MOVEMENTS OF THE PEOPLE.

Those Who Come and Go—Some Know You—Some You Know.

Dr. J. E. Nobles went up the road on the morning train.

Miss Irma Cobb left this morning for a visit to Graham.

L. M. Tesh, field representative of The Merchants Journal, of Raleigh, was here today.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Mundy, of Newark, N. J., who were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Oia Forbes left this morning.

Gov. and Mrs. T. J. Jarvis, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bryan and son, Jack, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Vines, Miss Gladys Fleming and R. L. Smith went to Norfolk to lay.

NEW STEAMBOAT LINE.

To be Operated on Tar River.

Capt. W. A. Parvin, of Washington, who has been captain on steamboats on Tar river longer than any man living, and knows the river like a book, was in Greenville Monday afternoon. He brought up the steamer May Bell, which he tells us will on Wednesday begin a regular schedule between Washington and Greenville for carrying freight and passengers. The company operating this river service is also negotiating for a line of steamers between Washington and Norfolk, and the May Bell will work in connection with the through line. This will be good news to the business men of Greenville, as it will keep them from being at the mercy of the railroads in making exorbitant charges on freight. The steamboat line should be liberally patronized.

Big Day's Business.

The National Bank of Greenville had a record breaking day's business Monday. The total transactions of the day amounted to $140,383.92, and the deposits were $70,339.44. This is a remarkable record, especially for a bank that is only a year-and-a-half old, and shows how rapidly the National Bank of Greenville grows in favor with the business public. The stockholders and officers are exceedingly gratified at the splendid work it is doing. Mr. F. J. Forbes, who was recently made cashier of this bank is proving an ideal man for the position. He is one of our own boys and Greenville has every reason to feel proud of him.

The Bright Side.

Much of one's happiness in life depends upon the way one looks at things.

If you are looking for the gloomy things you will be pretty sure to find them. But if you are looking for the brightening things you will also be sure of finding them. Try and see the best that is in people; everyone has some good qualities if you take the trouble to look for them.

There are some unfortunate who persist in turning their worst side toward the world and very often the temptation is great to just leave them alone. But we must not do that, for on every one of us there rests a moral obligation to help our fellow beings all we can; in finding good qualities in them we are helping them rise to a higher plane, both in their own and the world's estimation.—A. M. F. in Word and Work.

Weather.

Fair and warmer tonight and Wednesday.

SOCIAL EQUALITY AGAIN.

Bishop Potter Entertains A Negro Bishop.

Richmond, Oct. 19.—Bishop and Mrs. Potter, of New York, who are occupying the residence 670 West Franklin street during the general convention of the Episcopal church, last evening entertained at luncheon Bishop Ferguson, of Africa, the only negro entitled to a seat in the house of bishops. The action of Bishop Potter in thus receiving a colored man into his home circle on terms of social equality and breaking bread with him at his table is worthy of special consideration because of the fact that the occurrence took place in the heart of the south, where racial lines are more strictly drawn than in other sections, and in a house where such an entertainment could not have occurred during its occupancy by the owners.

While the dinner in honor of the African bishop was quiet, it has been the occasion of considerable comment tonight among those who have heard of it, and will undoubtedly meet with the condemnation of southern bishops and delegates when it becomes generally known. The matter is being considered by the general assembly of which Bishop Potter is accepting.

This is the only occasion on which Bishop Ferguson has been entertained socially in Richmond. There were no other guests present so far as can be learned.

Curious Westmoreland Custom.

A strange custom is observed yearly in the small hamlet of Week in Westmoreland, in commemoration of an incident that happened in the year 1811.

That year there was a plague of wasps, and many persons throughout the country succumbed to the poisonous sting. The little hamlet holds the record for its number of victims, and in memory of the occurrence a memorial tablet was erected on the moor there. Now each year there is a procession. Most of the inhabitants turn out carrying insect powder and other devices for killing wasps and march to the memorial stone, where a short service is held by the minister of the parish.

When the service is over a general crusade is made in search of wasps' nests, which are immediately destroyed. Some carry guns, some rags saturated with turpentine, while others carry paraffin, which is poured into the nest, and a match applied. The anniversary is considered the most important event of the year.—Country Gentleman.

Through Schedule to Raleigh.

On Thursday, 24th, the Norfolk & Southern rail way will begin running trains through from Washington to Raleigh on regular schedule. It is going to be a fast and convenient line for getting from here to Raleigh, or onward from that city.

How it Sells at the Star.

Today Mr. Joyce Wingate had two bars of tobacco at the Star-warehouse branch of the Farmers' Consolidated Tobacco company at the following prices: 44 pounds at $11.75 130 at $22.50 256 at $25.165 at $13.93 at $35.84 at $12.160 at $34.95 at $34.96 at $37.108 at $27.100 at $11.

This is the way Foxhall does for his customers at the Star, and you can do just as well by carrying your tobacco there.

A Compromise Probable.

The News has it on the very best authority that there is a strong probability of a compromise between the state and the railroads in the suits now pending under the terms of which the state will dismiss its suits and the fines imposed if the railroads will submit to the rate law and try it fairly until the next session of legislature.

We would be exceedingly glad to see this vexing question settled in this way. We believe it would go far towards allaying the feeling that now exists against the railroads.

And we believe further, that if after a fair trial the 2 1/2 cent rate proves too low that the people of the state will see to it that justice is done the railroads.

We sincerely hope that some such amicable solution as that suggested above may be reached at an early date.

By some disarrangement in the mail the Star's papers failed to come on time today.

The burning out of a fuse in the transformer on the court house corner put out the lights for a while, Monday night, along a portion of Evans street.

A Bad Case.

A Chicago physician was once called to attend a sick child in a "shabby genteel" quarter of the Windy City.

"Mama," said the doctor to the mother, "you should send this child into the country for several weeks each summer."

"I am sorry to say, doctor," responded the woman, "that we are not rich enough to do that."

"Then," suggested the physician, "have her sent by the fresh air fund."

"Oh, doctor," exclaimed the woman, "we are not poor enough!"—Harper's Weekly.

The Odd Fellows will have work in the initiatory degree tonight, and a good attendance is desired.

At the meeting of Greenville Masonic lodge, Monday night, L. H. Pender was elected secretary to succeed J. J. Harrington, resigned. Mr. Pender will make a good secretary.

That was a passenger on the search for information, and as she was pretty her quest was not in vain.

"Captain," she said, "how fast can your steamer go?"

"Well," replied the man with the ornate cap, "last night we made about twenty knots an hour."

"Twenty knots!" she repeated blankly. "And what did you do with them all?"

The captain's face was one of those pictures that tell a story, but he answered promptly:

"I threw them overboard."

"Oh, fancy that, now!" she said. "What a waste of time! I thought you made the poor dear sailors untie all those knots the next day?"

Dutiful Son.

The MacTavish family were enjoying their Sabbath dinner after their five mile tramp home from the Kirk, and they eagerly watched Mr. MacTavish carving the fowl, not so eagerly, however, as the dog, for that intelligent animal never took its eyes off the luscious bird. The dissection was proceeding when suddenly the knife of the carver slipped and sent a fragment of poultry rolling on the floor. "Mighty me!" cried MacTavish, "the dog's Ma ain favorite bit!"

"New, father," said the young foot of the clan MacTavish, "he'll no get it. I've putten ma out upon't!"—Dundee Advertiser.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

He Demanded a Trial by a Jury of His Peers.

"I have been engaged in the practice of law a good many years," said S. S. Urmy, police judge of Topeka, Kan., "and about the most humorous thing I ever saw in a courtroom was in Topeka."

"One day an old negro man was being tried in the justice court—that was before the office of police judge was created—and he demanded a trial by a jury of his peers. He could neither read nor write, and his lawyer insisted that the jury, to be his peers, as required by law, must be unable to read or write too. To avoid dispute I agreed to it, but we had a time finding twelve men in Topeka who could neither read nor write. But we did find them, and the case went to trial."

"Before the jury retired I took two pieces of paper and wrote 'guilty' on one piece and 'not guilty' on the other and instructed the foreman of the jury to destroy the one he did not wish used and to return the other to me when the jury reached a verdict. The jury was out only a few minutes when it came in. The foreman handed me a piece of paper with the word guilty written on it."

"Well, gentlemen, you find him guilty, do you?" I asked.

"No, sah, judge, no, sah. We done found him not guilty," spoke up one of the jurymen. Then he added, with disgust, "I tole that fool bigger he was tearin' up the wrong piece of paper."—Kansas City Star.

Terse and Truthful.

A despairing debt collector decided the other day to corner his quarry at the bar of a prominent hotel in the presence of a number of his friends, thinking that by this ruse he would embarrass his man that he would either get his money in rage or a promise in mortification. Advancing gently, he tapped the debtor on the shoulder and said:

"Pardon me, Mr. —. When are you going to pay that small amount you owe my firm?"

The debtor spun around on his heel and glared.

"I'm no prophet!" he roared.

The debt collector retired amid roars of laughter.—New York Times.

Did He Please Her?

The man who thought he had the knack of saying pleasant things calculated to warm the cockles of the oldest heart was revisiting the town in which he had spent a summer twenty years before.

"I'm Miss M. I don't know that you recall me," said a coquetish elderly spinster, approaching him in the postoffice the day after his arrival.

The ready heart warmer turned, with his most beaming smile, and wrang her hand.

"Recall you!" he echoed reproachfully. "As if one could help it, Miss M. Why, you are one of the landmarks of the town!"—Washington Star.

The Man's Idea.

Mrs. Hiram Offen—I wouldn't be surprised if the servant girl were listening at the keyhole.

Mr. Hiram Offen—Nor I. That's a woman's trick.

Mrs. Hiram Offen—Oh, indeed!

Mr. Hiram Offen—Of course!

That's why it's called "Eve's dropping."—Philadelphia Press.

King Edward Had No Cash.

A valuable autograph is in the possession of a shopkeeper in Bond street in the form of a check signed by King Edward. It happened a week or two ago that his majesty entered the shop to make a purchase and, finding himself not provided with sufficient ready cash, pulled out his check book and drew a draft upon Messrs. Coutts.

The incident is probably without precedent, and it is certain that the check has not been presented at the bank for payment, the tradesman much preferring to retain the document, as it is said that no other check payable to a tradesman and bearing the king's signature is in existence.

As a matter of fact, his majesty seldom knows the luxury of spending money, for his real "privy purse" is invariably carried by an equerry, or gentleman in attendance, who pays all outings. In fact, the king often carries no money at all.—London Tit-Bits.

THE SHOEMAKER SAINTS.

Story of the Roman Brothers Who Perished by the Sword.

St. Crispin and his brother, Crispinian (always associated together in the calendar), were two natives of Rome who, having become converts to Christianity, set out for Gaul to preach the faith about the middle of the third century along with St. Quintin and others. The brothers settled at Soissons, where, in imitation of the apostle Paul, they preached publicly in the daytime and worked with their hands at night, earning their own subsistence by making shoes, though nobly born. They supplied the poor at a low price, and a legend tells us that an angel supplied them with leather. The heathen listened to their instructions and were astonished at the charity, disinterestedness, piety and contempt of glory displayed in their lives, and many were converted to the Christian faith.

After they had been thus engaged for several years the Emperor Maximianus Herculius came into Belgic Gaul, and a complaint was made to him against the brothers. He, desiring to gratify their accusers as well as to indulge his own savage cruelty, gave orders that they should be brought before Bictius Varas, the most implacable enemy of the Christians of that time. The saints bore with patience and constancy the most cruel torments and at length finished their course by being beheaded with the sword about 287 A. D.

According to a Kentish tradition, their remains, being cast into the sea, were washed ashore at Romney marsh. In the sixth century a great church was built in their honor at Soissons, and St. Eligius richly ornamented the shrine.

From their martyrdom to the present time they have been regarded as the patron saints of shoemakers, who were accustomed to honor their day (and are yet in some towns) by great festivity. One special ceremony was a procession of the brethren of the craft with banners and music, while various characters representing King Crispin and his court were sustained by different members.—St. James' Gazette.

The Laurel and the Sunflower.

The laurel and the sunflower have been found, according to Country Life, to be of the greatest use in damp situations. People who live in such spots, especially near undrained land, think there is no help for them but by removal. Successful experiments have shown that it is possible materially to improve the atmosphere in such neighborhoods by the planting of laurels and sunflowers. The former give off an abundance of ozone, while the latter are potent in destroying the malarial conditions. These two, if planted even on the most restricted scale in a garden or any ground close to the house, will be found to increase speedily the dryness and salubrity of the atmosphere.

One Boy Knew.

A teacher tells of an experience he had recently. He was put in charge of a lot of boys one day and was trying to make them understand that all good comes from one source. As an illustration he told them of building a house and putting water pipes with taps in all the rooms, these pipes not being connected with the main in the street. He said to them:

"Suppose I turn on a tap and no water comes, what is the matter?" He naturally supposed that some of the boys would answer that the water was not turned on at the main.

But they didn't. On the contrary, one boy at the foot of the class called out:

"You didn't have your water rate paid!"—London Mail.

Laissez Faire.

"Laissez faire" is a term met with frequently in books on political economy. It is not often used in conversation or in political speeches. It is a term that means to let alone, and among economists it implies that policy which does not disturb the existing order of things, but permits it to develop in its own way, trusting that society will in its own way and in its own time find a proper adjustment and balance for all its troubles.—Wall Street Journal.

Tarbor is trying to get up a prohibition. It will get all around it or awhile.

Only a few weeks longer for the Jamestown exposition to remain open. If you have not been in it is time you were making up your mind to do so. It is well worth while.

Here's one editor who is glad he did not go to the State fair, for after having sounded such a warning against pick pockets, some slick fellow would have surely made the effort to touch him if there had been a glimpse of his fat pockets. So he stayed home and escaped. Not so with Editor Bob Phillips, of the New Bern Sun. He also talked loud about pickpockets, then was bold enough to go to the fair and lost all he had. Poor Bob! May be the fellow who touched him got enough to buy a street car ticket.

RANDOM REFLECTIONS.

By a Contributor The Virginia gentlemen who has been trying to get George Washington's name on the honorary roll of the Ananias club, is liable to get called down for taking such a step without the advice and consent of its distinguished founder. Gov. Vardaman says "The republic is tottering to its fall." He must have a seasons mixal for the republic is really staggering to us white men. A Pittsburg man who claimed he killed his wife by accident while joking, has been sent to the penitentiary for seventeen years. By the end of that time, he may come to the conclusion that nature didn't intend him for a humorist. A St. Louis contemporary says Mr. Taft is our first war minister to go around the world talking night.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

The Truth About the Famous Basilisk of Ancient Times. According to the ancient writers, says the Chicago News, the basilisk—sometimes called cockatrice—was a monster to be greatly dreaded. Its breath filled the air with a deadly poison and burned up vegetation, and the glance of its eye was fatal to both man and beast. The only creature that could face it and live, they said, was the cock, and travelers were advised to take loud crowing cocks with them as a protection against the monster. So much for superstition. As a matter of fact, the basilisk is a harmless lizard, living a quiet life in the woods and feeding on insects. Its appearance, however, is formidable, and it is this perhaps that gave it a bad name. It grows to a length of from twenty-five to thirty inches, including its tail, which is much longer than its body. Rising from its head and inclining backward is a broad winglike expansion, which gives it some resemblance to the flying lizard. The crest of this expansion is formed somewhat like a crown, and that gave the basilisk its name, which is from the Greek word meaning "king."

How to Remember Things. You have all heard of tying a string around your fingers to make you remember something. And you have also heard perhaps of the man who had to tie a string around another finger to make him remember what the first string was for. But it seems that there is a better plan than that, and if you have a grandmother, and if she happens to have false teeth, you might try it with her. The editor gets the suggestion from a boy whose notions are nothing if not original. He has a grandmother, who unfortunately forgot to bring him one time a present that she had been promising, and it was then that he made the original suggestion. He told her he did not believe in the string tying plan, but she would be sure to remember his present if she would put her false teeth in upside down.—Chicago News.

The Rhyming Game. The game of rhyming is never old, and for rainy days there is nothing like it. There are so many topics which can be jingled into funny rhymes if the rhymers have ingenuity.

The fun consists in the head person starting the first line. The person next must give the rhyming line before a given number of seconds have passed. Usually one minute is the allotted time. Then if he is not ready any one in the company may call it out and change places.

In this way a number of clever rhymes may be forthcoming, and the game may be kept up till the ingenuity of the players is exhausted.

Conundrums. When does a son not take after his father? When his father leaves him nothing to take. Why are cowardly soldiers like tallow candles? Because when exposed to the fire they run.

What was it a blind man took at breakfast which restored his sight? He took a cup and saw, sir (saucer). Why is an egg like a colt? Because it isn't fit for use till it's broken.

About Flag Signals. The flags to be hoisted at one time in signaling at sea never exceed four. It is an interesting arithmetical fact that, with eighteen various colored flags, and never more than four at a time, no fewer than 78,642 signals may be given.

An Inscription Puzzle.

The above is a copy of the inscription on a stone erected at a crossroads. It is supposed to be the tombstone of a gypsy. It is plain English. Can you read it?

The Singing Lesson. You pretty, pretty pussy, With your coat of soft, warm fur, How loudly you are singing Your song of "Pur, pur, pur!" Now, off you go, poor pussy, With your coat of silky fur, To teach your baby kittens Your song of "Pur, pur, pur!"

CONDENSED STORIES.

How Former Canal Commissioner Shonts Treated a Trifler.

Theodore P. Shonts, former chairman of the Isthmian canal commission and now head of the traction syndicate in New York, has all his life been a man of vigorous action. It is related that in his western railroad days a man called at his office and announced to Mr. Shonts that he proposed to give him a good licking.

"All right," replied Shonts. "But wait a minute. Some one might interrupt us."

He rose quietly, locked his office door, arranged the furniture around the wall so as to have a free space in the middle of the room; then with great deliberation he took off his coat and hung it up, removed his collar and cuffs and rolled up his sleeves.

"IF YOU ARE READY, I AM."

"Now," said the railroad man, "if you are ready I am."

The visitor, who had been watching these preparations in open mouthed astonishment, backed off into a corner and stammered that he had changed his mind.

Just as quietly and still smiling, Mr. Shonts unlocked the door, took his visitor by the coat collar, led him out of the room, kicked him once and remarked: "Don't come around again unless you mean business. I'm a busy man."

His Work Tired Carnegie.

Several men achieved great wealth by association in business with Carnegie, among them being Andrew M. Moreland, who at one time acted as secretary and treasurer of the Carnegie company. Prior to this he was auditor of the company, and while acting in this capacity he was summoned one day to consult Mr. Carnegie, who set wine before his guest at dinner.

"No, thank you, I don't drink," said Mr. Moreland.

Later on Mr. Carnegie brought out the cigars.

"No, thank you, I don't smoke," said Mr. Moreland.

Still later in the evening Mr. Carnegie proposed a game of cards.

"No, thank you, I don't play cards," said Mr. Moreland.

Mr. Carnegie looked at his guest. "Tell me why you don't do any of these things," he dryly requested.

"You've kept me working too hard all these years. I've had no time to learn," was the reply.

Mr. Carnegie thought a moment. "Andy," he said, "I'm going to give you a three months' vacation. Now, for heaven's sake, go off somewhere and learn to do something besides work."

A Real Excuse.

H. J. Conway of Chicago, the president of the Retail Clerks' International union, advocated at the recent convention in St. Joseph the same pay for women as for men clerks.

"When women," said Mr. Conway afterward, "do the same work as men they should get the same wages, and any one who argues that this is impossible seems to me at once as ungallant and as illogical as the famous husband of Paint Rock."

"This husband was returning home from market late one Saturday night with his wife. The wife was burdened with a huge market basket, a broom, a kit of mackerel—dear knows what all. As for the man, he carried nothing.

"Coming to a steep hill, the wife paused and said reproachfully:

"'Jack, if you were a real man, you'd help me carry some of these parcels.'"

"Jack glared at her in disgust and scorn.

"'Aw, how can I?' he growled. 'Ain't I got both hands in my pockets?'"

MAGICAL CURES.

Idols of the Orient That Are Appealed to in Case of Sickness.

Of magical methods used to cure disease a writer in the Scientific American says: "Powerful aid is believed to be rendered by the various gods and goddesses in China, India, Java, Korea and other countries in exercising disease. The Hindu goddess who had a superintending power over smallpox, for example, was approached with solemn ceremonies and presents to propitiate her. She was represented as standing with two uplifted fingers, threatening to strike on the right and left. Before her was a band of the executors of her vengeance, two of them with red grinning masks, black shields and naked scimitars. White lines, like rays, issued from the bodies of the others to indicate infection. On the right was a group of men with spotted bodies afflicted with the malady. Bells were hung at their cinchures, and a few of them waved black feathers. These were preceded by musicians with drums, who supplicated the pity of the furious deity.

"From behind her advanced a bevy of smiling young women, gracefully carrying on their heads baskets with thanksgiving offerings, in gratitude for their lives and beauty having been spared. A little boy with a bell at his girdle conveyed something emblematic of inoculation from the arm of the goddess. By such means and humble intercession the benign goddess gradually stayed her fury, and the diseased were thus made whole or were at least supposed to be cured, which appears to have answered just as well. In Java some idols are provided with bells for calling the attention of the god and goddess to the need of their exercising sacred powers in behalf of the sick and unfortunate.

"Akin to this blind faith is the credulity of some classes of Japanese, whose doctors know very little more of anatomy and physiology than the patients themselves, and for purposes of diagnosis they rely mainly on the pulse. Three pulses are found to be in each wrist, they explain—viz, the heart, controlling the right upper pulse; the lungs, the left upper pulse; the stomach, the right middle pulse; the liver, the left middle pulse; the right kidney, the right lower pulse, and the left kidney, the left lower pulse. Thus by a careful examination of the six pulses the doctor at once discovers what is the matter with the patient and proceeds in his own way to effect a cure.

"In Korea and among the North American Indians images are made out of various materials, each kind having a peculiar power over some special form of disease. Thus the Zuni Indian makes a clay image to represent a mountain lion, and the spirit of that animal, which is the guardian of the northwest and the master of the gods of the hunt, comes to dwell in that object, protecting the owner from injury by accident and helping him to success in the chase. A Korean sorcerer's image, stuffed and covered with buckskin, is used to avert calamity and death."

Mars.

Mars possesses about one-half the earth's diameter and one-seventh its volume. It is some 140,000,000 miles from the sun and consequently at a mean distance of nearly 50,000,000 miles from us. It receives less than one-half the sunlight and heat a square foot that we do, has an atmosphere less dense than ours and possesses water and ice. The planet exhibits two ice caps at its poles and orange and greenish tints between these poles. Those peculiar lines or markings, the "canals," concerning which there has arisen much discussion, form a sort of faint, inexplicable network over the surface of ruddy Mars.

Tramways.

The word tram is derived from a man's name, Outram—Thomas Outram. Outram lived in Derbyshire, England, and in the beginning of the last century he invented a peculiar sort of track that diminished the friction between wheels and roadbeds. These tracks of Outram's, though nothing like a trolley track, were called at first outramways, then tramways, and when street lines and street cars came into existence they were dubbed respectively tramways and trams.

His Income.

The teacher of a Sunday school class in Wilkesbarre once put the following question to a new scholar: "What did Moses do for a living while he was with Jethro?"

There was a long silence, during which the other members of the class took occasion to "size up" the newcomer. The latter, however, was undisturbed. After a few reflections

Vigorous Language.

A story is told in the National Magazine of Senator Knute Nelson, who spent some of his early years in a logging camp. He there discovered the necessity of certain emphatic language in order to make mules more. "All varieties" of tongues were in demand in that camp—Scandinavian, German and Italian—but none of the words used seemed to have the explosive force to adjust the tempo of the mule to the desired pace. Along came a strapping Irishman, who used some popular expletives, usually indicated in print by blank, blank, or ———. The mules moved! "There's a language all mules understand," said the Irishman, "and it's not me mother tongue ayther."

Her View.

A laborer in a neighboring city died recently, and the members of the fraternal order in which he held membership called upon his widow to find how they might be of most assistance in her distress. They made all arrangements for the order's attending the funeral, but before settling upon the final details for the obsequies they desired to know if the deceased had any special church affiliation.

"Did your husband belong to any church?" was asked.

"W'y, no," said the woman in astonishment. "He never done nothing to belong to church fur."—Chicago News.

He Wasn't Afraid.

Little Tommy and his younger sister were going to bed without a light. They had just reached the bottom of the stairs when Tommy, after vainly endeavoring to pierce the darkness, turned around and asked:

"Ma, is it polite for a gentleman to precede a lady when they have to walk in single file?"

"No, my son," replied the mother. "The lady should always take the lead."

"I thought so," said Tommy brightly. "Go ahead, Sue."—Boston Son's Weekly.

Angelo Boreas.

Not one man in 100 pictures his future wife in the grandness of the ordinary girl. When he meets an who dreams of marriage, she is short of skirt and stout of form, in the hockey field or on the golf turf with a golf ball or a tennis ball madly after a tennis ball. On the contrary, he pictures her as a "something soft and clinging," a being more angel than woman, who as a daily companion would undoubtedly prove the most wondrous bore a man could be cursed with.—London Thru.
