Hits the Nail on the Head.

The following extract from the Burlington News hits the nail squarely on the head.
"A man will whine that he is in favor of 'prohibition,' but it won't 'prohibit,' and for this reason he will vote agin' it. Just as the man says because there are men in the church who do wrong, he will go to hell rather than go into the church where everybody does not do right.
"The day is coming when prohibition will prohibit. When this country was first put on a civilized basis and laws were passed, because the men obeyed them imperfectly; the laws were not repealed, but made stronger and as the years passed men became more determined in their efforts to compel obedience to law, and today the law is respected and obeyed more than at any other time. Because all evil can not be driven from the church, the church should not lay down and quit. Because there are houses of ill fame is no reason why we should repeal all laws and let these people run loose; because we have men who will steal is no reason why we should have no laws against larceny; because men disobey the laws, we should not want to abrogate them.
"After prohibition laws are enacted, the next fight will be for men who will enforce them and this should follow this election, and the same sentiment that passed the law will elect men who will enforce the laws. From all sections of the State we see reports coming showing that whiskey is doomed. Even great blockade districts that have been undisturbed for generations are being invaded by officers, and the blockader is being haunted from the whole country. His day has passed, and as the red man was driven from the forest at the approach of the more powerful white man, so will the men who violate the laws and sell whiskey illegally be forced to stop their business and go to earning honest livings. The people have been patient, but they have made up their minds on this question, the 'Mene, Mene, Tekel Eupharsin,' will be spoken on the 26th of May."

Capt. M. Roberson is here with another load of nice oysters and fine sweet potatoes. See him at the wharf. 3 10 4t

CHARLOTTE'S LAST CONVENTION

How It Changed the Career of a Prominent Man.

When it was learned here Thursday morning that the Democratic State executive committee had selected Charlotte as the place of holding the next Democratic State convention, ex Gov. T. J. Jarvis became reminiscent. He said:
"The last Democratic State convention in Charlotte was two or three years prior to the civil war, when Judge Ellis was nominated for governor over W. W. Holden. At that time Holden was one of the foremost Democrats of the State, and was editor of the strongest Democratic paper ever printed, the Raleigh standard. His defeat at that convention seemed to embitter his life and he was never the same man afterward.
"As is well remembered, Holden became an obstructionist and a Union man during the war, and a Republican after its close. It was in his administration as governor that the Republican party ran riot in 1868 and '69, and resulted in his impeachment and removal from office. Had he been nominated at that Charlotte convention no doubt his future career would have been very different."

A Terrible Warning.

Elsewhere we publish an account of the theft of six thousand dollars from a citizen of this county, who had it hid away in his home. The sympathy of the people go out to Mr. Jeans, and his awful experience should be a warning to all others of the danger of thus hoarding money. If you keep money hoarded at home it is a standing invitation to criminals to come and take and murder you. You are tempting weak people to commit crime. Save your money, but save it in bank where it is safe. In doing this you not only save your money and perhaps your life, but your money will be doing good in the world. It will make business and better prices for your products. An idle dollar is as bad as an idle man. If you don't need your money for immediate use place it out of reach of thieves, and where it will be working for you and others all the time. The Times hopes it will never have to publish such another piece of news as the loss of this six thousand dollars.—Franklin Times.

DEMONSTRATION FARMING.

Several Pitt County Farmers Should Take Advantage of It.

Mr. T. B. Parker, of the State department of agriculture and Mr. C. R. Hudson, of the United States department of agriculture spent Thursday in Greenville in the interest of demonstration farming and co-operative work. They went over the matter thoroughly with Messrs. O. L. Joyner and L. F. Evans and explained the details to them. The gentlemen from the departments went on to Beaufort and Hyde counties to meet engagements, and expect to be back in Greenville about the middle of the coming week. Mr. Parker requested The Reflector to say that if any other farmers are interested in this work of demonstration, and will let the fact be known to Messrs. Joyner or Evans, arrangements can be made for consultation on their return here. There are many farmers who could be benefited by taking advantage of this co-operative work.

AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Hustling Town, Briefly Told.

Ayden, N. C., Mar. 13, 1908
R. W. Smith returned from Rocky Mount Wednesday where he met his family on their return home from Florida.
J. N. Alexander has bought out the barber shop of his brother, W. B. Alexander.
A. W. Ange, the popular merchant of Winterville, was here Wednesday.
J. H. Manning, of Winterville, is here setting our stock law gates in order.
There is a strong probability of organizing a lodge of the Woodman of the World in Ayden at an early day.
Lonny Alexander and wife arrived Wednesday from Odesto, California, to visit the parents of Mr. Alexander. He has been away from Ayden for quite a number of years and this is his first visit home for a long while.
W. J. Hemy went to Greenville Thursday.
Mrs. Agnes Blount was in Greenville Wednesday shopping.
Miss Annie Dudley has returned home from the northern markets.
Miss Arab Davis, of the Christian college at Wilson, spent Saturday and Sunday here with her parents.
W. C. Buhmann and Master Mack went to and returned from Parmele Tuesday.
William King, a former Pitt county boy, who recently made his home in Greensboro, died in a hospital at that place last Monday and was brought here Tuesday for burial. From Kinston the remains were accompanied to this place by a detachment from the State guard and several members of the Jr. O. U. A. M. The body was at once taken to the Pierce burial ground where it was laid to rest, the ceremonies being conducted with honors of the Jr Order. Mr. King had a host of relatives in and near Ayden who were present upon the arrival of his remains.
Dr. Sauls has had the interior of his drug store freshly painted which adds very much to its former neat appearance. The doctor is a hustler and full of enterprise.

J. R. Turnage went to Kinston Tuesday and returned Wednesday.
The funniest thing J. J. Hines has tried to do in a long time, and he is a funny man, was an attempt when he came to the store this morning to stand on his head. Upon being asked what made him so hilarious, he shouted almost loud enough to be heard in Greenville. "By Golly, another baby boy at our house, and me, the old woman and the children are just strictly in it. Help me holler boys!"
The tobacco warehouse is just a booming. We are going to have two, and they are going to be big ones, too.

Watch the Ayden department of The Reflector and see it grow. Our merchants are alive, business is brisk and money is plentiful. Why we are just bound to grow. We have got the can't help it.
Dr. H. O. Hyatt will be in Greenville at Hotel Bertha March 30th and 31st, Monday and Tuesday, for the purpose of treating diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat. Parties who call to see the Doctor do not have to pay any fee unless they are treated. 3 12 2twd 1tw paving goes.

TWO WERE KILLED.

Of Greeks Attacked by White Cap Band.

Washington, N. C., March 12.—Ten of the members of the white-cap band, who last night attacked a band of Greek immigrants at Belhaven and beat them unmercifully, killing two and wounding others have been arrested. One of them is a white man. An investigation is now in progress. The town, county and State authorities are active. Solicitor Ward and Attorney A. D. McLean are sifting the matter to the bottom. Since the Washington Light Infantry was ordered to Belhaven last night, under command of Lieuts. O. B. Byrne and J. F. Ress, everything is quiet and no outbreak is feared. The six wounded Greeks are improving and will doubtless recover.

FRIDAY, MARCH 13, 1908

Congratulations to Charlotte. In the convention that city gets what it was entitled to.

It looks like the Brownsville affair and the Thaws are destined to stay in the papers.

To Bob Phillips, New Bern: Lets get up a team of our own and make street paving hump.

Now if Greensboro moves that hippodrome from Norfolk she must be in earnest about wanting an auditorium.

We do not know what March will do from now out, but what it has done so far cannot be complained of.

The Boston Transcript wants to know can Taft be elected? That depends on whether he can get enough votes.

The president has been talking to the mothers, and he both praised them and gave them good advice.

If the Southern railway keeps on cutting down it will not have force enough left to run one train a day.

The Chicago man who left his wife because, he says, she kissed him too much, claims that he is not a chilly guy, but nobody will believe him.

With the editors, the politicians and the teachers all to have a house party with Miss Charlotte this spring and summer, the young lady ought to keep quite gay.

All these reports of new Republican recruits in North Carolina are just to make the fellows with the bags shell out that much more. When voting time comes the recruits will not be there to count.

From the way negroes are bobbing up in Republican conventions it looks like the constitutional amendment left enough of them to be troublesome, which makes the leaders quietly "cuss" the Democrats that much harder.

At the meeting of the Democratic State executive committee in Raleigh, a resolution was offered endorsing W. J. Bryan for president and C. B. Aycock for vice-president, but the resolution was not adopted. Failure to adopt the resolution cannot be taken as an indication that the members of the committee were against Bryan, but that it was not in the province of the committee to endorse candidates.

Fayetteville, New Bern and Greenville need not make much ado about being frozen out of the Eastern ball league. While the other towns are tearing their shirts over "three strikes and out", Fayetteville can be busy with her street railway building.

New Bern with her sidewalk paving, and Greenville with her training school construction and other improvements, and at the end of the season will be ahead of the game.

A CURIOUS LAKE.

It Makes Four Distinct Changes in Color Every Year.

In Monterey county, Cal., at Seaside, there is a lake which changes its color four times each year. Apparently there is no outlet for the lake, although it is never stagnant. It is full of waterfowl and fish, and when its color is normal it is sweet to the taste.

The color changes are very pronounced and are in four distinct shades—yellow, green, red and dark gray that has the appearance of black at times. After each change the water regains its normal clear appearance. The color is in the water and is not the result of reflection from the sky. This has been proved beyond doubt by the fact that the color remains the same for days at a time, regardless of the condition of the clouds.

The four colors mentioned are the ones always seen, and they always occur in the order named, the disturbance, if such it may be called, covering a period of from six weeks to two months in July and August of each year. Old residents of Seaside assert that the phenomenon is a regular annual event and that it is always followed by the death of a large number of fish in the lake.

No explanation of the peculiar condition has ever been attempted by scientists, although several scientific men of note have studied the lake very carefully. The prevailing opinion among the inhabitants of the section surrounding the lake is that the lake is of volcanic origin and that the changes are due to subterranean disturbances, which produce chemical changes in the water of the lake.

This idea is supposed to have grown out of the belief that the lake is bottomless. Years ago when the Southern Pacific railroad was being built across one end of the lake, the roadbed sank almost as fast as it was laid, and thousands of tons of gravel and stone were dumped into the lake before a stable foundation could be obtained. This led to the belief that the lake is bottomless. The lake is not more than three-quarters of a mile long by less than half a mile wide.—Los Angeles Times.

Playing School.

"How many seed compartments are there in an apple?" he queried. No one knew.

"And yet," said the school inspector, "all of you eat many apples in the course of a year and see the fruit every day probably. You must learn to notice the little things in nature."

The talk of the inspector impressed the children, and they earnestly discussed the matter at recess time.

The teacher the next day overheard this conversation. A little girl, getting some of her companions around her, gravely said:

"Now, children, just s'pose that I'm Mr. Inspector. You've got to know more about common things. If you don't, you'll all grow up to be fools. Now tell me," she said, looking sternly at a playmate, "how many feathers has a hen?"

The Rush of the Amazon.

The tide has a great influence on the Amazon, extending many hundreds of miles from its mouth. At the northern part of the mouth occurs a curious phenomenon, called by the natives "pororoca." During the full and the dark of the moon the tide reaches its highest point for a few minutes only. As soon as this tide begins to come in a rumbling roar can be heard far away, a distance of five or six miles. It is the pororoca approaching. This roar increases with the coming of the wave, which is from thirty to thirty feet in height and covers the entire width of the channel. Another wave follows immediately, then a third and sometimes a fourth. After these waves have passed, the impetuosity and force of which nothing can resist, the tide resumes its regular course.

Quick Recovery.

A dentist in the Rose building has a little daughter who believes absolutely in the efficacy of prayer.

If you want anything pray for it, and you'll get it—that's what she thinks.

The other day her father, who tells the story, was trying to shame her for having disobeyed him.

"What would you do if papa were to die?" he asked her. "Oh," she told him, "mamma and I'd both pray for another papa for me, and we'd have one the very next day."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol For Dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly, and write this hoping that humanity will be benefited. All the Gold IN GEORGIA Could not Buy-

Roding, Ga. August 27, 1906. Messrs. E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ills.

Gentlemen:— In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels. Some physicians told me it was Dyspepsia, some Consumption of the Lungs, others said consumption of the Bowels. One physician said I would not live until Spring, and for four long years I existed on a little boiled milk, soda biscuits, doctors' prescriptions and Dyspepsia remedies that flooded the market. I could not digest anything I ate, and in the Spring 1902 I picked up one of your Almanacs as a poor emaciated Dyspepsia wreck will grasp at anything, and that Almanac happened to be my life saver. I bought a fifty cent bottle of KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE and the benefit I received from that bottle ALL THE GOLD IN GEORGIA COULD NOT BUY. I kept on taking it and in two months I went back to my work, as a machinist, and in three months I was well and hearty. I still use a little occasionally as I find it a fine blood purifier and a good tonic. May you live long and prosper. Yours very truly, C. N. CORNELL.

Teddy Bear's New Year Resolutions.

RESOLVED—
That throughout this year 1908 I will try to be good and do good; that I will try to help myself and help others; that I will stand by the old town and the home people and help to boom the burg.

RESOLVED—
That from January to December, inclusive, I will quit dissipating—quit dissipating my dollars by taking them out of circulation here around home and sending them to the big cities to buy the things that I can buy and ought to buy right here in town.

RESOLVED—That I will stop smoking—stop smoking pipe dream, dope suggesting big bargains to be had, unsight unseen, from the gigantic stores in the gigantic cities, and go around among the stores here at home looking for bargains that are there to be seen with the naked eye.

RESOLVED—That I will patronize, by preference, the stores that advertise in the home paper and therefore have enterprise enough to tell the people what they've got in stock.
(Signed) TEDDY BEAR.

Br'er Rabbit: "Say, Teddy, that last resolution is the goods, all right."

GOBELIN TAPESTRY.

How It is Woven and the Materials That Are Used.

The warp or foundation of the Gobelin tapestry is formed of a series of stout woolen threads, which are stretched upon the loom and are fixed in place. The weaver then applies the wool, which consists of colored threads forming the pattern. Two kinds of tapestry were formerly made. In the haute lisse tapestry the warp was stretched vertically upon the loom, while in the basse lisse it was placed horizontally. At present only the haute lisse is made at the Gobelin works. Some of the looms for this kind of tapestry date from the time of Louis XIV., but have been somewhat improved in more recent times. This type of loom consists of two horizontal cylinders placed about ten feet apart and held in two uprights forming a frame. The cylinders are mounted at the ends in trunnions, which work in wooden sockets so that the cylinders can turn freely. The bearing slides up and down in a groove in the frame, and the roller is turned about by means of a lever. As to length, the looms vary from twelve to twenty-three feet, according to the size of the tapestry which is to be woven. Sometimes several pieces of narrow tapestry can be woven upon a single loom of the larger type.

When mounting the work upon the loom the weaver first sets up the warp of vertical threads, and each thread is given an extra length of about five feet in excess of the desired length of the tapestry. The threads are stretched on the rollers, putting the extra length on the upper roller. The threads of the warp are equally spaced, the standard spacing allowing about twenty-five threads to the inch. The tension upon each of the threads is about seven pounds, which holds them well in place. When the warp has been laid out the weaver passes a one inch glass tube between the threads so as to separate the uneven numbered threads on the outside and the even threads on the inside. The rod is placed about two feet above the working point. To carry out the weaving process the weaver takes his place at the back of the loom with the original design in colors placed behind him. He repeats the design by making a tracing in ink upon the threads of the warp, but this is only to give him the principal points of the design, and the weaver must be a veritable artist in order to copy faithfully the painted cartoon upon the canvas. He is provided with a great number of spools or shuttles, each containing a different colored thread. As the work progresses the finished part of the tapestry is rolled upon the lower cylinder. In weaving the larger pieces the worker is almost entirely concealed from view.

In all the tapestry of the ancient period the warp consists of woolen threads, and this seems to be the best, for other kinds of thread have been tried without much success. Cotton thread was substituted in 1850 for the wool, as it was claimed to be cheaper and less liable to attack by insects, but in 1890 the use of wool was resumed, as the advantages claimed for cotton were not substantiated in practice, and the economy was very small. Silk has also been used, but without any advantage.—Scientific American.

Origin of the Jury.

The seed of our present form of trial by jury may be found in a law of Ethelred II., binding the sheriff and twelve prominent thanes to swear that they would neither acquit any criminal nor convict any innocent person. In 1176 the jury system was very imperfect, the jurors being essentially witnesses, distinguishable from the other witnesses only by the oath they were obliged to take. Under Edward I. witnesses acquainted with the facts in question were added to the jury, and finally these became simply witnesses, without judicial power, while the first ceased to be witnesses and became only judges of the testimony given. Centuries were to pass, however, before the complete separation of the functions of jurymen and witness was effected.—New York American.

The Cannon Ball Tree.

Among the plants of Guinea one of the most curious is the cannon ball tree. It grows to the height of sixty feet, and its flowers are remarkable not only for their beauty, but also for their fragrance. Its blossoms are of a beautiful crimson, appearing in large bunches and exhaling a rich perfume. The fruit resembles enormous cannon balls; hence the name. However, some say it has been so called because of the noise which the balls make in bursting. From the shells domestic utensils are made, and from the contents are obtained several kinds of acids, sugar and gum as well as the materials for making an excellent drink in sickness.

BOBBY'S CHANCE.

He Returned From the Party Bringing His Cheats With Him.

Little Robert, aged four, presented his mother with a large sized shock the other day. It was a case of sowing a mild little breeze and reaping a full grown whirlwind.

Robert is Mrs. B.'s first and has always had a large front seat in her affections. Even when Mrs. B. attended parties she remembered Robert and would slip a bit of candy into her handkerchief to carry home to him.

Not that Robert did not have as much candy of his own as was good for him—and more, too—but he took an awed delight in anything which came from a party. So his mother always produced some souvenir of her modest social dissipations with which to satisfy Robert.

A few weeks ago Robert himself went to a party, his very first. A maid brought him home and left him, together with a large paper bag, in the eager arms of his welcoming mother. The first rapture of description had scarcely begun when Mrs. B. became conscious of the bulky bag.

"Why, Robert, what's this?"
"It's for you. I brought it to you from the party."

With some misgiving Mrs. B. opened the bag. It contained a large orange, nuts, candy, grapes, cakes—in fact, a very respectable assortment of refreshments suited to the juvenile taste.

Robert had supposed it was quite the usual thing to take little consoled items to the uninvited members of one's family, and he had taken a generous delight in securing a truly noble collection for his mother.

That lady faced the double problem of explaining the situation to Robert's hostess and of presenting to Robert a clear reason why what was sauce for the goose, so to speak, was a totally different thing for the gander. The explanation, which simmered down, of course, to a question of size or quantity was far from being clear to Robert, who is low in his mind and thinks he does not care for society at all.—New York Sun.

What David Said.

A country clergyman kept a young servant lad. One Sunday morning before service he gave him his orders about the dinner and said:

"Go to neighbor David and ask him for me to let you have some tripe on credit, and then prepare me a nice plateful."

The lad did as he was told, and the clergyman went to conduct the service. As he stood in the pulpit he called out in the middle of his sermon:

"And on this subject, brethren, what does David say?"

At that moment his little valet stepped into the church, and, in the belief that his master was addressing him, he replied:

"Please, sir, he says, 'No money, no tripe!'"—London Answers.

THE CHINESE CODE.

It is Older Than Any Other That is Now in Use.

It may not be generally known that China has an ancient and elaborate, not to say voluminous, code of written laws. In point of antiquity it is by far the oldest of all codes now in force. Only such instruments as the Decalogue or the code of Hammurabi seem ancient beside it. If the code of Justinian had been continuously operative since its promulgation, it would still be youthful as compared with this Chinese product. Intrinsicly it consists of some twenty-four volumes, in the literary language of the empire, and it not only covers the general field of substantive civil and criminal jurisprudence, but it also touches upon nearly every phase of human interest and duty, for the Chinese conception of law is broader than the occidental and includes many subjects which western jurists would regard as belonging to the domain of ethics or etiquette.

Independently of its contents the external character of this code affords a guarantee of its permanence. It is said to consist of the accumulated decrees of the emperors, dating back twenty centuries, collected, revised and arranged in logical order, and is thus an application upon an elaborate scale of the system of adjudicated precedents which forms the foundation of our Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence. But in China the respect for precedent and written authority is much greater than with us. "A quotation from Confucius has settled many a quarrel, arbitrated many a dispute."

The only class at all corresponding to our lawyers is that known as "searchers," whose business it is to find a precedent according to which a litigated question may be decided. With such notions thus deeply rooted a code containing the precedents of ages and embodying the sum of Chinese juridical philosophy is not apt to be seriously disturbed even by the mighty upheaval now taking place in the Celestial empire.—Charles Sumner Lobingier in American Review of Reviews.

A Teaser.

Smith—Oh, you've never found any difficulty in saying catchy sentences without getting muddled. I'll give you a teaser.

Jones—I bet I can say it. Try me.

Smith—Repeat "What am I doing?" very quickly a dozen times and see if you can get through all right.

Jones (very quickly)—What am I doing? What am I doing? What am I doing?

Smith (interrupting)—Making a fool of yourself, my dear fellow.—London Tatler.

Strong Language by Proxy.

Vicar—John, do you—er—ever use strong language?

John (guardedly)—Well, sir, I—I may be a little bit keener-like in my speech at times.

Vicar—Ah, I'm sorry, John. But we will converse about that some other time. Just now I want you to go to the plumber's and settle this bill. And you might just talk to the man in a careless sort of way, as if it were your own bill!—London Punch.

Thought He Was Home.

A German merchant's wife complained to a friend recently: "If only my husband were not so absentminded! The other day when we were dining at a restaurant the waiter brought him some bad fish, and all of a sudden Fritz threw the whole thing, fish, plate, bread, all at my head. I was ashamed."—London Scraps.

Are You About to Invest In a Piano?

If so invest in a good one, and buy it from a firm of established reputation. If there is honor in whatever house you deal with there will be worth and value in whatever goods it sells. It has always been our greatest pride in affording protection to our patrons. There are now more Steiff and Kohler & Campbell Pianos in the homes of Pitt county than all other makes combined.
