

SINGULAR FATALITY.

Events Recalled by the Death of Mrs. James G. Staton.

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 21.—Friday at twelve o'clock Mrs. James G. Staton, who had been in the Tayloe Hospital in Washington since the death of her little daughter, Susie Pool Stator, died. She had been unconscious almost the whole time since the death of her child, and the strain of grief was too much for the mother to bear.

Mrs. Staton belonged to one of the oldest and most prominent families in this section. She was the oldest daughter of the late Theodore and Susan Staton Poole. The family has been one which has had many sad deaths in it for the past twenty years. Before the civil war Mrs. Staton's grandmother, Mrs. Louisa Biggs Staton Yates was traveling on the Mississippi river when the steamer caught on fire, and Mrs. Yates jumped into the water and was saved by her hoop skirt, which was fashionable in those days. Mrs. Staton's father, the late Theodore Poole, while he was Senator of this district, went to Raleigh in seeming perfect health, and dropped dead in the Yarborough House. A few years after his death, Mrs. Staton, then a young girl with her mother, was enroute for Asheville for the summer, and near Statesville they were in the famous Boston bridge wreck, then the most disastrous one in the history of railroading in North Carolina. The two ladies were thrown out of the train, and the daughter held her mother up for several hours until the morning, when it was found that she was dead. This severe shock was one from which Mrs. Staton never entirely recovered, although she grew into young womanhood and was popular in many sections of the State.

Soon after she reached womanhood she married her first cousin, James Grist Staton, at the residence of her relative, Mrs. W. T. Crawford, in Williamston, after which they went to their family home, "Kelvin Grove," near here, where they lived happily for ten years, and "Kelvin Grove" has been the scene of many a delightful party of the young couple's admiring friends.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Four Policemen Now.

Sometime ago, about the beginning of the tobacco season, the board of aldermen began considering the matter of increasing the police force of the town, the regular force being three. Two additional men, Messrs. M. Fleming and J. W. Tucker, were put on temporarily so as to determine what force was needed. At the last regular meeting of the board it was decided that the services of one of the extra officers could be dispensed with after the first of November. To decide which one to keep in service the board held a special meeting Tuesday night, and Mr. Fleming was elected a regular member of the police force.

WINTERVILLE ITEMS.

Notes From Our Hurling Neighbor

Winterville, N. C., Oct. 23 '07. L. L. Kittrell, R. Croom and G. E. Jackson left Tuesday morning for the exposition.

Dr. B. T. Cox returned from Baltimore last night.

Prof. and Mrs. G. E. Lineberry went to Greenville Saturday evening.

Misses Rowland Cobb and Magdeline Cox returned from Conee Sunday evening, where they spent Sunday at Miss Cobb's home.

The series of meetings at the Methodist church closed Sunday night. Dr. Nash preached some excellent sermons and we believe much good will be accomplished by his coming among us. He left for Greenville Sunday afternoon and Rev. B. E. Stanfield preached at night.

Miss Novella Bunting spent Sunday with friends in Greenville and returned Sunday evening.

Miss Laura Cox returned to Ayden Sunday afternoon.

Rev. T. H. King will preach at the schoolhouse near Mr. Bryant Tripp's store next Saturday night Oct. 26th. All are cordially invited to attend.

We are glad to see G. R. Dixon out again. He says that he feels like a new man.

Several of our young people attended the play at Ayden Monday and Tuesday nights.

Plain Preaching is Needed.

The religion is just as good as it ever was. But in these strenuous days of gold chasing and dollar hunting it is hard to get a minister to dip right in and take off the lid. The trouble is that there are too many "interests" exposed. In one town you mustn't talk about tobacco; in another you mustn't talk about dope; in another you mustn't be too severe on the whiskey interests; in another there is something else—so the parson must tip toe it all the way, and that is why the pretty curled up speeches of the women have passed muster.

The old time preachers, the old fellows who took sin by the bridle and rode it around the ring and kicked the pea green stuff out of it have retired. Once in awhile you see one but he is voted too vulgar or too coarse. These days the minister must be a little refined fellow looking like a dudine and he must talk in whispers; he must roast the people in some far off clime; he cannot afford to pitch into sin which is in front of him and behind and all around him. Simply because the people who pay the freight are human.

John Rockefeller has always been a close churchman, and the parsons who preach where old John worships never say a word about his iniquities. Why? Because the whole congregation would rebel. John has the plunks. He pays the freight. And so it is in all the world.—Fairbrother's Everything.

An Indefensible Act.

In a sermon in Raleigh last Sunday Rev. Livingston Johnson, corresponding secretary of the Baptist State Convention, advertising to the fact that the Baptists have always stood for complete separation of Church and State, said:

"An act of the last Legislature turned the hands on the dial back 100 years. A woman came to Raleigh during the sitting of the Legislature who could teach a railroad lawyer in the art of lobbying. She said she had founded an orphanage and was depending on the Lord alone for its support. A bill was presented and passed, giving that orphanage $1,000. That is to say, the Legislature put its hands in the pockets of our citizens and took out $1,000 to aid in the support of an orphanage which is controlled by the so called 'Holiness Church.' To say nothing of the faith of the woman, which seems to have dropped from the Lord to the last Legislature, a sacred principle which has always been cherished by the Baptists was ruthlessly trampled under foot. Some say that the property does not belong to a church but the title is vested in the manager, who holds it in trust for a church. Does that help matters any? Has the Legislature a right to appropriate public funds to private use? At this hour in the chapel of the institution to which this money is given a meeting is being held by those who hold that latest religious fall, 'The Unknown Tongue.'"

Mr. Johnson is right. The Legislature gave $500 a year for two years to this orphanage—called Eihanan orphanage, located at Marion and controlled by Miss Mattie Perry. The act was absolutely indefensible and we have yet to hear of anybody who can defend it. The Biblical Recorder, The Landmark, and possibly other papers condemned it as soon as the fact was made public. Miss Perry may be doing a good work; we make no question of that fact. But the Baptist orphanage at Thomasville, the Methodist and Catholic orphanages at Raleigh, the Episcopal orphanage at Charlotte, and the Presbyterian orphanage at Barium are doing and have long been doing a good work—a noble work. If the State is going to give to orphanages some of these institutions, or all of them, have a stronger claim than the institution at Marion. And yet to give to any of them would violate a principle which others than Baptists hold dear. Mr. Johnson's remarks are timely. This act of the legislature is indefensible.—Statesville Landmark.

Whichard-Mooring.

Tuesday afternoon at the home of ex-Sheriff G. M. Mooring, in Carolina township, his daughter Miss Ida and Mr. Ernest B. Whichard were married by Elder M. T. Lawrence. Mrs. Levi Holliday played the wedding march as the couple entered the parlor, and "Hearts and Flowers" during the ceremony. A large number of relatives and friends were in attendance upon the marriage and the couple received many handsome presents.

The bride was married in a beautiful dress of white silk, and soon after the ceremony this was changed to a handsome brown coat suit. The couple left on the evening train for a bridal tour to northern cities.

Graded School Notes.

People living within the bounds of the Greenville graded school district are hereby notified that no children who are beginners will be admitted to the school after Nov. 1st.

Children who will be six years old before Dec. 1, may enter at any time before Nov. 1st.

Children who are not beginners will be admitted at any time during the year.

DOINGS AROUND FARMVILLE.

Farmville, N. C. Oct. 22, 1907.

Well, we don't have to kick much to get up a dust around Farmville now.

The 4 Pickerts gave us some good plays three nights the past week, and we hear there will be another troupe here this week.

Mr. James Greenway died last Wednesday evening at Mr. Anderson Edwards', near Farmville with a stroke of paralysis, and was buried in the cemetery Thursday afternoon. He leaves a wife and three children in Henderson.

Lloyd, son of M. T. Staton, while playing on bale of cotton, received quite a painful laceration in one leg.

Our photographer, Mr. Tayloe, has been out in the country making views and pictures. He is a hustler any way.

Rev. Mr. Duncan filled his regular appointment Sunday morning and evening in the Episcopal church.

Mrs. M. E. Shaw, of Tarboro, came in Saturday to visit her daughter, Mrs. J. Stanley Smith. Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Lane, and Mrs. W. R. Horne attended the National Christian convention last week in Norfolk, and report a grand convention.

Miss Mary Louise Worsley came down from Tarboro Saturday and spent Sunday with friends here.

Miss Olive Morrill, of Snow Hill, and her friend Miss Guion, of New Bern, were the guests of Dr. D. S. Morrill and family a few days the past week.

Mrs. N. E. Smith is visiting her daughter, Mrs. W. R. Dixon, near Kinston.

T. L. Willingham has returned from a business trip to Washington.

J. T. Bows has moved in his new residence on upper Wilson street.

The Norfolk & Southern depot is being enlarged here already. This shows what Farmville is doing. Work on the branch line from here to Snow Hill is moving on fast and the E. C. R. extension to Hookerton is ready for the rolling stock.

Telephones are being placed all over town by the Bell Telephone Company.

In Service Again.

Mr. J. J. Cherry has taken the agency here for the Tar River Transportation Line, the new company that will operate steamers between Washington and Greenville. "Uncle John" is a familiar figure at the wharf, having for thirty years been an agent there representing the companies that have operated river transportation. The new company is fortunate in securing him, for he knows the business thoroughly and has the utmost confidence of all business people and shippers of this section. He will draw a liberal share of business.

"Spelling Bee."

Next Friday evening at 8 o'clock, there will be held at the residence of Mr. J. A. Lang, a "spelling bee" in which any and all can enter and test their knowledge of spelling. Admission for adults twenty five; for children, ten cents. After the "bee" there will be served chicken salad. The event promises to be a happy one. Come one and all and enjoy the fun. By request of "Ladies Aid Christian Church."

OAKLEY ITEMS.

Oakley, N. C., Oct. 23.

W. T. Barnhill and wife were here Tuesday.

Mr. Stokes, of Greenville, was here Tuesday.

J. R. Williams went to Alwood Monday.

Good many of our young people went fishing Monday.

C. B. Wynn went to Washington Monday.

H. A. Gray and wife went to Bethel Tuesday.

T. F. Nelson is the champion potato man of this section, good many so large they have to be sliced before they can be hauled.

Sam Williams spent a while in Oakley Tuesday.

E. Rogers is all smiles, it is a young man.

J. I. James is spending this week near Greenville.

Cotton nearly all out in this section.

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Barnhill, of Winterville, spent Saturday and Sunday here with friends.

GO WEST CRAZE PASSING.

North Carolina People no Longer Easy Marks for Agents of Western Railroads.

It has been but a few years since every Eastern State was awakened by the cry to the rising generation to "Go West," and with this cry there was presented an inviting picture of the fortunes that awaited those who would take the opportunity. That section of our country with its abundant fields, supposed rich veins of every kind of ore, and handsome prices offered for labor, with expenses almost nothing, awaited the influx of Eastern energy and occupants. And the opportunity was not lost. From every quarter rushed those who had fortunes to make and with high expectations diligently pursued the task set before them, and there are a remarkably large number of our people, the youth of North Carolina, who are still casting their lot in this unknown territory. But to the majority, those sensational reports as to "getting rich quick" have had a damper thrown on them by actual stories of those who have been deceived.

It is true, the finest crops are raised in the West, that prices for products are high and that wages are much greater than here, equally true is the report that living expenses are exorbitant.

In a communication from a former resident of North Carolina who is temporarily in that section appearing elsewhere in this issue, under the heading "A Voice From the West" some interesting facts are stated, the most striking of which is that while you can get a good price per day in the West for work, your actual living expenses are from one dollar and fifty cents to two dollars per day, and when you get there, you will be no nearer the promised land than you are now.

"Young man, stay at home." More wisdom is displayed in preserving your present home, property and happiness in the Old North State than in throwing them away and trying a new fortune. In the majority of cases, it fails and that which you once had cannot be regained.—Winston Union Republican.

TROOPS GET PAY

Extra Pay for North Carolina Boys in War with Spain.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—A claim of the State of North Carolina which has been pending before the comptroller of the treasury for some weeks for additional pay for volunteer soldiers of the Spanish war for the short period prior to their muster into the United States army has been settled by the allowance of nearly $8,000 more than had been found due by the auditor for the War Department. The auditor allowed $20,141.35 and the full allowance as fixed by the comptroller is $28,061.95. The warrants of the United States treasurer for the latter amount have been sent to Governor Glenn, who, under the law, has charge of its distribution to the late soldiers. The tabulation necessary for the distribution will doubtless consume about a month. When this is done checks will be sent out from the executive offices in Raleigh.

This extra pay for the troops was originally provided for in an act of Congress passed in March 1899, but which required that claims should be filed by January 1, 1902. Because of some misunderstanding of the law no claims were made by North Carolina and about a third of the other States until the time had expired. In the North Carolina case the matter was taken up by Governor Glenn and attorneys employed by him prepared a new bill which Congress passed allowing the filing of claims until January 1st, 1906.

DE PACHMANN'S SARCASM.

Vladimir de Pachmann, the Russian pianist, and Goldmark, the famous opera composer, met in front of the latter's Vienna home a short time ago. Goldmark is a most estimable old gentleman and a writer of exceptionally brilliant and melodious music, but his one great fault is most overwhelming conceit, a trait which often gives his friends occasion for much merriment at his expense.

As De Pachmann and Goldmark walked away from the composer's house the pianist pointed backward over his shoulder and said, "That modest little edifice will be signally distinguished some day after you are dead."

"Indeed!" murmured Goldmark, blushing with pleasure.

"Yes," continued De Pachmann,
"they will decorate it with a tablet."

"And, pray, what do you suppose they will say on the tablet after I am dead?" asked the composer ear-gerly.

"To Let," was De Pachmann's pithy reply as he scuttled across the Ringstrasse.

No Changes in Esperanto.

Some Esperantists have recently been getting themselves heartily disliked by their associates by trying to improve Esperanto.

"If there is room for improvements, which we strenuously deny," say the conservatives, "let us wait until the language is officially adopted and sanctioned by the governments of the world, and let them appoint revisers. At present no one shall touch Esperanto as Dr. Zamenhof has given it to us. We will not even allow Dr. Zamenhof himself to do so if he should want to.
If we make changes now we shall sink to a surety before we reach the harbor."

How He Would Go.

In connection with its account of the international convention of Zionists at The Hague a writer in a German paper says: "The national sentiment was advocated by Stein-schneider in Prague in 1835 and Moses Hess in France. In the fifties the story went the rounds of the European papers to the effect that Adolphe Cremieux had become a convert to the Jewish state movement. He was asked one day by Napoleon III. if he would go to such a state if it were founded, and he promptly answered, 'Yes, your majesty, but only as the accredited representative of France.'"

Amusing Signs in Japan.

Major General Hoad, who was the Australian officer attached to the Japanese army during the war with Russia, saw some amusing shop signs in Tokyo—"Head-Cutter" over a barber's, "Extract of Fowls" over an egg seller's and "Ladies Furnished on the Upstairs" in front of a draper's. He had a memorable twenty-four hours' railway journey in a compartment crammed with forty men, women and children. He made a resolution not to fall asleep, but he woke up in the morning to find that "a patient little Japanese lady had been supporting his head on her shoulder."

Beautiful Mixed Metaphor.

I think your readers may be interested in a mixed metaphor which recently appeared in the Egyptian Standard, the paper of Mustapha Kamel Pasha. That paper says that if of the Whig element were dropped out of the cabinet "a truly liberal wind might become the guiding light of the foreign office, and the introduction of a home rule bill for Ireland might mean the beginning of justice for Egypt." I think the idea of a wind being a guiding light is an example of mixed metaphor which it will be hard to beat.—Letter in London Spectator.

He Waited.

Frau Mommsen, widow of the Roman historian, bore the great historian sixteen children, of whom twelve, six sons and six daughters, are still living. Mommsen himself was so self centered and engrossed with his ideas that he often passed his offspring in the street without recognizing them. One day a servant burst into the study of the great man with the announcement of the birth of his fourteenth. "It is a boy, Herr Professor." The professor turned, annoyed. "Tell him to wait," he replied.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you suffer from a simple cold only—you should take care to heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a suffocating poison. It's strange how some things really come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough cures or prescriptions containing Opium, Morphine, or similar poisons. And now a little while ago—Congress says "Put it on the label, poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good very good! Hallelujah for the very reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure—and none in the medicine, else it must be marked on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the

All stomach trouble are quickly relieved by taking a little Kodol after each meal. Kodol goes directly to the seat of the trouble, strengthens the digestive organs, supplies the natural digestive juices and digests what you eat. It is a simple, clean, pure, harmless remedy. Don't neglect your stomach. Take a little Kodol after each meal and see how good it makes you feel. Money back if it fails. Sold by John L. Wooten.

You can never make another noise with the cracker that has been exploded.

A prompt, pleasant, good remedy for coughs and colds, is Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. It is especially recommended for babies and children, but good for every member of the family. It contains no opiates and does not constipate. Contains honey and tar and tastes nearly as good as maple syrup. Children like it. Sold by John L. Wooten's Drug Store.

Get a free sample of Dr. Shoop's "Health Coffee" at our store. If real coffee disturbs your stomach, your heart or kidneys, then try this clever Coffee imitation. Dr. Shoop has closely matched Old Java and Mocha Coffee in flavor and taste, yet it has not a single grain of real coffee in it. Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee Imitation is made from pure toasted grains or cereals, with Mart, Nuts, etc. Made in a minute. Not tedious wait. You will surely like it. Sold by T. E. Hooker & Co.

Bert Barber, of Elton, Wis., says "I have only taken four doses of your Kidney and Bladder Pills and they have done for me more than any other medicine has ever done. I am still taking the pills as I want a perfect cure." Mr. Barber refers to DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills, which are unequalled for Backache, weak kidneys, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles. A week's treatment for 25c. Sold by J. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

When you feel the need of a pill take DeWitt's Little Early Riser. Small, safe pill, sure pill. Easy to take, pleasant and effective. Drives away headaches. Sold by John L. Wooten's Drug Store.

Vigorous Language.

A story is told in the National Magazine of Senator Knute Nelson, who spent some of his early years in a logging camp. He there discovered the necessity of certain emphatic language in order to make mules move. "All varieties" of tongues were in demand in that camp—Scandinavian, German and Italian—but none of the words used seemed to have the explosive force to adjust the tempo of the mule to the desired pace. Along came a strapping Irishman, who used some popular expletives, usually indicated in print by blank, blank, or ———. The mules moved! "There's a language all mules understand," said the Irishman, "and it's not me mother tongue ayther."

Her View.

A laborer in a neighboring city died recently, and the members of the fraternal order in which he held membership called upon his widow to find how they might be of most assistance in her distress. They made all arrangements for the order's attending the funeral, but before settling upon the final details for the obsequies they desired to know if the deceased had any special church affiliation. "Did your husband belong to any church?" was asked. "Why, no," said the woman in astonishment. "He never done nothing to belong to church fur."—Chicago News.

He Wasn't Afraid.

Little Tommy and his younger sister were going to bed without a light. They had just reached the bottom of the stairs when Tommy, after vainly endeavoring to pierce the darkness, turned around and asked: "Ma, is it polite for a gentleman to precede a lady when they have to walk in single file?" "No, my son," replied the mother, "the lady should always take the lead."

Angelic Bless.

Not one man in 1000 pines his future wife in the surroundings of the ordinary girl. Where is the Adam who dreams of meeting his Eve, "short of skirt and square of chin, in the hokey field or strolling over the turf with a golf ball or playing madly after a tennis ball? On the contrary, he pictures her clad in "something soft and clinging," a being more angel than woman, who as a daily companion would undoubtedly prove the most withering bore a man could be cursed with.—London Tribune.

NOT A CRIMINAL.

He Was Only Serving Ten Years For Just "Quarreling."

The standard of morals is not the same all the world over. In Montenegro, for example, conduct is seen from another point of view than among ourselves. This lends interest to a report in "The Land of the Black Mountain" as to crime in that little out of the way country of Europe. The author visited the only prison of the land.

Only three men were chained, and of these one remained moodily seated, staring on the ground before him. He formed such a contrast to his fellow prisoners' smiling faces that we observed him more closely and noticed that his clothes were such as the officials and better class wear.

"Who is he?" I asked. "A government clerk convicted of embezzlement," was the answer. "Six weeks in chains is his sentence."

"And what have the other criminals done?" was our next query. "Oh, they have mostly quarreled among themselves. They are not criminals. We have very few thieves and robbers in Montenegro. This man," went on our informant, pointing to a young man with a pleasant face and who grinned with joy as he noticed the attention with which we favored him, "has a ten years' sentence for quarreling."

"But, 'quarreling,'" we repeated, "is it punishable to quarrel?" "Yes. Too many lives are lost," was the laconic reply. "Oh," we exclaimed, a light breaking in upon us, "you mean murder! They are all murderers?" "We have no murderers," came the indignant response. "Our land is as safe from murder as any other in the world. No one kills to rob or steal in Montenegro. But we just quarrel among ourselves. We are hot blooded and shoot quickly, that is all."

The English Habit.

The man from London paused in front of the little shop and read and reread the mysterious sign that was suspended from the wall. It read: "Englishmen will please not stand over this grating while talking."

The more the Londoner read the sign the more he was mystified.

Finally he summoned up his courage and entered the shop.

"Good afternoon," he greeted politely. "Could you tell me why you have that sign out there which reads, 'Englishmen will please not stand over this grating while talking?'"

"I can, sir," replied the shopkeeper.

"And why, my good man?"

"Well, you see, if they stood there talking they would drop their hats, and the porter would have to lose time going down in the basement looking for them."

And the man from London walked away after remarking that America was a "bloomin' queer country!" —Brooklyn Citizen.

It Did Not Fit Him.

The Hartwells were entertaining a distant relative, a man of ponderous physical attainments, who weighed nearly 300 pounds. On the morning after his arrival he came down to breakfast rather late and looking as if he had not had a good night's rest.

"You are not feeling well this morning, are you, Mr. Barnes?" asked his host, with some anxiety.

"Oh, it's nothing serious," said the guest. "I have caught a little cold, that is all."

"Papa," whispered Bobby, the youngest member of the family, loudly enough to be heard by the visitor, "how can a man as big as he is have a little cold?" —Youth's Companion.

It Wouldn't Work.

The wise old doctor was impressing upon his little patient the essentiality of mastication.

"My lad," he advised, "no matter what you eat, always chew each mouthful thirty times."

But Jimmy shook his head significantly.

"That wouldn't do at our house, doctor."

"And why not, my son?"

"Because I'd always be hungry. The rest of the kids would clean the table off before I got through with that one mouthful."—Kansas City Independent.

Harking Back.

Mrs. Acklins—I don't want to be impertinent, but how old are you anyway? Some of the ladies were discussing your age at the club the other day, and several of them claimed that you were at least thirty-five, but I insisted that you were not more than thirty-three.

Mrs. Biswick—I'm glad you were so kind. Of course you didn't mention the fact that you were ready to leave the grammar grade when I was in the primary class at school, did you?

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

The Quarrel of Dandy and Laddie and What Came of It.

Dandy and Laddie were coffee dogs and brothers, and they were owned by brother, too, farmers up in New Hampshire. The farms adjoined, and the farmers pastured their stock in common. The dogs visited each other frequently and were great friends. One day when Laddie was gnawing a bone at Dandy's pet kitten belonging to Dandy's family came near, and Laddie snapped at her. Dandy instantly flew at his throat, and they had a hot fight before they could be separated.

It is said that neither dog ever crossed the boundary line between the two farms after that. Laddie daily drove his flock of sheep down the lane until he reached the dividing wall, where Dandy solemnly took charge and drove them to pasture. At night Dandy brought back the sheep, and Laddie would be waiting for them at the regular place. Not once after their fight did they take the slightest notice of each other.—Chicago News.

An Interesting Experiment.

Water is composed of two elements, oxygen and hydrogen, and those two elements unite when the flame of the candle gives off its hydrogen into the oxygen of the air. You may prove this by a simple experiment. Hold a cool and perfectly dry tumbler over a burning candle, and the inner surface of the tumbler will soon become dimmed with moisture. Presently little drops of water will collect on it, and if it were possible to keep the tumbler cool all the time you might get enough water to fill another tumbler. This seems like a magician's trick, but it is a simple law of nature. The vapor given off in the burning is condensed into water by contact with the cool glass.

Bo to a Goose.

It is sometimes said of a timid person, "He looks as if he couldn't say Bo to a goose." Did you ever hear how the expression originated? It may be found perhaps in the story of Bo, a great captain and a fierce one, who was son to Odin in the mythology of the north. His name was used by his soldiers to frighten the enemy. They tell a good story of Ben Jonson, the poet, in connection with the "Bo" saying. He was introduced to a Lord Somebody or other, and the nobleman was so much surprised at the homely appearance of the poet that he said: "What, are you Ben Jonson? You look as if you could not say Bo to a goose!" "Bo!" said Jonson, making a bow to his lordship.

A Rainy Day.

The Weight of Air.

The scientists tell us that atmospheric pressure at sea level is fifteen pounds to the square inch. Estimating that the earth's atmosphere extends forty-eight miles up into space—and it may extend a good deal higher than that—each square inch of that air, reaching from the earth's surface to the top of the atmosphere, weighs therefore about fifteen pounds. Now, if we could gather up all that atmosphere and put it into a gigantic balance, we should have to put into the opposite scale a solid globe of lead sixty miles in diameter to equalize the weight. Air is not so light as some persons think it is, you see.—Chicago News.

The Rainbow Road.

We followed the Rainbow Road
When the storm had crumbled.
The rainbow stood by the big east wood,
With its top against the sky.
With its top against the sky.
Dot and the dog and I
(The dog with the curly tail),
And a spade to dig for our treasure big,
A spade and a new tin pail.
Dot was the company, I in command,
And the dog went along to guard the band.

The colors came down to the ground,
Somebody told us so.
And somebody told how a pot of gold
Was hid at the end of the bow.
We hurried along, a-row,
Ready to seek and find.
I led the lot and next came Dot,
With the curly-tailed dog behind.
Dot was a girl, and so, in case
Of danger, I gave her the safest place.

Oh, we were almost there,
And we would have been rich, no doubt,
But the wind came by with a dreadful cry,
And the beautiful bow went out.
When we turned to look about
The great black dark had come.
We ran so fast that Dot was lost,
And the dog was the first one home.
And the rainbows come and the rainbows go.
But Dot and the dog and I—we know!

TO MY FRIENDS,

Having been away for several months I wish to announce to my friends and patrons of the "empire" of Pitt that I am still connected with the firm of Chas. M. Stieff, and if bachelors are allowed to misuse the happy term home as a synonym for a "hanging out place" I still call Greenville my home, and while I intend to be away from Greenville a great deal of my time during this fall a posted care of box 325, Greenville, will reach me within a day or two. We now have a number of slightly used upright pianos, some of which have been rented during the summer months, others which were temporarily used by artists at the exposition and for orchestra work, at bargain prices.

We also offer a special school piano for $225 00 fully measuring up in standard to any $350 00 instrument. This piano is especially built for college and school work for the special price named above and is full guaranteed by my firm for 10 years. Those interested in a school piano or in a good slightly used piano for the home should write me at once and will profit by it, and as ever I am always mindful of my patrons' protection and interest as well as my firm's interest. Grateful of past patronage.
Very resp.,
