The case of Lewis McLawhorn, charged with murder, was set for Friday.

"UNDER THE LAURELS."

Large Audience Was Well Pleased.

A large audience was in the opera house, Monday night, to witness the presentation of "Under the Laurels" by home talent under the direction of Mrs. H. W. Whedbee. The cast was well selected and the audience expressed approval at the manner in which each part was rendered. As the cast of characters has already been published, we will not mention the performers individually, for each one's part was so good that it would not do to particularize without mention inge very one. It can be said that there is marked talent among Greenville's young people and whatever they undertake is done well. The management and each performer is entitled to full credit for the splendid manner in which this charming drama was presented.

Between the acts there were vocal solos by Misses Olive Gaston and Mary Matthews, with Miss Lottie White accompanist. These were so much enjoyed that each responded to an encore.

Greenville Third.

That Greenville should rank third in the leaf tobacco markets of the State is cause for congratulation and shows the importance of this market. The State agricultural department's report of sales for five months of this season August 1st to December 31st gives Wilson 11,625,925 pounds, Winston-Salem 8,705,411 pounds, Greenville 8,612,859 pounds.

SENATOR SIMMONS WINS.

Best Yarn of Year His; His "Drag" Killed Him.

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, earned with a single reminiscence told at a banquet the other night, the reputation of having produced the best story of the session. The story has been the talk of the Congressional lobbies ever since. To reproduce it as it was told is impossible, but it is a good story in any guise.

The occasion was Joe Sibley's banquet to the Postmaster General, the postal committees of the two houses, the chief executives of the Postoffice Department, and some newspaper men. The Postmaster General as the guest of honor was the first speaker, and being very full of his subject, he talked shop—told about his interest in parcels post and postal savings banks, and indicated how they were certain to help the country. Postmaster General Myer has suddenly made a real issue of these propositions by forcing them to the front with a vigorous recommendation that they be adopted. Quite incidentally, he had got a lot of statesmen in hot water because, as Senator Dolliver said in a speech late in the evening, "Everybody is either violently for or violently against the Postmaster General's proposals, and one element is threatening to defeat everybody who is for, and the other to destroy everybody who is against the suggestions."

Simmons Called to Speak.

The question of the Postmaster General's influence, with his proposals, had been raised, and Senator Simmons was called on to speak.

"This question of influence reminds me," he said, "that it is just possible to have too much influence. When I was first elected to Congress, some twenty years ago, it was in a black district. I was elected because the colored brothers split. My predecessor had been a colored man. Well, I busied myself getting some things for the district. James City was a town with a solid negro population, and had never had a postoffice. I got a postoffice established there; then I got an appropriation for a public building at Newbern, across the river, and then got $20,000 for a national road from Newbern to the national cemetery near by, which meant employment at good wages for the colored citizens of James City.

"As a result I was very strong with the colored vote, and hoped to be re-elected. The candidate against me was a colored man—and, let me tell you, they are the best politicians alive. That man is one of the best friends I have today.

Seemed to Have Colored Vote.

"Early in the campaign I went to James City and had a great meeting. They were all for me; there didn't seem to be a voice for the other man. It looked as if I was a certain to be elected; Simmons stock was higher than ever before. My opponent didn't have a word to say.

"I never did hear from him till the night before election. Then he held a meeting there—had to hire a band from out of town, because the James City band wouldn't play for him. The meeting opened cold, clammy, and unresponsive. No cheers, no enthusiasm. After a while somebody yelled:

"What's the matter with Simmons?"

"O, Simmons is all right," replied my opponent. "He has a good deal of influence up there at Washington. One fine maw'nin' Mistah Simmons went up to de White House, an' he says to Boss Cleveland." "Good mornin', Boss Cleveland."

"Maw'nin', Mistah Simmons," says Boss Cleveland.

"I want $75,000 for a post-office at James City," says Mistah Simmons.

"All right; go ovah to de Treasury an' get it," says Boss Cleveland.

"Few days latah Mistah Simmons walked up again. "Good maw'nin', Boss Cleveland," he says; "I wants $20,000 for a road to de nat'lal cem'try at my town."

"All right, Mistah Simmons, go right ovah to de Treasury an' get it," replies Boss Cleveland.

To Much Influence.

"O yes," continued the speaker, Mistah Simmons has plenty of infloence up dar at Washington. Say, you niggahs, lemme tell ye something: Dere's such a thing as a man gettin' too much infloence. Some pleasant maw'nin' Mistah Simmons, with his infloence 'll walk up to de White House an' he'll say:

"Maw'nin', Boss Cleveland."

"Maw'nin', Mistah Simmons"

"Mistah Cleveland, I wants you-all to put all dese hyah niggahs back into slavery."

"An' Mistah Cleveland, he'll do it, he will; an' den where'll you niggahs be, I want to ask you-all?"

"An the next day," concluded Senator Simmons, "every vote in James City was cast for the other candidate, and I was retired from Congress."—Washington Times.

AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Husting Town.

Briefly Told

Ayden, N. C. Jan. 14.

Last Friday evening Rev. R. L. Davis addressed a large audience, composed of citizens, in the Missionary Baptist church on the subject of prohibition, and on Sunday night Rev. T. H. King, of LaGrange, delivered an address along the same line. Both gentlemen have been highly complimented and those who favor the question here expressed themselves as very much satisfied with the results.

The recent rains and storm have played havoc with our public roads. In many places the washouts are just impassable, and that coupled with the fact that there is an insufficiency of hands to meet the emergency places our overseers in a serious position. Would that some remedy could be found to meet this much needed demand.

About tomorrow the folks at our house are looking for backbones, spare ribs, chitlings, et cetera, of the hog species, for Pap Dick Garris killed 56 of the four footed tribe yesterday and we are looking for our share with a mouth watering to the extreme.

J. R. Turnage, accompanied by a number of relatives and friends, leaves here tomorrow for Kinston where he will that evening be united in marriage to Miss Eva Mosely.

Governor R. B. Glenn has been invited to deliver an address here on prohibition on the evening of February 2nd.

The family of R. W. Smith left today for Florida to visit relatives.

BANKS ON CASH BASIS.

New York's Weekly Statement Brings Joy to Wall Street.

New York, Jan. 11.—Evidence that New York banks are again on a cash basis was given today in the weekly bank statement, which disclosed that they now hold a surplus above the legal reserve requirements. For five successive weeks since last October, when the money and banking situation became acute, the deficits increased until the record-breaking total of $54,000,000 was reached. The banks reported decreases in the deficit for six weeks, until today a surplus of $6,084,000 was reported.

When the ticker began giving the results of the bank statement and the word "surplus" was used for the first time in three months, a whoop went up in Wall street offices. On the Stock Exchange brokers had information that the bank statement would be an unusually good one, but few thought the deficit would be entirely eliminated. Stocks rose with a buoyancy that has not been equalled before in nearly a year. Gloom which has hung heavy in many brokerage offices disappeared, and only the bears, of whom they are a few left, seemed to dislike the developments of the day.

Several stocks discounted the return to better money conditions by advancing 3 and 4 points. The closing figures were the best of the day, but at that time the full import of the bank statement was not known. After the close it was shown in the bank statement that there had been a gain in cash by the associated banks this week of $18,389,900, an almost unparalleled amount.

Everyone wanted to know where the gain in cash came from, as the known movements of money had indicated a cash gain of about $6,000,000 or $7,000,000. It was explained that the interior institutions which hoarded funds are now sending it back to the reserve centers. In addition, corporations which began to lock up their money in anticipation of January 1, disbursements have made the heavy distributions, and this money is now returning to the channels of trade.

The treasury did not assist the cash gain, as the figures of the bank statement disclosed that public deposits were decreased by $3,000,000 this week. There were important gold arrivals.

The banks now hold a percentage of 25 2/3 of cash reserve to deposits. In the week of November 23, when the deficit of $54,000,000 was reported, the cash represented only 19.99 per cent. of deposits.

Committees at Work.

Dr. Charles Laughinghouse and Messrs J. F. Davenport and Wiley Brown the committee appointed by the chamber of commerce to look into the matter of establishing a line of water transportation to Greenville, went to Washington today to confer with business men of that town. The chamber of commerce will meet next Monday night, 20th, to hear the report of this committee, and also of the committee appointed to investigate the freight rates charged by the two railroads to this point. These are important matters and the business men of the town should give the committees their full support.

OF PERSONAL NATURE.

Those Who Come and Go—Some You Know some know you.

Mrs. W. H. Renfrew went to Rocky Mount this morning.

W. B. Wilson, Jr., left Monday evening for Hendersonville to attend the Staton-Waldrop marriage.

THE BORING WASP.

This Insect Will Eat Its Way Through Thick Lead Walls.

In the Vienna mint the leaden walls of a reservoir containing sulphuric acid, although forty-three millimeters, or about one and seven-tenths inches, thick, were eaten through by an insect. The leaden gas pipe in a cafe was also damaged in like manner. Such damage is due to a sort of wood wasp, of which there are many sorts in central Europe. The largest of these, the black and yellow giant wood wasp, resembles the true wasp. On the underside of the elongated belly the female has a very hard boring device, about nineteen millimeters (three-fourths inch) long, black and fluted, which lies in its sheath. Ordinarily this borer is directed backward, but when in use it is turned about its base, so as to make a considerable angle with the axis of the body, and is used like a rat tail file until it makes a hole about eighteen millimeters (seven-tenths of an inch) deep in the wood which it usually chooses to perforate.

The egg which the female lays in the wood develops into a caterpillar-like creature with six short legs and without eyes. With its sharp, hard jaws it bites in the trunk of the tree tubular channels, which increase in diameter as it grows larger. It swallows the wood which it gnaws off, digesting the nutritious portions and discharging the rest in a meal-like form. For two years it eats its way forward in this manner. In the third year the insect creeps out, biting with its jaws through the thin wall which separates it from the outer world, leaving the home of its childhood to enter upon a short life in freedom.

If a tree trunk which has been perforated by such a wasp and in which an egg has been laid be employed when insufficiently seasoned for building purposes it may happen that some day the insect, which has been two years working its way through the piece, will suddenly appear in the building. If a piece of such timber which contains a larva is surrounded by a leaden plate the insect will not stop at this, but will bite its way through just as though it were of wood.

Almost more wonderful are the performances of the boring cricket. Although this is a dwarf compared with the wasp, it has been able in Rechele to gnaw through the leaden roof of a building and to make holes fourteen millimeters (fifty-five hundredths inch) deep and four millimeters (sixteen-hundredths inch) in diameter in printers' stereotype plates despite the fact that by reason of the antimony in such plates they are much harder than lead.—Chicago News.

The Greater Attraction.

A well known baritone, who very much resented being accompanied indifferently, completely lost his temper at rehearsal and threatened the instrumentalist that if he played in the same way at the public performance he would jump on the keyboard and smash it.

"Ach," said the pianist, in nowise disturbed, "dat is a goot idea! If you bromise to do it I vill advertise it, and I am sure more people vill kom to see you shump as vill kom to hear you sing!" — Pearson's Weekly.

The Taft boom gives Fairbanks a frozen stare.

A week from today, 21st, the extra session of the legislature will convene. Then all eyes will be turned toward Raleigh.

The New Bern Sun is of the opinion that we will have another summer. It advises that fishing tackle be fixed now and have it ready.

The Pacific fleet in command of Admiral Evans has arrived at Rio Janeiro in Brazil. The Americans were given a great welcome there.

Pitt county has not experienced the value of good roads, but has had several lessons in the cost of bad ones. Some of these days the county may get out of the ruts.

The chamber of commerce committee is right down after the matter of establishing boat transportation on the river. That is the way to bring things to pass, go after them with a determination to succeed. Such transportation will result in large saving of freights to shippers.

Two things The Reflector would like to see the extra session of the legislature settle quickly and permanently, are the passenger rate matter and State prohibition.

Both of these questions ought to be kept out of the next campaign and let the State settle down to business and material progress.

The immense damage done to roads by the heavy rain Saturday night, will put a cost of several thousand dollars upon the tax payers of the county, to say nothing of the inconvenience and loss arising from travel over the bad roads. If the roads were macadamized such damage would not arise from heavy rains.

The late financial panic is being talked over time, and there is no need for it. Confidence cannot be restored until the people quit talking scarcity of money and predicting hard times. Such talk only has the tendency to make those who have money hold the harder to it. If you will read the article published elsewhere about the recent statement of New York banks, you will see that the continued panic talk is groundless. People are too easily frightened. What is needed is to quit the talk and let money and business resume its activity. Do not make times hard when there is no need for it.

Better a spoiled child than a fresh man.

Some men were born small and some others shrink.

WHO'S WHO AND WHY

Who made the best crop in Pitt County during the year 1907

EVERYBODY admits that this has been a bad crop year and as a whole it has been, but some planters had bounteous yields in return for their labours.

Why because they used Cotton Seed Meal as a Fertilizer.

DR. BONSTEL of the Bureau of Soils of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in his address to the planters of Pitt county strongly advised its use, stating that as a fertilizer stable manure was the best adapted to our soil and the next best was cotton seed meal.

WINTERVILLE MEAL IS THE BEST OF THE "NEXT BEST"

IF you did not use it last year inquire of someone who did and you will try it in 1908.

WE will buy your cotton seed and sell you meal at reasonable prices, or we will exchange Meal for Seed on a liberal basis delivering the meal at any railroad station in the county.

SACKS furnished to seed shippers upon request.

WRITE or telephone us at once how many seed you have, what station you can ship from and whether you wish to sell for cash or exchange for meal. All enquiries will have prompt attention

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn hony crochets back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.
In Germany—a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, I uniformly cure all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. FLORAL SUPERSTITIONS.

Country Beliefs About the Mints.
Flowers and Luck.
 There is nothing which grows around which there is more superstition woven than the homely mints. Not only is mint the crowning enticement of a julep and a thing which makes sedate tabbies gambol and roll like six-month-old kittens; but, according to tradition, the different mints have supernatural properties, and there are good and bad mints. Pennyroyal, aside from its qualification as a flea discourager, is said to make a quarrelsome husband and wife stop bickering if it is given to them by some friend. Catnip, on the other hand, when chewed creates quarrelsomeness and is said to make even mild and gentle people fierce. If catnip is held in the hand until heated and then put into the hand of another, it will, so goes the superstition, so control that person that he or she cannot leave you so long as the catnip is retained in the hand.
 Spearmint will prevent illness so long as it is worn about the wrist. If spearmint is mixed with salt and applied to the bite of a mad dog, the wound will heal, it is said. In the olden days the children used to put a bit of spearmint in the coats on Christmas day, believing that at the exact time when the Saviour was born the mint would blossom.
 The superstitions which cluster around flowers are as many as there are different flowers. It is considered unlucky to gather flowers out of season, as before and after the season they are said to belong to the fairies. The first wild flowers which are gathered by a young woman in the spring should spell the initials of her future husband, if the superstition holds true.
 Here is a schedule of superstitions about finding the first flower of the season:
 If found on Monday, good luck all the year.
 If found on Tuesday, large undertakings, which will be successful.
 If found on Wednesday, a wedding in the family.
 If found on Thursday, hard work with little profit.
 If found on Friday, unexpected wealth.
 If found on Saturday, misfortunes.
 If found on Sunday, best luck of all.—New York Tribune.
Compensation.
 When Wilson Hobart married Hetty Lewis there were many people who predicted domestic troubles, even tragedies, but they were mistaken. The Hobarts were to all appearances an unusually happy couple.
 "I reckon Hetty must have learned to keep her temper better than she used to," remarked one person to whom this state of affairs was inexplicable. "You don't look a bit older than the day you were married, Wilson."
 "I don't know as she has," said Mr. Hobart, with his slow smile. "I tell her I guess she's got enough on hand to last her. She needn't save any to accommodate me. And I can tell you," he added, with enthusiasm, "it would take more than my temper ever I saw to sour Hetty's bread or her cream pies."—Youth's Companion.
Inches of Time.
 Beware of losing or wasting inches of time. They are the little foxes that run away with many days. So much can be done in them and with them, often the very things for which we sigh hopelessly. Fill them, every one. Keep something handy—something that fits the interval. Remember a famous lawbook was written because a lord chancellor chose not to be idle throughout the fifteen minutes his wife made him wait each day for dinner. Recall, too, all the men, noble and eminent, who have climbed to the heights by saving inches of time. All of us cannot hope to become likewise eminent, but we can reasonably and easily make ourselves happy with things wrought in the fragmentary moments which we might unthinkingly leave vacant.—Delineator.
A Moving Appeal.
 He was a motherless boy and his father's only child, but some of the relatives had decided that he should be sent to a boys' school fifty miles from home, and at last the father had agreed to the plan.
 Forty-eight hours after his boy's departure the father received a letter, which was, although not faultless as an example of spelling, so much to the point and so in accord with his own feelings that the plans for the future were speedily readjusted.
 "Dear father," wrote the exile, "it's all right here, and I'm not homesick, I believe, but life is very short, and don't you think you'd better let us spend some more of it together? Your affectionate son, Thomas."
Benjamin West.
How the Great Painter Brought About a Revolution in Art.
 Before the days of Reynolds, Gainsborough and Constable English artists did not expect any one to pay such prices for their pictures as for those of foreigners or even to buy anything but a portrait. "What could I do with it?" an English connoisseur is said to have replied to a gentleman who had asked him why he did not purchase a historical picture he greatly admired. "You surely would not have me hang up a modern English picture in my house unless it was a portrait!"
 The cause of this low estimate of English art may be seen in the facts mentioned by Mrs. Bell in her "Life and Works of Thomas Gainsborough." She says that the first attempt made in England to represent a modern historical event exactly as it occurred was made by Benjamin West in his famous picture of the "Death of Wolfe," exhibited in 1771.
 Such was then the rage for mythological subjects that when it was rumored that West was painting a picture in which the actors were represented in modern costume George III., the archbishop of Canterbury and members of the Royal academy declared that they would have nothing to do with the bold innovator.
 Sir Joshua Reynolds and the archbishop visited West in his studio to urge him to clothe English and French soldiers in the costume of antiquity. West refused, saying that the event to be commemorated happened in the year 1758 in a region unknown to the Greeks and Romans and when no warriors who wore classical costume existed. His visitors went away, but returned when the picture was finished.
 Reynolds seated himself before the picture, examined it for half an hour and then, rising, said to the archbishop: "West has conquered. He has treated the subject as it ought to be treated. I retract my objections. I foresee that this picture will not only become popular, but will occasion a revolution in art."
 The picture turned the tide against the classicism which had prevented the English artists from producing original pictures.
 Even portrait painters, except Gainsborough alone, represented their sitters as Psyches and Cupids, Dianas and Junos, the Graces and the Fates. One artist painted the portraits of a lady and daughter as "Virtue and Beauty Sacrificing to Diana."
Two Irishmen were discussing political economy. "The problem of political economy," said Casey, "so I was reading in one of them books, is the distribution of wealth. That means, Grady, how are we going to compel the rich to give back the money that they have stolen from the poor?" "Ye may be right," said Grady, "but there is wan other thing about yer problem, Casey, that I can't figger out. It is this: How the divvle did the poor iver manage to git all the money that ye say the rich stole from them?"—Buffalo Commercial.
A Dry Land Fish.
 The periepathalmus, one of the most remarkable of the several species of dry land fish catalogued by the naturalists, is a native of Mauritius. He is only four or five inches long, but has a big head, very prominent eyes and side fins which bear a strong resemblance to legs. They have the curious habit of leaving the water in the evening and spending the entire night hunting the nocturnal insects which inhabit the muddy flats near tidewater. A similar species of New Zealand are called "running fishes" by the natives.
 A correspondent of a London paper asserts that no fatal results may be feared from yellow fever if the person attacked, as soon as the symptoms appear, takes a tumblerful of olive oil with the juice of a lime squeezed into it. This dose should be repeated till vomiting and purging ensue.
 "This is infallible in checking the virulence of the complaint," says the letter writer, "and a speedy convalescence invariably follows. I have not only proved its efficiency personally, but have witnessed its complete success in dozens of cases both in Cuba and South America."
The Chief Trouble.
 "It is a sad fact," said the statistician, "that the ordinary waste of food in an English middle class family would be sufficient to maintain wholly a French family of similar station."
 "True," said the epicure. "And it is also a gratifying fact that the average French family couldn't be hired to eat it after it had been cooked by the average English middle class family, so that, after all, it is not wasted so far as France is concerned."—Harper's Weekly.

What About Christmas?

With the compliments of the season to all our readers we ask you the question of the hour

WHAT ABOUT CHRISTMAS

The children are asking it with wondering and hopeful expectations of what Santa Claus is likely to bring them.

The older people are asking it, not so much in speculation regarding the remences that Christmas will bring to them, but rather as an inquiry as to how they are to provide suitable and satisfactory presents for relatives and friends without too heavy a drain upon their time and purse.

May we help you to solve the problem and put you in the way of doing your Christmas shopping with pleasure satisfaction and economy?

We offer the advantage of selection that can only be found in a very extensive showing of first class goods. We take pleasure in pleasing customers and will do all in our power to help you to just the right article at the right price, so that you may leave our store glad that you came, and perfectly satisfied with your purchases in every respect.

We extend to all a cordial invitation to call and see our line of

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lunghealing mountainous shrub, furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's cough cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the Doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb". Always demand Dr. Shoop's cough cure. Bryans Drug Store.

MAYBE you'll realize the business value of being well dressed; everybody doesn't. It grows of out the fact that people have to judge your ability and standing by the way you look, until you give them something else to judge by.

That Means that we are in a position to increase the business value of every man in this town; we've got Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothes for you; and if you live up to your looks in these clothes, you'll be a sure success in Business.
