REV. W. E. COX CALLED.

Greenville Rector Calls to the Episcopal Church.

Runners that have been current some days to the effect that Rev. W. E. Cox, of the office, N. C., had accepted a call to the parish of St. John's Episcopal Church in this city, were confirmed yesterday by the reverend pastor. The reverend pastor has received a letter of introduction from the reverend pastor of the city to take up his duties in the parish on the first of November. He is one of the ablest of the younger members of the diocese and the parish accounts as if exceedingly fortunate in accepting him. He will begin a cordial welcome to Wilmington, where he is already well known and popular. — Wilmington Star.

All that the Star says about Mr. Cox is true, and the city will part with him very reluctantly, yet with a glad heart, success in his larger field of labor. He is a Pitt county boy of whom his county feels justly proud, and will make his mark in the world.

The Law's Delay.

The law's delay is a thing which has been a subject of many cases. In a case which had been pending for some time in the Superior Court, the other day, "Here's a man who is suing a railroad company for damages. If I take this man aside and sit down on a log with him and give him a chew of tobacco, he'll tell me in fifteen minutes all there is to tell about how he got his leg broken and how he was injured in that accident, but in this trial they have had him on the stand two whole days!" And there you are. "The law's delay," "Yes, sir, I was standing so, and so and so happened, and my leg was broken, and I was injured thus and so,"—merely a matter of ten minutes' conversation, or so, and yet when it comes to stating the case to the jury, it takes two days to tell it! It would seem that a man is not expected to unfold a plain, unvarnished tale on the witness stand. After many centuries of duplicity diplomats have waked to a realization of the fact that the best policy is to be absolutely direct and candid, and may be yet, in some future golden age, when a man is placed upon the witness stand to tell how a thing happened, he will be allowed to tell it simply, directly and speedily. Maybe so.—Lumberton Reformer.

The Four Pickerts Please.

A large audience greeted the Four Pickerts at their opening here Monday night in Masonic opera house. "Pawn Ticket 210" was well played and delighted the audience. The specialties were fine. Miss Blanch Pickert is as much a favorite as ever, and has good support from the company. "Pink Dominoes" is the bill for tonight and another good house is indicated.

Took Friends By Surprise.

Mr. Adrian McGowan and Miss Lucy White took their friends by surprise Monday, by making it known that they were married. They were both in Norfolk last week attending the exposition, and were married in that city Saturday evening. They came back Sunday as far as House from where they drove to the home of Mr. McGowan, about 4 miles from town. They came over to Greenville Monday and informed the bride's mother, Mrs. M. A. White, of the marriage.

Weather.

Fair tonight and Wednesday, continued cool with frost tonight, warmer Wednesday.

There Are 1,187 Routes in Operation in the State and 69 Petitions Pending.

There were 1,187 rural delivery routes in operation in North Carolina October first according to a report just issued by Assistant Postmaster General De Graw. The post office department has received a total of 2,418 petitions from the State, and of this number 1,123 were acted upon unfavorably. In all, 11,000 have been discontinued in the state, six having been discontinued since the first of July. The number of tri-weekly routes in the state is 87. There are 68 petitions pending before the department for the establishment of new routes.

There are more routes in operation in the fifth district than in any other in the state. Mr. W. K. Cain has 131 to his credit. The fourth district ranks second with 117 routes. The seventh district has 129 routes, the ninth 115, the second district, 110, the first 106, the first 14, the sixth 10, and the tenth 84.

COX MILL FLEWS.

Cox Mill, N. C., Oct. 15.

H. A. Moore & Co. have opened a drug and grocery store here. We hope they will have good success.

Southy Carrell and W. F. Carrell and little son left today for the exposition at Norfolk.

Some of our people who claim to have received the Holy Ghost, passed through Sunday going to their meeting near Simpson.

J. D. and A. E. Evans and F. L. Tyson spent Saturday night near Shelmerdine.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Fornes, of Greenville, spent Saturday night and Sunday with Guilford Page.

Mrs. W. S. Cox is on the sick list this week.

Oscar Evans went to Greenville today.

Louis Avery sold tobacco in Greenville Monday at an average of 18 cents and returned home all smiles.

Harvey Stokes has bought a new buggy.

We were glad to see John Moore out Sunday.

New Arrivals.

A son born to Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Harvey and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. King in the course of happiness in two more homes in our midst.

Again let us remind you, if you go to the fair only take along enough money for your expenses, and don't carry any for the pickpockets.

Some more folks went to the Jamestown exposition this morning, so the Raleigh fair will not get all of them, I say nothing of he stay at homes.

Frost was plentifully in evidence this morning. If our memory is correct the first frost of consequence last season was on the 15th of October.

The crowds will begin moving north tomorrow.

In the month of Oct. Mrs. G. Stand, of Grifton, will place her entire stock before the trade at considerable discount. Nevertheless has Grifton known such values. It will pay all to look at them.

Oakley Items.

Oakley, N. C., Oct. 15.

School has again opened at Piney Green with Miss Everett as teacher.

Capt. Frank Warren, of Tillery, is spending a few days in this section with friends.

Mrs. T. F. Nelson visited in Bethel last week.

Year's meetings are over, so we have settled down on every day rations once more.

Good many attended church at Brey Swamp Sunday with usual sermon and good dinner.

Most of the farmers from this section are selling tobacco at Greenville. All come home pleased.

Forty or fifty of our people attended church at Parmele Sunday evening.

Frost came on the 14th, one day later than last year, it came on Oct. 13th last year.

J. O. Williams made business in Robersonville Saturday.

J. S. Cherry and family, of Stokes, visited in this section Sunday.

J. E. Hines, of Wilmington, spent a few days here this week.

Oakley was honored Sunday morning with a marriage at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Nelson, the parties being Mr. Clyde Carson and Miss Lela Jones, both of Bethel.

How times do change! Before this year grapes sold by the bushel, but now L. R. Whichard, of Whichard, is buying by the dozen. He bought 17,000 last week.

Walter Carson went to Rocky Mount today.

J. J. James has been appointed Mayor of this place.

MOVEMENTS OF THE PEOPLE.

Those Who Come and Go—Some Know You—Some You Know.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Laughinghouse and Miss Martha O'Hagan went to Raleigh today.

S. J. Parham went up the road his morning.

Miss Sadler, of Baltimore, who has been visiting Misses Glenn and Helen Forbes, left this morning.

EYE WINKS.

They Occur on an Average Twenty Times a Minute.

The average person winks his eyes every three seconds—that is to say, twenty times a minute, or 1,200 times in an hour. This means that an ordinary day's work for a pair of eyelids is from 13,000 to 20,000 winks.

A wink is accomplished in about one-fiftieth of a second, so quickly that, as anybody may observe for himself, it does not in the slightest degree interrupt continuous vision. But the notion that winking is intended by nature to give repose to the eyes is a mistake, the object of it being merely to keep the surface of the sensitive little organs constantly moist. The moisture, which is necessary for the health of the eyes, is supplied, of course, by the tears.

For this purpose—that is to say, to keep the eyes continually bathed—considerable quantities of salty water are secreted. The water is flowing all the time and would pour out over the edges of the eyelids were it not for an oil which is furnished to prevent this. This oil is secreted and supplied by little glands along the rims of the lids. There is also a tear duct, which carries off the superfluous water and gets rid of it.

The mouth of the tear duct is plainly visible on the edge of the lower eyelid near the inner corner of the eye. It is a small pipe, which leads down into the throat, so that when one puts into the eyes anything with a pronounced taste, like cayenne, the flavor of it is presently distinguishable in the mouth.

The eyelids, if closed, are absolutely water tight. They do not exclude light, however, nearly so well as most people suppose.—Saturday Evening Post.

Safe and Swift.

The pupils in No. 3 school in Bushby knew that whenever Mr. Lamson paid them a visit there was one question he was sure to ask, and their answer was always ready. The other selectmen might propound geographical or arithmetical puzzles, but not Mr. Lamson, chief of Bushby's fire brigade.

It was the closing day of school, and the children, having listened to three addresses with drowsy patience, were glad when Mr. Lamson rose to conclude the exercises.

"Now, children," he said cheerfully, "you have listened most attentively to the words of Mr. Howe, Mr. Gray and Mr. Ranlett. I wonder what you would do if I made you a little speech?"

The shift from the usual question was so unexpected that the children answered before they had time to catch themselves.

"Form in line and march quietly out of the building!" they cried in prompt and joyful chorus.

Bitter Wit.

Samuel Rogers, the banker poet, was noted for his bitter wit, for which, however, he had an excuse. "They tell me I say ill natured things," he once observed in his slow, quiet, deliberate way. "I have a very weak voice. If I did not say ill natured things no one would hear what I said."

It was owing to this weakness of voice that no candles were put on his dinner table, for glare and noise go together, and dimness subdues the voices in conversation as a handkerchief thrown over the cage of a canary subdues its song. The light was thrown upon the walls and pictures and shaded from the room. This did not suit Sydney Smith, who said that a dinner in St. James' place was "a flood of light on all above, and below nothing but darkness and gnashing of teeth."

His Opportunity.

A Buffalo physician tells of two young friends in that city who entered simultaneously upon their respective careers of physician and lawyer. Late one afternoon the newly made medico dashed into the room of his legal friend, exclaiming: "Great luck, old man! Congratulate me! Got a patient at last! On my way to see him now!" Whereupon the legal light to be slapped his friend on the back, saying, "Delighted, old chap!" Then, after a slight pause, he added, with a sly grin: "Say, let me go with you! Perhaps he hasn't made his will!"

ALL OVER THE HOUSE.

Suggestions as to the Care of the Wardrobe—Helpful Hints.

Wishing to give the wardrobe proper care, do not forget to look every day at the binding of skirts, at the buttons on boots, at veil and gloves. Indeed one must glance at all that has unceasing wear. A fresh binding sometimes will alter the entire appearance of a girl, making her look neat and dainty where before the ragged edges of her skirt suggested that she was at once untidy and ignorant. Shabby finery is inexcusable. Chiffon that has become worn and ragged when it cannot be replaced should be removed and something simpler substituted for it. Tears, worn places and rips never are seen on the well bred girl, for from her early youth she has learned how to wield her needle well and mend her belongings with as much daintiness as she embroiders.

When a Child Has Convulsions.

The first thing to do after sending for the doctor when a child has convulsions is to plunge the little one up to the neck in a bath of hot water, but remember that the water must not be too hot. Test it with your elbow, which is not as hard as your hand. When the heat is right at your elbow it will not hurt the baby. The child's head should be poinged also with cold water. As soon as the little one is able to swallow give a small dose of castor oil. This helps to remove blood pressure from the brain.

Diphtheria Cure.

At the first indications of diphtheria in the throat of a child make the room close. Take a tin cup and put into it a quantity of tar and turpentine, equal parts. Then hold the cup over a fire, so as to fill the room with fumes. The little patient on inhaling the fumes will cough up and spit out all the membranous matter and the diphtheria will pass out. The fumes of the tar and turpentine loosen the matter in the throat and thus afford the relief that has baffled the skill of physicians.

Edited Pills of Beef.

Take the middle of the fat rib of beef, stew until the meat is tender and the bones slip out easily, using just water enough to cover the meat, to which a bouquet of sweet herbs has been added. Take up the meat and herbs. Set the soup away to cool, remove the fat and to the very dried carrots, turnips, celery and six small onions, look until tender. Thicken the gravy with a little flour, put the beef back into it to warm and serve.

Good Throat Cures.

Strong store tea, one-half pint; strained honey, common salt and tannin, each one of each two table-spoonfuls; cayenne, pulverized, one round; peppermint. Steep the aycane with the sage, strain, mix with honey and bottle for use. Gargle from four to a dozen times daily, according to the severity of the case.

Whitewash Hints.

If one pint of wheat flour is made into a thin cooked paste and added to each pailful of whitewash the whitewash will not rub off easily. Add to this a small quantity of carbolic acid and it will purify the cellars and dairies where used, keeping down all musty odors that might taint the milk and butter.

Apron of Handkerchiefs.

Obtain two large size handkerchiefs. From one cut a corner about seven inches. Then gather the part that is cut. The other handkerchief can be cut up for the band and strings. The corner cut from the first handkerchief can be sewed on the right hand side of the apron for a small sized pocket.

Crested Parrot.

Take a very thick solution of gum arabic in water and stir in plaster of paris until the mixture is of proper consistency. Apply with a brush to the fractured edges, stick them together and in three days' time the article will not break in the same place.

Cleansing Fluid.

For yellow or grimy things make an emulsion of kerosene, clear lime-water and turpentine in equal parts. Shake them together until creamy, and then add a cupful to a boilerful of clothes and boil for half an hour.

KINGBIRD OF PARADISE.

His Brilliant Plumage and His Dance and Love Song.

A most magnificent fellow is the kingbird of paradise, and his manner of displaying his charms to the female that has captured his heart is in keeping with his plumage. The kingbird of paradise is small, six and one-half inches long, having the head, throat and upper part of the richest glossy crimson, shading to orange crimson on the forehead. The under parts are of a silky white, relieved by an orange red breast, bordered below by a band of metallic green, while the flank feathers are produced into long plumes of an ash gray color and tipped with buff and metallic green. The two middle tail feathers are produced into long slender stalks, terminating in a wonderful disk of emerald green. The beak is yellow and the legs are cobalt blue. During those ecstatic moments in which he proclaims his undying devotion to the bird he desires for his mate the body is drawn close to the bough which serves as a perch, while the head is bent downward toward the breast, and the wings are spread and extended forward so as almost to meet in front of the downcast head, as though the performer were overwhelmed by a sudden panic of modesty.

Suddenly all is changed. The body is extended to its full length and the wings are violently beaten as though flight were contemplated. Then in a moment he gives himself a half turn and, facing the spectators, fluffs out the silky white under-feather like an apron and throws up the long flank feathers till they form a fan arching above his back and on either side of the gorgeously tinted throat. Meanwhile the tail has been drawn forward over the back, so that the long, wirelike and disk-bearing feathers are raised high above him. All the while the body is swayed gently from side to side, and this motion causes the disklike ends of the long tail feathers to shimmer in the light, like balls of burnished metal being tossed to and fro in the air.

As if these strange antics were not enough, he bursts into song, which bears a close resemblance to that of the skylark. Then comes the finale, which lasts only for a few seconds. He suddenly turns right around and shows his back, the white fluff feathers under the tail bristling in his excitement. He bends down on the perch in the attitude of a fighting cock, his widely opened bill showing distinctly the light apple green color of the gullet, and sings the same gurgling note without once closing his bill, and with a slow drying away movement of his tail and body. A single drawn out note is then uttered, the tail and wings are lowered and the dance and song are over.—Chicago News.

Wen on the Call of Time.

Excitement was more or less high in the classroom that night, for Jones had been trying for close on an hour to get Brown, the wildest man in the club, to answer a certain question. But his efforts were all in vain.

"Look here, Brown," he shouted angrily at last, "will you answer me with a plain 'yes' or 'no'? That's all I want!"

"Yes," said Brown suddenly, "I will on condition that you first give me a plain 'yes' or 'no' to one of my questions?"

And Jones repeated readily: "Doesn't he ask, 'Fire away!'"

"What is the time, please?" inquired Brown blandly.

Then Jones, with both hands pressed to his suffering brow, faded silently from the scene.—London Express.

The Lyre Bird.

Of Australia's lyre bird a naturalist writes: "It imitates the notes and songs of other birds and reproduces a hissing noise similar to that uttered by an alarmed snake and a sharp knocking sound like that produced by striking a tree trunk with a stick. All these sounds are uttered apparently for the bird's own amusement. The sounds of imitation include the calls and cries of every creature that is found in the localities which the lyre bird inhabits, including those of such noisy birds as the eagle and the laughing jackass. The lyre bird nearly always interposes snatches of its own song between its mimic cries."

THAT REST ROOM.

If the business men of Greenville could have heard several teachers, who were here last Saturday, making inquiry as to what had become of the contemplated rest room, surely they would have felt like taking some action to establish it. The need of a rest room is never more felt than on such days as last Saturday when there are a large number of ladies in town. It is not only needed when teachers are here, but also on other days when ladies from the surrounding country come here shopping. It is a hardship on these good women that they must spend most of the day around the stores or on the streets, and find no quiet place to which they can withdraw to rest a while. The town that provides conveniences for them will get their visits the oftener. Greenville must rid itself of the little spirit that opposes an institution of this kind because a location suggested for it might be a few feet nearer to one place of business than another. Such a spirit is hurtful to the progress of the town.

TOO MUCH CITY GOVERNMENT.

Just at this time the papers in some of the larger towns are calling attention to the fact that in most places there is too much city government. In other words there are so many boards of one kind and another that have a finger in the government of municipal affairs as to make the administration bunglesome and full of friction, attended by more or less loss and unnecessary expense to the municipality and proportionate additional burden upon the tax payers. The reform suggested is that a few capable business men could conduct municipal affairs far more advantageously and economically than by having so many boards. In this connection, sit down at your leisure and count the number of men who in one way and another, through the different boards and employes, draw upon the treasury of Greenville. For a town of less than 5,000 population the number will astonish you. Then look at the amount of taxes collected from all sources and the amount expended in the various departments of city government, compare the cost with what is accomplished, and see if Greenville, like all other towns, is not paying dearly for what it gets. This does not mean that there is wrong doing anywhere, but that our present day system of municipal government is bad from the fact that it is too bunglesome. See if you do not conclude a few good business men could conduct affairs better.

It has not been stated that Raleigh will give a reception in honor of the Rowlands during the fair. This may have been overlooked as a drawing card.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppose it is with a sweeping poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now—a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label, if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! Hereafter for this very reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must by law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then. Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased part of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. GENESEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, etc. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

I will mail you free, to prove merit samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Bock on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves". Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or constipation, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write to-day for sample and free Book. There is no case of indigestion, no matter how irritable or how obstinate that will not be speedily relieved by the use of Kodol. The main factor in curing the stomach of any disorder is rest, and the only way to get rest is to actually digest the food in the stomach itself. Kodol will do it. It is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids containing the very same juices found in healthy stomach. It conforms to the Pure Food and Drugs Law. Sold by John L. Wooten.

The Deal Was Off.
A German university professor received a large package containing six boxes of cigars, with a letter saying: "Permit us to send you these six boxes of cigars. We believe that they will give you complete satisfaction and trust that you will recommend them to your friends. Kindly send the amount, 6 marks, by postoffice order."

The professor replied: "I have the honor to react to you several dissertations, which will no doubt afford you the utmost satisfaction. Should you wish for more I am at your command. The cost is 3 marks each."

By return of post came the reply: "Be good enough to return the cigars. We send herewith the cost of carriage and package. We are returning your dissertations."

On the Wrong Man.
Bret Harte was so frequently complimented on being the author of "Little Breeches" that he was almost sorry it was ever written, as was Secretary John Hay, who would prefer his fame to rest on more ambitious work. A gushing lady who prided herself upon her literary tastes said to him once: "Mr. Harte, I am so delighted to meet you. I have read everything you ever wrote, but of all your dialect verse there is none that compares with your 'Little Breeches.'" "I quite agree with you, madam," said Mr. Harte, "but you have put the little breeches on the wrong man."—Harvrisburg Telegraph.

To Easyman's Discomfiture.
Mrs. Scraphard (after a tilt in which Mr. was not without honor)—Mrs. Easyman, across the way, has got a bargain of a husband.
Mr. Scraphard—So? Well, then, Mrs. Easyman is proving to the world that there is at least one woman who can drive a bargain.—Norristown Times.

A Curious Stage Custom.
It is not generally known that the last three or four words of a new dramatic production are never spoken during the period of the rehearsal of the piece. Most frequently they are never written by the author.

The superstition of the theatrical world is that it would be certain to bring bad luck to the piece if the last words were pronounced on the stage before the first night. But a play must have an end, and it should be known to all present that it is at an end, the actor or actress instructed with the last lines usually intercalates a word or two. For instance, the actor would say, "My dear girl, my dear boy, kneel before me, that I may forgive you and bless you with—a farthing cake."—London Globe.

Accommodating.
"I shall refuse to pay for attendance," said an irate tourist who had been staying at an old-fashioned country hotel and had just been presented with his bill. "Why, the bells in the rooms are a perfect disgrace. Not one of them would ring. Everything I wanted I had to fetch myself. I must have spent some hours tugging at those bell pulls." "It's true we have charged for attendance," said the proprietor, "but we can change that and charge you for a physical culture course."—London Graphic.

The Family Enjoyed It.
When the minister, who was bachelor, had been helped to Porter's biscuits for the third time he looked across the table at the staring at him with round, staring eyes.
"I don't often have such a supper as this, my dear," he said, his most propitiatory tone. Rhoda's face dimpled.
"We don't always," she said, her clear little voice. "I'm glad you came."—Youth's Companion.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

He—You saw me on Desbrosses street this morning?
"Yes, I saw you on Desbrosses street this morning."
"Who? Me?"
"Yes, you."
"On Desbrosses street?"
"Yes, sir, on Desbrosses street."
"This morning?"
"This very morning."
"Oh, come now! Do you mean to say you saw me on Desbrosses street?"
"Te he! Yes, I did."
"You did?"
"I certainly did see you on Desbrosses street."
"Go way! You didn't see me on Desbrosses street, did you?"
"Te he! Why, of course I saw you on Desbrosses street."
"You ain't fooling me, are you?"
"Of course I ain't. I saw you this morning."
"You saw me?"

"Well, well!"
"It's an honest fact. I saw you on Desbrosses street this very morning."
"Well, maybe you did."
"Of course I did."
"Maybe you did. I was on Desbrosses street this morning."—Will S. Adkins in Puck.

Information From Headquarters.
The boarder, who had received a hastily written serowl, brought it to the landlord.
"I can't read this, Mr. Hickman," he said. "Can you make it out?"
"I guess I can, Mr. De Link," answered the landlord. "I made it out an hour or two ago. It's your bill."—Chicago Tribune.

Wireless From the Orient.
"Our country will be completely tied down by the conditions you would impose," protested the Moroccan diplomat.

"Yet why should you object to being Morocco bound?" argued the French plenipotentiary.—Kansas City Times.

Insult Plus Injury.
"Oh, you can laugh all you want to," said Green, with a show of impatience, "but I'm not as big a fool as you think I am."
"Well," rejoined Brown, "to tell you the truth, I didn't believe it could be possible."—Detroit Tribune.

More Misrepresentation.

"Yes," answered the politician; "Bliggins isn't the first man to distort the facts when he gives out an interview."—Washington Star.

The Canary Retorts.
Said the bullfrog to the canary, "I may not sing so grand, but I'm worth far more than you are. I'm a greenback—understand!"
"That may be," said the canary. "But of all frog tribe you're jack; you are only a common greenback—while I'm a yellowback."—Chicago News.

FIRST GLOVE WEARERS.

Gauntlets of Ancient Hunters—Saints Who Wore Gloves.

Not only on account of the intrinsic beauty of many specimens that have been preserved, but also because of the symbolism connected with them, gloves will ever have a special interest for the student of the past.

That they were worn at a very early period there is no doubt, though exactly when they first came into use it is impossible to say, for there are no actual references to them in early Greek or Roman MSS. The first mention of gloves is in the "Odyssey," in which it is stated that Laertes, the father of Ulysses, wore them on his hunting expeditions to protect his hands from the thorns, and in his "Cyropaedia" Xenophon reproaches the Persians for their effeminacy in covering their hands.

Both in the east and west the glove when once adopted soon became of importance as the recognized symbol of the transfer of property, the seller of land giving the purchaser a glove as a token of possession, for which reason it is generally supposed that in the much quoted passage in Ruth iv, verse 7, "To confirm all things a man plucked off his shoe and gave it to his neighbor," the word shoe should have been translated glove.

In Christian iconography a glove was very early associated with certain saints, notably with St. Front, who is said to have left his glove behind him after attending the funeral of St. Martha, the sister of Lazarus, and with St. Cesarius, bishop of Arles, who is credited with having sent his glove full of air to a district in his diocese suffering from a protracted calm.

A glove worn on the left hand by a saint is a token of noble birth, probably because the falcon was carried on the left wrist, and as early as the third century A. D. gloves were given by the emperor to bishops on their investiture. St. Ambrose of Milan, who died in 398, is represented in a painting now in the sacristy of the Cathedral of Aix-la-Chapelle wearing gloves on the back of which a star is embroidered. Gloves are among the emblems of St. Amadeus of Savoy, whose sister is supposed to have given him a glove she had received from the Blessed Virgin, and the story goes that St. David of Sweden when his sight was failing him from old age hung his gloves on a sunbeam, taking it for a cord.

As is well known, the throwing down of a glove was in feudal times a challenge to single combat and the picking up of that glove an acceptance of the defiance, a fact skillfully turned to account by Browning in his beautiful poem "The Glove," in which he makes the heroine dash down her glove at the feet of the lion, only to have it flung back in her face by her lover.

Knights used to wear a lady's glove in their helmets as a token that they would defend her cause against all comers, and to this day a special significance attaches to the gift of a pair of gloves from a man to a woman. The custom of taking off the right hand glove before shaking hands with a lady is probably a survival of the days of chivalry, as is also the presentation of a pair of white gloves to a judge when there are no cases to be tried at an assize as well as to the giving of black gloves to mourners at a funeral.—Mrs. Arthur Bell in Collecting.

Knotty Problem.
She was a passenger on the search for information, and as she was pretty her quest was not in vain.

"Captain," she said, "how fast can your steamer go?"
"Well," replied the man with the ornate cap, "last night we made about twenty knots an hour."
"Twenty knots!" she repeated blankly. "And what did you do with them all?"
The captain's face was one of those pictures that tell a story, but he answered promptly:
"Threw them overboard."
"Oh, fancy that, now!" she said. "What a waste of time! I thought you made the poor dear sailors untie all those knots the next day!"

Dutiful Son.
The MacTavish family were enjoying their Sabbath dinner after their five mile tramp home from the kirk, and they eagerly watched Mr. MacTavish carving the fowl, none so eagerly, however, as the dog, for that intelligent animal never took its eyes off the luscious bird.
The dissection was proceeding apace when suddenly the knife of the carver slipped and sent a fragment of poultry rolling on the floor.
"Mighty me!" cried MacTavish. "The leg! Ma ain favorite bit! The dog'll get it!"
"Naw, father," said the youngest offshoot of the clan MacTavish; "he'll no get it. I've putten ma foot upon't!"—Dundee Advertiser.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

The Truth about the Famous Basilisk of Ancient Times.

According to the ancient writers, says the Chicago News, the basilisk—sometimes called cockatrice—was a monster to be greatly dreaded. Its breath filled the air with a deadly poison and burned up vegetation, and the glance of its eye was fatal to both man and beast. The only creature that could face it and live, they said, was the cock, and travelers were advised to take loud crowing cocks with them as a protection against the monster. So much for superstition. As a matter of fact, the basilisk is a harmless lizard, living a quiet life in the woods and feeding on insects. Its appearance, however, is formidable, and it is this perhaps that gave it a bad name. It grows to a length of from twenty-five to thirty inches, including its tail, which is much longer than its body. Rising from its head and inclining backward is a broad winglike expansion, which gives it some resemblance to the flying lizard. The crest of this expansion is formed somewhat like a crown, and that gave the basilisk its name, which is from the Greek word meaning "king."

How to Remember Things.
You have all heard of tying a string around your fingers to make you remember something. And you have also heard perhaps of the man who had to tie a string around another finger to make him remember what the first string was for. But it seems that there is a better plan than that, and if you have a grandmother, and if she happens to have false teeth, you might try it with her. The editor gets the suggestion from a boy whose notions are nothing if not original. He has a grandmother, who unfortunately forgot to bring him one time a present that she had been promising, and it was then that he made the original suggestion. He told her he did not believe in the string tying plan, but she would be sure to remember his present if she would put her false teeth in upside down.—Chicago News.

The Rhyming Game.
The game of rhyming is never old, and for rainy days there is nothing like it. There are so many topics which can be jingled into funny rhymes if the rhymers have ingenuity.

The fun consists in the head person starting the first line. The person next must give the rhyming line before a given number of seconds have passed. Usually one minute is the allotted time. Then if he is not ready any one in the company may call it out and change places.

In this way a number of clever rhymes may be forthcoming, and the game may be kept up till the ingenuity of the players is exhausted.

Conundrums.
When does a son not take after his father? When his father leaves him nothing to take.
Why are cowardly soldiers like tallow candles? Because when exposed to the fire they run.
What was it a blind man took at breakfast which restored his sight? He took a cup and saw, sir (saucer).
Why is an egg like a colt? Because it isn't fit for use till it's broken.

About Flag Signals.
The flags to be hoisted at one time in signaling at sea never exceed four. It is an interesting arithmetical fact that, with eighteen various colored flags, and never more than four at a time, no fewer than 78,642 signals may be given.

An Inscription Puzzle.

The above is a copy of the inscription on a stone erected at a crossroads. It is supposed to be the tombstone of a gypsy. It is plain English. Can you read it?

The Singing Lesson.
You pretty, pretty pussy,
With your coat of soft, warm fur,
How loudly you are singing
Your song of "Pur, pur, pur!"
I will stroke you very gently
When you sit upon my knee,
And you shall never, never know
What cross words are from me.
Now, off you go, poor pussy,
With your coat of silky fur,
To teach your baby kittens
Your song of "Pur, pur, pur!"
