WATERS RICH IN HISTORIC RELICS.

PAMLICO RIVER GIVING UP THE DEAD.

Human Skeletons, Probably of the Aborigines, and Weapons Found Beneath Surface.

The action of the waters of the lower part of Pamlico river, especially on its southern bank in the vicinity of Wades' points, is occasionally turning up many relics or objects of historic interest. Especially is this true in the way of occasionally exhuming human skeletons, undoubtedly of Indian origin, that might probably be traced back to the early days of the first settlement by the whites of this section, or even long anterior to the landing of the first white men on the shores of Hokooken, the original Indian name for the island on which the summer resort Ocracoke now stands. In fact, the banks lining the Tar or Tar, Pamlico and Pungo rivers and the sound are undoubtedly rich in historic and pre-historic remains of the Indians who dwelt thereon. While other sections of the State and country have had their early histories exploited by painstaking investigation and research. Beaufort county and contiguous sections remain as a sealed book to the greater portion of their inhabitants.

In the dredging of the Tar and Pamlico rivers and contiguous waters, intermixed with the debris taken from the beds have been fragments of cannon and other warlike implements that really antedate the wars of the revolution and of 1812. Tradition tells us that in the early days of buccaneering or piracy in the Caribbean sea that the Pirates Kidd and Teach used the waters of Pamlico sound and the estuaries emptying into it as a sort of rendezvous for their operations. In camping on their banks, dividing their spoils and indulging in rest and revelry they found a veritable heaven for their operations. Very probably the fragments of cannon and other weapons represented the armament of rich Spanish galleons which the pirates had captured and destroyed.—Washington Messenger.

A Loss to Journalism.

Crosby Noyes, who for the past half century or more has stood as the masthead of the Washington Star, is dead, and the journalism of America has lost one of its most worthy and valuable patrons.

In the year 1885 Mr. Noyes assumed editorial control of The Star, and the standing that paper gained under his guidance, and its phenomenal success from a business standpoint, are mainly due to his wise and progressive policies.—Charlotte News.

Returns to Greenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mitrack came in Tuesday evening from Girard, Ohio. Mr. Mitrack's host of friends here are glad that he has returned to Greenville and will again engage in the tailoring business here. After a residence of several years here, he left early last spring for a trip to his old home in Europe. Returning to America he located in Girard where he married and has since lived. Now that he is back in Greenville we hope he is here to stay.

Weather.

FAREWELL TO THE HOME STATE.

"The Clansman" is Now Making Last Tour Through North Carolina.

That famous play of the Reconstruction era, "The Clansman," is now making a farewell tour of North and South Carolina. It possesses a double interest for the people of these States both because the scenes of the play are laid in South Carolina and because the author, Mr. Thomas Dixon, Jr., is one of the most brilliant men of genius evolved by the Old North State. On this account no apology is required for presenting the complete itinerary of "The Clansman" in North Carolina which is as follows: February 27, Wilmington; February 28, Goldsboro; February 29, Rocky Mount; March 2, Henderson; March 3, Raleigh; March 4, Durham; March 5, Winston-Salem; March 6, Greensboro; March 7, Spartanburg; March 9, Salisbury; March 10, Charlotte; March 11, Asheville.

This is the last visit through the South for several years, as it is booked for a complete tour around the world, beginning with London, England, next June. Those who desire seats should send their orders accompanied by remittance to the Manager of the nearest Opera House, who will promptly forward the best available tickets of the kind desired. The prices of tickets are nights 50 cents to $1.50 and matinees 50 cents to $1.00. In ordering seats be careful to state what priced tickets you wish.

Mails Out of Gear.

Something went wrong with the mails Tuesday and Greenville had almost a day without any. The morning Norfolk & Southern train from Raleigh came in almost empty handed so far as mail was concerned. The folks then looked for the noon A. C. L. train, but when that came there was still nothing doing. Then there was another wait for the evening trains, and they likewise came without any mail of consequence. It was a dry day for sure.

RALEIGH EVENING TIMES FAILS.

PLACED IN HANDS OF W. H. PACE AS RECEIVER.

He Is Appointed by Judge Biggs on Application of Creditors—Publication to Continue

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 25.—W. H. Pace was today appointed receiver of the Visitor Press Publishing Company, which publishes the Raleigh Evening Times, this appointment being by Judge J. Crawford Biggs, of the Superior court, on application of H. J. Brown Company and all other creditors of the corporation.

No schedule of assets and liabilities is yet filed but the petitioning creditors declare the liabilities very much in excess of the assets. The hearing as to permanent receiver is set for February 27.

The corporation is capitalized at $30,000. There is a bonded indebtedness of $7,500 and considerable floating debts, with complications as to the ownership of some of the machinery of the plant. John C. Drewry is president of the corporation, and J. V. Simms, recently of Charlotte, has been for several weeks general manager, having succeeded George B. Crater, now of Atlanta.

The receiver is directed to edit, print and circulate the paper, and in a card he announced that the paper will be continued without interruption.

You Lose by Waiting.

If you have any idea of buying a building lot in Greenville you are not saving any money by putting it off. When the training school buildings are up, street paving moving along, the public building started, and various other contemplated enterprises under way, you will see quite a different price on lots from what they can be had at now.

Give Good Show.

A postal card from Mr. J. B. James, at Chapel Hill, says the University Dramatic Club give a good show. This company will present "The Rivals" in the opera house tomorrow night and should have a large audience. Seats are now on sale at Reflector Book Store.

Funeral Thursday.

The remains of Mr. F. M. Smith, who died Monday evening, will be interred at 3 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, in Cherry Hill Cemetery.

CALLING IN PUBLIC FUNDS.

Secretary Cortelyou Asks Banks For 25 Per Cent of Public Funds Now On Deposit.

Washington, Feb. 24.—The Secretary of the Treasury today announced a call upon national banks for approximately 25 per cent of the public funds now held in active depositories having on deposit funds in the sum of $100,000 or more; and 25 per cent of the public funds now held by active depositories where the deposit is $100,000 of such funds, or in excess thereof, and where such withdrawals can be made without inconvenience to the Treasury Department in the transaction of public business.

Under the call approximately $35,000,000 will be returned to the Treasury.

Payments under this call will be made as follows: Ten per cent of the amount called on or before March 9th, and the remaining 15 per cent on or before March 23rd.

Secretary Cortelyou stated that advices from all parts of the country are to the effect that this proportion of the government funds now on deposit with these national banks can be withdrawn without detriment to financial conditions in any section.

WINTERVILLE ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From Our Hustling Neighbor.

Winterville, N. C. Feb. 26 1908.

Rev. H. E. Tripp filled his regular appointment Sunday morning and night at the Methodist church.

Miss Laura Salisbury, of Hassell, who was away last week to attend the marriage of her sister, has returned to school.

Rev. T. H. King filled his regular appointment at Goldsboro Sunday. He returned Monday morning.

H. A. Litchfield, a student of W. H. S., who was called home to the bedside of his sister, has returned to school and reports his sister out of danger.

B. F. Manning left Monday morning to be on the road for some time for the A. G. Cox Mfg. Co.

We deeply sympathize with Prof. G. E. Lineberry in the loss of his aged mother, who passed away Sunday morning at her home near Siler City, in Chatham county. He had only been at home one week since he returned from the funeral of his brother. He left Saturday evening and arrived at his old home Sunday morning, but too late to see his mother alive.

George Washington's birthday exercises were observed by Mrs. Maggie Butt's school at Antioch school house, Friday night. After the exercises were concluded a basket party was given and a nice little sum of money was acquired for a library. No school can do its best work without a good library.

Officers Smith and Elliott had a pretty lively time Saturday night with some negroes. Mr. Smith had one under arrest and some of his friends were threatening to relieve Mr. Smith of his prisoner by force. They were in Harrington Barber & Co's store at the time. Mr. J. F. Harrington came on the scene with his gun and soon had everything quiet. Our colored people must learn to respect law and not try to uphold one of their number when he has openly violated the law. We were impressed by Dr. Hale's remarks along this line in regard to the murder of the chief police of Fayetteville a few days ago.

While a Brakeman He Got Hurt and Asks $10,000 of Southern.

Winston-Salem, Feb. 24.—Through his counsel, Messrs. Benbow & Hall, Andrew McCleave, colored, has instituted in the Superior court here a case against the Southern Railway Company for $10,000 damages for alleged injuries received while in the employ of the defendant company as brakeman November 19th, 1905. The plaintiff was running as brakeman on a freight train between Charlotte and Statesville on the day of the accident. The complaint, which was filed today, alleges that the plaintiff was injured in the shoulder, which has incapacitated him for manual labor. He claims to have been permanently injured as the result of the accident.

NEGRO WANTS BIG DAMAGES.

Result of Competition.

The Atlantic Coast Line is now selling tickets from Greenville to Wilson at $1.05 to meet the price of the Norfolk and Southern to that point. It is a shorter distance by the Norfolk & Southern and the regular price on that road is $1.05, hence the A. C. L. comes to the same figure. That makes the A. C. L. carry passengers to Wilson at a lower figure than the State rate.

The East Carolina railroad has been completed between Farmville and Hookerton and trains will begin running through to the latter place early in March.

Stoessel Files Petition.

St. Petersburg, Tuesday, 25.—General Stoessel, sentenced to death by a military court for surrendering Port Arthur, has petitioned the czar for a full pardon. Nicholas is friendly to Stoessel but the war office will exert all its influence to have the heaviest penalty inflicted.

Almost a Lie.

"Good bordig," said the boarder with a bad cold.

"What!" cried the other boarders in surprise and also in unison as they desisted from their burned oatmeal.

Clearing his throat and blowing his nose vigorously, the boarder with the bad cold explained somewhat wearily that he had merely attempted to pass the time of day.

Whereupon the other boarders apologized, saying:

"We thought you said 'good boarding.'"

A Hungarian Bull.

It is a mistake to suppose that only Irish members in the British house of commons perpetrate bulls. It was a representative in the Hungarian diet who when hated Austria tried to interfere in local Magyar affairs declaimed passionately, "Gentlemen, the apple of discord has been thrown into our midst, and if it be not nipped in the bud it will burst into a conflagration that will deluge the world."

What Greenville needs is not to pass any more days without mail.

Mr. Kitchen's language in reference to Governor Glenn did not make him any friends.

You can't quite feel yourself walking on paved streets in Greenville, but they are coming.

All of the candidates for governor are in favor of prohibition, and it can be said that a large majority of the people are the same way.

The gold that is being found by the diggers of the Panama ditch is that which comes out of Uncle Sam's treasury. Bring on another story.

Dickinson avenue or Evans and Ninth streets as the best to begin paving on is the local question most discussed now. Let's pave both ways so as to have a circuit to drive around on.

It is funny that so much North Carolina news comes by way of Washington City. Correspondents there seem to be knowing things going on down here before they are found out at home.

If the business men themselves keep talking hard times they can expect the influence to spread among other people. In this way they injure their own business, for when you make a man believe everything is going to the bad he gets scared and holds his money all the tighter.

FOR ADVERTISERS

As an instance of the value of newspaper advertising to increase or force trade, the following facts are remarkable: During December the orders received by the Douglas Boot and Shoe Company of Brockton, Mass., fell off in consequence of the business depression following the panic. The advertising manager of that large concern mentioned the matter to Governor Douglas, and asked his advice, whether under the circumstances they should place the usual amount of advertising during January and February, which are usually the slowest months in the year in the shoe business. Governor Douglas at once ordered an increase of 30 per cent. in the amount appropriated for advertising; declaring that an increase would help to overcome the unfavorable business outlook. There was considerable skepticism about the result amongst the principle employees of the Douglas company. But the result shewed almost an immediate improvement in business, which is now averaging more than last year during these usually dull months.—Kinston Free Press.

The trouble with most cough remedies is that they constrict. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup acts gently but promptly on the bowels and at the same time stops the cough by soothing the throat and lung irritation. Children like it. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

Gambling in Cuba.

American influence has brought about some important changes in Cuban customs and notably in the abolition of the bull ring and the cock pit, which used to be the chief Sunday attractions of the populace. Not a few of the better class of Havanaese desire the same fate for jai ali and would rejoice to see the Fronton closed forever. High and low wager immoderately on this game and many stories of ruined reputations and wrecked businesses are connected with it. Every race has its prevailing vice and its comparative freedom from others. The Cubans are incurable gamblers, but drunkenness is virtually unknown among them. Both sexes in Havana spend a great deal of time in the numerous open air cafes, but they drink, for the most part, non-alcoholic, fruity beverages, of which there are an extensive variety peculiar to the country.—World Today.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. At times when you don't feel just right, when you have a bad stomach, take something right away that will assist digestion; not something that will stimulate for a time but something that will positively do the very work that the stomach performs under ordinary and normal conditions, something that will make the food digest. To do this you must take a natural digestant like Kodol For Dyspepsia. Kodol is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids with natural digestants and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. Each dose will digest more than 3,000 grains of good food. It is sure to afford prompt relief; it digests what you eat and is pleasant to take. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

Everything taken into the stomach should be digested fully within a certain time. LONDON IN A FOG.

An Experience on a Bus on a Suffocating Black Day.

I remember once I was on a Cheapside bus going toward the bank. It had been pouring, and little streams of water were still running on the street. The lanterns reflected darkly on the pavement. Suddenly the off horse went down, kicking the near one's feet from under him. In their struggles to get up they swung the bus' head around, and we lay broadside to the street. I looked to see a snarl of wagons, the bus hemmed in by jeering cabmen, a gaping crowd and the driver jerking at his fallen horses. Not so. Six bobbies were already on the spot. As if by magic a space was cleared about us and the traffic checked. Under the steady hand of the driver the horses were soon up, trembling and mud bespattered, but otherwise none the worse for their tumble. The policemen lowered their hands and Cheapside again re-ounded with the London roar.

When a black fog comes down the city vanishes. From your seat on the bus beside the driver you cannot make out the horses' heads. The street lamps shimmer dimly, sound seems deadened, and when you speak your voice is strange and unfamiliar. Your face looks like a chimney sweep's, your chest burns as you breathe, and near you on the bus you hear some people coughing. You wonder what they look like. Down on the street somewhere there is a thud, and some one curses violently. The driver laughs "This 'ere's th' blackest kind," he says. "I guess we're fixed 'ere for a bit. Yer kin just bet your bloomin' 'ead I won't budge till I see th' 'orses. Last time I knocked down a bloody bobby with th' pole an' most ran into th' Thames." Every little while it seems to lighten, the horses take a step or two, and then once more the world is buried in suffocating blackness. Your eyes sting as you strain them through the fog. All at once it begins to lift, and in the zenith the sun appears, large and strange and red. The buses begin to move again. You can see them looming dimly, crowded with ghostly passengers. Then as it grows still lighter you see the gleaming helmet of a mounted sentinel and a clock tower rising black behind. It is Whitehall. You have been two hours on the bus and have gone 200 yards.—Thornton Oaxley in Metropolitan Magazine.

The simple life is all right for those who can afford it.

A Fable of the Future.

In 1920 A. D. the Stingiest Man in Stringtown carted his Household Goods to the Depot and bought a ticket for Millionville, the Metropolis.

"Why are you moving to Millionville?" inquired a Citizen.

"To save postage," replied the Stingiest Man. Whereat the Citizen marveled mightily.

Now, be it known that the Stingiest Man in Stringtown was wise in his Day and Generation, for along back in 1907 A. D. or thereabout it became the Settled Habit of the Stringtown people to purchase Large Sheets of Little Stickers bearing portraits of G. Washington, B. Franklin, W. McKinley and other Late Illustrious Ones, which Specimens of Art they straightway stuck on envelopes and sent to a Large and Luring Mail Order Concern in Millionville. Wherefore it came about that the Seven Stores in Stringtown Shut up Shop, one after the other, until along in 1919 A. D. the Stingiest Man found it incumbent upon him to begin purchasing these Small Specimens of Art to present to the Maw of the Monster in Millionville, and the Aforesaid was Simply too Stingy to stand for the Same.

THE COW AND THE GATE.

Animal Ability to Associate One Thing With Another.

When I was a bucolic treasury clerk in Washington the cow of an old Irishwoman near by used to peep through the cracks in my garden fence at my growing corn and cabbage till her mouth watered. Then she saw that a place in the fence yielded to me and let me in, so she tried it. She nudged the gate with her nose until she hit the latch, and the gate swung open and let her in. There was an audible crunching of succulent leaves and stalks that soon attracted my attention. I hustled her out and sent a kick after her that fell short and nearly unjointed my leg. But she was soon back, and she came again and again till I discovered her secret and repaired the latch so that nudging or butting the gate would not open it.

How surely such conduct as this of the cow's evinces reason to most persons! But shall we not rather call it the blind gropings of instinct stimulated into action by the sight and odor of the tender vegetables? Many of the lowest organisms show just as much intelligence about their food as did the old cow.

Even the American sun dew, according to Mrs. Treat, will move its leaves so that it can seize a fly pinned half an inch from it. The method of the old cow was that of hit and miss or trial and error. She wanted the corn, and she butted the gate, and, as luck would have it, when she hit the latch the gate swung open. But shall we conclude that the beast had any idea at all but the sense impression made upon her hunger by the growing vegetables?

Animals do not connect cause and effect as we do by thinking the "therefore." They simply associate one thing with another. Your dog learns to associate your act of taking your hat and cane with a walk or your gun with the delights of the chase or with its report, if he is afraid of it, and so on.

Without this power of association the birds and beasts could not get on in life. The continuity of their experience would be broken. It is a rude kind of memory—sense memory. A sense impression today revives a sense impression of yesterday or of the day before, and that is about all there is of it.—"Animal and Plant Intelligence," by John Burroughs, in Outing Magazine.

What He Would Shy At.

In a certain recent case a groom was being cross examined by a barrister more famous for talent than beauty of features. The clever advocate was endeavoring to find out about the temper of a horse, which had an important bearing on the case, but the witness was not very lucid.

"Does he shy?" he was asked. The groom said he did.

"At what?" was the next question. "At lots of things," was the answer. And for long no better or further particulars could be got. But Mr. Witt, determining to get a clearer answer, went on.

"But tell me," he said in his most suave tones, "of any particular thing he would shy at." "Well, 'e'd shy at you," was the unexpected answer. And every one seemed to wonder whether that was evidence.—London Answers.

With Knife and Fork.

In the middle ages people knew not knives and forks, but ate with nature's implements—their fingers. Later they held the bread or meat in a napkin in their left hands and cut off pieces with a dagger held in the right hand, the food being carried to the mouth on the knife, even in the most polite society. The next development was to have a special eating knife instead of using the dagger, which might have been used for the dispatch of an enemy. Each person kept an eating knife, and when he was invited out to dinner he brought his knife along with him. Forks were used in Venice in 997, but it was not till 1608 that a Venetian traveler, one Thomas Coryate, introduced them into Britain.—London Standard.

Parrot and Bear.

She was a pretty young lady with a sharp tongue. He was a cynic. Why, it would be difficult to guess. Perhaps he had just been rejected by his best girl; perhaps he had been unsuccessful in a limerick competition.

"Marriage," he said, "is a mistake."

"Yes?" she replied. "It is," he repeated. "Why should a young man marry when he can buy a parrot for 10 shillings?"

"Ah!" she replied, and her pretty bosom heaved with a long drawn sigh. "It's just as it always is. We poor women labor under a great disadvantage. A bear, I understand, can't be purchased for less than £30!"—London Scraps.

LONDON RESTAURANTS.

The Way They Compare With Eating Places in New York.

Money for money, London is far ahead of New York (it is out of sight ahead of Paris) as a middle class dining place. With the half guinea ordinaries no parallel can be instituted. Our prices do not go that high. The seven and six ordinaries we can meet on even terms—I think that we can give them odds.

But I know of only one restaurant in New York where for 75 cents (the test is not quite accurate) can be had a dinner fairly comparable in quality with the three and six dinners which may be had at a round score of restaurants in London, and even in our dreams of avarice we never get along here to anything that will class with the dinners to be had at half a dozen queer little cribs in Soho for 18 pence, though I will admit that if you are a lusty eater you may have to eat two of those eighteen penny dinners at one sitting really to get your fill.

Wine is not included in these lower prices—in the higher prices it sometimes is, and you drink it at your peril! But even in Soho, if you are careful, and at pretty much all the three and six ordinaries by exercising no more than a reasonable discretion you can get an unpretentious sound wine for a price in keeping with the price of the food.

It is no wonder that all London crowds nightly into this gay, bright region, where it can eat and drink so pleasantly and so cheaply and where it can have, at least in the case of those who continue the economies of Soho and accept the hard benches of the upper circle, a satisfying 3 or 4 shillings' worth of the play.—Thomas A. Janvier in Harper's Magazine.

In Childish Eyes.

The vagueness of the young with respect to the age of their elders is pleasantly illustrated by the early history of a nobleman who once represented a division of Manchester in the English parliament. His mother had a maid who seemed to childish eyes extremely old. The children of the family longed to know her age, but were much too well bred to ask a question which they felt would be painful, so they sought to attain the desired end by a system of ingenious traps. The boy chanced in a lucky hour to find in his "Book of Useful Knowledge" the tradition that the aloe flowers blossomed only once in 100 years. He instantly saw his opportunity and accosting the maid with winning air and wheedling accent, asked insinuatingly, "Susan, have you often seen the aloe flower?"—London Mail.

Natural.

There is a stalwart negro in a town of Alabama whose naturally fine singing voice is the feature of the local colored church choir.

On one occasion when the singer was suffering from a protracted illness one of the deacons called to ascertain how the patient was "gittin' on."

"He's got an awful bad cough jest now," explained the singer's wife, with a most mournful sigh.

"Well, dat's too bad; dat's too bad!" exclaimed the deacon, casting about for some means of consolation. Then a happy thought struck him. "Come to think of it," he added, "it ain't no wonder, wif dat strong voice he was pressin' on his lungs. He's shure due to have a cough now an' then, ain't he?"—Harper's Weekly.

No Reply.

A curious person of a certain town who loved to find out everything about the new residents espied the son of a new neighbor one morning in a doctor's office.

"Good morning," he said. "Little boy, what is your name?" "Same as dad's," was the quick reply.

"Of course, I know, little boy, but what is you dad's name, dear?" "Same as mine, sir."

Still he persisted, "I mean what do they say when they call you to breakfast?"

"They don't never call me. I allus gets there first. See?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Graveyard of Great Lakes.

The great basin between the Rocky mountains and the Sierra Nevadas is the burial ground of a multitude of dead lakes. Buried with them are the skeletons of creatures that lived upon the earth and in its vanished waters long before man came into the world. Rivers still flow down to the dry edge of these one, time great reservoirs and are licked up by evaporation and the chinook winds. Of all the lakes that once lay there only Great Salt Lake, Lake Tahoe and Bear lake are left. The Southern Pacific rolls for 165 miles across the bed of what was once Lake Lahontan.

How Sunshine Warms Us.

The effect of the sun's rays is determined by two circumstances—the length of time during which they act continuously and their direction. When the sun is farthest from the earth, as is the case in summer, it is daily above the horizon for a much longer time than it is when nearest, as at the winter solstice. This continuous action intensifies the heat, and, the nights being short, but little of the heat is given off during the sun's absence. In summer again the sun's rays reach us in a more vertical direction, and, the days being longer than the nights, more heat is absorbed than radiated. In winter, the sun ascending to a less elevation, the rays reach us more obliquely, and, the days being much shorter, the result is that more heat is radiated than absorbed.

Paid For His Opinion.

On a tour in Canada Rudyard Kipling had a little disagreement with the landlord of the hotel at which he was staying, says London Tit-Bits. Just before leaving the hotel the famous author asked to see the proprietor, and upon that worthy appearing he was greeted thus: "I want to tell you that of all the hotels under the shining sun I have never seen one that for unmitigated, all round, unendurable discomfort could equal yours." When Kipling got his bill one item in it read, "To impudence, $3."

Not the Man.

Loafer (saluting perfect stranger)—I remember you, major, when we was in the regiment.

Stranger—What! In the Ninety-ninth?

Loafer—Yus, major. Stranger—Company A?

Loafer—Yus, major. Stranger—Always getting drunk?

Loafer—I won't go so far as to deny as I took a drop extra now and then, major.

Stranger—Discharged with ignominy for cowardice?

Loafer—Ardly that, major, for I allus did my duty.

Stranger—Then you're not the man!—Punch.

HOG ISLAND.

The Story of Its Name as Variouslly Told in Nassau, N. P.

Directly across the harbor from the city of Nassau, N. P., there is an island called Hog island. On the north side of that island toward the ocean there is a fine bathing beach, which is much used in the tourist season in the winter.

The fee for bathing is 25 cents and includes eating all the fruit that the bather may wish. The fruit is peeled and put on long sticks, which is considered the real way to have it. There is no limit.

Now, it happens that there is a story about a certain bather and that fruit privilege which is a favorite in Nassau. At least ten of every dozen men will try to tell you that story—that is, if you stay long enough. In a brief time like three hours you are likely to hear it at least three times.

Mr. Brown, who, with two other Browns, forms the pilot trust down in Nassau, told it first to a couple of Americans whom he was taking over to the steamer in boat No. 2.

"You see that place?" he asked, pointing with a bronze finger. "That's Hog island. You can go over there and bathe and eat all the fruit you want for a quarter."

"The old fellow who runs the place has made a mint. One day a fellow came over and he ate about twenty oranges. By and by maybe his conscience bothered him, and he said:

"Say, old man, maybe I'm infrin'."

"Oh, no," said the old chap, "you know the name of the island."

When the two Americans struggled up the rope ladder to the steamer's deck they met the purser, who was loading about.

"I've been down here a lot," he said after awhile, "but I've never been in swimming off that island. They say it's great. And you can get all the fruit you want, too, thrown in with the price of the bath. All you can eat for a quarter."

"They tell a story about the place. One day a fellow went over there and ate about thirty oranges. By and by maybe his conscience bothered him, and he said to the old fellow who runs the place:

"Guess I'm eating too much, eh?"

"Oh, no," says the old chap. "Praps that's how the island got its name when one of you fellows came along."

On board the boat when it left Nassau was a 'conch,' which is the Nassau name for an inhabitant of the island of New Providence. He was telling about the place one night and suddenly turned to one of the Americans and said:

"Do you remember that island with the lighthouse and the wreck just at the harbor entrance? Well, that's Hog island. It's a great bathing place."

"Go ahead. Tell us the story of the man who ate thirty oranges and then was told maybe that's how the island got its name," said the American.

"Oh, that isn't exactly it," said the conch, with a British persistence about details.

"Well, what is it?" asked the American.

"Why, this chap went over there and stayed all afternoon and ate more than forty oranges, probably forty-two, at least so I have heard, and when he was going to go he sighed and said to the proprietor:

"Well, I believe I've had my money's worth. But I don't believe you have."

"Oh, never mind," said the old fellow. "This is Hog island."

"That isn't exactly what you heard, is it?" demanded the conch in conclusion.

"No, not exactly," admitted one of the Americans.

And, what's more, the story is in the guidebooks to Nassau.—Washington Post.

The Obvious Course.

A reverend gentleman was addressing a Sunday school class not long ago and was trying to enforce the doctrine that when people's hearts were sinful they needed regulating. Taking out his watch and holding it up, he said:

"Now, here is my watch. Suppose it doesn't keep good time—now goes too fast and now too slow—what shall I do with it?"

"Sell it," promptly replied a boy.—Harper's Magazine.

Hurrying him.

A superintendent of the Little Wanderers' home attended a watch night service and closed his testimony by saying, "It may be but a month longer that I shall be here, perhaps a week, or even before the close of another day I shall be gone." He had hardly seated himself when a young man in the back of the vestry started the old song,

"Oh, why do you wait, dear brother, oh, why do you tarry so long?"—Christian Register.
