BAPTISTS HAD A JOYOUS SUNDAY.

OPENING OF THE HANDSOME NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL ROOMS.

Anniversary Services of Memorial Church—Uplifting Sermon by Dr. Battle and Able Address by Governor Jarvis.

Sunday was a glad day not only for the Baptists of Greenville, but also for all others who worshipped with them on that day. There were two reasons for this joy—one the completion and use for the first time of the handsome rooms of the Sunday school, and the other the anniversary services of the church that brought a feast to worshippers not experienced on ordinary occasions.

It has long been the wish of the Baptists to complete the basement of the church building and convert it into apartments suitable to the needs of the growing Sunday school. Under the earnest leadership of the pastor, Rev. J. E. Ayscue, this work was undertaken a few months ago, and result is the church now has a suite of rooms for the Sunday school that are both beautiful and convenient. The opening of these rooms for use the first time Sunday morning was marked by a record breaking attendance for the school, the number reaching 260.

The regular order of exercises was varied into a program that was of unusual interest, there being an excellent musical program and several splendid short addresses. Mr. J. B. Little first spoke of "The Sunday school of the olden time," telling with much interest and feeling of his first recollection of the Sunday school here forty years ago. Prof. H. B. Smith spoke of "The present day Sunday school," emphasizing the benefits that have come through gradation of classes and through preparation for teaching. Dr. H. W. Battle spoke of "The Sunday school of the future," showing that the rapid strides from the past to the present, coupled with the splendid equipment noted today, pointed to even greater advancement in future.

The 11 o'clock service in the main auditorium was no less interesting than the Sunday school. Dr. Henry W. Battle, of Kinston, preached a sermon that for beauty of expression and uplifting inspiration it seems could hardly be surpassed. He used as a text Hosea 2:19, "And I will betroth thee unto me forever." His theme was love, the love of Christ for the world, and his desire for our love in return for this great expression of divine interest. The application of every truth presented was with the power of a deep thinker, and the illustrations used were beautiful in their expression and appropriateness. The hearers were delighted and eager to catch the words of the eloquent speaker.

At the evening service the building was thronged with people to hear the address of ex-Gov. T. J. Jarvis on the subject "What do the churches mean to the town?" Such an audience was a compliment to this distinguished layman and statesman. Telling briefly the condition of the churches here when he first came to Greenville and the progress they have made in the years following, he said he would answer the question in his subject by saying the churches mean to the town what the members make it. It does not depend upon the church, upon, the building, upon the creed; but upon the member. Then with the theme "promptness" he forcibly impressed the duties of members making the church fill the mission that Christ intended.

Rev. M. T. Plyler, pastor of the Methodist church, was present and took part in the service and his congregation joined in the worship, this being in keeping with the Christian spirit prevailing among the churches of the town. The progress and upbuilding of one is the pride and joy of all.

The choir rendered excellent music at each of the services and the entire anniversary program was very interesting. Just before closing Pastor Ayscue fittingly expressed thanks to all who had attended and to all who by their presence and help had shown interest in the progress of the church.

"VANDERBILT IN SASSIETY."

He Jines the Betterment Class and Tells What He Sees.

Grifton, N. C., Mar. 20.

Mr. Editor:

Good gracious sakes alive! why bless my big, fat, ole, ugly soul. I've jined the good looking sassiety, just for the betterment of the community at large generally, and Grifton pertickler. So after jining the club, and passing in my fee, I went out to head quarters for initiation and what do you reckon happened? O my, just as I get ready and started, Jupiter commence throwing lightning darts all along the firmament, which made the bull dog, thunder, raise up his bristles and growl in basso tones that made the earth grumble with the echoes thereof.

Well, with much fear and trembling we got thar after a bit, and after introducing the door keeper, to a quarter, we entered the promised land and then we beheld the beauty thereof until you couldn't rest a minute. So we very considerately occupied ourself with a seat and viewed the landscape o'er and o'er. Well, Vanderbilt, what did you see? See! Why there was no see in it. We were so dazzled with the angelic beauty of the ladies in attendance we saw only what we saw. I saw cousin B. B. sitting on his dignity on one side of the hall, with his war paint on, admiring the gals from long law. I took a seat on a school desk not far off, and settled down to business, admiring the beauties, of course. I set there a while and smoled me a smile or two and talked with the preacher a few, and then it seemed like one of St. Peter's gal angels came down upon the scene, and announced that time to wait for the performance should be no more.

After this salutation the curtain rose and the entertainment of song and music filled our ears which so thrilled our being that first thing we knew we were patting our feet. Well, after a song or so they come out on book-tionary, but I could not "tie on ary book." They spelled "Ivanhoe" the curiusest you eber seed, when the curtain riz there was a young man with a hoe in his hand which was just as good as to say "Iv'e an hoe." (Ivanhoe) But "Ole gray hoss jest git out the wilderness," when the fiddler performed his operation. Gee whiz! it was enuf to make your sole walk when the electrical influence of such saintly music was produced from the cat gut and rosin.

Now, this is but a faint idea of the grand musicale under the enchantment of the music from the side board where Mrs. Settle settled the hash of that institution by turning the dishes, plates cups and saucers, spoons, knives and forks all into musical chords under her accomplished art of minging and doing about upon the keys as only those who know how can do. I know Brothers Ragsdale and Joyner would have enjoyed themselves hugely had they been here in the flesh, as they were in the spirit. I saw their "sperrits" sitting up there on the "Pie Nannie" and I could almost see a smile creep over the countenance of their pictures as they reviewed the entertainment until refreshments were served. Cake and ice cream, in abundance and Vanderbilt was lucky enough to draw a "spring chicken" for his lady friend to supper.

Will, I will close by saying that Grifton is fast rushing to the front with our present lady teachers the leaders of the Betterment society. Misses Lillie B. Grant, Janie Robinson and Kate Reid, have shown ability to do all necessary for the betterment of the graded school here. I don't boast at all when I say, that at the general roll call of the greatest improvement made in the school line all others may look to their laurels, as Grifton is on a rush. Good bye, 'till next time, which I hope will be next week.

Your Loving Friend,
Vanderbilt.

Ice Plant Will Operate.

Mr. R. L. Hill, of Kinston, has leased the ice plant here, with the privilege of purchase, and will have it in operation in a few days. It is Mr. Hill's purpose to enlarge the capacity of the plant to meet the needs of the town, but in the meantime he has arranged to have any shortage shipped him from Kinston so that there may at all times be an adequate supply on hand.

Doubling Up.

Speaking of "doubling things" reminds me of a story I once heard of a little girl whose name was Suzie. This particular Suzie had a habit of saying "g-o-o-d, good," and "w-o-o-d, wood," and she used to look so funny when she spelled words in that fashion that, like Mary's little lamb, she always caused a commotion in the school-room.

So one day the teacher said: "Suzie, dear, you mustn't say g-o-o-d. Say g-double o-d. Try to remember, my child."

Just then they came to the old familiar phrase in the regulation first reader: "Up, up, Jane! The sun is risen!" It was little Suzie's turn. Looking up with a cute smile to catch the look of sympathy and approval she felt sure she merited for remembering the rule of "doubling things," said she, without even a sign of hesitation: "Double up, Jane! The sun has risen!"—London Answers.

A Notable Performance.

A member of the school board of Philadelphia describes a unique schoolhouse in northern Pennsylvania, where the schoolmaster keeps his boys grinding steadily at their desks, but sometimes permits them to nibble from their lunch boxes as they work.

One day the pedagogue was instructing a class in arithmetic when he noticed that one pupil was devoting more attention to a piece of pie than to his lesson.

"William," commanded the stern mentor, "will you pay attention to the lesson?"

"I'm listening, sir," said the boy.

"Listening, are you?" exclaimed the master. "Then you're listening with one ear and eating pie with the other!"—Harper's Weekly.

Sheep as Beasts of Burden.

In the northern part of India sheep are put to a use unthought of in European or American countries. They are made to serve as beasts of burden. The mountain paths along the foothills of the Himalayas are so precipitous that the sheep, more surefooted than larger beasts, are preferred as burden carriers. The load for each sheep is from sixteen to twenty pounds. The sheep are driven from village to village, with the wool still growing, and in each town the farmer shears as much wool as he can sell there and loads the sheep with the grain which he receives in exchange. After his flock has been sheared he turns it homeward, each sheep having on its back a small bag containing the purchased grain.

Coal Formation.

Coal, both hard and soft, is altered and hardened vegetable matter, formed out of the remains of ancient plants. Roughly speaking, coal consists of from 80 to 95 per cent carbon mixed with a small proportion of various mineral substances, which remain as ash when coal is burned. In addition to these constituents coal contains, locked up within itself, a certain amount of gas, varying in quantity according to the kind of coal, the anthracite containing more and the bituminous less gas.

MR. SMALL'S OPPOSITION.

Surely the first district will not be led into changing its representative in congress at this time. It is said Representative Small, who now holds the place, will be opposed for re-nomination by Mr. William M. Bond, of Hertford. Mr. Bond is reported to be an able lawyer and a very excellent gentleman; but so is Mr. Small. And in addition to this Mr. Small is now in the midst of a gigantic scheme for the betterment of the eastern part of the state, perhaps conceived by him, but finding in him one of its most ardent and indefatigable advocates of recent years. We refer to the inland waterway project. Of course the whole North Carolina delegation in both house and senate, is standing solidly and enthusiastically by Mr. Small in the great project, but when the history of the completed waterway is written the congressmen from the first district will be known as the "father of the water way."

From this standpoint it is an affair not only of the Democrats of the first district, but of the east and indeed of the whole state as well. The benefits that will be derived from the great undertaking will stimulate the whole east into renewed activity. The project, though, before success comes must be pushed with the energy and enthusiasm of intimate familiarity born of the earnest pursuit of a cherished ideal, and this point of vantage is occupied by Representative Small.

Thus thousands of other Democrats than those of the first districts are interested in Mr. Small's political future; and while it is up to the first district Democrats to make the final disposition we feel that we can with propriety enter a plea for what we regard as the common welfare.—Kinston Free Press.

The Free Press well expresses the sentiment the people throughout the State feel in regard to the first district's representative in congress. Mr. Small is too useful a man to be put aside at a time when his experience and influence are worth so much, and the people of his district are going to give very little consideration to the proposition to retire him and put an inexperienced man in his place.

About the most amusing thing we have read in connection with the last hazing at the A. & M. college, was the article in Friday's Raleigh News and Observer that the report sent out about it was all a fake. How refreshing it is to know there was not any hazing, none at all.

The Kentucky "night riders," or some of the same stripe, have extended their operations over into Virginia and are making threats against large tobacco growers in the State.

Japan wants a visit from America's touring fleet and the emperor has sent an invitation to that effect.

Among other fatal diseases is old age.

PHOTOGRAPHING ANIMALS.

Some Dangers the Man Behind the Camera Encounters.

Today the camera penetrates everywhere, and sometimes its use is attended with considerable danger and difficulty. Nowhere is this more pronounced than when the camera is brought into use in taking lifelike pictures of wild animals in captivity.

How hazardous this may be is shown by the following incident, which happened not long ago at a big zoological garden abroad: A fine white leopard had been added to the collection, and as soon as it appeared to have settled down the authorities decided to have it photographed. It seemed to be a fairly quiet creature—nervous and timid, to be sure, but without any sign of temper.

When the keeper entered its cage it had taken little notice of him beyond the usual spitting and hissing natural to its kind. The photographer therefore followed the keeper into its cage without apprehension of trouble.

He set up his apparatus, adjusted it, took several pictures of the leopard, and all seemed satisfactory. As he shut up his camera, however, the operator chanced to shuffle his feet once or twice on the floor of the cage.

Like a streak of lightning the leopard, with an ominous snarl, leaped at him, and before he could move the animal was gripping his ankle with his forepaws and furiously biting at his foot. Luckily the keeper and some assistants succeeded in beating off the beast in time to save the photographer's life, but it was a narrow squeak.

At the same zoo some time after when an attempt was made to photograph one of the llamas—an animal generally considered to be a fairly docile creature, with nothing particularly objectionable about it beyond its habit of spitting—the photographer's "subject" revealed its true nature by suddenly making a dash for camera and operator, and before the latter could be rescued he was the recipient of innumerable scratches, cuts and bruises which took some weeks to heal.

It is an open question whether seals and sea lions are vicious or not. They are certainly extremely curious and anxious to find out things for themselves, and a photographer who tried to take a picture of a troupe of performing sea lions had an experience worth recording.

He erected his tripod and camera and was about to make the exposure when one of the sea lions wriggled off his pedestal and made straight for the camera. It was all done so quickly that before the photographer realized it the camera was upset and the sea lion was biting the man's legs and feet pretty sharply.

The trainer got him away, and no serious harm was done, but he explained to the camera man that sea lions often did a little biting just to find out what an object was made of!—Pearson's Weekly.

Clancy's Employer.

Benjamin F. Butler of Massachusetts was a tireless worker when he started on anything. He and his secretary, Clancy, says the Baltimore Sun, oftentimes sat in the library until almost daylight when the general wanted to finish up anything.

During the night sessions of the senate toward a close of congress a senator called on General Butler one morning at 3 o'clock. The same senator called again when the senate adjourned the following morning at daybreak and found the general and Clancy still at work.

"Don't you ever stop?" the senator asked.

"No," General Butler said. "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do."

"General, I never knew before just who my employer was," Clancy said, bowing.

Placing the Blame.

Counsel (a giant in the world of cross examiners)—You are continually bringing actions, aren't you?

Plaintiff—I have brought a few.

Counsel—You didn't succeed in the last, did you?

Plaintiff—I came out of it all right.

Counsel—Do you mean to say you didn't lose it?

Plaintiff—I did not.

Counsel—You didn't? Remember, sir, you are on your oath.

Plaintiff—I know that.

Counsel—And yet you swear you didn't lose that action?

Plaintiff—I did not. You threw it away for me.—London Scraps.

"Did she swear at you?" asked the judge.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol For Dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly, and write this hoping that humanity will be benefited. ODD OR EVEN.

It is a Very Simple Game, but May Be Made Quite Expensive.

An eminent Dutch artist during a visit to Paris encountered two of his former students whom he had frequently extended pecuniary assistance. "At last, dear master," exclaimed the elder of these two out at the elbow bohemians, "we can repay to some little extent the kindness you rendered us at Leyden. Come, you must dine with us!"

In spite of the Dutchman's polite protestations they each took an arm and hurried him to the finest hotel in the city. After a splendid repast the master, observing the countenances of his hosts and guessing from their shabby appearance that their generosity had led them to incur a bill beyond their joint purse, announced his intention of settling the score.

"Impossible!" cried the elder student, as if insulted at the suggestion. But after considerable discussion he became less determined. "Ah, well, my master," he said generously, "as you insist I will relax so far as to play a game of skill with you for it! I am thinking of a number. Is it odd or even?"

"Even," replied his guest. "Odd," said the student immediately. "So you have the pleasure of paying for the dinner, while I pay for the wine."

"Wait," said the Dutch artist, puzzled. "Let us play for that too."

"If you wish it, certainly," rejoined the student, shrugging his shoulders. "I am thinking of a number. Is it odd or even?"

"Odd!" cried the master. "Even," was the cool reply.

"But," inquired the loser after paying the heavy reckoning, "I am curious to hear the principle of your game."

"It is very simple," the student answered. "As you see, I think of a number, odd or even, and you have to guess it."

"Ah," murmured the master thoughtfully, "I see! Yes, it is simple—very simple. But I would not play with many people. It is too expensive for me!"—London Answers.

Ought to Have Known Him.

He was a drummer of the more flashy type and had just finished telling a startling story to his newly made acquaintance in the parlor car.

"That reminds me of one of Munchausen's yarns," remarked the victim for want of something better to say.

"Munchausen? Who is he?" "Why, don't you know about him? He is the most colossal example of mendacity that civilization has produced."

A brief, painful silence ensued, which was broken by the traveler in a tone that was almost timid.

"Excuse me, my friend," he said, "if I seem inquisitive, but would you mind telling me what house he travels for?"

When We Talk Grammatically.

The universal vogue of correct English would be little short of calamity. The doubter has only to imagine the effect on the animation and interest of life if we should wake up some morning to find every one saying "I shall" and "I will" in their proper places, the newsboy purged of slang, the racy brogues dislodged from the street car and the street corner, the hired man pronouncing according to Webster and the two-year-olds lisping—I beg their pardon; they would no longer lisp—uttering their thoughts in phrases conforming to Lindley Murray, Dr. Murray and the "king's English."—Atlantic.

A Blind Critic.

From a blind man came the most illuminating criticism of Irving's Shylock. The sensitive ear of the sightless hearer detected a fault in his method of delivering the opening line of his part, "Three thousand ducats—well!" "I hear no sound of the usurer in that," the blind man said at the end of the performance. "It is said with the reflective air of a man to whom money means very little." The justice of the criticism appealed strongly to Irving. He revised his reading not only of the first line, but of many other lines in which he saw that he had not been enough of the money lender.

Warts.

Little is known about the causation of warts except that the irritation of dirt is in the majority of cases the prevailing factor. The color of them is caused by dirt, and if they are well scrubbed with soap and a nail brush they will become lemon or pink color or even quite white. The best application is salicylic acid, either with collodion or in the form of a plaster. Every three or four days the parts should be well soaked in hot water and the softened portions of the wart peeled away, when the application is renewed.—London Answers.

BRAWN BEAT STEAM.

Odd Contest in the Early Days of Steam Fire Engines.

In what are sometimes called the halcyon days of the volunteer fire department of New York there was a prejudice against the use of steam power on fire engines. The New York firemen still believed in the work of ready hands and proved their sincerity by challenging an Ohio inventor of a steam fire engine named Latta to a public trial of strength and excellence in the city hall park. The challenge was accepted, and the engine reached New York on Feb. 8, 1855. On the next day in the city hall park in the presence of 20,000 spectators the trial of skill took place. At the request of the common council the Exempt engine company entered the lists with hand engine No. 42, the old "hay wagon," and proceeded to compete with the Latta steam engine.

A match was applied to the kindling wood in the Ohio steam engine, which in eight and a half minutes began to pump and discharge water through two large suction. The "hay wagon" led off by throwing a stream of water toward Beekman street through a one and one-eighth inch nozzle, the steam engine following with a stream in the same direction through a one and five-eighths inch triangular nozzle. When measured, the stream of the former was found to be 189 feet long and that of the latter 182 feet. Again the competing engines played. At a distance of about 200 feet a party of small boys stood in the street tauntingly demanding to be drenched. The Cincinnati engine unsuccessfully endeavored to gratify them, but when the New York engine began to play they fled in the midst of a drenching shower bath Cincinnati was beaten by fifteen feet.

Then a third trial was ordered. Upon the roof of the city hall 150 feet of hose was hoisted and the pipes pointed upward toward the figure of Justice on the cupola. Pulling themselves together for a last great effort, the New York exempts manned the brakes. For a minute the two streams remained at equal height. Then, amid unbounded applause, the New Yorkers sent their stream clear above that of their contestants and kept it so until the end.—New York Sun.

Helping Him Out.

Lord S., a noted athlete, once took a journey from the metropolis purposely to challenge a blacksmith whom he found working in an inclosure a little distance from his forge. His lordship tied his horse to a tree and then addressed the blacksmith:

"Friend, I've heard wonderful reports of your skill and have come a long way to see which of us two is the better wrestler."

The blacksmith, without a word, seized his lordship, pitched him over the hedge and then resumed his work.

The nobleman slowly picked himself up.

"Well," said the blacksmith, "have you anything more to say to me?"

"No," replied his lordship, "but perhaps you'd be kind enough to throw me my horse!"—London Standard.

Salesman—Well, for instance, suppose you are mending a bathing suit. Turn the indicator to "Till Splash You if You Splash Me." Then when you are sewing up a rip in the wash cloth do it to the accompaniment of "It's a Grand Old Rag." When stitching a hole in your male parent's handkerchief, let it play "The Blow Almost Killed Father," and—

Customer—Yes, but suppose I was making a crazy quilt?

Salesman—Do it to the tune of "Every Little Bit Helps."

Customer—I'll take it.

Tail Spells Ox.

A lady was one day teaching her little girl how to spell. She used a pictorial primer, and over each word was the accompanying illustration. Polly glibly spelled "o-x, ox," and "b-o-x, box," and the mother thought she was making "very rapid progress," perhaps even too rapid. So she put her hand over the picture and then asked:

"Polly, what does o-x spell?"

"Ox," answered Polly nimbly.

"How do you know that it spells ox?"

"Seed his tail!" she responded.

"How did your husband get out of the building after he had located the gas leak?" asked the reporter. "As nearly as he could remember it afterward," said the woman, "he went out through the roof."—Chicago Tribune.

REST YOUR RAZOR.

Fry Sharpening It After and Not Before You Shave.

A man who was showing his new set of ivory handled razors to some friends the other day explained to them the shaving system which he has perfected for his own use.

"I'm an old dog, and I learn few new tricks," said he. "Using a safety razor is one of the many modern accomplishments which I cannot boast. I stick to the old fashioned implement and have accumulated some very fine specimens of the same.

"These ivory handled ones I bought in England, and as I regard them as the choicest ones I have, I use them only on Sundays and holidays. No. 1," he pointed to a mark on one handle, "I use on the second and the fourth Sunday and on holidays. No. 2 I use on the first, the third and the fifth Sunday.

"That gives them about the same amount of use and allows them the rest which they need. I always give my razors rest.

"It isn't the act of shaving which is so hard on them. It is the sharpening, especially as the average man's method of stropping is positively brutal maltreatment of a defenseless and delicate victim.

"Even the most careful sharpening leaves a razor blade in a very susceptible and precarious condition. For that reason I never sharpen my razor just before I shave. On the contrary, I sharpen it when I have finished. Then I put it carefully in its case, and it has a chance to rest and to regain its temper before I use it.

"You strop a razor vigorously and the friction produces heat in the blade. This very materially affects the exceedingly thin edge, so that the crystallization breaks down when you begin to shave. Let your blade cool off, become set and cold, and you will find your morning's shave a much easier and calmer performance." — Washington Post.

Her Revenge.

It happened on a crowded Broadway car. Two portly gentlemen were occupying a large amount of space. "Hi there," said the conductor; "shove up and give this here lady a chance."

The men grudgingly uncovered some four inches of seat, and "this here lady" balanced herself cautiously on the edge. She was a little slip of a schoolgirl, but even she couldn't be comfortable on four inches of car seat. The men were buried in their papers and showed no intention of yielding further.

The schoolgirl waited till a massive scrub lady, pail and all, entered the car. She quickly rose and offered her seat. The original offenders were lost to view, buried under 250 pounds of scrub lady. Then the schoolgirl laughed. Her revenge was complete.—New York Sun.

His Dream.

"There is some money, my love," said the husband. "I don't want any," replied the wife. "Come, now, darling, take this five pound note and go out shopping." "Thank you, dearest, but I really don't care to. I would rather stay at home and see to the housework." Then the husband awoke and found that he had been dreaming.—Liverpool Mercury.
