

"Boost the Booster!"

That's the official slogan of a certain town in Arkansas which through boosting itself and boosting its boosters has doubled its population since the 1900 census.

BOOST THE BOOSTER!
The Arkansas town had been quarreling among itself for years, and standing still. It had boosters, but it had others who refused to boost the boosters, refused to stand by them and yell, "Good boy—keep it up!"

BOOST THE BOOSTER!
Finally the town got together with itself, organized a "Boost the Booster Club" and began to boom. Now its principal thoroughfare, which was a stretch of mud, is a stretch of asphalt, and it has new buildings to match. Now everybody boosts the booster and booms the boom.

BOOST THE BOOSTER!
This town might take a hint from that one. We have our town boosters—every town has some. But sometimes they get discouraged because of opposition right here in our midst.

BOOST THE BOOSTER!
Cut out the criticism!
Quit the queering!
Boom the Boom!
Then watch the old town perk up and plunge forward. You can see it move.

WHEN YOU BOOST THE BOOSTER YOU BOOM THE BOOM.

A DREAMING MATCH.

The Indian Did Pretty Well, but the White Man Did Better.

Among the famous Indian traders of the past was George Galphin, whose trading station at Silver Bluff, S. C., was frequented by Indians from far and near. In "Bench and Bar of South Carolina" a characteristic anecdote is related of Mr. Galphin and an Indian chief.

Chief Mogoloch from beyond the Savannah river spent the night at Mr. Galphin's. In the morning the Indian said, "Me dream last night." "Ah!" said Galphin. "What did my red brother dream?" "Me dream you give me fine big rifle," in Galphin's possession at the time.

The trader instantly passed the rifle to the chief, saying, "If you dreamed it, you must have it."

Next morning Galphin said to the chief, "I dreamed last night."

"What you dream?" asked Mogoloch.

"I dreamed you gave me the Chickasaw stallion," which the chief was then riding.

"If you dream um, you must have um," said the chief, and the horse was straightway transferred to the trader.

The next morning the Indian remarked, "I dream last night."

"What did my red brother dream?" was the inquiry.

"I dream," answered Mogoloch, "you gave me red coat you wear and much calico."

"If you dreamed it, you must have it," said Galphin, and the Indian received the red coat and calico.

Next morning it was Galphin's turn. He said to the chief, "I dreamed last night."

"What you dream?" was Mogoloch's inquiry.

"I dreamed," replied Galphin, "you gave me ten miles of land around the Ogeechee old town."

"Wugh!" said the Indian. "If you dream, you must have um, but I dream with you no more."

The Impossible Truth.

In one of Silas Hocking's novels there is an irresistible scene which some of the critics condemned as too absurdly impossible. A farmer and his pretty but strong minded wife arrive for service, put up their horse and cart at the village inn, then take their places in the pew, bringing in their whip with them. During the sermon the farmer, rendered drowsy by the heat and the after effects of a heavy week's work, nods and finally falls asleep. His wife quietly reaches out for the whip in the corner of the pew, picks it up and gives him a regular dealer's cut across the ear with the lash, with a supremely funny tableau for sequel. That was what the critics declared to be an impossible situation. As a fact, the present writer heard the whole story from Mr. Hocking's lips. It actually happened before his eyes, and he was the preacher. The heroine of the story is still alive on her farm near Boston, Lincolnshire.—St. James' Gazette.

Old French Dial Ring.

"A dial ring," said the curio dealer—"a French dial ring of the eighteenth century. You can tell the time with it."

The ring, of gold, was beautifully chased, and where the stone sparkles usually there was set a tiny sundial.

"All you have to do," said the dealer, "is to stand in the right way, holding the dial so that the sun strikes it, and a tiny shadow will tell you the hour. Such a ring," he concluded, "is more a curio than an accurate timepiece. It is only good in the locality it is made for, and even there, unless it is set toward the right point of the compass, it will be several hours out of the way."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Unobliging Moon.

As illustrating the care with which preparations should be made for night marches, Brigadier General Sir Henry Rawlinson, speaking at the Royal United Service institution, said they should always consult an almanac and not be "sold," as on one occasion in South Africa, when the force was directed to march at 9:30 p. m., when the moon rose. The army waited in vain for the moon to rise, and some considerable delay and confusion occurred when it was discovered that on that particular night there was a total eclipse.—London Mail.

Only One End.

A young couple had been married by a Quaker, and after the ceremony he remarked to the husband: "Friend, thou art at the end of thy troubles."

A few weeks after the man came to the good minister boiling with rage, having found his wife to be a regular vixen, and said:

"I thought you told me I was at the end of my troubles?" "So I did, friend, but I did not say which end," replied the Quaker.

PTOMAINE POISONING.

Treatment to Give While Waiting For the Physician.

Food poisoning is uncommon if we consider the number of persons who eat more or less heartily from two to four times a day. Yet it occurs with more frequency than is ordinarily supposed, the symptoms in the majority of cases being very slight and the poison being thrown off by a single attack of vomiting or a slight diarrhea.

Even in cases of severe and widespread poisoning, such as are mentioned occasionally in the papers as occurring at picnics or church festivals from the eating of sandwiches or ice cream, the number of fatal cases is small.

The greatest mortality is from mussel and mushroom poisoning and also from sausage poisoning, the number of fatal cases in epidemics of this sort being sometimes as high as 30 per cent.

The first thing to do in case of food poisoning, if seen early enough, is to get rid of the offending material. Vomiting may be induced, if it has not already occurred through nature's effort to cure, by a drink of mustard and water or tepid salt and water or by tickling the back of the throat with a feather or a rod of paper.

As soon as the stomach has been emptied, or immediately if the patient is not seen until some time after the meal of poisonous material, the bowels should be moved by salts and by an enema. If diarrhea is present and excessive a single dose of salts may be given and after that remedies tending to quiet the action of the bowels.

No food should be given, but the patient may be allowed plenty of water, and at the same time free perspiration is induced by hot bottles or hot bricks in the bed, in which he lies covered with several blankets. In short, the treatment is directed to the removal from the system as rapidly as possible of the poisonous matters.

Of course these directions for treatment are for the guidance of the family of the sufferer while waiting for the physician, for so serious a condition as food poisoning calls for the doctor's care just as soon as it can be secured.

Collapse is to be treated by warmth, by rubbing of the extremities and by stimulation. Very strong black coffee, as hot as it can be drunk, is an excellent stimulant of the heart in these cases, and one or two small cups may render great service.—Youth's Companion.

Waiters' Tips in Paris.

The old familiar problem of how much to tip the waiter at a restaurant has puzzled most people at one time or another, so possibly the following system of reckoning the amount, which is practiced by a good many experienced Parisians, may be found useful.

The principle is to reckon a penny a head for each person in the party plus a penny for every shilling in the bill. Of course if the party dines very economically the waiter will not come off very well. But it is found in Paris that a tip calculated on this basis works out very well in the majority of cases.

For dinner in a private room the same scale holds good, except that twopence per head is paid for each member of the party. The extra length of the bill in this case insures the waiter his additional pour boire.—London Modern Society.

Stronger Than His Oath.

They were cross examining in a Chicago court a bookmaker who had been caught in the toils for playing some other game than his own. The third subassistant district attorney was intent upon a conviction, however, and was doing his best, none too successfully, to shake the testimony of the defendant.

"You're sure of that?" he yelled as the bookmaker stuck to an assertion that did not suit the case of the state.

"Sure! I am certain," came the answer.

"You remember that you are under oath?"

"I do that."

"And you'd swear to this statement of yours?"

"Swear to it? Why, Mr. Lawyer and judge, your honor, I'd bet a hundred on it any day."—Saturday Evening Post.

A Whistler Snub.

Walter Crane gives a characteristic anecdote of Whistler, the painter. The "Butterfly," as Whistler was called, was not inclined to be cordial when, disguised as a Spanish cavalier in black, with a big sombrero, at a fancy dress ball he found himself alongside of Mr. Crane as Cimabue, all in white. Crane says, "I had met him previously at one of his own private views and said to him by way of greeting that I thought I had had the pleasure of meeting him before, but he only said dryly, 'Very likely,' and we didn't get any further."

The finest coffee Substitute ever made, has recently been produced by Dr. Shoop, of Racine, Wis. You don't have to boil it twenty or thirty minutes. "Made in a minute" says the doctor. "Health coffee" is really the closest coffee imitation ever yet produced. Not a grain of real coffee in it either. Health coffee imitation is made from pure toasted cereals or grains, with malt, nuts, etc. Really it would fool an expert—were he to unknowingly drink it for coffee. F. E. Hooker & Co.

TO MY FRIENDS.

Having been away for several months I wish to announce to my friends and patrons of the "empire" of Pitt that I am still connected with the firm of Chas. M. Steiff, and if bachelors are allowed to misuse the happy term home as a synonym for a "hanging out place" I still call Greenville my home, and while I intend to be away from Greenville a great deal of my time during this fall a postal care of box 325, Greenville, will reach me within a day or two. We now have a number of slightly used upright pianos, some of which have been rented during the summer months, others which were temporarily used by artists at the exposition and for orchestra work, at bargain prices.

We also offer a special school piano for $225.00 fully measuring up in standard to any $350.00 instrument. This piano is especially built for college and school work for the special price named above and is full guaranteed by my firm for 10 years. Those interested in a school piano or in a good slightly used piano for the home should write me at once and will profit by it, and as ever I am always mindful of my patrons' protection and interest as well as my firm's interest. Grateful of past patronage. Very respectfully,
G. G. Fineman,
Box 325 Greenville, N. C.

TO MY PATRONS

Ladies and gentlemen, I wish to announce that I am now situated in new quarters, and am prepared to accommodate my customers with more neatness, and promptness, than heretofore being in a more convenient place and having better light. What About Christmas?

With the compliments of the season to all our readers we ask you the question of the hour

WHAT ABOUT CHRISTMAS

The children are asking it with wondering and hopeful expectations of what Santa Claus is likely to bring them.

The older people are asking it, not so much in speculation regarding the rememces that Christmas will bring to them, but rather as an inquiry as to how they are to provide suitable and satisfactory presents for relatives and friends without too heavy a drain upon their time and purse.

May we help you to solve the problem and put you in the way of doing your Christmas shopping with pleasure satisfaction and economy?

We offer the advantage of selection that can only be found in a very extensive showing of first class goods. We take pleasure in pleasing customers and will do all in our power to help you to just the right article at the right price, so that you may leave our store glad that you came, and perfectly satisfied with your purchases in every respect.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The wholesome green leaves and tender stems of a lunghealing mountainous shrub, furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's cough cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform, nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The Spaniards call this shrub which the Doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb". Always demand Dr. Shoop's cough cure. Bryans Drug Store.
