ORGAN RECITAL.

Enjoyable Evening in Jarvis Memorial Church.

Prof. H. H. Freeman, of Washington, D. C., gave his second organ recital in Jarvis Memorial Methodist church Monday night. A very large audience was present and the program was much enjoyed. Prof. Freeman is indeed an artist, and under his splendid touch the fine qualities of the organ were well developed. The anthem by the choir was also entertaining, and especially so was the vocal solo by Miss Olive Gaston, which was beautifully rendered.

The program was as follows:

PART I.

1. Doxology, by the choir and congregation.
2. Anthem, "The King of Love," by the choir, Shelley.
3. a, Grand Offertoire No. 4 in G major, Wely; b, Capriccio in A minor, Manney, arranged for the organ by H. H. Freeman.
4. a, Toccata and Fugue in D minor, Bach; b, Intermezzo in D flat, Salome.
5. a; Bridal Song Op. 45, No. 2, Jensen, arranged for the organ by Clarence Eddy, b, Rustic Wedding (Allegretto gioioso) West.
6. Andantino in D flat, by Edwin H. Lemare.

PART 2

1. Soprano Solo, "Triumph of Life" Romano, Miss Gaston.
2. a, Prelude in F major, Rink; b, A Simple Melody, Vancent.
3. a; Gavotte from the opera "Mignon" Thomas arranged for the organ by Clarence Eddy; b, Pastorale, Wachs.
4. a, Serenata, Mozartowski arranged for the organ by Arthur Boyce, F. R. C. O., b, Funeral March, Chopin arranged for the organ by F. Cunningham Woods.

Farwell Sermon.

On Sunday morning Rev. W. E. Cox preached his farewell sermon as rector of the St. Paul's Episcopal church, and leaves this week for his new charge at Wilmington. His labors with the church here have been most acceptable, and while Greenville gives him up with regret the best wishes of every one goes with him to his new field of labor.

The Governor at Winterville.

Governor Glenn spoke Monday morning at Winterville High School and many citizens of Winterville assembled with the students. The governor said to stand before such an audience would give any man an inspiration to put forth his best efforts in a speech. And that is just what he did, for he gave them a speech they can never forget while life shall last. His theme was "The Noble Life" and he told his hearers this could only be obtained through culture of body, culture of mind and culture of soul. It was a great speech.

In all of his speeches Governor Glenn makes some reference to temperance, and on this occasion he said Winterville had the most ideal prohibition of any town he knows. The founder of the town in putting a clause in every deed to a lot that no liquor should be sold thereon in 99 years, beats all the laws that could be passed for restricting the sale.

Fox Hunt at Panacea.

The annual fox hunt inaugurated by a club at Panacea Springs is in progress this week and will be a great occasion for sport. There will be 75 horses and 130 dogs in the chase.

UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT.

Quinners School Does Its Best

In the southern part of this county, at Centerville, is located probably one of the best rural schools in the State. For the past three years Quinners school has held an enviable reputation among the schools of the county and the State. At present this school seems to be exceedingly fortunate in its teaching force: Miss Lily Helen Pair, of Kenly, is principal of the school and Miss Margie Scott, of Newbern, and Miss Hulda Morris, of Virginia, are the assistants.

On last Friday night an entertainment was given in this school by the Woman's Betterment Association of the district under the supervision of these teachers. For unique planning and skillful execution we are sure we are right in saying that nothing of the kind has ever been attempted in a rural school.

Notice of the entertainment appeared as follows: "Annual Appearance of the Quinners Hippodrome, Friday night, Nov. 22nd. To say that in deed and in truth, it was a rich and rare cultivation of new and interesting features expresses only half of the truth. The Mysterious Chamber of Horrors, the Weird Manikin, the Charming Beauty show of Pitt county Babies, the Eccentric Angler's Fish Pond, the Superdus Menagerie with the Walsing Polar Bear (that did not waltz), the Cozy Lovers' Nook, the Gypsy Fortune Teller, the funny Punch and Judy show, the generous Grab Bag, the Matrimonial Forecaster, the Choice Candy Booth and various other attractions made this one of the most enjoyable entertainments ever given in our midst. Booth had been erected in every room of the beautiful school house and everything was gotten in readiness for a great evening of fun, and those who were there will bear out the statement that no one was disappointed.

Some of the signs on the exterior of the booths were as follows "Picture of your Future Husband and Wife," "Let Madam Toto Read Your Palm," "Men's Hands Held While you Wait," Wholesale Dealer in Love, Hugs and Kisses," The Weird Manikin" etc., etc. Miss Pair in charge of the Pitt county Baby Show was a rousing success. Absolutely her conduct of this department was perfect. The babies were only 3 weeks old and the lightest one weighed not less than 140 pounds. The "Crying and Screaming Habit" was greater even than the weight. Miss Scott, as the "Weird Manikin," surprised even her most ardent admirers and friends. It will be a long time before any one who was there will forget the "Little Man." Miss Morris, as Palmist, would put to shame professionals in this art. The ease and fluency with which she read the past and the future was really refreshing. Those in charge of the other booths sustained themselves with great credit to the school and community.

There was fun on every hand and well did the crowd take it in. Boys and girls, men and women, vied with each other as to who should get the most out of the evening. The inclement weather prevented a large crowd from being present. A nice sum was however realized as every one present patronized liberally all of the various booths. Had the weather been favorable and it had been known what was in store for visitors the entertainment would have doubtless added $100 to the treasury of the Betterment Association.

All honor to the faithful teachers and their friends who helped them in giving such a pleasant evening. Quinners school will continue to hold its place among the schools of the State as long as it is under the care of such splendid ladies and surrounded by such a noble citizenship.

AYDEN NEWS

News Notes From a Hazy Town Briefly Told
Ayden, N. C., Nov. 26, 1907.

Before the arrival of the noon train yesterday there had assembled at the depot a large number of our citizens and the teachers and pupils of the graded school, 205 strong, to give welcome to North Carolina's governor. As the train pulled in an ovation was tendered Gov. Glenn that must have been pleasing to him. He responded to calls in a 3 minute speech that contained and expressed more than many orators could have done in as many hours. Gov. Glenn has a warm place in the hearts of Contentnea folks, for like him they are Democrats pure and simple, and whenever and wherever Bob Glenn drops in their midst he will find a warm welcome. From here he proceeded to Grifton where he made a speech in the afternoon on the prohibition question that is now agitating the thought of the good people of that prosperous and thriving little town.

Those 205 pupils as they paraded our streets Monday were amazing. As we viewed them it seemed every child in the county was here, babies thrown in. Not so however, the Free Will Seminary authorities had they known in time would have been in the procession and then surely would the school system of Ayden been made manifest. Ayden ain't no back woods.

J. R. Turnage has been to and returned from Kinston lately.

The way painters are slinging paint around here certainly adds considerable to the appearance of our town.

Misses Ida and Annie Edwards spent last Friday in Greenville. Some folks may grumble, but if the road hands are not doing some nice work in the swamps throughout the county, then we are very much mistaken.

W. J. Boyd and W. E. Hooks, after an absence in the western part of the State during the past week, have come home.

The report of the Ayden dispensary for the last quarter shows total resources of $4,170.78 and liabilities of $2,896.71; giving a net profit to the town of $1,274.07.

Ayden bank is not now, has never been, nor will it be, in the slumps. It cashes its own checks on demand, dollar for dollar, and don't forget it.

R. F. Johnson and Joe Raspberry, of Grifton, spent the day here Monday.

Mr. Martin, of Greenville, spent Sunday night here. He left next morning with a smile bland and serene.

J. R. Turnage and Co., one day last week bought a bale of cotton from W. H. Worthington weighing 474 pounds for which they paid 14 1/2 cents, the whole bale amounting to $61.62. How is that when other cotton is selling for 10 1/2 cents? Why! our farmers just know how to make it.

A nice delegation went from here to Grifton Monday to hear Bob Glenn. They report the probabilities of a prohibition victory as very bright.

HONOR ROLL.

What the Graded School Pupils are Doing.

The honor roll list at the graded school for the month of November is as follows:

First Grade—Virginia Arthur, Ruth Andrews, Shepherd Andrews, Gladys Bagwell, Van Barnhill, George Buck Holene Higg, Don Jenkins, James Little, Bert Moye, D. D. Overton Jr., Sallie Paramore, Hugh Parham, Ernie Peed, Lucie Randolph, Donald Rouse, Norman Rouse, Athelene Waichard, Chas. White, James White, William White.

Second Grade—Lillie Dell Critcher, Juanita Savage, Elizabeth Forbes, Adelaide Taft, Ruth Brinkley, James Ficklen, Frank Perkins, Tom Moore, Jack Hunter.

Third Grade—Willie Jackson, Ellen Douglas Arthur, May Aca Warren, James Perkins, Lucy Jenkins.

Fourth Grade—Henry Shepherd, Burton Greene, Rosa Exum.

Fifth Grade, Sec. B—George Charly, Pattie Smith.

Fifth Grade, Section A—Minnie Rives, Ethel Bowling, Fanny Spain, Rubelle Forbes, E. C. Williams, Azor Moye, Christine Tyson, Christine Johnston, Pearl Norman, Lelia Higgs, Clifton Edwards, Churchill Hodges, Clifton Rountree, Milton Pugh.

Sixth Grade—Pattie Wooten, Allie Rives, Grace Smith, Ruth Edwards, Ora Crawford, Nellie Williams, Ficklen Arthur.

Seventh Grade—Alexander Harper, Myrtle Warren, Bettie Pearl Fleming, Linda Smith, Maggie Sayage, Nina Harris, Daisy Laughinghouse, Adrian Brown.

Eighth Grade—Sadie Exum, Frank Brown.

Tenth Grade—Conrad Lanier, Lillie Tucker, Margaret Blow.

It may be of interest to say that for a pupil to be on the honor roll he must not have been absent nor tardy during the month, and must also have secured S on all his studies, which means between 85 and 100. Pupils who are on the honor roll each month during the session will have their names read at the commencement, and will also be given an annual honor roll certificate.

The school has recently been awarded two more scholarships making four in all. The colleges giving these are University, Trinity College, Agricultural and Mechanical College, and Elizabeth College of Charlotte. Each of these scholarships is worth the tuition, which is $60 per year for four years.

The supplies committee has recently had a splendid triple basin lavatory put in the school building. Water in the building has been needed a long time, and now that the school has it, a long-felt need is supplied.

The management of the school has cause to feel gratified over the reports of the former graduates who are now in college. The school has never graduated but six pupils, and four of these Misses Mae Schultz, Nellie Pender, and Messrs. Ames Brown and James Evans, are in college. Messrs. Evans and Brown are at the University, Miss Pender at Greenboro Female College and Miss Schultz at Richmond College. Their reports show that they stand well in their classes. Some of them have been highly complimented by the college authorities.

Prohibition Was at Grifton.

A telephone message to The Reflector about 11 o'clock this morning, stated that prohibition had won in the election at Grifton today. There are 58 registered voters in the town, and at the time the message was sent 40 votes had been cast, every one of them being for prohibition, with the outlook that it was going to be unanimous. Our informant said that County Commissioner J. Z. Brooks rallied his friends for prohibition early in the day, and the victory was easily won.

Engineer's Nerve Prevents Wreck.

Saturday's New Bern Journal says:

The Norfolk and Southern train save for the steady nerve and judgment of Engineer Butt, would have met with a serious wreck last night. The night was very dark and rainy, and the train had passed Chocowinity going at its full speed, when the passengers heard one whistle, and the train came to a quick stop, though without any jar to passengers. An investigation showed that the train had run into a herd of cattle, that had taken position on the track, probably finding it the best roadway in the rain and darkness. Upon looking about in the darkness, eight dead or badly maimed cattle were discovered, proving the fearful power and force of the train. Engineer Butt, before he could see the cattle, was among the herd, and without hesitation shut off an 1 stopped his train. For a moment the engine left the tracks, but fortunately came back without disturbance.

$5.00 Reward.

I will give the above reward for information leading to the conviction of the party or parties who secured without my knowledge or consent a quantity of envelopes bearing the address of J. M. Moore & Bro. and used the same for the purpose of circulating an anonymous pamphlet. As the father of J. M. Moore, deceased, I denounce the party who stole these envelopes, and take this method of informing the public that neither I nor any member of my family knew of the use of the envelopes for the infamous purpose of circulating an anonymous communication. J. R. Moore.

As the Mauritania brought several millions of gold over with her she was received with outstretched arms, even if she did not make quite as fat a trip as her sister ship, the Lusitania. But don't they get names for those big ships! They are as bad sounding as the names of some of the Pullman cars.

The Boston Transcript reports a bank examiner as saying to the officers of a leading bank in that city "If you are not dipping into your reserve you are not doing your duty by Boston."

The Charlotte Observer commenting on this regards it as advice that the law about reserve be allowed to lapse a little, and adds "Such winking at a degree of violation of the law could only be tolerated as a financial war measure, but not excused, for breaches of the law should never be excused."

Tread lightly on points contrary to law, brother, or you may stir up more trouble than you may now anticipate under existing conditions, regardless of the soundness of the declaration.

RANDOM REFLECTIONS.

By a Contributor

Congressman Burton, of the rivers and harbors committee, has recently been making an extended tour up Salt River. His report is awaited with interest. Senator Carmack's opinion that Mr. Roosevelt is the biggest fake and the most popular man in the country, is something like Carlyle's statement that the population of England consisted of forty millions mostly fools.

The president's proposed conference of governors will give the fellows from the other States chance to know what the governors of North and South Carolina really did say.

Mr. Taft said to the Filipinos: "Learn to be a good loser." An intimation of what the future holds for them perhaps.

The fact that a N. Y. manufacturer wanted to change the name of the Teddy bear must be accepted as an indication of waning popularity whether we like it or not.

If you believe his secretary, Tom Johnson wouldn't give a three cent fare to be president.

The third Douma seems to be tame enough for the Czar to pat on the back.

Secretary Cortelyou is trying to impress us with the fact that stockings were made to be worn and not to hoard money in.

Believing that business conditions are good will help to make them so. But they are good whether any one wants to believe it or not.

Even Alabama is to be liquid in name only.

The old query, "what is whiskey?" is going the rounds again. It is to be hoped somebody will find out before everything goes prohibition.

The great majority of American citizens only know that there are new $10 coins incirculation because they read it in the papers.

Alabama has now gone dry. The Southern colonel is making his last stand in Kentucky, but he will soon be a thing of the past.

The Way Philip D. Armour Aided Dr. Henry M. Field.

When Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus was in the pastorate of Plymouth church, Chicago, Philip D. Armour was his most eminent parishioner. Mr. Armour had long admired the New York evangelist and was distressed when he heard that the decline of the journal threatened to leave its editor and owner, Dr. Henry M. Field, in penury in his old age.

The packer asked Dr. Gunsaulus to invite the editor to Chicago, and then he himself invited them both to dinner in his home. At the table Mr. Armour turned the conversation almost immediately to the editor's brother, already long deceased, Mr. Cyrus W. Field, inventor of the ocean telegraph. Said Mr. Armour:

"I am sorry that in your brother's lifetime I did not recognize more clearly my debt to him. Now every day I sit in my office and communicate with my agents all over the world, and my business multiplies wonderfully just because I can keep in touch with markets for my products in every country. And I owe it all to your brother. If it hadn't been for his faith in the ocean cable I could never have built up such a trade. I keep wishing I had done something while he was living to show him that I appreciated his achievement."

The packing king kept up the same strain of conversation through most of the meal. Toward the last a plate set down before the editor contained among the viands of the course a small slip of folded paper. Dr. Field opened it doubtfully and found written within:

"Good for $10,000, payable at the office of the Armour Packing company to the brother of Cyrus W. Field."

The venerable editor was overwhelmed with confusion and scarcely was able to express his feelings. But, of course, as his host had calculated, he could not decline a gift given in his brother's memory.—Interior.

Boiling a Ham.

A great many women do not know how properly to boil a ham. Many of them put it in a pot of water and let it cook, fast or slow, as the fire may allow, until they think it is done. Try this way for a change and see if the little trouble involved is not worth while. Boiled ham to be at its best requires very slow cooking. Put the ham in a kettle, cover it with cold water and let it soak four hours. Take it out, wash it thoroughly, scrape and clean off the hard edges of the skin, put back in the kettle, cover with cold water and let it simmer until the meat is tender when tried with a fork. A ten pound ham would require about five hours' cooking in this way. Remove the ham from the fire and let it stand in the water for an hour, then take from the water and remove the outside skin. Sprinkle the ham with granulated sugar and cracker crumbs, a dash of paprika and insert two or three whole cloves. Put in a slow oven and bake for an hour.—Chicago News.

Drawbacks of Culture.

There is a certain matron of Chicago's smart set whose devotion to matters social precludes any excessive amount of attention to her children. It happened recently that she was just about to telephone to her physician for the second time to attend her youngest, a girl of three years, just then suffering from some minor ailment, when the doctor himself put in an appearance.

"I'm so glad you've come at last, doctor!" exclaimed the matron. "I don't know what on earth ails little Marie. The French nurse left this morning, and there's not a soul in the house can understand what she says."—Harper's Weekly.

Died Game.

In the delirium of buck fever he mistook a colt for a deer.

And the colt, mortally stricken, sank down upon the straw of the barnyard, looking with glazed eyes upon the multitude of sympathetic creatures that gathered gently about it.

"Have you no last message for any one?" they inquired.

Thereupon the moribund animal raised its head proudly.

"Tell my sire," it said in a loud, firm voice, "that I died game."

One long, shuddering sigh and all was over.—Atlanta Constitution.

Easy Way to Return Favors.

"If you owe somebody a dinner or something or an entertainment," remarked the careful man, "the best way I know to return it is to send them complimentary concert tickets somebody has given you. I know a pair of such tickets that did duty six times in the way of returning obligations. I started them, they passed on to five other people, and, by jingo, if they finally didn't get back to me!"—New York Press.

HAD A GOOD BREAKFAST.

The Old Soldier Told the Affable Stranger How He Got It.

One day late in the eighteenth century the great Emperor Joseph of Austria was out driving when a heavy shower came up. As the first big drops fell an old soldier of the Invalides came hobbling to the door of the carriage and asked to be taken in, because, he said, his uniform was new and he did not want to get it wet. The emperor, who was taking the air as a private gentleman, with no marks of his rank about him, told the old man to get in and at once fell to talking with him very affably. Soon the soldier mentioned that he had had a capital breakfast that morning.

"What was it?" asked the emperor.

"Guess."

The emperor ran over all the dishes he could think of that were best liked among the common soldiers, but to everything he mentioned the invalid answered, chuckling, "Better than that." At last, the emperor giving up the puzzle, he slapped his knee and declared he had taken a pheasant out of the imperial preserves. The emperor laughed sympathetically, and the subject was changed. When they had driven some time the poor poacher, after recounting some of his experiences in battle, remarked:

"You look like a military man yourself. Are you in the army?"

The emperor said he was and was then asked what position he held.

"Guess," said the emperor.

The soldier guessed and guessed again. He finally guessed everything from sergeant up to marshal, and to every guess he got the answer, "Better than that."

Naturally after awhile the truth began to dawn on him, and the poor man was frightened nearly out of his wits, but the emperor only laughed, told him to learn discretion in making confidences to strangers, asked him where he wanted to go, set him down at the right door and never took any further notice of his loss of a pheasant than to make it a favorite story at court.—Westminster Gazette.

Before His Time.

It was Mr. Higginbotham's first visit to London, and he was taking his pleasures sadly. Theaters had small attraction for him, and restaurants had less. He did not even come to see the building where the golden one is produced.

How, then, did he spend his time? Giddy person! He was visiting all the ancient places that have played a part in the making of history. At the time this storyette takes him in hand he had already seen all but one. That one he was now determined to behold.

"I want to visit the building," he remarked to a bus conductor as the latter took his fare, "in front of which Charles I. was executed."

For a moment the conductor looked mystified, but for a moment only.

"You'd better ask a policeman," he said. "That must have happened before I came here. I've only been in London six months."—London Tit-Bits.

What Would You Do?

A striking example of presence of mind had just occurred in the history lesson, and the teacher considered it an opportune moment for inculcating upon her class the many advantages of resourcefulness:

"Now, children," she said, "supposing a tiger were to seize one of you in its hungry jaws and carry you off into the jungle, what would you do? You tell me, Tommy," she continued, pointing to one of the brightest youngsters.

Tommy hesitated.

"Come, Tommy," she said, "would you cry for help?"

"No, ma'am," said he. "Mother says little boys shouldn't speak at meal times."—London Pick-Me-Up.

An Eye For Business.

The boy of the family, the smart little son of an editor, had just passed his ninth birthday and delighted in stirring things up whenever he found a chance. On his way to school one day he popped into a hardware store.

"Say, mister," he called out, "do you keep knives?"

"Oh, yes," replied the storekeeper, "we've kept them for years."

"Well," returned the boy, starting for the door, "just advertise, and then you won't keep them so long."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Oldhead—Oh, I put up my watch or negotiate a small loan from some of the boys.—Kansas City Independent.

CARRYING UMBRELLAS.

Few People Manage Them to the Best Advantage.

"Curious about how some people carry umbrellas," said Mr. Stormelton. "We think the ostrich is a stupid bird because with its head buried in the sand it thinks its whole body is hidden from everybody. But plenty of men are quite as stupid as that in their manner of carrying an umbrella."

"They carry it in such a way as to protect the front of their bodies and appear to think they have themselves wholly protected, while all the time the water is gayly dripping down their backs. The fact is that not many men know how to carry an umbrella when it rains."

"If it rains and blows then instinctively they hold the umbrella toward the wind to keep the umbrella from being blown inside out as well as to protect themselves from the rain. This is proper. But when the rain is coming down straight they carry their umbrellas in all sorts of ways, in which they reveal more or less of their personal characteristics."

"Here, for instance, is a man who carries his umbrella held in his right hand with the hand straight in front of and in line with his elbow and upper arm, this being the easiest way to carry it. Held in this manner the umbrella really shelters completely only his head and the right side of his body. The rain drips from it on his left shoulder and down his left side. He is either lazy or thoughtless. He is probably both."

"Again we may meet a man carrying an umbrella at the cost of considerable effort around in front of the center line of his body, which is correct as to that position, but carrying it there too far forward, with the result that while he keeps perfectly dry on his face side, yet more or less water drips down his back—a man snicky and particular about the front he presents, about appearances, but not so mindful of the substance."

"And then we meet the man who carries his umbrella with fore arm straight in line with his elbow, for the greater ease of that position of the arm, but with the hand slightly turned so as to make the umbrella more completely cover him or with that end in view, which end, however, it does not accomplish, for with the umbrella top tilted it does not cover so large an area as it does when carried in a horizontal plane. This is a man who is lazy, but trying by that twist of the hand to get something for nothing or without much effort."

"And then we may occasionally meet a man who is carrying his umbrella in the best possible position for the purposes of the best possible protection to be gained from it, this being square in front of him, with the umbrella handle all but touching the center of the front edge of the rim of his hat, carried so as to protect him as far as may be both back and front, while he carries the umbrella as low down as can be without touching his hat on top, thus giving himself also protection as far as possible down around toward his feet. And here we find a man who knows intelligently what can be done with the means at his command and who is willing to put forth the effort required to bring those means to their utmost efficiency."—New York Sun.

His Son's West Side.

"How are you, Mr. Smith? How is that son of yours making it with his new motor bicycle?"

"Oh, he had quite a tumble the other day," replied Mr. Smith. "He was speeding at about forty miles an hour along a rough macadam road when all of a sudden the darn machine stopped stone still, but my son kept on going from the momentum and slid along the road for about fifty feet before he could stop himself."

"You don't say! Did it hurt your son?"

"No, it didn't hurt him to speak of, but he tore the west side of his pants."

"Tore the what?"

"Tore the west side of his pants."

"Well, in the name of whizzing wheels, what side of your son's pants is the west side?"

"Why, the side the son sets on."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Work Fit For Sunday.

A stickler for the good old ways, which we all admit to be the best, dropped in from church to see a young woman who was a writer. To the great surprise and horror of the dear old lady, the writer was at work. The cheery click-click of the typewriter sounded from her den.

"Oh, my dear girl," exclaimed the shocked caller, "you have not so far forgotten your early training as to be composing on Sunday?"

"Oh, my dear, only jokes—and they are all jokes on religious subjects."

Reason Enough.

Even a lunatic may not wholly lack the power of reason. This truth appears in a story Life tells of the inspection of an asylum by the trustees:

Walking through the grounds, they came upon a party of workmen who were repairing a wall. One of the harmless patients, apparently assisting in the work, was pushing a wheelbarrow along upside down.

"My friend," said a kind hearted trustee, "you should turn your wheelbarrow over."

"Not on your life!" replied the patient. "I turned it over yesterday, and they put bricks in it!"

Nursery Rhymes.

The old merry rhyme "Girls and boys come out to play" is said to date back to the time of Charles II., in whose reign "Lucy Locket lost her pocket" is supposed to have had its origin. "Sing a song of sixpence" is traced back to the sixteenth century. "Pussy cat, pussy cat, where have you been?" is of the Elizabethan period. "Little Jack Horner" is probably as old, and "London bridge is broken down" is of unknown antiquity.

SAMUEL WARREN.

Vanity of the Creator of Tittlebat Tittlemouse and Oily Gaminon.

Nothing can be more diverting than the revelation in their correspondence of the characteristics of authors. Samuel Warren, who attained immense popularity by his "Ten Thousand a Year," which appeared first in Maga, is delightfully naive sometimes and describes himself in a letter dated 1843 as "an honorable and fearless rival of Dickens," then at the height of his popularity. He offers to review Dickens' "American Notes" and sketches out his line of criticism:

"There is palpable genius, subtle and vivid perception, exquisite felicity of illustration and feeling and natural circumstances, real humor, mannerism, exaggeration, glaring but unconscious egotism and vanity, glimpses of underbreeding. These last I should touch on in a manly and delicate and generous spirit. Rely on Sam Warren. Dickens seems to have been incapable and indisposed to look beyond the surface of American manners and society. Oh, what a book I could have written! I mean I who have not only observed but reflected so much on the characters of the people of England and America."

Poor Sam Warren! It seems almost unhandsome to show up his little weaknesses, seeing that "Ten Thousand a Year" is nearly forgotten and Dickens is still Dickens. His talents never dazzled his publishers, but he was fiercely intolerant of criticism or editor's interference. "I hate his beastly names," wrote Alexander Blackwood to his brother, referring to the trick Warren had of naming his characters in allusion either to their originals or to their imaginary qualities—Lord Bulfinch (Lord Russell), O'Gibbet (O'Connell), Rev. Morphine Velvet (fashionable preacher), and so on, but he refrained from telling the author so. Warren's own portrait is given in a single sentence by the Rev. James White, a frequent and entertaining correspondent of the Blackwoods from the Isle of Wight. "Warren was in the island for a week and dined here one day. Oh, Tittlebat! 'Himself the wondrous hero of his song.'"—English Magazine.

Helping Out Cabby.

A cabman once drove a lady and her little girl from Euston to Charing Cross.

On the way a particle of dust entered the eye of the driver, causing him considerable annoyance.

On arriving at their destination the lady gave the cabby just the bare fare, and then, this being the first opportunity the cabman had, he took out his handkerchief and attempted to extract the cause of his pain.

The little girl, perceiving this, spoke a few words to her mother and then ran back to the jehu, saying:

"Please, cabby, mother says you are not to cry. Here is another sixpence."—London Tit-Bits.

Grieg the Conductor.

As a conductor of orchestra Grieg, the noted composer, was all fire, and his concentrated energy transfused itself to such an extent into the members of the orchestra that the whole band became merely an incidental part of its leader, who filled the concert hall with his personality. One would think that such intense vital energy would, so to speak, be burned out by its own flame; but, slight and small though he was, Grieg lived for forty-five years with only one lung, and even if he had to husband his strength and sometimes to interrupt a tour of concerts he still infused his fiery soul into orchestras and audiences.—William Peters' "Grieg the Man" in Century.

Reason Enough.

Even a lunatic may not wholly lack the power of reason. This truth appears in a story Life tells of the inspection of an asylum by the trustees:

Walking through the grounds, they came upon a party of workmen who were repairing a wall. One of the harmless patients, apparently assisting in the work, was pushing a wheelbarrow along upside down.

"My friend," said a kind hearted trustee, "you should turn your wheelbarrow over."

"Not on your life!" replied the patient. "I turned it over yesterday, and they put bricks in it!"

Nursery Rhymes.

The old merry rhyme "Girls and boys come out to play" is said to date back to the time of Charles II., in whose reign "Lucy Locket lost her pocket" is supposed to have had its origin. "Sing a song of sixpence" is traced back to the sixteenth century. "Pussy cat, pussy cat, where have you been?" is of the Elizabethan period. "Little Jack Horner" is probably as old, and "London bridge is broken down" is of unknown antiquity.

TO FRIENDS.

Having been away for several months I wish to announce to my friends and patrons of the "empire" of Pitt that I am still connected with the firm of Chas. M. Stieff, and if bachelors are allowed to misuse the happy term home as a synonym for a "hanging out place" I still call Greenville my home, and while I intend to be away from Greenville a great deal of my time during this fall a postal care of box 325, Greenville, will reach me within a day or two. We now have a number of slightly used upright pianos, some of which have been rented during the summer months, others which were temporarily used by artists at the exposition and for orchestra work, at bargain prices.

We also offer a special school piano for $225.00 fully measuring up in standard to any $350.00 instrument. This piano is especially built for college and school work for the special price named above and is full guaranteed by my firm for 10 years. Those interested in a school piano or in a good slightly used piano for the home should write me at once and will profit by it, and as ever I am always mindful of my patrons' protection and interest as well as my firm's interest. Grateful of past patronage. Very respt., G. G. Fineman, Box 325, Greenville, N. C.
