THE PITT TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

PRETTY DAY—LARGE NUMBER PRESENT.

Rev. B. W. Spilman and Prof. A. J. Barwick Addressed the Body—Miss Harding Conducts Model Recitation.

At 11 o'clock Saturday the Teachers' Association was called to order by President H. B. Smith. After devotional exercises conducted by the president, Miss Bessie Harding conducted a model recitation on reading in the first grade, which was highly enjoyed by the audience. Next came the address of Rev. B. W. Spilman, one of the leading Sunday school workers in the South. The subject of his address was "Get in the Game." The subject was a striking one and he had the most rapt attention from beginning to end. He said that we get somethings outside of books that have the greatest effect in shaping life. The boy's mind is a medley and must be guided by the teacher and in this way the teacher finds his greatest opportunity. The teacher must mingle with her pupils for in this way she has one of the greatest opportunities of life, for shaping the lives of those under her charge. The game of base ball brings out the essentials for success in life. (1) A ball player must be on his guard. He must watch for every opportunity and never lose one, so in life a man must not lose the opportunities laid before him. (2) He must know how to play ball. The world wants men who know how to do things and puts a premium on him, while the poor fellow who does not know is set aside. (3) Self reliance. Every man must perform his own individual duties in the world or he will prove a failure. (4) Physical vigor. The world needs strong and brawny men and every one to reach life's highest attainments must have a strong and healthy body. (5) Reliability. A true ball player will never take the advantage of another fellow player. If we would do the world the greatest good, we must be reliable. Business is founded on honest principles and he that succeeds must be counted on. (6) Sacrifice. The player sacrifices his own honor many times for the best interest of his team. Unselfishness is one of the greatest virtues and he who would be a true citizen must possess this noble quality. (7) Stay in the game. The player who loses interest in the last innings ought to be put off the diamond. The men who are making the greatest success in life are the ones who stick to their duties to the end. Mr. Spilman made a fine impression upon the large assembly of teachers present and surely such pungent and practical truths as he brought out, must make a lasting impression upon their lives.

Prof. A. J. Barwick of Raleigh was also present and delivered an excellent address on how the morning exercises in our schools should be conducted. He gave some very excellent suggestions as to how these exercises should be conducted to be of the greatest benefit. Among the leading suggestions were that the first fifteen minutes should be spent socially in the recitation rooms so that each might be put in the the most pleasant frame of mind for the days work. (2) He should have his roll book and note those who are absent so that each may feel the teacher's concern in him. (3) There should be singing consisting of religious songs, national airs, and lullabies. (4) The reading should be some scriptural passages, poems and stories. Memory gems are of untold value. The teacher must plan and put life into these exercises. By so doing the pupils are inspired to be in school on time and also receive lessons that will go with them through life.

After a few announcements by Prof. Ragsdale, one of the finest sessions of the year adjourned. The day was ideal and the crowd was large.

Bill to Remove Tax on Leaf Tobacco.

Washington, March 14.—A bill of great importance to the tobacco interests of the country was passed by the House of Representatives today. Among other things it provides for the removal of the tax on leaf tobacco when bought by store keepers or dealers and sold to consumers, permits storekeepers to buy and sell it as any other commodity without paying the tax and abrogates certain rules of the Internal Revenue Bureau, which prevents the grower from selling or delivering his tobacco to consumers by his agent.

Visiting Preachers.

Rev. D. W. Davis, of Washington, preached in the Christian church here Sunday morning and evening. He had large congregations at both services.

Rev. George E. Spruill, of South Carolina, who with his wife is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Moore, occupied the pulpit of Memorial Baptist church Sunday morning and night.

Old Time Fiddlers.

Mr. Ola Forbes, who has charge of the old time fiddlers' convention to be held in the opera house Thursday night, tells us the old fiddlers are coming from all over the county, and it promises to be the most unique and enjoyable entertainment Greenville people have had the opportunity of attending.

A Curiosity.

Mr. J. F. Godley, of Ayden, brought us a vegetable curiosity that is out of the ordinary. It is a sprout from a collard stalk that looks like it tried to imitate a palm leaf, being fan shaped and about eight inches wide at the end.

DEMONSTRATION OF FARM WORK.

TO BE STARTED IN PITT COUNTY.

The Advice of Dr. S. A. Knapp set Forth as Having Weight—How the Demonstration Work is Conducted.

Dr. S. A. Knapp, of the United States Department of Agriculture, is one of the highest authorities on agriculture. He is a practical farmer himself, has studied and taught it through this country and has spent a number of years studying it in foreign countries. Anything from him, therefore is worthy of careful notice.

He contends that there is no need for the widespread deterioration of farm lands and the general poverty of the masses on the farm. Our very civilization depends upon the uplifting of the general farmer. No civilization can be made higher than the earning capacity to support. Our work, therefore, is to reach the average farmer and to induce him to change his practices to such as will increase his earning capacity.

In the days of Moses the "Law and the Prophets" had to be boiled down to ten simple commandments, or rules, so that the great masses of the people could easily understand them. A full course in theology, therefore, was contained in ten simple precepts. Just so, the great bulk of agricultural information got out by the United States Department and various State institutions of agriculture, must be boiled down to a few general principles which are easily understood and put into practice by the average farmer. These may be summed up about as follows:

Better preparation of the soil.
Rotation of crops.
Best varieties of seed to plant.
Better use of home made and commercial fertilizers.
More intelligent cultivation.
He must use better teams and better implements so that he can do more work in a day. He must keep some account of his farm work so that he can profit by his mistakes.

The next problem is how to present these principles so that he will take hold and apply them. The only really successful way seems to be by demonstration. In other words, we must get inside of a man's environment if we would influence him. We endeavor to get into the radius of his environment and come into direct touch with him or some of his neighbors. We start a little demonstration with one of them to show that the average yield can be doubled and tripled without a corresponding increase in the cost of production.

The best man to reach the average farmer is a progressive farmer in whom he has confidence. This progressive farmer is employed to superintend the demonstration farms. His business is to see that the methods are thoroughly understood and applied. When a farmer has made one crop thus, at a less cost than ever before, he is so elated at his success that he will not think of going back to his old methods. His neighbors have watched him. They discuss the methods, until the result is a neighborhood reform. The effect therefore, is not remote but immediate.

By working a county thoroughly, a general public opinion is formed. Merchants, bankers and agricultural editors all contribute their influence to forwarding and spreading the movement because they are all benefitted by this greatly increased crop. Thus, it should not require a great many years to readjust agricultural conditions in the Southern States and place agriculture upon the high level which it should occupy.

Through the efforts of Congressman Small this demonstration is now being established in preliminary way in this county. Mr. L. C. Arthur has been selected to have charge of it. He will establish ten or a dozen farms on the main roads leading out from Greenville. In addition to this as many farmers in the county as can do so, may have and use the same methods by conferring with Mr. Arthur in person or sending him their names.

The work is not experimental but demonstrative and is confined to corn and cotton.

The Leaders.

Who are the men in the lead of the prohibition forces? Foremost among the Republicans we find Judge Pritchard whose high character is known and confessed by all men. He is a very zealous and loyal church worker, an earnest and influential member of the First Baptist church of Asheville. He stands four-square to every wind that blows. He is a power for righteousness in his city and section. On the other side is old Mr. Mott. Among the Democrats we find Gov. Jarvis, who, while he has always been a politician, he has also been faithful and true in his religious life. He is a member of the Methodist church and stands among the very foremost of the layman of that denomination. On the wet side the acknowledged leader is Col. George L. Morton. We give these as samples and simply ask any man who has sense enough to keep out of the rain, whose banner he would rather follow, that of Pritchard and Jarvis or that of Mott and Morton? We can usually judge any great cause by its exponent. Most men naturally fall on that side that appeals most powerfully to their inclinations and their tastes. This prohibition campaign is no exception. Like priest, like people. Those who admire the Mott and Morton stripe of men will naturally follow them. If anybody can put his finger on an opposer of this bill who is a moral force in his community, let him speak. We have searched in vain for him. On the contrary, the virtue, the religion, the culture, the refinement and the patriotism of the state are arrayed solidly on the other side. If any man through prejudice or passion takes the wrong position on this great question he will live to bitterly regret it unless he be lost to all sense of shame.—Charity and Children.

Col. Sugg Getting Well.

It was a real pleasure to see Col. I. A. Sugg walk into our office Saturday. He recently underwent a terrible operation in the Washington hospital, much of his tongue being cut out, and his friends were fearful that he would not recover. That he is up again, and the power of speech still spared to him even though it is imperfect, is gratifying indeed. He will go back to the hospital for two weeks and by that time hopes to be discharged as well.

RANDOM REFLECTIONS.

(By a Contributor.)

The days of the little Presidential boom are numbered.

Senator Foraker says he is not cast down. No; thrown down.

Business appears to be reviving everywhere except in congress.

"At last," says the St. Louis Times, "it has filtered through the country that St. Louis has the clearest drinking water of any large city in America." But that isn't what "made St. Louis famous," is it?

"What has become of the old fashioned boy who used to offer to fight a smaller boy on his knees and with one hand tied behind him?" asks the Atchison Globe. Why, we understand he is married, and gets all the fighting he wants.

PERFUMES.

How the Dainty Odors Are Coaxed From Freshly Picked Flowers.

Glass sheets held by frames a few inches apart are smeared rather thickly with lard, and between these sheets the freshly picked blossoms are scattered, touching the frames, but not being pressed by them. In one day the oil of the flowers exudes, and the lard absorbs the precious drops. If the flowers are plentiful, they may be changed as often as every six hours and in the case of jonquills thirty times. Jasmine is usually changed eighty times before the layers of lard are entirely saturated. When the lard has absorbed as much oil as possible from the flowers, it is melted and dissolved in purified alcohol made from grain. When this mixture is filtered, the concentrated extract may be redissolved in spirits, diluted or mixed with other oils, according to the strength or quality desired.

Attar of roses and neroli, the base of eau de cologne, are made by a different method. The perfume may be extracted by an ordinary process of distillation if a very even heat is maintained, but the usual method is the bain marie. A large kettle of lard is immersed in a tub of water at the boiling point until the grease reaches a uniform temperature and is entirely melted. Into this warm lard the petals of orange blossoms or of roses are thrown. The petals remain a day or less in this bath, and then the inodorous wilted flowers are removed and fresh ones submerged until the mixture attains the desired strength. The women beat the mixture into a cream. After the pomade is made the oil may be shipped in this state or distilled and sold in its concentrated form as attar of roses or neroli or diluted to the strength of "perfume" or eau de cologne.

Twenty thousand pounds of rose petals are required to make one pound of attar of roses, valued at about $200. A thousand pounds approximately of the petals of the flower of the bitter orange are necessary to make a pound of neroli, valued at $20 on an average.—Jane Rosamond White in World Today.

He Wanted a Smoke.

An old Welsh preacher in his eightieth year, who was an inveterate smoker, was one day driving out with his servant, also noted for the quantity of tobacco he consumed.

Suddenly the trap overturned, with the old man underneath, the groom having succeeded in jumping on to the hedge.

A crowd of men by whom the old man was almost worshiped at once rushed to the spot and proceeded to raise the capsized vehicle, believing that the old gentleman was seriously hurt, if not killed.

They had raised one side of the trap when he thrust his head from beneath and addressed his servant: "George, have you got a light?"—London Tit-Bits.

As Many Bald Women as Men.

"Why is it men get bald and women don't?"

At this question the hairdresser laughed.

"My dear sir," he said, "there are quite as many bald women as men—in fact, I incline to believe that there are more."

He pointed to the switches, curls, fringes and complete female wigs in his window.

"Why would those things exist if women didn't get bald?" he said.

"The hairdresser puts in all his spare time in making false hair contrivances, and nine out of ten of them are made for woman. Well, woman wouldn't wear them if she didn't need them, would she?"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Savage Proverbs.

"The proverbs of the savages of Africa are interesting," said an ethnologist. "They are full of color. Here are a few from the Basutos, the Yorubas, the Wolofs and the Fashitos:

"Cross the river before you abuse the crocodile."

"He who unjustly spears another knives himself."

"The mud hippopotamus does not bring forth the gazelle."

"One head impaled on the gatepost is more valuable than six on the shoulders of enemies."

"Kraals built in a day are mud ruins in a week."

The Dragon and the Goddess.

A woman was at a dinner party with an eminent Chinese philosopher when she said: "May I ask why you attach so much importance to the dragon in your country? You know there is no such creature, don't you? You have never seen one, have you?" "My dear madam," graciously answered the great Chinaman, "why do you attach so much importance to the Goddess of Liberty on your coins? You know there is no such lady, don't you? You have never seen her, have you?"

Hypnotism.

The actual foundation of modern hypnotic suggestion was discovered by Liebeault of Nancy, the famous "father of the therapeutic application of suggestion." After several years of practical experience, in 1866 Liebeault wrote his first book on the subject. It was shelved, and he was called a lunatic. Hypnotism remained a curiosity, and Liebeault's book was not reproduced till six years after Charcot, in 1878, began his study of hypnotism. In 1884 Bernheim wrote his work on suggestion, and this created a demand for Liebeault's book, which then gave him his lasting reputation.—New York American.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol For Dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly, and write this hoping that humanity will be benefited. "Boost the Booster!"

That's the official slogan of a certain town in Arkansas which through boosting itself and boosting its boosters has doubled its population since the 1900 census.

BOOST THE BOOSTER!

The Arkansas town had been quarreling among itself for years, and standing still. It had boosters, but it had others who refused to boost the boosters, refused to stand by them and yell, "Good boy—keep it up!"

BOOST THE BOOSTER!

Finally the town got together with itself, organized a "Boost the Booster Club" and began to boom. Now its principal thoroughfare, which was a streak of mud, is a stretch of asphalt, and it has new buildings to match. Now everybody boosts the booster and booms the boom.

BOOST THE BOOSTER!

This town might take a hint from that one. We have our town boosters—every town has some. But sometimes they get discouraged because of opposition right here in our midst.

BOOST THE BOOSTER!

Cut out the criticism! Quit the queering! Boom the Boom! Then watch the old town perk up and plunge forward. You can see it move.

WHEN YOU BOOST THE BOOSTER YOU BOOM THE BOOM.

THE REAPER KINGS.

A Theory That Lincoln's Candidacy Was Due to Their Wars.

Among the different types of reapers and the numerous variations of each type the bitterest rivalries prevailed. There was no pool, no "gentlemen's agreement," no "community of interest." Indeed the "harvester business" was not, business. It was a riotous game of "farmer, farmer, who gets the farmer?" The excited players cared less for the profits than for the victories. As fast as they made money they threw it back into the game. Mechanics became millionaires and millionaires became mechanics. The whole trade was tense with risk and rivalry and excitement, as though it were a search for gold along the high plateaus of the Rand. And this in spite of the fact that, with the exception of McCormick, Osborne and Whiteley, the men who came to be known as reaper kings were not naturally fighters. No business men were ever gentler than Deering, Glessner, Warder, Adriance and Huntley. But the making of reapers was a new trade. It was like a vast, unfenced prairie, where every settler owned as much ground as he could defend.

Each step ahead meant a struggle for patents. Whoever built a reaper had to defend himself in the courts as well as approve himself in the harvest fields. Cyrus H. McCormick especially, as William Deering soon learned, wielded the big stick against every man who dared to make reapers. He was the grizzled old veteran of the trade, and he gave battle to his competitors as though they were a horde of trespassers. He was their common enemy, and the reaper money that was squandered on lawsuits brought a golden era of prosperity to the lawyers.

Some of these patent wars shook the country with the crash of hostile forces. The tide of battle rolled up to the supreme court and even into the halls of congress. Once in 1855, when McCormick charged full tilt upon John H. Manny, who was making reapers at Rockford, Ill., a three year struggle began that was the most noted legal duel of the day.

McCormick, to make sure of his victory, went into the fight with a battery of lawyers whom he thought invincible—William H. Seward, E. M. Dickerson and Senator Reverdy Johnson. Manny made a giant effort at self defense by hiring Abraham Lincoln, Edwin M. Stanton, Stephen A. Douglas, Peter H. Watson, George Harding and Congressman H. Winter Davis.

From first to last it was a lawyers' battle, and McCormick was finally defeated by Stanton, who made an unanswerably eloquent speech. For this speech Stanton received $10,000, and Lincoln, who had made no speech at all, was given $1,000. Yet in the long run the man who profited by this lawsuit was Lincoln, for it was this money that enabled him to carry on his famous debate with Douglas and thus made him the inevitable candidate of the Republican party. — H. N. Casson in Everybody's Magazine.

He Didn't Care.

"We—we want you to marry us," said the blushing young man, indicating a young woman with downcast eyes and smiling face who stood a step behind him.

"Come in," said the minister. And he endeavored to ease their embarrassment for a moment. "But he soon decided that it was useless to try."

"Will you be married with a ring?" he inquired. The young man turned a helpless gaze on his companion and then looked at the minister.

"If you've got one to spare and it can come out of the $2, I guess she'd like it," he said at last.—Youth's Companion.

Solicitude.

"I have had a delightful evening, Miss Genevieve," said young Cholly, rising to go at 11:30, "and I had no idea it was so late, had you?"

"Why, Mr. Smallweed, I?" "For heaven's sake, Miss Genevieve," exclaimed the young man in alarm, "don't yawn! There was a girl who yawned too hard the other day and dislocated her jaw!"

With an effort she turned the yawn into a laugh, and the idiot remained ten minutes longer.—Chicago Tribune.

How to Make Cold Cream.

To make cold cream take of oil of almonds two ounces, spermaceti half an ounce and white wax a dram. Melt together and while cooling add two ounces of rosewater, stirring until cold. Cold cream may also be made by this formula: Take four ounces of unsalted butter, four ounces of white wax and an ounce of vaseline. Melt together and perfume with oil of bergamot. The more cold creams are stirred and beaten while cooling the whiter they become.

Where Four States Meet.

It is odd to reflect that it is possible for one to be in four states at the same time. Yet there is one such spot in the United States. Glancing at a map of the United States, one finds an intersection between two straight lines, where Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona meet. The place is not often visited, as it is not easily reached. The stone erected by government surveyors is on the top of a spur in the Carrizo mountains. The nearest railway town is Mancos, Colo., nearly a hundred miles from the "four corners." The region about was once densely populated by cliff dwellers, but there are now no human beings within miles. Some years ago the Indians destroyed the boundary shaft. It was not replaced until 1904, probably because a long time elapsed before the authorities knew the old one had been wrecked.

Appropriate Sentiment.

Many years ago the energetic Professor Schwarz was conducting a musical society. They were studying Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and had reached the chorus, "Hear us, O Lord, hear, mighty God."

The men's voices were booming out sonorously when the conductor cried out: "No, no! De dreadful vawel! Don't say B-a-l-e. Soften a liddle. Give do more musical sound.—Ball!"

Whereupon the chorus took up the strain again, "Hear us Baw!—hear us Baw!" But they quickly realized the peculiar fitness of the sentiment and broke down in laughter, to the great amazement of the little German, who never saw the joke, but who returned reluctantly to the old pronunciation.

Egg Dishes.

An odd combination of breakfast codfish balls and eggs is prepared in this way: Make the fish balls flat and fry them brown. Poach some eggs in rings, and when done slip one on each ball.

Egg balls are an attractive breakfast or luncheon dish. The eggs are boiled hard and the whites removed. Some minced ham is mixed with white sauce and seasoned with a little dry mustard and spread on rounds of toast, and one ball is put on each slice, and more white sauce, mixed with the chopped whites, is poured around.—Harper's Bazar.

No Liberties.

"Well," said Edith's mother when the child arrived home from the tea party, "did you have a good time?"

"Yes, thank you, mamma."

"And did you play nice games?"

"Yes, mamma."

"And did you have a nice tea?"

"Yes, mamma."

"I hope, Edith, that you behaved yourself like a little lady. You did not take any liberties, did you?"

"No, mamma. There wasn't any on the table."

A SHREWD LITTLE GIRL.

Prompted a Question Which Saved an Old Woman's Life.

Elizabeth Janfield, afterward Lady Falkland, was called an "old child." Sometimes her father, who was a judge, took her with him to court. On one of these occasions a woman was brought before him on a charge of witchcraft. It was said that she had bewitched two or three persons to death. The frightened creature when asked if this were so fell on her knees and, weeping, confessed that the accusations against her were true.

"Did you bewitch — to death?" asked the judge.

"Yes," was her reply.

"Did you come in the form of a black cat and breathe on him so that he languished away?"

"I did."

And then the judge heard a whisper at his ear, and his little daughter—she was only ten years old—begged him to ask the woman if she had bewitched John Symondes to death.

The question was put and immediately answered in the affirmative. How had she done it? Then she told one of her former stories, at which all the company laughed. The reason of the merriment was that John Symondes was the judge's brother-in-law and at that moment was standing near him in court. The judge then asked why she had made such a statement.

"Alas, sir, I knew him not," replied the woman. "I said so because you asked me."

"Are you no witch?"

"No, God knows I'm not."

"Nor did you ever see the devil?"

"No; never in all my life."

On further examination she said she had been told that if she did not confess she would be tortured until she did, but that if she admitted all the accusations mercy would be shown her. She was thereupon acquitted, and she owed her release and probably her life to the shrewdness of a little girl.

A correspondent writes: "On reading your paper this morning I find a pretty little poem signed Leigh Hunt. I have one or two at present I would like to have you consider. Hoping for a favorable reply, I am," etc.

That's the way it goes. We just knew that if we let Leigh Hunt contribute some verses a lot of others would want to. Send your poems in, lady. But, understand, we didn't pay Leigh a cent for his, so don't expect any pecuniary advantage. Hunt is satisfied with the honor he got. You must be the same.—Cleveland Leader.

The Toad the Friend of Man.

There are no better friends to have in the garden than the toads. If they could be protected and encouraged to live there they would eradicate many of the grubs and cutworms that do so much damage to plants. The great enemy of the toad is the small boy. Bands of schoolboys have been known to go out and in a single day kill as many as 300 of these useful animals. Boys regard this as innocent sport, being untaught and not knowing that the toad is a most valuable insect destroyer. Teach these young barbarians to avoid cruelty.—American Farmer.
