MAYOR EATON BEFORE NATIONAL B. & L. ASSOCIATION.

Address of the Mayor of North Carolina's Twin-City Feature of the Closing Day of the Session at New Orleans.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 28.—At today's session of the 16th annual meeting of the United States League of Local Building and Loan Associations, the principal feature was the address of Mayor O. B. Eaton, of Winston-Salem, N. C.

Mr. Eaton spoke on the scope and character of the building and loan association work, declaring that it was truth is institution that the American home is established.

Considering the scope and character of its work the Building and Loan Association is one of the greatest institutions the mind of man has ever devised or produced. Transcendent in its purposes, potent in its influence, wonderful in its achievements, it stands next to the public school in power, in influence and in importance. It is an institution closest to the people, most characteristic of the people and fullest of hope for the people. It is a great unit expressing itself, in the first place, in the product of human labor. A piece of money in an old stocking is no more than a leaf upon a tree. It is when the coin is taken out and used that it becomes of value, and the nature of the value depends upon the quality of the use.

The building and loan association collects the numberless little rills of capital which flow from labor and which would minister less effectively to human needs and converts them into visible and substantial wealth most needful to man. It is the poor man's bank in the highest and truest sense. It receives and lends his money and then organizes and utilizes the full force and effect of his capital and makes it contribute its part to the wealth of the world and to the sustenance and welfare of the people.

It teaches the purchasing power of money; it increases a man's earning power and his capacity for service; it teaches the great lesson of economy; it teaches him to accumulate something for his declining years; it teaches that some measure of self denial is an invaluable condition and blessedness in human life; it teaches a man that in order to build himself up in the community he must own a home or in some way be tied in a business direction to the community in which he lives; it teaches that one of the roads to good citizenship lies in the ownership of homes and that in communities where this is secured society and individuals are having their highest development and the largest allotment of human happiness. It encourages industry, it means progress, it means push, it means development, it means a steady movement to better things and more glorious achievements. It teaches a man to stand upright and self-respecting, working out his destiny in the sweat of his brow, loyal to his town and earnest in his allegiance wherever it rests.

A nation's power and greatness lies in her homes where the spirit of ownership reigns and around whose altar liberty is enshrined in their own hearts! Home is the basis of society and good government.

There is nothing comparable in power, in influence and in importance in the development of citizenship as the spirit of home ownership among men, and for every dollar invested in the encouragement of this idea thousands of dollars will be saved by lessening crime and by building up a citizenship imbued with principles of life and duty, who stand ready to fight our battles, win our victories and who are the great conservators of liberty.

If he who caused two blades of grass to grow where formerly grew but one is a benefactor to the race, how much greater benefactor must that organization be that builds homes where formerly there were none. Through the instrumentality of the Building and Loan Association millions of homes have been built where virtue resides in the warmth and purity of vestal fires and where contentment dwells like a perpetual summer. Around these homes linger all the dearest and sweetest associations of life, upon them hang the hopes of happiness of the nations of the earth and above them shines the ever blessed star that lights the pathway back to the paradise that man lost.

Where Fruit is Cheap.

"Never in my life have I seen a country where one could buy delicious fruits for such a little money as I did some months ago at Port Elizabeth, in South Africa," said Mr. George Hector of London, England, at the Stafford Hotel.

"Think of buying luscious apricots at 12 to 13 cents a hundred, magnificent figs for a song, the finest pineapples I ever tasted for a cent a piece, oranges at 25 cents a hundred, plums, three inches in diameter, at 25 cents a peck, and the sweetest grapes for a trifle. About the only fruit that did not seem to dwell there was the apple, which is not suited to a warm climate. But one could buy very fine apples from Canada at a price that seemed very low in view of the long transportation.—Baltimore American.

A reading of these statements shows what excellent banking institutions we have and how well they are managed. They are absolutely safe and afford every convenience and accommodation to the public.

Why the Darkey Returns Real Estate.

May be after all it was a pity that the negro was put out of the contest when it comes to voting, for he has enough originality to make a good politician with proper training. It is not generally known, but a negro will walk up at tax listing time and in giving in his poll he will often give in a piece of real estate when he never in all his life owned a foot of ground. The tax is not paid on it and the collector proceeds to advertise and sell it, but it is never located. This has been going on for years and the tax-listers have to be watchful. Why they do this no one seems to know. Get after one of these fellows and he will express surprise, vowing that there must be some mistake about it, that he did not list it, etc. One theory is that they have an idea that a negro cannot vote unless he owns real estate and he proceeds to give in a piece of property.—Greensboro Record

Notice.

All persons keeping dogs in town are notified to list and pay taxes on same for such owners will be subject to indictment.

Pretty Green.

The conductor had every appearance of being new to the business. The car was well filled with a matinee crowd, and among the passengers was a flashily dressed individual escorting two overdressed young women. The conductor entered, stood before the trio and asked for the fares. The man handed him a dime and a nickel, whereupon the conductor asked:

"Three?"

"No; four," said the sporty chap, smiling.

Four fares were promptly registered, and the green conductor seemed at a loss to know what the passengers were laughing at.—New York Times.

Forks in England.

The enormous ruffs so much in favor in later Tudor times are responsible for the introduction of forks in England. The difficulty of reaching one's mouth when so adorned must have impressed itself very forcibly on every one, and so the invention of some means of prolonging the reach became an imperative necessity, and thus, as demand usually creates supply, forks came into existence.—Captain G. A. Hope in Grand Magazine.

A Precaution.

"Good!" exclaimed a Welsh hotel proprietor as a departing guest prepared to photograph the establishment. "I rejoice to see that you take with you one little memento of your visit. It shows you have been happy here. Is it not so?"

"Not exactly," was the morose answer. "I'm taking it to prevent any chance of my making a mistake and coming here again."—London Express.

How He Hit His Rival.

A pessimistic young doctor publicly deplored the impossibility of getting rich and the difficulty of earning a decent living in the medical profession without incessantly burning the candle at both ends.

"Stuff and rubbish, my lad!" a boastful old doctor cried. "There's as much money to be made now in spite of competition as ever there was. Take my case, for instance. I've lots of patients, and I'm making money quick. But do I look overworked? Do I ever seem pressed for time? Have I not always plenty of leisure?"

"You certainly take life easily," the pessimistic young doctor replied smoothly.

Then the company smiled, and the boastful doctor fell into a train of thought.—London Express.

Yawning.

There can be little doubt that one of the objects of yawning is the exercise of muscles which have been for a long time quiescent and the acceleration of the blood and lymph flow which has in consequence of this quiescence become sluggish; hence its frequency after one has remained for some time in the same position—e. g., when waking in the morning. Co-operating with this cause is sleepiness and the shallow breathing which it entails. This factor as well as muscle quiescence is apt to attend the sense of boredom which one experiences in listening to a dull sermon; hence it is that the bored individual is apt to yawn. As in the case of sighing, the deep breath which accompanies the act of yawning compensates for the shallow breathing which is so apt to excite it.—"Therapeutic Aspects of Talking," by Dr. H. Campbell.

Japanese Advertising.

The Japanese seem to get much more out of a trademark than we do. All of the larger concerns have a distinct mark, usually some geometric design, with which everything in any way identified with the company is plainly marked. Immediately upon reaching Japan European tourists begin to study these marks and after a few days are able to tell a great deal about commerce and shipping simply by having learned the characteristic designs of some of the larger companies. Even in the Chinese ports many Japanese goods are known by these marks by the most illiterate coolies, who could not pretend to read an advertisement.

Yes, sir, they say Greenville is going to get that public building too.

The senatorial deadlock in the Kentucky legislature has been broken by the election of former Governor William Bradley.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to assassinate the shah of Persia, but three of the men riding in his body guard were killed by the bomb intended for the shah.

The editor of the Williamston Enterprise says the boys of that town keep him busy hunting for his front gate which they take off two nights in the week. Don't have any front gate, brother, and save yourself that much trouble.

Zeb Vance Walser making the statement in Washington City that North Carolina was going Republican for the national ticket this year, shows that they have not forgotten how to make big claims. But the fellows who go to Washington to make the claims are usually after something.

The liquor dealers are not going to lay down and acknowledge themselves whipped in advance in the prohibition fight over the State. They are going to put up the best fight they know how and will have plenty of money to spend in their campaign. In the face of such a conflict the prohibitionists need to be exceedingly active.

We want to drop a word of caution to Greenville. There are towns in eastern North Carolina for which bills for public buildings passed congress some time ago. The government went so far as to advertise for sites in those towns and when the propositions were opened it was found that the owners of the property were charging several times the value for a site. As a result those towns have no public building yet. Let Greenville be wise on this point and not cause years of delay by charging too much for a site. The government usually pays enough for what it gets, but there is no need of expecting the whole United States treasury to be dumped into a town for a building lot.

A few years ago it was almost an unheard of thing for a reward to be offered for a criminal. Now however, a crime is no sooner committed than there is a bounty offered for the perpetrator. It is well that this is the case, for every wrongdoer, be he great or small, should be speedily apprehended, and sometimes officers might not be too vigilant in apprehending criminals.—Raleigh Times.

A man always says a public dinner was a great success if he got his name in the paper for being present.

Mr. Gladstone, speaking of Mr. Parnell on one occasion, made use of the oft quoted phrase "Marching through rapine to the dismemberment of the empire." On the same day there was a horse race in which the winners were respectively Veracity, Tyrone and Lobster. These facts were cabled to New Zealand together in the usual shorthand style of the cable. The result was that next day the New Zealand papers contained the following extraordinary paragraph: "Mr. Gladstone denounced Mr. Parnell as marching through rapine to the dismemberment of the empire and said that the Irish leader had the veracity of a Tyrone lobster."

His Dream.
"There is some money, my love," said the husband. "I don't want any," replied the wife. "Come, now, darling, take this five pound note and go out shopping." "Thank you, dearest, but I really don't care to. I would rather stay at home and see to the housework." Then the husband awoke and found that he had been dreaming.—Liverpool Mercury.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescription from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol For Dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly, and write this hoping that humanity will be benefited. Yours very truly, Jake C. Moore, Atlanta, Aug. 10, 1904." Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

A SHREWD LITTLE GIRL.

Prompted a Question Which Saved an Old Woman's Life.

Elizabeth Janfield, afterward Lady Falkland, was called an "odd child." Sometimes her father, who was a judge, took her with him to court. On one of these occasions a woman was brought before him on a charge of witchcraft. It was said that she had bewitched two or three persons to death. The frightened creature when asked if this were so fell on her knees and, weeping, confessed that the accusations against her were true.

"Did you bewitch — to death?" asked the judge.

"Yes," was her reply.

"Did you come in the form of a black cat and breathe on him so that he languished away?"

"I did."

And then the judge heard a whisper at his ear, and his little daughter—she was only ten years old—begged him to ask the woman if she had bewitched John Symondes to death.

The question was put and immediately answered in the affirmative. How had she done it? Then she told one of her former stories, at which all the company laughed. The reason of the merriment was that John Symondes was the judge's brother-in-law and at that moment was standing near him in court. The judge then asked why she had made such a statement.

"Alas, sir, I knew him not," replied the woman. "I said so because you asked me."

"Are you no witch?"

"No. God knows I'm not."

"Nor did you ever see the devil?"

"No; never in all my life."

On further examination she said she had been told that if she did not confess she would be tortured until she died, but that if she admitted all the accusations mercy would be shown her. She was thereupon acquitted, and she owed her release and probably her life to the shrewdness of a little girl.

Hurrying Him.

A superintendent of the Little Wanderers' home attended a watch night service and closed his testimony by saying, "It may be but a month longer that I shall be here, perhaps a week, or even before the close of another day I shall be gone." He had hardly seated himself when a young man in the back of the vestry started the old song, "Oh, why do you wait, dear brother, oh, why do you tarry so long?"—Christian Register.

A Servian Custom.

A traveler through Servia will often notice dolls hung up inside the cottage windows. His first idea is one of surprise that the children should so often choose this particular spot to store their toys, but presently he learns that the dolls are put up as a sign to announce to wayfarers that a marriageable daughter dwells in the house. The idea is to remind acquaintances from other villages who may have forgotten her existence. This custom is naturally confined to peasants, but nearly every house has a wreath of corn ears hung up on the outer wall. This wreath is brought back from the harvest festival, and there is a superstition that if it be stolen a daughter of the house will shortly be married. Where this is particularly desired care is taken to suspend the wreath well within reach of possible marauders.

Where He Was Lacking.
A man who had served two terms in congress was making a campaign for a third term. In the course of a speech in the town hall at Broomcorn Junction, a village near the farther boundary of his district, he said:

"It is true, fellow citizens, that I have not always been able to do as much as I should like to do in the matter of internal improvements in this district, but I have never lost sight of your interests for a single moment. You have no idea of the obstacles that lie in the way of a congressman who tries to secure appropriations for public buildings, the improvement of navigable streams and the like for the benefit of his constituents, but I want to assure you, fellow citizens, that I have labored constantly in your behalf to the very best of my ability."

"We know it!" shouted an old farmer in the audience. "That's why we want an abler man!"

Are You About to Invest In a Piano?

If so invest in a good one, and buy it from a firm of established reputation. If there is honor in whatever house you deal with there will be worth and value in whatever goods it sells. It has always been our greatest pride in affording protection to our patrons. There are now more Stieff and Kohler & Campbell Pianos in the homes of Pitt county than all other makes combined. There must be a reason why. Below is given a partial number of Greenville people whom I sold Stieff and Kohler & Campbell Pianos, and the prospective piano buyer is referred to the following list:
