have that coin. The occasion was one of those frequently spoken of as a 'ground hog case.' I was out of meat, also bread, and needed that half dollar for my business.
"I spoke to the proprietor of the place, told him that I had dropped a five dollar goldpiece through the grate and asked if I might go and retrieve it.
"Certainly," he said, and he gave me a hatchet with which I might remove a wooden bar that had been nailed across a door leading from the basement to the opening under the grate.
"There was much litter and dust down there, and, scratching for the lost coin, I found many others that had been lost in a similar way. Thus I cleaned up $8 from the prospect drift. That amount supplied me with a place in which I could exercise my ablebodied appetite. It also gave me the entry to a clean shirt and a proportionate supply of self respect and self reliance. I visited men of influence and affluence that I had not been sufficiently courageous to meet in the immediate theretofore, and I have not been seriously insolvent since that date. Thus you may see on what a slender thread oft hangs a chance in life."—New York Tribune.

Vigorous Language.

A story is told in the National Magazine of Senator Knute Nelson, who spent some of his early years in a logging camp. He there discovered the necessity of certain emphatic language in order to make mules move. "All varieties" of tongues were in demand in that camp—Scandinavian, German and Italian—but none of the words used seemed to have the explosive force to adjust the tempo of the mule to the desired pace. Along came a strapping Irishman, who used some popular expletives, usually indicated in print by blank, blank, or ——. The mules moved! "There's a language all mules understand," said the Irishman, "and it's not me mother tongue ayther."

Her View.

A laborer in a neighboring city died recently, and the members of the fraternal order in which he held membership called upon his widow to find how they might be of most assistance in her distress. They made all arrangements for the order's attending the funeral, but before settling upon the final details for the obsequies they desired to know if the deceased had any special church affiliation.
"Did your husband belong to any church?" was asked.
"W'y, no," said the woman in astonishment. "He never done nothing to belong to church fur."—Chicago News.

He Wasn't Afraid.

Little Tommy and his younger sister were going to bed without a light. They had just reached the bottom of the stairs when Tommy, after vainly endeavoring to pierce the darkness, turned around and asked:
"Ma, is it polite for a gentleman to precede a lady when they have to walk in single file?"
"No, my son," replied the mother, "the lady should always take the lead."
"I thought so," said Tommy delightedly; "go ahead, Sue."—Pearson's Weekly.

Angelic Bore.

Not one man in 500 pictures his future wife in the surroundings of the ordinary girl. Where is the Adam who dreams of meeting his Eve, short of skirt and strong of arm, in the hockey field or striding over the turf with a golf ball or plunging madly after a tennis ball? On the contrary, he pictures her clad in "something soft and clinging," a being more angel than woman, who as a daily companion would undoubtedly prove the most withering bore a man could be cursed with.—London Throne.

DE PACHMANN'S SARCASM.

Vladimir de Pachmann, the Russian pianist, and Goldmark, the famous opera composer, met in front of the latter's Vienna home a short time ago. Goldmark is a most estimable old gentleman and a writer of exceptionally brilliant and melodious music, but his one great fault is most overwhelming conceit, a trait which often gives his friends occasion for much merriment at his expense.
As De Pachmann and Goldmark walked away from the composer's house the pianist pointed backward over his shoulder and said, "That modest little edifice will be signally distinguished some day after you are dead."
"Indeed!" murmured Goldmark, blushing with pleasure.
"Yes," continued De Pachmann, "they will decorate it with a tablet."
"And, pray, what do you suppose they will say on the tablet after I am dead?" asked the composer eagerly.
"To Let," was De Pachmann's pithy reply as he scuttled across the Ringstrasse.
No Changes in Esperanto.
Some Esperantists have recently been getting themselves heartily disliked by their associates by trying to improve Esperanto.
"If there is room for improvements, which we strenuously deny," say the conservatives, "let us wait until the language is officially adopted and sanctioned by the governments of the world, and let them appoint revisers. At present no one shall touch Esperanto as Dr. Zamenhof has given it to us. We will not even allow Dr. Zamenhof himself to do so if he should want to. If we make changes now we shall sink to a surety before we reach the harbor."
The row is just beginning, and developments are likely, for the would be reformers are stubborn and some of their suggestions are logical.—New York Sun.

How He Would Go.

In connection with its account of the international convention of Zionists at The Hague a writer in a German paper says: "The national sentiment was advocated by Steinschneider in Prague in 1835 and Moses Hess in France. In the fifties the story went the rounds of the European papers to the effect that Adolphe Cremieux had become a convert to the Jewish state movement. He was asked one day by Napoleon III. if he would go to such a state if it were founded, and he promptly answered, 'Yes, your majesty, but only as the accredited representative of France.'"

Amusing Signs in Japan.

Major General Hoad, who was the Australian officer attached to the Japanese army during the war with Russia, saw some amusing shop signs in Tokyo—"Head Cutter" over a barber's, "Extract of Fowls" over an egg seller's and "Ladies Furnished on the Upstairs" in front of a draper's. He had a memorable twenty-four hours' railway journey in a compartment crammed with forty men, women and children. He made a resolution not to fall asleep, but he woke up in the morning to find that "a patient little Japanese lady had been supporting his head on her shoulder."

Beautiful Mixed Metaphor.

I think your readers may be interested in a mixed metaphor which recently appeared in the Egyptian Standard, the paper of Mustapha Kamel Pasha. That paper says that if the Whig element were dropped out of the cabinet "a truly liberal wind might become the guiding light of the foreign office, and the introduction of a home rule bill for Ireland might mean the beginning of justice for Egypt." I think the idea of a wind being a guiding light is an example of mixed metaphor which it will be hard to beat.—Letter in London Spectator.

He Waited.

Frau Mommssen, widow of the Roman historian, bore the great historian sixteen children, of whom twelve, six sons and six daughters, are still living. Mommssen himself was so self centered and engrossed with his ideas that he often passed his offspring in the street without recognizing them. One day a servant burst into the study of the great man with the announcement of the birth of his fourteenth. "It is a boy, Herr Professor." The professor turned, annoyed. "Tell him to wait," he replied.

Holiday Fashions.

There is a fashion in holiday resorts as in apparel, and there is little doubt that the tide of fashion is setting strongly in favor of Holland. Holland is the land of "round eye wonder." There is nothing quite like it in either hemisphere.—London Railway Times.

TO MY FRIENDS.

Having been away for several months I wish to announce to my friends and patrons of the "Empire" of Pitt that I am still connected with the firm of Ches. M. Staff and his partners and allowed to manage the hotel term home as a synonym for "hanging out the wash" still in the Greenville hotel, and while intended to be away from Greenville a great deal of my time during this past year has been spent in a day or two. I have a number of slightly used upright pianos, some of which have been rented during the summer months, others which were temporarily used by artists at the exposition and for orchestral work, at bargain prices.

We also offer a special school piano for $225.00 fully measuring up in standard to any $350.00 instrument. This piano is especially built for college and school work for the special price named above and is fully guaranteed by my firm for 10 years. Those interested in a school piano or in a good, slightly used piano for the home should write me at once and will profit by it, and as ever I am always mindful of my patrons' protection and interests as well as my firm's interest. Grateful of past patronage. Very respt.,
