EX-GOV. JARVIS ON PROHIBITION.

EARNEST APPEAL TO CITIZENS OF THE STATE.

Bar Room as Compared With School Room—A Strong Argument For Prohibition Law.

There is an eternal conflict between the schoolroom and the barroom. The schoolroom makes men, the barroom destroys them. The schoolroom takes the child and trains him to a useful life. The barroom takes the boy and trains him to a life of wrong doing. The schoolroom fills the home with bright, happy boys and girls. The barroom fills it with ignorant, aimless, inmates. The school-house fills the pulpit with educated, eloquent ministers of the Gospel and the pews with godly men and women. The still house fills the jails and the penitentiaries with criminals and murderers. The schoolroom sends men to the legislature, to the bench and the executive office. The barroom sends them to the scaffold and to hell. The school room gives to the community an intelligent, thrifty, enterprising, refined manhood and womanhood. The barroom gives to it thriftless lawless, ignorant, worthless citizenship. The schoolroom carries light and knowledge into the home and the community. The barroom carries darkness and sorrow and death into the home and the community. The schoolroom leads to higher and better things. The barroom leads to lower and baser things. The schoolroom stands for the good, the barroom for the bad.

The people that multiply and replenish the schoolrooms and destroy the barrooms are building for their posterity a future that will grow brighter and greater as they continue to multiply and replenish the schoolroom and utterly destroy the last trail of the barroom. The people of North Carolina have made wonderful strides in the last few years in multiplying the schoolrooms and in destroying the barrooms, but the final conflict is just before them. On the 26th of May, 1908, the final battle is to be fought. Shall the schoolroom or the barroom triumph? On that day every citizen must stand with the schoolroom or the barroom. He must stand for the work of the schoolroom or the work of the barroom. There is no middle ground.

The election is to be a State election and the issue involved appeals to every citizen in every section. The cry of the State is a strong great, noble citizenship from the friends of the schoolroom, from those who would give to the State as strong, great noble citizenship for protection from the curse of drunkenness. This cry should be heard and answered by every lover of his fellow men, no matter where his home may be.

While North Carolina is divided into counties and towns and townships, yet these all make the State. The good of every section should be the aim of every citizen. If the people of any county, city or town have rid themselves of the curse of the whiskey traffic and have found peace and profit in it they should be at the ballot box on the day of election and vote to confer a similar blessing upon their fellow citizens in every other section.

The time was when the different sections of the State were separated from each other by long distance and time. To go from one extreme to the other was a long, tiresome journey, and but few attempted it. Now it is easy and enjoyable, and the men of the east and the men of the west often meet and shake hands. The time was when it took a long time to get the news from Currituck to Cherokee, from Wilmington to Asheville. Now the citizen of these once remote communities can converse with each other as if they lived by the side of each other. The railroad, the telegraph and the telephone have annihilated space and time, and made us one people in all our aspirations, plans and purposes, to become a great people and great State. The people of one county cannot be indifferent to the welfare of the people in another county. Hence, I can confidently appeal to the friends of the schoolroom and the enemies of the barroom in every section of the State to be at the ballot box on the 26th day of May, and vote "against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in North Carolina. I use the term barroom to represent every means for the sale and traffic in liquor and I earnestly appeal to the people to put an end to this traffic no matter under what name or guise it may be carried on.

A favorite argument with those who want to stand with the barroom, but who try to give some excuse for doing so is that prohibition does not prohibit. Oh, they say, if prohibition really prohibited they would vote for it. This argument is not sincere. Those who use it do so because they are ashamed to stand for the barroom with all its horrors and evils without some cloak to hide behind. If they are sincere why do they not say the same about other prohibition laws? We have had a law against stealing which have been on our statute books for ages and yet some men steal. Our statutes are full of prohibition laws, which are violated by some one almost every day. Do we hear those men say these do not prohibit and therefore let them be repealed? Nay, verily. It is only when it is proposed to prohibit by law something of the wreck and ruin produced by the sale of whiskey that we hear the cry that prohibition does not prohibit.

I now propose, very briefly, to show that prohibition does prohibit—not absolutely, but largely and beneficially. In the first place I remark that no human law is perfect in its construction or execution. We have to take all law with its human limitations, but the law which prohibits the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor CAN BE MADE as efficient as any other law if the people so will it.

In the next place I remark that we are all more or less creatures of habit. If we have the habit of going to bed at nine o'clock, when nine o'clock comes a sleepy feeling creeps upon us. If we get in the habit of getting up at six o'clock when six o'clock comes we become wakeful. If twelve o'clock be our dinner hour, when noon comes hunger comes with it. Men even contract the dirty, filthy habit of chewing tobacco and when the habit gets a good hold upon them they are never satisfied except when they have a wad of the stuff in their mouth. So with drinking. It is largely a habit. The man who has the habit wants his drink at the usual hour. The man who is free from the habit does not want it. Now anything that tends to get men out of the habit is helpful. As you make it more difficult to get liquor you more and more get men out of the habit of using it. If men can't get it they can't use it, and if they get out of the habit of using it they soon cease to want it. And I submit that prohibition makes it difficult if not impossible, for that very class of men to get whiskey, who can ill afford to waste their hard earnings and scanty means in something that can do them no good. After all, the effectiveness of prohibition, like all other prohibitory laws, depends upon the local authorities. If we have sheriffs and constables and police and magistrates who are in sympathy with blind tigers they will flourish. If these officers are at enmity with the blind tigers and in full sympathy with a rigid enforcement of the law the blind tiger will soon seek other fields for his devilish operations. Hence the necessity for a great big majority for prohibition. Let us make it so large that the officers of the law will know that the people are in earnest and that they mean to see the law enforced. Let us make it so big that the wretch who would engage in the illicit manufacture or sale of liquor will know that there is no hiding place in North Carolina for him, and that, if he would engage in this wicked business, he must go beyond her borders.—Thomas J. Jarvis, News and Observer.

EXPERIMENTS IN OYSTER CULTURE

PROVE PAMLICO SOUND EXCELLENT FIELD.

Bulletin Illustrated With Maps and Plates Issued by the State Geological and Economical Survey

There has recently been issued by the North Carolina Geological and Economic Survey a bulletin giving the results of experiments that have been carried on for the past four years relating to oyster culture in Pamlico sound, North Carolina, by Dr. R. E. Coker. It can be no exaggeration to state that the most urgent problem confronting North Carolina in relation to the development of her fisheries is that of the building up the industry of oyster culture. There are immense areas of bottom in Pamlico sound and the coves and bays tributary to it, that are covered by water of a density suitable for the growth of oysters. In this sand there are areas of natural rocks, many of which yield oysters of most excellent quality. Other large areas, which have practically the same conditions that characterize those of the natural rock, are practically barren of oysters. The experiments have been with the idea in view of determining definitely whether these barren areas could be adapted to the cultivation of the oyster. There were many questions to be taken up and answered such as:

1. Is the character of the bottom of the various parts of the sound favorable to the growth of oysters, for it may be found that the bottom is so soft that it will not support the weight of a shell; or it may be of such consistency as to prevent the oyster from completely "mudding" but still will allow it to settle on the bottom and thus in its growth one dimension will be out of proportion to the other; then again, the bottom may be of sand of such a nature that the action of waves and currents will cause "sanding". The sound does present a wide variety of bottoms, many portions of which are suitable for the planting of oysters, if other conditions are favorable.

2. If shells and oyster are planted on these bottoms, will the tides and currents bring a suitable amount of cultch to be deposited on the shells?

3. Will the water be of the right density and contain a sufficient amount of food for the growth of the oysters?

For the portions of Pamlico sound that have been tested, these questions can be answered satisfactorily, but of course do not answer for the whole of Pamlico sound.

Experimental plants have been made in five or six distinct portions of the sound, as at Harbor Island region including experimental plants on Harbor Island and at Chain Shot shoal; these of Wyesocking bay on the western shore of Pamlico sound; those of Pains bay on the north shore, all these being in the bays and coves but not off-shore in Pamlico sound. A number of plants, however, were made off-shore in Pamlico sound, as those at Cunningham Harbor, Long shoal and Bight of Royal shoal. These plants gave a variety of bottoms as well as a great variety of conditions relating to tides and currents, food, clutch, etc. These plants have been examined and tested for nearly four years and the information and data obtained have been published in the bulletin referred to. The experimental plants have been successful during the four years that these have been made, and to some extent cultivated, and indicate that there are large areas in Pamlico sound that are suitable for the cultivation of the oyster and that it can be cultivated profitably. The methods employed in making the plantings have been described in the greatest detail in order that the results obtained may be profitably used by those who wish to take up the cultivation of the oyster.

It is hoped and expected that this report will be the means of awakening new interest in oyster culture in North Carolina and result in large areas of the bottoms of Pamlico sound being entered for this purpose. It is, however, necessary that the cultivator of the oyster be given an incontestable title to the bottom upon which he wishes to cultivate the oyster. Certain legislation is necessary to insure such a title and it is to be hoped that at the legislature of 1909 such laws can be enacted as will give those who desire to cultivate the oyster and incontestable title to any grant for oyster bottoms that he may wish to take up. Suggestions for such legislation have been made after careful consideration of the conditions existing in North Carolina and it is believed that if a bill is framed embodying these suggestions and passed by the legislature of 1909, that it will result in thousands of acres of oyster bottoms being taken up for the cultivation of the oyster. Such an industry should and would mean many thousands of dollars income to the State, and the oyster industry will not only pay all the expenses of the Oyster Commission but would also bring a considerable revenue into the Treasury of the State.

The bulletin is fully illustrated with maps and plates showing the location of plantings, method of planting, growth of oysters, etc. Copies of this can be obtained by addressing State Geologist, Chapel Hill, N. C. and enclosing 10 cents for postage.

Ayden, N. C., Feb. 18th 1908.

Dr. L. C. Skinner and several other gentlemen from Greenville were here Friday night to attend several different social entertainments.

A little son of George Worthington while visiting out in the country last week, had the misfortune to have a pot of boiling water turned over on his foot and burn it badly but not seriously.

Len Tripp is getting along all right with his broken leg.

Jesse Cannon spent Monday in Greenville.

Miss Ella May and brother, of Greenville, spent Sunday with J. R. Smith.

W. C. Jackson went to Middlesex Monday to spend several days.

Rev. J. T. Davis preached at the Christian church last Sunday.

A letter from Rev. R. H. Jones says that he is pleasantly located at Memphis, Tenn. Mr. Jones spent two years in Ayden and has many warm friends here.

A Red Men lodge was organized here last Friday night, with A. L. Summerill as highest officer.

Rev. Mr. Tripp filled his regular appointment at the Methodist church Sunday. He is a good, plain preacher and is very popular with our people.

A telegram received here from Williamston this morning, states that Mr. E. B. McLawhorn, formerly of Ayden, was assassinated there last night. Mr. McLawhorn had previously received a letter threatening his life, and as he was walking down town last night some one shot him from ambush. He died about 6 o'clock this morning.

DO THE FACULTY OR THE SENIOR CLASS GOVERN A. & M. COLLEGE?

The egotism of Senator Jeff Davis, of Arkansas, pales into insignificance when compared to that expressed in a published statement from the senior class of the A. & M. college regarding the recent hazing there. It seems that they are the boss of the situation, to secretly investigate, try and punish fellow students who have engaged in the commission of crime. After saying the proceedings have been and are to be kept a close secret, the statement adds, "The matter, having been left in our hands, will be dealt with by us alone, and as every man suspected of having been in the hazing crowd will receive justice at our hands, we feel under no obligations to make known either to the faculty or the public any action we may take."

That is a pretty bold flout to make in the faces of the people who pay the taxes to maintain the institution which these seniors are attending. Why they should have entire charge of the situation, supplant the authority of the faculty and usurp the prerogative of the law in administering justice, is beyond the understanding of the tax-payers and more than they should be willing to stand for. It is commendable in the seniors to assist the faculty in suppressing hazing, but when they take all the authority of administering justice, and do so secretly, that is another matter.

Governor Glenn is right in ordering a thorough investigation, and should cause it to be sifted to the bottom. These seniors have no right to shield the perpetrator of such hazing as they themselves declare brutal, by keeping secret all matters pertaining thereto, and if they persist in such a course they should be carried before the grand jury and made to divulge what they know about it.

Some of the papers are saying that two of the recent A. & M. college hazers have been expelled and that others will be similarly dealt with. If that is true why not give the public their names and not have so much secrecy about it?

The man whose wife stuck fire to a roll of $600 he had hid in the store, now wishes he had put it in a bank. But people go right on hiding money in any old place about the house when there are plenty of good banks all around them.

Governor Deneen, of Illinois, wrote a 10,000 word message. That places him in the eligible list for president, as it is only 20,000 words less than Mr. Roosevelt's largest epistle.

There is no question at all about the State going for prohibition, that part of it is certain. But everything should be done to make the majority as large as possible.

The Concord Tribune is calling for boat lines on the streets of that town. Concord must have worse streets than Greenville.

In the special session of the West Virginia legislature the prohibition bill lacked just one vote of passing the senate.

If we are not mistaken it is a point of law that "the man who conceals a crime is as guilty as the one who commits it."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescription from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

At times when you don't feel just right, when you have a bad stomach, take something right away that will assist digestion; not something that will stimulate for a time but something that will positively do the very work that the stomach performs under ordinary and normal conditions, something that will make the food digest. To do this you must take a natural digestant like Kodol For Dyspepsia. Kodol is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids with natural digestants and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. Each dose will digest more than 3,000 grains of good food. It is sure to afford prompt relief; it digests what you eat and is pleasant to take. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

Mary Was Obliging. The Dundee Advertiser tells a story of a country cleric, still on the underside of forty, who was driving home along a road from an outlying hamlet when he overtook a young woman. He recognized her as Mary, the maid of all work at a farm which he would pass on his way to the rectory, so he pulled up and offered her a lift. Mary was nothing loath, and the parson was glad of her company. All the way to the farm gate they chatted pleasantly, as country people do, and when her destination was reached he set her down. Then she thanked him for his kindness and his company. "Don't mention it, Mary; don't mention it," he said politely as he pulled the rug around his knees and gathered up the reins. "No, I won't," answered Mary in an obliging tone, and the young rector went on his way thoughtfully.

Are You a Trust Buster?

Hey—You! Yes, YOU'RE the man we mean. You're always talking about the harm the trusts are doing. The country's going to the demerit bowwows, you say, because of the uncurbed trusts. Rich growing richer, poor getting poorer. Used to be that a poor man could go into business for himself in a modest way and make a good living. Now he must become a clerk or a roustabout or a Kodcarrier for some corporation—some combination that has grown to be a Goliath of bigness, that has devoured the fat of the land and is still gourmandizing upon it, till there's not a scrap of bone left for the under dog.

That's your line of talk. You're still handing it out, and you're proud of it.

Well, now, let's see: Are YOU a trust buster YOURSELF?

Didn't we see you stalk up to the postoffice just now and mail a letter with the address of a city Mail Order Store on the envelope? Hey! Didn't we?

Don't you know that the Mail Order Store is a trust—one of the most dangerous in the crowd? Don't you know that it is secretly and slyly closing the doors of opportunity to the young men in country towns and small cities like ours? Don't you know that the Mail Order Trust is collecting the patronage of town and country people by the mail route, thereby cutting down the patronage of the smaller merchant, the local man who is trying to build up a modest, independent, antitrust business?

Hey? Didn't that ever occur to you? N. B. (which means note well): Why don't you trade at home instead of helping to build up a trust that hurts your home place?

A BLACK EYE.

The Proper Way to Treat This Un-sightly Disfigurement.

A black eye is simply a bruise, a black and blue spot, of the eyelids and the parts underneath the orbit. All these tissues being very loose and spongelike in texture, the blood which escapes beneath the skin in all cases of bruising and constitutes the black and blue, mark spreads very widely and causes great disfigurement.

Sometimes, if the injury has been severe, there will be an escape of blood beneath the membrane covering the eyeball, but the eyeball itself usually escapes serious damage, owing to its elasticity and to the efficient protection afforded by the bony ring forming the edges of the orbit.

A short time after the injury has been received swelling of the parts sets in, the skin is reddened and hot, and there is a feeling of tension, if not more or less actual pain. This is the time to treat the bruise in order to prevent as far as possible the formation of the "black eye."

If nothing is done, the discoloration soon appears, first of a dark reddish purple color and then almost black. Later it fades off with a play of colors, green, blue and yellow, until gradually all traces of the accident disappear.

The first thing to do, and that as soon as possible, is to apply cooling lotions to the part. A good way to do this is to keep two small handkerchiefs in a bowl of ice water and apply them alternately, squeezed dry and folded four ply. As soon as one handkerchief grows warm it should be replaced by the other.

By the end of the first day the cold applications will have done all the good they can, and then handkerchiefs wrung out of very hot water, in which borax or boric acid has been dissolved, should be applied and changed every minute or two. At the same time the discolored part may be stroked gently with the finger for ten or fifteen minutes at a time every two or three hours. This is a tedious process, but it will shorten the sufferer's period of embarrassment by three or four days if persevered in.—Youth's Companion.

An Evasive Answer.

"John," said a clergyman to his factotum, "I shall be very busy this afternoon, and if any one calls I do not wish to be disturbed."

"All right, sir. Will I tell them you're not in?"

"No, John. That would be a lie."

"An' what'll I say, yer reverence?"

"Oh, just put them off with an evasive answer."

At supper time John was asked if any one had called.

"Yes, there did," he said.

"And what did you tell him?" asked the clergyman.

"I gave him an evasive answer."

"How was that?" queried his reverence.

"He asked me was yer reverence in, an' I sez to him, sez I, 'Was your grandmother a hoot owl?'"—London Answers.

Birds That Bury Nuts.

"Birds as well as squirrels bury nuts for winter use," said a Columbus teacher who is an amateur ornithologist. "I have watched jay birds at work in oak trees in the fall very often, laying up stores for winter use. They were as busy as could be taking the nuts and burying them under the leaves on the ground. They seem to have instinct that leads them to find the nuts again. In fact, I have seen a jay bird fly down upon the ground and, throwing the snow aside, uncover and secure a buried apple core."—Columbus Dispatch.

Plunged in the Dark.

An old country gentleman, returning home rather late, discovered a yokel with a lantern under his kitchen window, who when asked his business there stated he had only come a-courting.

"Come a-what?" said the irate gentleman.

"A-courting, sir. I's courting Mary."

"It's a lie! What do you want a lantern for? I never used one when I was a young man."

"No, sir," was the yokel's reply. "I didn't think yer 'ad, judging by the missis."

Gentlemen of the Road.

I am very much afraid that a good deal of the romance which has gathered like a halo round the names of such men as Dick Turpin and Claude Duval and the rest of the knights of the road is to be traced to fertile imaginations and to booksellers on the lookout for sensations. Turpin and some of the others perhaps did a few rather pleasant things in a generous, open handed way, but you couldn't rely on them. After all, they were not in the highwayman business for pleasure.—Fry's Magazine.

CAUTIOUS UNCLE JERRY.

He Would Take No Chances Even For a Goodly Fortune.

A lawyer had traveled all the way from California to pay a $10,000 legacy over to Uncle Jerry Hopefield, who had lived all his life in a little town in Ohio, and after breakfast two or three of us were invited to go along and witness the transfer. When we reached the house, Uncle Jerry was tightening up the hoops on the rain barrel, while his wife had gone to see a sick neighbor. They had been fully identified the day before as the proper parties, and now the lawyer said:

"Well, Uncle Jerry, I want to hand you that money and get a receipt and be off this morning."

"I'm kinder busy just now," said the old man as he stopped hammering for a moment.

"Yes, but I have $10,000 here for you. I don't believe there's a man in the world who wouldn't stop work long enough to sign a receipt for such a fortune."

"Mebbe not, but it looks like rain, and I want to git this bar'l fixed right away. Can't you come over in about an hour?"

"Look here, man, but did you ever see $10,000 in all your life?" asked the lawyer as he opened the satchel and displayed a big package of new greenbacks.

"No, I never did," replied Uncle Jerry as he pounded away.

"Did you ever have $1,000 of your own?"

"Lands, no!"

"Never had a hundred all at once, did you?"

"Never! Durn that hoop, but it don't want to go on!"

"I must ask you to get this business over as soon as possible," continued the lawyer as the old man kept at his work.

"But it's going to rain."

"Yes, but here's your money."

"And I've got to get this bar'l fixed."

"It won't take over ten minutes to fix up our business. Run along and fetch your wife."

"See here," said Uncle Jerry as he laid down his hammer and wiped the back of his neck, "Mariah has gone over to Blodgett's to be gone an hour. Before she went she said I must tinker up this rain bar'l."

"But can't you stop your tinkering to handle $10,000 in cold cash?" exclaimed the lawyer in indignant tones.

"Yes, yes. I kin stop work, but what about Mariah?"

"Well, what about her?"

"Why, she'd come home expectin' this bar'l to be all tinkered up, and if she found it wasn't them $10,000 wouldn't hold her no more'n a tow string would hold a hoss. She'd jest shove me clean down among the cabbages and jump on the bar'l with both feet and squash it all to squash, and fur the next week I'd hev to walk around on tiptoe and eat my meals in the wood shed."—Washington Star.

Worthless Man.

Two women seated together on a Superior avenue car the other day were telling their troubles to each other. "Well," said one in a tone of deep disgust, "your husband can't be any lazier than mine. He stays home all day long and sleeps—just sleeps and sleeps."

"I don't see how he manages to support you at all," sympathized the other woman. "Doesn't he ever work?"

"Oh, yes," admitted the first one; "he works, if you'd call it work. He's a watchman at a factory, but all he has to do there is just to sit around all night with a lantern. Then he comes home and sleeps all day."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wont Him One Better.

Nothing roused the wrath and disdain of the late Congressman Jerry Simpson more than bragging about affluence and luxurious living. One day a rich senator holding forth in that strain remarked unnecessarily: "I was obliged to discharge my second coachman last week. Though he was in many ways an invaluable fellow, he was continually hanging around one of the prettier underhousemaids."

"Ah," said Mr. Simpson gravely, "I can sympathize with you. I have just been obliged to discharge my third groom. He was always loafing in the servants' billiard room."

The Cheerer Alone.

The "official cheerer" stole into her room and quietly locked the door. Then she threw herself upon the bed and abandoned herself to grief unstinted and deep. For a half hour she shook with dry throated sobs, filled with pain, and then when her face was quite spotted with red and her blue eyes were purple rimmed she sat up and smiled that sunshiny smile which was the unfailing cheerer of office and home.

"There, that's over for two months at least," she said as she reached for the cold cream with one hand and for her powder puff with the other.—New York Press.

HISTORY SHORT CUTS.

Three Times Three Brothers on the French Throne.

When I was at school my teacher, who was quite a remarkable historian, called my attention to a somewhat curious coincidence in the history of France, which was of much assistance to me afterward in placing various personages and events, says a writer in St. Nicholas. Perhaps the boys and girls of the present day have already made this discovery, but lest they have not I am going to tell them what my teacher told me.

It is simply this: That since France became a kingdom by itself, under Hugh Capet, three brothers have ruled in succession at three different times, and after each of these groups of royal brothers a family with a new name has come upon the throne.

The first time this trio of brothers occurred was in 1314, when at the death of Philip IV, called "le Bel," his son, Louis X., named by the people "Hutin" on account of his quarrelsome disposition, became king. In two years he was followed by his brother, Philip V., who reigned but six years, and then came the third brother, Charles IV.

These three were the last of the direct Capetian line and were succeeded by the first Valois king, their cousin, Philip VI.

The next group of three brothers ended the reign of the Valois family. They were the sons of Henry II, who died in 1559, and their mother was Queen Catherine de' Medici. The first was Francis II, who was king only a year and who is remembered more because he was the first husband of Mary, queen of Scots, than for any other reason. The second was Charles IX. These two brothers had both been very young, boys of fifteen and ten, when they were made kings. The third, Henry III., had grown up before his turn came, but he was certainly no better than his brothers. He was killed by Jacques Clement, a monk, in 1589, and Henry of Navarre, the first Bourbon king, came to the throne under the title of Henry IV.

The three brothers came again after nearly 200 years, when in 1774 Louis XV. died, leaving three grandsons. The first of these to rule was the unfortunate Louis XVI. You all know of his queen, Marie Antoinette, and how he and his wife were both beheaded, and their poor little son, the dauphin, who would have been Louis XVII. had he come to the throne, died of hard treatment in prison, and the two brothers, who were to be kings later, had to keep away in exile. It was a long time, and they were old men before they were crowned, because France went through many changes, first as a republic and then under the dictatorship, then under Napoleon Bonaparte as first consul and afterward emperor. But the battle of Waterloo was fought, and Napoleon was sent to St. Helena, and the two remaining brothers, first Louis XVIII, and then Charles X., had their short reigns. And so ended the straight line of Bourbons, for after them came Louis Philippe of the house of Orleans, who no longer called himself king of France, but "king of the French."

Cause For Tears.

Dr. Pitcairn, being in a church in Edinburgh where the preacher was not only emphatic, but shed tears copiously, was moved to inquire of a countryman who sat by him what it was all about. "What the devil makes him grieve?" was the inquiry. "Faith," said the man, slowly turning round, "ye had maybe grieved yourself if ye was up there and had as little to say!"—Dundee Advertiser.

Miss McKinney's Mother Dead.

Telegrams received today from Miss Birdie McKinney, one of the graded school teachers who was called to Reidsville last week by the sickness of her parents, state that her mother died this morning and her father is yet seriously ill. The many friends of Miss McKinney in Greenville sympathize with her in her sorrow.

Colored Barber Dead.

Julius Fleming, a well known colored man here, and one of the firm of Edmonds & Fleming, proprietors of the Central Barber Shop, died Monday, after an illness of several months. He was well thought of by both white and colored people.

Last Round for Taxes.

I will make the last visit over the county to collect taxes due for the year 1907 at the following times and places:

TO MY FRIENDS.

Having been away for several months I wish to announce to my friends and patrons of the "empire" of Pitt that I am still connected with the firm of Chas. M. Stieff, and if bachelors are allowed to misuse the happy term home as a synonym for a "hanging out place" I still call Greenville my home, and while I intend to be away from Greenville a great deal of my time during this fall a postal care of box 325, Greenville, will reach me within a day or two. We now have a number of slightly used upright pianos, some of which have been rented during the summer months, others which were temporarily used by artists at the exposition and for orchestra work, at bargain prices.

We also offer a special school piano for $225 00 fully measuring up in standard to any $350 00 instrument. This piano is especially built for college and school work for the special price named above and is full guaranteed by my firm for 10 years. Those interested in a school piano or in a good slightly used piano for the home should write me at once and will profit by it, and as ever I am always mindful of my patrons' protection and interest as well as my firm's interest. Grateful of past patronage. Very respt., G. G. Fineman, Box 325 Greenville, N. C.
