A New Coal Company.

Announcement is made of the entry of a new coal into the Greenville market. The fuel is bituminous and comes from the mines of the Clinchfield Coal Corporation at Dante, in southwestern Virginia.

The present output of the mines is 700,000 tons but the corporation will expend $1,125,000 by Jan. 1st, 1909 and increase the production of the operations to 2,000,000 tons annually making the Clinchfield Coal Corporation the largest in the South.

Mr. John H. Winder, of Raleigh, N. C., formerly general manager of the Seaboard Air Line is president of the new corporation and F. C. Bryan is the secretary.

The south-western railroad a low grade road through the mountains, is being built from the Clinchfield Coal Corporation's mines at Dante, Va., to Bostic, N. C., just west of Charlotte, N. C. The Seaboard will then carry the coal to Wilmington, Raleigh and all through the Carolinas, making connections with other common carriers.

The new railroad will open to the industrial South hundreds of thousands of tons of fuel on a direct haul from the rich Virginia mines. It will cut off 300 miles of a freight haul for the Clinchfield Coal Corporation and will insure prompt delivery of fuel in car load lots to Greenville consumers.

Two Infants Exp'd

The infants of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dail, Jr., and of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Carr were baptised by Rev. W. E. Cox at a service held in the Episcopal church Sunday afternoon.

Box to Missionary.

On Saturday the ladies of the Memorial Baptist church shipped a box of clothing to the family of a missionary in Indian Territory. The box was worth more than $150.

Gov. Jarvis at Grifton

A telephone message to The Reflector from Grifton says that Governor Jarvis Sunday night spoke to the largest audience ever seen in that town. His speech on prohibition was a logical gem and made lasting impressions on the young men.

Governor Glenn will speak at Grifton on next Monday, 15th, at 2.30 o'clock.

Governor Glenn Coming.

Next Sunday in Jarvis Memorial church the town and country around will have the privilege of hearing Governor Glenn, both morning and night. He will discuss themes dealing with young life and the moral uplift of the people. A great crowd will be out to enjoy the occasion.

Week of Prayer.

The Greenville auxiliary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will observe this week as a week of prayer. The first service will be Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Dixon. On Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock the service will be with Mrs. H. L. Carr; the concluding service will be held on Wednesday with Mrs. J. S. Norman.

The theme of these services will be "Thanksgiving" and at this thanksgiving a large number should attend and participate in them.

Another Purse Lost and Found.

Saturday afternoon a colored woman named Laura Bell, lost a purse containing about $28 out near the depot. Some parties saw a colored man get down off a wagon and pick up the purse and go on towards his home in the country. The matter was reported and Sunday Mr. W. C. Hines went out and found the man and recovered the money.

Almost Alike.

Just see how near we come to being the same everywhere. It is of frequent occurrence that in the paper we read names of people in one town just like names of people in other towns. But it is not often the name and locality both come as near being alike as this: In the Durham Herald we see mentioned A. G. Cox, of Willsville, while down here we have A. G. Cox of Winterville.

Marriage Licenses.

Register of Deeds R. Williams did not issue a marriage license for white persons last week, but the following were issued for colored people:

William Fez Grimes and Lula Braxton.
John Thames and Mary Bowers.
John Harper and Rosa Anderson.
James Jones and Piney Taft.
Ammie Mack and Lizzie Lang.
William Bryant and Della House.

Resolutions of Sympathy.

Whereas, it has pleased the Great Spirit in His infinite wisdom to remove from our midst Brother J. J. Laughinghouse, Jr., of Grimesland Tribe, I. O. R. M. Therefore, be it resolved, 1st, That in the death of Brother Jack Laughinghouse we have lost a good citizen, a true friend, and a brother who was a Red Man in his highest sense.

2nd, That we the members of Withlacoochee Tribe No. 35, extend to our brother, Ned Laughinghouse and his family our sincere and heartfelt sympathy, and commend them in the hour of sorrow to Him who alone can give them comfort.

3rd, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, a copy be sent to Brother Ned Laughinghouse, and a copy be sent to The Reflector with request to publish same.

Movement to Organize Band.

Several of the young men in town have started a movement to organize a brass band here and we hope they will succeed. In past years Greenville has had some good organizations of this kind, but they were allowed to go down. There is plenty of talent here for a band and there is no reason why we should not have one.

The new mayor of San Francisco is said to be a poet, but then the city of Toledo has just re-elected a poet, so the experiment cannot be such a failure.

The new ten dollar gold piece omits the motto: "In God we Trust" That may mean that the gold standard does not need any religious faith.

For Rent.

The store and two warehouses at present occupied by F. V. Johnston will be for rent Jan. 1st. J. A. Andrews.

Stories of the Financier.

Many good stories are coming to the surface in connection with the closing of banks and flurries in the stock market. I heard one last night that puts an entirely new phase upon the banking business. It indicates that some customers of the banks are not suffering because their accounts are impounded.

A distinguished traveler and man of large real estate holdings has had an account with a trust company for many years. In July his cash balance had accumulated to such an extent that he determined to pay off a mortgage against one of his Fifth avenue houses. He obtained a certified check and lifted the mortgage. His cash balance was reduced to a few hundred dollars. Shortly after he decided to take a flying trip to the other end of the earth. He called upon an officer of the bank and readily obtained two letters of credit for 1,000 pounds each. The company was very glad to accommodate so old a depositor.

Away he went, drawing money and spending it liberally. He returned home the morning after the trust company closed its doors. He found upon his table a stack of letters, all properly arranged by his man. They were chiefly from the bank, and were formal in itself. He hadn't seen a newspaper and hadn't heard of the suspension. Therefore, he called a cab and drove to the bank. He was surprised to see policemen at the door. He assumed that some officer of the concern had died; but he insisted upon entering.

"I want to give them some money," he said to one of the officers.

"Oh! That's different; we thought you wanted to draw some," replied the bluecoated humorist.

The settlement was made with a check, care being taken to deduct the cash balance in the bank's possession. The unused amount of the second letter of credit was returned. When the traveler called up his other bank, in which his collectors had deposited the rest of his hoards during his absence, he learned that the institution had posted a notice saying that no more than $250 a day would be paid to any depositor.

The situation, so far as the traveler is concerned, is almost ludicrous. Although he is not embarrassed by the laying up of his money, he is virtually in debt to the trust company for $7,500.

Absolutely the best is on the other leg.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Charles T. Barney, the deposed president of the Knickerbocker Trust Company, which closed its doors during the recent Wall street panic, shot and killed himself last week. Mr. Barney was, until recently, a power in the financial world. His reason was unsettled because of the loss of his own fortune and the loss of his high business and social standing.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Having duly qualified before the Superior Court Clerk of Pitt county, as administrator of the estate of D. H. Moore, deceased, notice is hereby given to all persons indebted to the estate to make immediate payment to the undersigned, and all persons having claims against said estate are notified to present the same to the undersigned for payment on or before the 18th day of November, 1907, or this notice will be plead in bar of recovery.

This 18th day of Nov. 1907.
Martha A. Moore,
Adm'x of D. H. Moore.

MOVEMENTS OF THE PEOPLE.

Those Who Come and Go—Some You Know Some Know You

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Munford went to Norfolk Sunday.

E. B. Ficklen left Sunday for a trip in Virginia.

J. S. Mooring and F. J. Forbes spent Sunday in Bethel.

E. E. Griffin and two little sons spent Sunday in Tarboro.

Miss Verna Whichard returned Sunday evening from Wilson.

Miss Bottie Warren has returned from a visit to Williamston.

J. R. and C. B. Whichard spent Sunday with relatives at Whichard.

Miss Bruce Swift went to Kingston Saturday and returned this morning.

Mrs. R. F. Betts and child, of Cumberland, Va., are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Moore.

Ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis went to Grifton Sunday evening to deliver a temperance address and returned this morning.

W. H. Ranfrew left this afternoon for Rocky Mount, being called there on account of the sickness of his grand child.

Special Request Envelopes.

In ordering printed envelopes from the Postoffice Department, hereafter it will be necessary for the purchaser to deposit at the time of placing of order the amount of cost of the envelopes, the postage being collected on delivery of envelopes. For example in ordering one thousand No. 5 envelopes, the postmaster exacts $21.21 the full amount of envelopes and postage, while under the present arrangement, a deposit of only $1.21 is exacted at the time the order is given and the balance collected when delivery is made.

He Got the Job.

The Countess of Warwick, during her recent American tour, criticised American finance at a dinner in New York.

"I think," said the beautiful socialite, "that many of your financiers would rather be tremendously honest than tremendously dishonest. To my mind it is a bad thing to put wealth before honor, before kindness, before uprightness. Sure!"

Here the Countess smiled. "Surely it was to one of your very worst and richest financiers that a little boy applied, with success, for a position, the other day."

"As the boy stood timidly, cap in hand, before the financier's desk the latter leaned back in his chair, took his cigar from his mouth, and said:

"So you want to be my office boy, do you?"

"Yes, sir," said the lad, in a tremulous voice.

"The financier blew a cloud of smoke.

"What qualifications have you? 'hs asked for this post?"

"Why, sir," the boy faltered, "I can lie and steal a little."

When you can believe most people it's about something of no importance.

Sale of Personal Property.

On Wednesday, Dec. 11th, at the late residence of D. H. Moore, deceased, near Staton's mill, I will sell a public auction for cash a lot of household and kitchen furniture, farming utensils, team, hogs, cattle, corn and fodder.

This 18th day of Nov. 1907.
Mrs. Martha A. Moore,
Adm'x of D. H. Moore.

Wedding of Much Interest.

Cottendale, N. C., Nov. 16.—A wedding of much interest to the people of North Carolina will be that of Miss Elba Cotten, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Randolph Cotten, to Mr. Douglas B. Wessen, of Springfield, Mass., which will take place at Cottendale, the home of the bride, on November twenty-first.

This wedding will be preceded by a house party at Cottendale, where many guests will assemble from several States.

The participants in the well known hospitality of Cottendale will be Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wessen, Miss Wessen, Mr. Douglas Wessen, Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor and Mr. Flynt Lincoln, all of Springfield, Mass.; Mr. Harold Schoff, Miss Schoff and Miss Haworth, all of Philadelphia, Pa.; Miss Murray, of Columbia, S. C.; Miss McDonnell, Baltimore, Md.; Miss Margaret Elliott, of Charleston, S. C.; Miss Gertrude Sullivan, of Savannah, Georgia; Miss Julia Worth, Wilmington, N. C.; Miss Bernice Boyer, Dayton, Ohio; Mrs. William Aylett, of Newport News, Va.; Miss Mary Stearns, Newport News, Va.; Miss Margaret Skinner, Greenville, N. C.; Miss Annie Gray Nash, Tarboro, N. C.; Miss Rena Clark, Tarboro, N. C.; Mr. Wickham Taylor, Norfolk, Va.; Mr. Charles F. Cook, Princeton, N. J.; Mr. Henry P. Dubois, Haistead, Pa.; Mr. Preston Sims Cotten, Norfolk, Va.; Lieut. Bruce Cotten, New London, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Julian B. Timberlake, Raleigh, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Russell B. Wiggin, Boston, Mass.

The Old North State will be represented by Messrs. George Pennington, Samuel Clark, Theo. Cheshire and Dr. Spencer Bass, all of Tarboro, and Mr. Frank Wooten, Walter Wilson, Harry Skinner, Ben Higgs and Charley James, all of Greenville, N. C.

Weather.

Rain tonight, warmer in eastern portion. Tuesday partly cloudy, colder in western portion.

AROUND ABOUT TOWN

Some of the Things that Happen in Greenville and Hereabout.

Masons meet tonight.

Who will start a house? Some more should be going up.

Skating is prohibited on Greenville's paved streets.

Better be careful not to violate the game laws.

There were some more showers in the early hours this morning.

New Buckwheat at S. M. Schultz.

The next attraction at the opera house will be "The Shoplifters" on Friday night, 22nd.

FOR RENT—Dwelling, with seven rooms in good location. Apply, Moseley Bros.

Even if it is bad weather, the tobacco market started off this week fairly well and had a good break today.

New supply of corn and oats at F. V. Johnston's.

As much good weather as there has been this fall, we should not complain when a bad spell like this comes.

Cabbage Plants—Early Jersey Wakefield cabbage plants ready for delivery. D. R. King.

Boys and guns are dangerous combinations, and parents should be careful about allowing them to go out together.

People have learned now that the cashiers' checks are as good as anything else, and they go right along in doing business.

Owing to some mix up in the wires, a portion of the business part of the town had no electric lights for a while Saturday night.

The Reflector will swap subscription receipts for cashier's checks, dollar for dollar, just bring them on.

The Electric Theatre Saturday night was good. The show tonight is one of the best of the season, The singing of "Billie" is always good.

The hit of many years has been made this season by the great English melodrama, "The Shoplifter." Here Friday night, 2nd.

A concert hall with portable stage and English and French dancers are one of the features in "The Shoplifter," to be here Friday night, 22nd.

$10 reward for any information leading to the recovery of $32 stolen from the office of the Electric Theater on Friday night last. Money was left in office after shows closed in glove inside of a brown leather ladies handbag. Mrs. W. G. Williams.

The Durham Herald, commenting on the recent swindling of some Greensboro people by sharpers, remarks that "allowing that Greensboro has a population of forty-two thousand, it has more suckers to the square foot, than any town in the State."

PARDON REFLECTIONS.

By a Contributor

When the president comes to award the "good trust" medals and give the "bad" trusts the big stick swat, he will probably do it on the same old principle of "Our'n is good and your'n is bad."

Something seems to have gotten tangled with the Taft boom. "How would it do for Roosevelt to resign?" asks the Nashville American. Well, it wouldn't injure the health of Senator Foraker or aggravate the disposition of Dr. Long to any great extent.

"He who hoards money at a time like this, doesn't deserve to have any," remarks an exchange. The working man who succeeds in hoarding money at a time like this, has got a remarkably economical wife.

Every time some man over sixty performs a feat that seems out of the ordinary, Dr. Osler finds his name in the papers once more.

One statistician has discovered that there has been a 40 per cent decrease in the cost of funerals, but it will be just like perverse humanity to neglect this opportunity to get 'em while they're cheap.

When speaking of the "working classes," it might be well for orators to indicate whether they mean those who work for a living or those who work those who work for a living.

The statement is made that Harry Payne Whitney, a son of the late W. C. Whitney, (Secretary of the Navy under Grover Cleveland), who is one of the many millionaires of New York, had over a million dollars on deposit in one of the banks and having occasion to use $500,000 went outside and borrowed the amount placing a mortgage on his Fifth avenue home to secure the loan. The reason assigned by Mr. Whitney for borrowing the money, instead of drawing upon his bank account, was that in this time of financial stress he did not wish to do anything that would impair the reserve in the vaults of the bank or cause a depletion in the cash needed for business demands. With more of the Whitney spirit on the part of all who have deposits the money stringency would be a dream almost before you could take a long breath.

Tortoise Shell. The finest tortoise shell comes from the Indian archipelago, but a good quality is also obtained on the coast of Florida. There are three rows of plates on the back of the tortoise, called blades by fishermen. In the central row are five plates and in each of the others four plates, the latter containing the best material. Besides these there are twenty-five small plates round the edges of the shell, known as feet or noses. The largest turtle does not furnish more than

THE MAHARATTA METHOD.

Queer Devices by Which Some Debts Are Collected in India.

Many queer stories are told of the persistence and clever devices of the collectors of bad debts, but even a professional humorist would find it hard to invent anything more absurd than the method actually in use among the Maharrattas—at least of travelers' tales are to be trusted.

In that country, so they say, when a creditor cannot get his money and begins to regard the debt as desperate he proceeds to sit "dhurna" upon his debtor—that is, he squats down at the door of his victim's tent and thereby in some mysterious way becomes master of the situation. No one can go in or out except by his sanction. He neither himself eats nor allows his debtor to eat, and this extraordinary starvation contest is kept up until either the debt is paid or the creditor gives up the siege, and in the latter case the debt is held to be canceled.

However strange it may appear to Europeans, this method of enforcing a demand is an established and almost universal usage among the Maharrattas and seems to them a mere matter of course. Even their "scindiah," or chieftain, is not exempt from it.

The laws by which the "dhurna" is regulated are as well defined as those of any other custom whatever. When it is meant to be very strict the claimant takes with him a number of his followers, who surround the tent and sometimes even the bed of his adversary to make sure that he obtains no morsel of food. The code, however, prescribes the same abstinence for the man who imposes the ordeal, and of course the strongest stomach wins the day.

A similar custom was once so prevalent in the province of Benares that Brahmans were sometimes systematically put through a course of training to enable them to endure a long time without food. They were then sent to the door of some rich person, where they publicly made a vow to remain fasting until a certain sum of money was paid or until they perished from starvation. To cause the death of a Brahman was considered so heinous an offense that the cash was generally forthcoming, but never without a resolute struggle to determine whether the man was likely to prove staunch, for the average oriental will almost as soon give up his life as his money.—London Chronicle.

The Business Instruct.

The teacher was trying to impress upon her class the necessity of regulating the sinful human heart, and to drive her point home she produced her watch.

"Now, boys," she said, "you all see this watch"—an assertion so obviously true that there was no danger of contradiction. "Now," she continued, "just suppose for a moment that it did not keep correct time, that I found it was willing to go any way but the right way, what should I do with it?"

There was the usual pause which pupils indulge in because it flatters the teacher by making her suppose her problem is a very deep one and that her wisdom is therefore profound. Then a bright little boy held up his hand.

"Please, miss," he said, "you would sell it to a friend!"—London Answers.

A Considerate Tramp. Magistrate (to tramp)—You met this lady on the highway and demanded alms of her, and she refused you.

"Yes, your honor."

"And then you threatened her life."

"Oh, no! I didn't do that."

"You seized your bludgeon with both hands and said, 'Madam, you must die.' You did that, didn't you?"

"Yes, but I didn't threaten her life. I said that she must die, and so she must some time or other. We all must die some day. I didn't say when she must die. I think a great deal about death and all that, and"

"Six months' hard labor!"—London Express.

Painting is almost a continuous performance on some of the ocean liners. "On a certain ship one day," said a traveler, "I put my hand on a freshly painted ventilator, and while removing the white smears I fell into conversation with the seaman who was responsible for the trouble. He was an elderly chap, and he had visited many outlandish places. As he plied the brush we had an interesting chat."

"How long have you been a sailor?" said I finally. "Sailor? The old man grumbled, dipping his brush into the can. 'Bless yer heart, sir, I'm no sailor nowadays. I'm a bloomin' artist, that's wot I am!'"

Deafness Cannot be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Run Them to Skin and Bone

A New Yorker who sometimes varies his horseback riding by taking trips through the rail fence belt of Long Island noticed on one such trip a farmer sitting dejectedly on one such fence.

"What happened the squealers?" the rider asked.

The farmer beckoned him to come close, then hoarsely whispered: "Lost my voice. Them was the fattest pigs I ever seen. I used to come out and call 'em to me and feed 'em three times a day. Lost my voice and had to call 'em to grub by rapping with my stick on the fence. See? Now the darn woodpeckers is driving them pigs crazy."—New York Sun.

With Loss of Interest

There is a police court magistrate of St. Louis who frequently evinces a pretty wit in dealing with fresh or facetious offenders.

To one vagrant brought before him not long ago his honor put the question, "What occupation?"

"Nothin' much at present," slipshodly responded the prisoner; "just circulate round, judge."

"Retired from circulation for thirty days," dryly observed his honor to the clerk of the court.—Harper's Weekly.

CARRYING UMBRELLAS.

Few People Manage Them to the Best Advantage.

"Curious about how some people carry umbrellas," said Mr. Stormelton. "We think the ostrich is a stupid bird because with its head buried in the sand it thinks its whole body is hidden from everybody. But plenty of men are quite as stupid as that in their manner carrying an umbrella."

"They carry it in such a way as to protect the front of their bodies and appear to think they have themselves, wholly protected, while all the time the water is gayly dripping down their backs. The fact is that not many men know how to carry an umbrella when it rains."

"If it rains and blows then instinctively they hold the umbrella toward the wind to keep the umbrella from being blown inside out as well as to protect themselves from the rain. This is proper. But when the rain is coming down straight they carry their umbrellas in all sorts of ways, in which they reveal more or less of their personal characteristics."

"Here, for instance, is a man who carries his umbrella held in his right hand with the hand straight in front of and in line with his elbow and upper arm, this being the easiest way to carry it. Held in this manner the umbrella really shelters completely only his head and the right side of his body. The rain drips from it on his left shoulder and down his left side. He is either lazy or thoughtless. He is probably both."

"Again we may meet a man carrying an umbrella at the cost of considerable effort around in front of the center line of his body, which is correct as to that position, but carrying it there too far forward, with the result that while he keeps perfectly dry on his face side, yet more or less water drips down his back—a man finicky and particular about the front he presents, about appearances, but not so mindful of the substance."

"And then we meet the man who carries his umbrella with fore arm straight in line with his elbow, for the greater ease of that position of the arm, but with the hand slightly turned so as to make the umbrella more completely cover him or with that end in view, which end, however, it does not accomplish, for with the umbrella top tilted it does not cover so large an area as it does when carried in a horizontal plane. This is a man who is lazy, but trying by that twist of the hand to get something for nothing or without much effort."

"And then we may occasionally meet a man who is carrying his umbrella in the best possible position for the purposes of the best possible protection to be gained from it, this being square in front of him, with the umbrella handle all but touching the center of the front edge of the rim of his hat, carried so as to protect him as far as may be both back and front, while he carries the umbrella as low down as can be without touching his hat on top, thus giving himself also protection as far as possible down around toward his feet. And here we find a man who knows intelligently what can be done with the means at his command and who is willing to put forth the effort required to bring those means to their utmost efficiency."—New York Sun.

His Son's West Side. "How are you, Mr. Smith? How is that son of yours making it with his new motor bicycle?" "Oh, he had quite a tumble the other day," replied Mr. Smith. "He was speeding at about forty miles an hour along a rough macadam road when all of a sudden the darn machine stopped stone still, but my son kept on going from the momentum and slid along the road for about fifty feet before he could stop himself."

What Would You Do?

A striking example of presence of mind had just occurred in the history lesson, and the teacher considered it an opportune moment for calculating upon her class the many advantages of resourcefulness.

"Now, children," she said, "supposing a tiger were to seize one of you in its hungry jaws and carry you off into the jungle, what would you do? You tell me, Tommy," she continued, pointing to one of the brightest youngsters.

Tommy hesitated. "Come, Tommy," she said, "would you cry for help?" "No, ma'am," said he. "Mother says little boys shouldn't speak at meal times."—London Pick-Me-Up.

An Eye For Business.

The boy of the family, the smart little son of an editor, had just passed his ninth birthday and delighted in stirring things up whenever he found a chance. On his way to school one day he popped into a hardware store.

"Say, mister," he called out, "do you keep knives?" "Oh, yes," replied the storekeeper; "we've kept them for years."

"Well," returned the boy, starting for the door, "just advertise, and then you won't keep them so long."—Ladies' Home Journal.

HAD A GOOD BREAKFAST.

The Old Soldier Told the Affable Stranger How He Got It.

One day late in the eighteenth century the great Emperor Joseph of Austria was out driving when a heavy shower came up. As the first big drops fell an old soldier of the Invalides came hobbling to the door of the carriage and asked to be taken in, because, he said, his uniform was new and he did not want to get it wet.

"What was it?" asked the emperor.

"Guess."

The emperor ran over all the dishes he could think of that were best liked among the common soldiers, but to everything he mentioned the invalid answered, chuckling, "Better than that."

The emperor said he was and was then asked what position he held.

"Guess," said the emperor.

The soldier guessed and guessed again. He finally guessed everything from sergeant up to marshal, and to every guess he got the answer, "Better than that."

Naturally after awhile the truth began to dawn on him, and the poor man was frightened nearly out of his wits, but the emperor only laughed, told him to learn discretion in making confidences to strangers, asked him where he wanted to go, set him down at the right door and never took any further notice of his loss of a pheasant than to make it a favorite story at court.—Westminster Gazette.

Before His Time.

It was Mr. Higginbotham's first visit to London, and he was taking his pleasures sadly. Theaters had small attraction for him, and restaurants had less. He did not even come to see the building where the golden one is produced.

"How, then, did he spend his time? Giddy person! He was visiting all the ancient places that have played a part in the making of history. At the time this storyette takes him in hand he had already seen all but one. That one he was now determined to behold."

"I want to visit the building," he remarked to a bus conductor as the latter took his fare, "in front of which Charles I. was executed."

For a moment the conductor looked mystified, but for a moment only.

"You'd better ask a policeman," he said. "That must have happened before I came here. I've only been in London six months."—London Tit-Bits.

Drawbacks of Culture.

There is a certain matron of Chicago's smart set whose devotion to matters social precludes any excessive amount of attention to her children. It happened recently that she was just about to telephone to her physician for the second time to attend her youngest, a girl of three years, just then suffering from some minor ailment, when the doctor himself put in an appearance.

"I'm so glad you've come at last, doctor," exclaimed the matron. "I don't know what on earth ails little Marie. The French nurse left this morning, and there's not a soul in the house can understand what she says."—Harper's Weekly.

Died Cane.

In the delirium of buck fever he mistook a colt for a deer.

And the colt, mortally stricken, sank down upon the straw of the barnyard, looking with glazed eyes upon the multitude of sympathetic creatures that gathered gently about it.

"Have you no last message for any one?" they inquired.

Thereupon the moribund animal raised its head proudly.

"Tell my sire," it said in a loud, firm voice, "that I died game."

One long, shuddering sigh and all was over.—Atlanta Constitution.

Easy Way to Return Favors.

"If you owe somebody a dinner or something or an entertainment," remarked the careful man, "the best way I know to return it is to send them complimentary concert tickets somebody has given you. I know a pair of such tickets that did duty six times in the way of returning obligations. I started them, they passed on to five other people, and, by jingo, if they finally didn't get back to me!"—New York Press.

A TAQFUL GIFT.

The Way Philip D. Armour Aided Dr. Henry M. Field.

When Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus was in the pastorate of Plymouth church, Chicago, Philip D. Armour was his most eminent parishioner. Mr. Armour had long admired the New York evangelist and was distressed when he heard that the decline of the journal threatened to leave its editor and owner, Dr. Henry M. Field, in penury in his old age.

The packer asked Dr. Gunsaulus to invite the editor to Chicago, and then he himself invited them both to dinner in his home. At the table Mr. Armour turned the conversation almost immediately to the editor's brother, already long deceased, Mr. Cyrus W. Field, inventor of the ocean telegraph. Said Mr. Armour:

"I am sorry that in your brother's lifetime I did not recognize more clearly my debt to him. Now every day I sit in my office and communicate with my agents all over the world, and my business multiplies wonderfully just because I can keep in touch with markets for my products in every country. And I owe it all to your brother. If it hadn't been for his faith in the ocean cable I could never have built up such a trade. I keep wishing I had done something while he was living to show him that I appreciated his achievement."

The packing king kept up the same strain of conversation through most of the meal. Toward the last a plate set down, before the editor contained among the viands of the course a small slip of folded paper. Dr. Field opened it doubtfully and found written within:

"Good for $10,000, payable at the office of the Armour Packing company to the brother of Cyrus W. Field."

The venerable editor was overwhelmed with confusion and scarcely was able to express his feelings. But, of course, as his host had calculated, he could not decline a gift given in his brother's memory.—Interior.

Boiling a Ham.

A great many women do not know how properly to boil a ham. Many of them put it in a pot of water and let it cook, fast or slow, as the fire may allow, until they think it is done. Try this way for a change and see if the little trouble involved is not worth while. Boiled ham to be at its best requires very slow cooking. Put the ham in a kettle, cover it with cold water and let it cook four hours. Take it out, wash it thoroughly, scrape and clean off the hard edges of the skin, put back in the kettle, cover with cold water and let it simmer until the meat is tender when tried with a fork. A ten pound ham would require about five hours' cooking in this way. Remove the ham from the fire and let it stand in the water for an hour, then take from the water and remove the outside skin. Sprinkle the ham with granulated sugar and cracker crumbs, a dash of paprika and insert two or three whole cloves. Put in a slow oven and bake for an hour.—Chicago News.

The Legend of the Dolphin.

A rich Bristol merchant was coming home from the West Indies in a vessel which carried all his wealth, says a London paper. When far from land the ship sprang a leak. The crew tried hard to keep her afloat by pumping out the water. The water was coming in faster than the pumps day and night, yet it seemed as though the ship would sink. All at once, to their great astonishment, the water stopped coming in, and the ship was pumped dry. On examination of the bottom of the vessel it was found that a dolphin had squeezed itself into the hole and thus saved them from destruction. Out of gratitude the merchant founded a charity school in Bristol, and all the scholars wear on their breasts the figure of a dolphin in brass in remembrance of this remarkable deliverance.

Winning His Wage.

A tall, herculean Gascon, astride a wretched pony encountered as he rode over a bridge a richly-dressed cavalier mounted on a noble steed. Saluting the horseman, the Gascon said to him:

"I will bet you ten golden pieces that I can do with my horse what you can't with yours."

"Done," said the cavalier, whereupon the Gascon dismounted from his miserable hack and, taking it up in his arms, threw it over the battlements into the river, thus winning his wager, to the great discomfiture of the owner of the noble steed.—London Mail.

Still Wandering.

Worn out by a long series of appalling French exercises, wherein the blunders were as the sands of the sea, a hapless high school mistress declared her intention of writing to Florence's mother.

Florence looked her teacher in the face. "Ma will be awfully angry," quoth she.

"I am afraid she will, but it is my duty to write to her, Florence."

"I don't know," said Florence doubtfully. "You see, mother always does my French for me."

The teacher is wondering whether she will write.—London Express.

THE HURRYING MAN.

And the Man Who Keeps Cool and Does Things Without Hurrying.

"I like to see a man quick about his work," said Mr. Quilkinton, "but I don't like a man who habitually hurries."

"The hurrying man gets on my nerves. He grabs things up and slams things down and makes a great show of doing things. For that matter, the earnest, hurrying man may actually do things, but he does them at the cost of an unnecessary expenditure of nervous force on his own part, and I am sure he must wear on the nerves of other people around him."

"Now, the hustler is a very different proposition from the hurrying man and so also the man of energy. The hustler is indeed a man of energy, but he is one working, or comparatively so, within a comparatively narrow compass or along some special line of work. He is a bull sort of man, a driver, who makes it his business to get things done and to keep on getting them done and always with the least possible waste of time or force. There are other sorts of hustlers, men who make a great to do and don't accomplish much. But the one I have described is the hustler of the best type."

"The man of energy is a man of strength and momentum who gives also an impression of reserve power. He is likely to be the head of the enterprise, and he communicates his strength to the hustlers and diffuses power all around. Everybody within range of his influence feels his strength and works better for it, and he puts his own shoulder to the wheel on occasion."

"But neither the hustler of the best type nor the man of energy ever hurries. The hustler rushes things; he crowds 'em hard and keeps crowding, but he doesn't hurry, for hurry means impairment of strength, and on a big job hurry is likely to mean confusion worse confounded."

"The real hustler first lays out the work to be done clearly in his own mind, and then, with no false moves, with no waste of time or effort, he crowds the work forward to its conclusion, all without the turmoil of hurry. And the man of energy diffuses strength always steadily, ever contributing to the highest results."

"So I don't personally envy the individual man who, however efficient he may really be, does things in a hurry. I like the cool man, the man who keeps his head and who is easy and deliberate in his movements. In him and in his work you feel full confidence, and the effect of his presence is good in every way on all around him."

"Give me cool men, not men who work in a hurry."—New York Sun.

TO MY FRIENDS.

Having been away for several months I wish to announce to my friends and patrons of the "empire" of Pitt that I am still connected with the firm of Chas. M. Stieff, and if bachelors are allowed to misuse the happy term home as a synonym for a "hanging out place" I still call Greenville my home, and while I intend to be away from Greenville a great deal of my time during this fall a postal care of box 325, Greenville, will reach me within a day or two. We now have a number of slightly used upright pianos, some of which have been rented during the summer months, others which were temporarily used by artists at the exposition and for orchestra work, at bargain prices.

We also offer a special school piano for $225.00 fully measuring up in standard to any $350.00 instrument. This piano is especially built for college and school work for the special price named above and is full guaranteed by my firm for 10 years. Those interested in a school piano or in a good slightly used piano for the home should write me at once and will profit by it, and as ever I am always mindful of my patrons' protection and interest as well as my firm's interest. Grateful of past patronage.

Very respt.,
