NEW PASSENGER REGULATIONS.

NORFOLK AND SOUTHERN ISSUES CIRCULAR.

Purchasers of Mileage Tickets Will Have to Go Through a Lot of "Red Tape."

The Norfolk & Southern Railway has issued a circular containing advance information of revised passenger fares and mileage to become effective April 1st, next. This announcement is made in pursuance of the provisions of the rate act passed at the recent special session. The material points are as follows:

Effective April 1st, 1908, passenger fares on these lines in the State of North Carolina, will be revised to basis of two and one-half cents and three cents per mile.

Mileage tickets will on and after April be known as "Mileage exchange orders." Especial attention is called to the arrangement whereby all forms of mileage transportation sold on or after April 1st, 1908, are to be exchanged at ticket offices for passage tickets, except from stations where there are no agents or where the agent is not on duty or for any other valid reason, making it impracticable for the passenger to have his or her mileage exchanged for a passage ticket. In such case, conductors will honor the mileage exchange orders (coupons) for passage on trains, endorsing on back of mileage lifted the reason therefore.

The Norfolk & Southern will sell thousand mile individual exchange orders (or mileage books) for $20, the same to be good over several Southern roads. These are non-transferable and may be exchanged at ticket offices for passage tickets to be used on trains. For $40 a two thousand mile "firm exchange order" (or mileage book) will be sold, good over the N. & S. and several other roads. This mileage will be effective over the Norfolk & Southern railway and other lines as specified thereon, for the separate journeys of not more than five persons (members or employees of a firm or corporation whose individual names appear thereon) with the understanding that this order shall be honored only for ticket for the individual use or passage of one of such persons on the same train at the same time, and that it shall not be honored for the use or passage of more than one such specified person on the same train and at the same time. This "mileage exchange order," should be exchanged at ticket offices for passage tickets, good on trains.

In addition to this general interchangeable one thousand mile exchange orders will be continued on sale at $25 each. These will be good over Norfolk and Southern Railway and many other roads south of the Ohio and Potomac, and east of the Mississippi rivers. For individual use of purchaser and non transferable and should be exchanged at ticket offices for passage tickets, good on trains. Five hundred mile state family exchange orders will be sold for $11.25. Non-interchangeable and good only over Norfolk and Southern Railway, within the State of North Carolina. They are for use of heads of families and dependent members thereof. All of the forgoing mileage exchange orders will be limited for use within one year from date of sale.

All mileage tickets both interchangeable, individual and state family tickets prior to April 1, 1908, will be honored in the hands of original purchaser and within their prescribed limit, in accord with conditions printed on such tickets.

In North Carolina two hundred pounds of personal baggage, under rules now in effect will be checked free on each adult ticket, "mileage ticket" or "mileage exchange orders." In Virginia one hundred and fifty pounds; Interstate, one hundred fifty pounds.

From agency stations, where it is practicable for the holder of a mileage exchange order to have exchanged for passage ticket good on trains, baggage agents will not check baggage on presentation of the mileage exchange order, but will refer passenger to the ticket office to get passage ticket in exchange for his mileage and check baggage on presentation of such passage ticket, except from stations where there are no agents or where the agent is not on duty or for any other valid reason, making it impracticable for the passenger to have his mileage exchanged for a passage ticket. In such case, baggage agents will check baggage on the mileage exchange order.

We Think the Same.

Editor Reflector.

We seem to be trying to keep up with other parts of the world. I think the Christian part of the community would do well to enforce the law in reference to cruelty to dumb animals, such as chasing greasy pigs and putting on such loads as a team has been straining under on our streets hauling curb stone. It is a matter that some one should look after, I think. What is your opinion on this line? Humane.

New Residents for Greenville.

Mr. R. L. Hill, of Kinston, and his brother-in-law Mr. D. B. Johnson, of Greenville, have leased the ice plant at Greenville, with the privilege of purchase, and will assume management and operation of the plant in a few days. Pending the time that will be spent in enlarging the capacity of the plant to meet the needs of the town, arrangements have been made whereby the shortage will be shipped from the plant in this city. Mr. Hill will remove his family to Greenville tomorrow. His departure is the source of much regret to the citizens of Kinston. For the past four years he has been engineer and master mechanic of the Kinston Cotton Mill. He is a member of all the Masonic bodies in this city and has been a valuable citizen. Mr. Johnson moved to Greenville from Kinston, a year ago, and has since been with the Greenville Lumber and Veneer Company.—Kinston Free Press, 24th.

Stoessel's Imprisonment.

General Stoessel has begun serving his ten year term, to which the death sentence against him for surrendering Port Arthur was commuted by the Czar. The confinement is not rigorous. He is permitted to provide his own food, exercise in prison court yard, receive visitors and has the best medical care. His health is exceedingly poor. He is said, however to have received the Czar's assurance that he will be pardoned after a few months' imprisonment.—By United Press.

BASKET PARTY.

Farmville, N. C., March 25. On Friday evening, March 13, 1908, the school at King's Cross Roads, under the auspices of the Betterment Association, gave a very profitable and enjoyable basket party.

It was an ideal night and a large crowd was present.

The party was planned and directed under the leadership of their most excellent teacher, Miss Ellen Tyson, who has taught a very successful term.

All the patrons seem to appreciate her unceasing efforts and efficient work, as was shown by their hearty co-operation on this occasion.

On every side could be heard the remarks, "We have the right teacher in the right place" and the teacher informs us that it was not only on this occasion that she has had their support but throughout the entire term, the good, big-hearted people of this community have given her and the school their loyalty.

Wherever this hearty co-operation of teacher and patrons exists, there we will find the greatest good being done, the best work accomplished.

The program of the evening consisted of selling of the baskets, cream and cake, fishing in the pond, telling fortunes, voting on prettiest girl, cutting fortune cake, and auctioneering sofa pillow. These were interspersed with music on the phonograph.

The highest priced basket brought four dollars and the others ranged from there down to fifty cents.

The popularity of the teacher was evinced by giving her the most votes as prettiest girl and presenting her with a beautiful sofa pillow.

The party was a grand success financially as well as socially.

Forty one dollars and fifteen cents was realized. "X"

Two Men Killed.

People coming in on the Norfolk and Southern train this morning say that two men were killed by the passenger train on that road last night between Wilson and Raleigh. No particulars could be learned except that both of the men were white and under the influence of liquor.

Dr. H. O. Hyatt will be in Greenville at Hotel Bertha March 30th and 31st, Monday and Tuesday, for the purpose of treating diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat. Parties who call to see the Doctor do not have to pay any fee unless they are treated. 3 12 2tw 1tw

And the president has another message coming.

Since the United States Supreme court has decided in their favor, we wonder if the railroads are sorry they went into a compromise. If so they will find some way to kick up a fuss about.

There was a case in court Tuesday that grew out of an adjustment of a cotton contract. There were several uneasy fellows around the court room, fearing that it might lead to the suspicion that somebody had been dealing in futures.

Mr. J. B. Sherrill, editor of the Concord Times and for some twenty years secretary of the North Carolina Press Association, is a candidate for nomination by the Democratic State convention for Commissioner of Labor and Printing. Mr. Sherrill is very popular, especially with the newspaper men of the State, and they would be glad to see him nominated for the office he seeks. He is fully capable of filling it.

Some people have a wrong idea of the coming prohibition election. They think that if prohibition is defeated it will kill all the temperance laws in the State, close the dispensaries and permit bar rooms to open again. This is a mistake. If prohibition is defeated the Watts law and all local prohibition laws will remain just as they are now, and no saloon can be opened in any prohibited territory. So those who are opposing prohibition in the hope of seeing saloons come back had just as well change their minds.

Maj. H. A. London, editor of the Pittsboro Record, is a candidate for Corporation Commissioner and will seek the nomination for that office by the Democratic State convention. Major London was a valiant Confederate soldier, he is an able lawyer and editor of one of the staunchest Democratic papers in the State. For many years past he has in every campaign rendered the party most faithful service. As a member of the State executive committee he has been active in helping to direct the affairs of the party and carry it to success. The State would honor itself by placing him in the office he seeks.

The Reflector never has been a kicker and is not going to be one now. At the same time there are things in Greenville that turning publicity on now and then might result in good, and some people have told us they would like to see a little talking going on about them. So we have decided to open for a time a "Kickers' Column" to give all who wish to do so an opportunity to kick. So if you have any kick coming, or one you wish to start going, the columns of The Reflector are open to you. Be brief, do not be personal, do not advocate any candidates for office; but if you have something in mind to say for the public good let us have it.

SEA AND LAND.

The Way They Meet and Clash and Finally Harmonize.

In "The Wonderful Adventures of Nils," translated from the Swedish of Selma Lagerlof by Velma Swanston Howard, is the following pretty description of how sea and land meet:

You see that sea and land can meet in many different ways. In many places the land comes down toward the sea with flat, tufted meadows, and the sea meets the land with flying sand, which piles up in mounds and drifts. It appears as though they both disliked each other so much that they only wished to show the poorest they possessed. But it can also happen that when the land comes toward the sea it raises a wall of hills in front of it, as though the sea were something dangerous. When the land does this, the sea comes up to it with fiery wrath and beats and roars and lashes against the rocks and looks as if it would tear the land hill to pieces.

But in Blekinge it is altogether different when sea and land meet. There the land breaks itself up into points and islands and islets, and the sea divides itself into fjords and bays and sounds, and it is perhaps this which makes it look as if they must meet in happiness and harmony.

Think now first and foremost of the sea! Far out it lies desolate and empty and big and has nothing else to do but to roll its gray billows. When it comes toward the land it happens across the first obstacle. This it immediately overpowers, tears away everything green and makes it as gray as itself. Then it meets still another obstacle. With this it does the same thing. And still another—yes, the same thing happens to this also. It is stripped and plundered as if it had fallen into robbers' hands. Then the obstacles come nearer and nearer together, and then the sea must understand that the land sends toward it her littlest children in order to move it to pity. It also becomes more friendly the farther in it comes, rolls its waves less high, moderates its storms, lets the green things stay in cracks and crevices, separates itself into small sounds and inlets and becomes at last so harmless in the land that little boats dare venture out upon it. It certainly cannot recognize itself, so mild and friendly has it grown.

ONE TOUCH OF NATURE.

A Display of Courtesy "In Memory of Old Virginia."

All the seats were taken in the car which I entered one morning in early April. An old colored man sat next the door. It is not often in these days that I see that type of black man. I used to see that kind on the old Virginia plantation, where he was "Ung Lige" or "Ung Sambo" to all the household. His days were devoted to useful toil and his evenings to his banjo and the old plantation melodies that no one can ever sing again as musically as they were sung then.

"Take this seat, mistis," he said, rising promptly. "Mistis" sounded very "homey" and pleasant to me. It had been so long since I was "mistis" to anybody.

"Thank you, uncle," said I. "Keep your seat. I would just as lief stand."

"Scuse me, please, mistis, but 'tain't fitten for you ter stan'; you mus' set," he admonished respectfully.

I took the seat, thanking him for his courtesy. Soon a departing passenger left a vacancy.

"There is a seat for you," I said to the old man.

"Between the ladies, ma'am?" He hesitated.

"Yes," I said. He bowed apologetically to right and left and took the vacant place. Just before leaving the car I slipped a silver piece into his hand, saying, "Uncle, get you a nice luncheon with this—in memory of old Virginia."

"Thank you, my mistis," he said, opening his hand to look at the little gift and then closing it. I left the car with a sunnier feeling in my heart because of the chance meeting, but with no thought that I should ever again hear of my old Virginian.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol for Dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly, and write this hoping that humanity will be benefited. Yours very truly, Jake C. Moore, Atlanta, Aug. 10, 1914." Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

Some marble cutters are monumental liars.

Mr. John Riha, of Vining, Ia., says, "I have been selling DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills for about a year and they give better satisfaction than any pill I ever sold. There are a dozen people here who have used them and they give perfect satisfaction in every case. I have used them myself with fine results." Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

All the Gold IN GEORGIA Could not Buy-

Rodink, Ga. August 27, 1908.
Messrs. E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ills.
Gentlemen:—
In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels. Some physicians told me it was Dyspepsia, some Consumption of the Lungs, others said consumption of the Bowels. One physician said I would not live until Spring, and for four long years I existed on a little boiled milk, soda biscuits, doctors' prescriptions and Dyspepsia remedies that flooded the market. I could not digest anything I ate, and in the Spring 1902 I picked up one of your Almanacs as a poor emaciated Dyspepsia wreck will grasp at anything, and that Almanac happened to be my life savor. I bought a fifty cent bottle of KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE and the benefit I received from that bottle ALL THE GOLD IN GEORGIA COULD NOT BUY. I kept on taking it and in two months I went back to my work, as a machinist, and in three months I was well and hearty. I still use a little occasionally as I find it a fine blood purifier and a good tonic.
May you live long and prosper.
Yours very truly,
G. N. CORNELL.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

During the month of March the subscription list of The Daily Reflector will be revised so as to comply with the law of the Government Postoffice Department which goes in effect April 1st. Under this law daily newspapers cannot be sent to subscribers who do not renew within 3 months after date to which their subscription is paid. To send it more than 3 months longer than it is paid for will require a 1-cent stamp on each paper.

Therefore we ask every subscriber to The Daily Reflector who owes for 3 months or longer, to send a remittance at once so we can keep your name on our list. The publisher can have no choice in this but will have to comply with the law.

If subscribers prefer to remit for three months at the time it is all right, but in that case they will have to pay every 3 months, or they can pay as many months at the time as they like so as to save the trouble of remitting oftener.

We hope every subscriber will attend to this promptly as we had rather not drop a single name from our list. But bear in mind that The Daily Reflector cannot be mailed after April 1st to any person who owes for 3 months or longer.

WHEN THE EARTH DIES

And When Our Other Planets and Our Sun Are Also Dead.

STILL THE HEAVENS BLAZE.

The Infinite Space Shall Always Be Filled With Suns and Worlds and Souls, For in Eternity There Can Be Neither Beginning Nor End.

The earth was dead. The other planets had died, one after the other. The sun was extinct, but the stars were still twinkling. There shall always be stars and worlds.

In the unmeasurable eternity time, which is essentially relative, is determined by the movement of each of these worlds, and in each world it is felt according to the personal sensations of their inhabitants. Each globe measures its proper period of time. The years of the earth are not those of Neptune. Neptune's year equals 104 of ours and is no longer in the absolute. There exists no proper common measure of time and eternity.

In the empty space time does not exist. There are no years, no centuries, but there is a way of measuring time upon a revolving globe. Without periodical movements one can have no conception of time whatsoever.

The earth existed no longer; neither did its celestial neighbor, Mars, nor beautiful Venus, nor the gigantic Jupiter, nor the strange universe of Saturn, its rings gone, nor the slow planets Uranus and Neptune, nor even the sublime sun, whose rays had for centuries made fertile the celestial countries suspended in its light.

The sun was a black globe, the planets were other black globes, and this myriads system continued to course in the starry immensity at the bosom of the cold darkness of space.

From the viewpoint of life all these worlds were dead, existed no longer. They survived their antique history as do the ruins of the dead cities of Assyria, which the archaeologist discovers in the desert and revolved dark in the invisible and unknown. Everything was covered with ice, 273 degrees below zero.

No genius, so sage, could have brought back the days of old when earth sailed through space bathed in light, its beautiful green meadows awakening with the rays of the morning sun, its rivers flowing like serpents through the green fields, its woods reverberating with the songs of the birds, its forests enveloped in majestic mystery.

Then all this happiness seemed eternal. What has become of the mornings and evenings, the flowers and the lovers, the harmonies and joys, the beauties and the dreams? All have disappeared.

The earth is dead, all the planets are dead, the sun is extinct. The solar system gone. Time itself even annihilated.

Time flows into eternity, but eternity remains, and time revives.

Before the earth existed, during a whole eternity, there were suns and worlds, humanities filled with life and activity as are we today. For millions and millions of years our earth did not exist, but the universe was no less brilliant. After our time it will be as before. Our epoch is of no importance.

The dead and cold earth carried in itself, however, an energy not lost, its movement around the sun, which energy transformed into heat would suffice to melt the whole globe, to reduce it to vapor and to begin a new history for it, which, it is true, would not last long, for if this movement around the sun should suddenly cease the earth would fall into the sun and cease to exist. It would rush toward it with ever increasing speed and would reach it in sixty-five days.

When the earth is dead, other worlds will come. There will be other humanities, other Babylonians, other Thebians, other Athenians, other Romes, other Parises, other palaces, other temples, other glories, other loves, other lights.

And these new universes will disappear in their turn, to be followed by still others. At a certain time far away in the future eternity all the stars of the Milky Way shall rush toward one center of gravity and form an immense formidable sun, center of a system, whose enormous worlds shall become populated by beings living in a temperature which would seem red hot to us.

The infinite space shall always be filled with worlds and stars, souls and suns, and eternity shall last forever, for there can be neither beginning nor end.—Camille Flammarion.

Cut His Visit Short.

The Duke of Wellington once wrote to Dr. Hutton for information as to the scientific requirements of a young officer who had been under his instruction. The doctor thought he could not do less than answer the question verbally and made an appointment accordingly.

Directly Wellington saw him he said: "I am obliged to you, doctor, for the trouble you are taking. Is it fit for the post?"
Clearing his throat, Dr. Hutton began: "No man more so, my lord. I can—"
"That's quite sufficient," said Wellington. "I know how valuable your time is. Mine just now is equally so. I will not detain you any longer. Good morning."

Occasions of adversity best discover how great virtue or strength each one hath, for occasions do not make a man frail, but show what he is.

VALUE OF PUBLICITY.

Steve Brodie, the Bridge Jumper, as a Self Advertiser.

Curiously enough, the man who, in my opinion, had the keenest intuition of the value of publicity and used it to the greatest personal advantage, when we consider his humble beginnings and the limited sphere of his endeavor, never really knew how to read and write. I knew him first as a young street urchin, making his living by selling newspapers, blacking boots, running errands and doing such odd jobs as fell in his way, and it was chiefly through selling newspapers, whose headlines alone he was barely able to decipher, that he gained that knowledge of what Park row calls "news values," which one finds in every trained and efficient city editor.

It was on the strength of this knowledge that this bootblack went one day to a well known wholesale liquor dealer on the east side and proposed that he should establish him in a saloon on lower Bowery. The liquor dealer was aghast at his presumption until he learned his scheme; then he capitulated at once, and within a few days the papers had been signed and twenty-four hours' option secured on rickety and, from nearly every imaginable point of view, undesirable premises near Canal street and directly under the noisiest and dustiest and oldest part of the elevated railroad. This done, the bootblack made his way to the very center of the Brooklyn bridge, climbed hastily to the top of the parapet and, heedless of the warning shouts of the horrified onlookers and the swift rush of a panting cop, dropped into the seething waters below.

It was an unknown youth with an earning capacity of a few dollars a week who disappeared beneath the surface of the East river, but it was an enterprising young man, an east side celebrity, in fact, all ready for the divine oil of publicity and with an assured income and possible fortune in his grasp, whose nose reappeared very shortly above the muddy surface of the water and who was helped by willing and officious hands into a rowboat, where dry clothing awaited him, together with hearty congratulations on the fact that he alone, of all those who had attempted to jump the bridge, had escaped with his life. The next day the name of Steve Brodie was flashed from one end of the country to the other, and within a very few hours after his discharge from custody—he was arrested on the charge of trying to take his own life—he was standing behind his own bar, serving drinks to the crowds who came to gaze at Steve Brodie, the bridge jumper, and to pour their money into his coffers.—James L. Ford in Success Magazine.

UNFINISHED BOOKS.

Authors Who Died Leaving Stories Partly Written.

Many writers, including the famous Ouida, have died leaving behind them unfinished books. One of the best known is, of course, Dickens' "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," a remarkably clever story, and one showing no signs of diminishing vitality, although he was actually at work upon it up to within a few hours of his death.

Dickens' great rival, Thackeray, again, left behind him not one only, but two unfinished stories. One of these, "Denis Duval," promised to rank with his best work. Unfortunately, however, he had completed only seven chapters when he was stricken down.

Scott, too, left a tale unended—"The Siege of Malta"—written while he was on his last futile journey in search of health. This work has never been published, although more than two-thirds of it was completed at the time of his death.

Then there was "St. Ives," left unfinished by R. L. Stevenson, as was "Zeph," by Helen Jackson, and "Blind Love," by Wilkie Collins. Buckle never completed his "History of Civilization," although he toiled at it for twenty years.

Among famous poems that were never completed mention may be made of Byron's "Don Juan," Keats' "Hyperion," Coleridge's "Christabel" and Gray's "Agrippina." Spenser's "Faerie Queene," too, is no more than a fragment, although a colossal one.

Lastly, there ought to be included Ben Jonson's beautiful unfinished pastoral, "The Sad Shepherd," found by his literary executors among his papers after his death and published in its incompleteness.—Pearson's Weekly.

No Use For It.

Uncle Zebulon was on a visit to his nephew in the big city, and the two had gone to a restaurant for dinner.

They had given their order and were waiting for it to be filled when the younger man, who had been glancing at a paper that lay on the table, said: "By the way, uncle, did you ever have cerebro-spinal meningitis?"

"No," replied Uncle Zebulon after a few moments' mental struggle with the question, "and I don't want any. I'd rather have fried liver and bacon any day."

A Big Screw Driver.

"I saw a screw driver the other day that weighed 2,000 pounds."

"Nonsense."

"But I did, though."

"Where was it?"

"In the engine room of an ocean liner."—London Tit-Bits.

The Hustler.

"Do you believe that all things come to him who waits?"

"They may start for him, but usually some man who hustles overtakes them before they get to the man who waits."—Houston Post.

COSTLY MATTRESSES.

The Kind That Are Used on the Big Plate Glass Wagons.

Probably about as costly a sort of mattress as any is one that is made not to sleep on at all, but to spread on the long, broad table or platform of the wagons built for carrying plate glass.

These mattresses, which are made of curled hair, are very thin, scarcely thicker than a comfortable, and must be made with the greatest care to insure perfect uniformity of thickness. A lump anywhere would be likely to break the plate of glass resting upon it, and there would be still greater danger if the weight of two plates of glass was rested on the lump at once.

A mattress for a plate glass wagon costs, according to size, from $60 to $75. In use the corners of smaller plates carried on it cut into the ticking covering, and sooner or later it has to be made over. Simply to make over such a mattress costs from $20 to $25.

On the table topped and mattress covered glass wagons the biggest plates are carried with confidence and safety. The table is built to remain absolutely rigid, and the thin but uniform mattress protects the plate from jar.

Before plate glass store fronts had come into common use, when the handling of a big plate was counted as a good deal more of a job than it is now, they used to carry a great pane of glass in a sort of frame, which was put on the wagon with the glass in it. At its destination this frame or support was worked carefully across the sidewalk to the store front, where the glass was dislodged from it to be set, and altogether the setting of a great plate of glass was then quite an undertaking.

Now, with the setting of such plates a common daily occurrence and with men skilled in the handling of them, they simply carry a big plate out and lay it on their mattress covered table topped wagon and carry it to where it is to go and there slide it off, to rest it for a moment on blocks on the sidewalk, and then they pick it up and carry it to the window front.

Then they run under the lower edge of the glass lifting straps, by which men standing inside the window as well as men standing outside can lift on it when the glass is put into place in the window frame. There again it is raised on blocks until the straps can be withdrawn, and then the blocks are taken out and the glass secured in place, all this being done with great care, but still with comparative ease and quickness and with certainty, and in these times great panes of glass are thus moved and set on all but the windiest days.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HOLLAND MUSTARD.

Some of the Virtues Ascribed to it and One Way to Make it.

Hollanders use enormous quantities of mustard and thrive on the condiment. There is a small spot in Overysel, I think it is near Goor, where the land slopes gently down to the river IJssel and is a brown gray clay. This is fashioned into the cutest little jugs you ever saw, holding about a pint each, and the genuine Dutch mustard, made only in that pocket borough, according to a secret process handed down for many generations, is hermetically sealed therein. It will keep for years and is as delicious as the finest confecton. It is butter, cheese and condiment to the Hollanders who can afford it. And there is no other place on earth where that mustard can be bought.

You might ask, "Why do the Hollanders eat so much mustard?" The answer is: The Holland mustard is a most delightful stomach stimulant. "It makes the food slide down." It cures the worst cases of dyspepsia. It keeps the stomach in good order. It is a good cure for the most deadly poison—corrosive sublimate. It is in large doses a non-nauseating emetic. It is the only counterirritant handed down to us by our grandmothers—the mustard plaster. The Dutch girls use it sparingly on their velvet cheeks to give a rosy complexion. When a person is down and nearly out a drink made of pure mustard and oil will fetch him around. A mustard "stoop" is a certain cure for catarrh in the nasal cavity.

Here is one Dutch method of preparing mustard for the table: Mix equal portions of black and white seeds and grind to a fine powder. Boil this in the best vinegar till thoroughly mixed. Grate some fresh horseradish, squeeze out the juice and add to the mustard. Then put in a little salt, a little sugar, a little turmeric, a little fenugreek and a little white honey. You will eat this on bread, cake, pie, battercakes and waffles, your meats, fish, game and poultry.—New York Press.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

A Madhouse Doctor's Experience With His Crazy Cooks.

A celebrated Scotch physician tells a story of a madhouse doctor whose presence of mind alone saved his life:

"A great friend of mine was for a considerable time the medical superintendent of a lunatic asylum near Glasgow.

"One night in making his customary rounds he had occasion to visit the patients in the kitchen, who were preparing the dinner. There were seven of them, all big, sturdy fellows, who were believed to be harmless. The keeper only looked in upon them now and again, feeling that his constant presence was unnecessary.

"The doctor unlocked the iron barred door of the kitchen and went in among the lunatics.

"There were five large boilers containing scalding water ready for making the day's dinner for the patients.

"One of the lunatics pointed at the boilers full of hot water and, laying his hand upon the doctor's shoulder, said, 'Doctor, you'll make a fine pot of broth.' And the words had no sooner been uttered than the other six madmen shouted in a voice of delight, 'Just the thing,' and, seizing the doctor, were in the very act of putting him into one of the large boilers of scalding water when the doctor had the presence of mind to say, but not a second too soon:

"'Capital broth! But it would taste better if I took my clothes off.'

"The madmen, with a yell of delight, said 'Yes,' and the doctor asked them to wait a moment while he went and took his clothes off. But as soon as he got out of the kitchen he turned the key in the door and ordered the keeper to see to the lunatics being put under restraint.

"The doctor's presence of mind saved him, it is true, from a terrible death, but he died shortly after raving mad. The experience had destroyed his reason."

"Origin of the Postal Card.

In 1869, while Professor Emanuel Herrmann of Vienna was seeking a vast amount of information by correspondence for his notable book, "The Guide to the Study of National Economy," the thought occurred to him that many advantages would result from the adoption of a means of correspondence cheaper than the sealed letter.

On Jan. 26 he went before the Austrian post director with his idea, an open, stamped card, and his suggestion was almost immediately adopted.

Within a month the Austrian postal authorities printed and sold 1,000,000 postal cards and thus established this indispensable means of communication.

An Unconscious Toast.

Lord Clyde one day after dinner asked a chaplain to one of the regiments in India for a toast, who, after considering some time, at length exclaimed, with great simplicity:

"Alas and alack a day! What can I give?"

"Nothing better," replied his lordship. "Come, gentlemen; we'll give a bumper to the parson's toast, 'A lass and a lac a day.'"

A lac means 100,000 rupees, or $25,000, which is certainly an income to make one happy.—London Chronicle.

Exercising the Dog.

"Justin," said Mrs. Wyss.

"Yes," replied Mr. Wyss.

"Will you speak a kind word to Fido and make him wag his tail? He hasn't had one bit of exercise all day."—Lippincott's.

Test For Hydrochloric Acid.

A curious mishap gave us a very delicate test for hydrochloric acid in the atmosphere. In a north of England locality many houses have curtains of the cream color produced by metanil yellow, popularly known as "dolly" cream dye and to science as "the sodium salt of meta-amido-benzene sulphonic acid-azo-diphenyl-amine." Some of these cream colored curtains suddenly changed to heliotrope. Investigation showed that an accidental escape of hydrochloric acid from a neighboring alkali plant had discolored the curtains, and the dye became a most useful test.

An Episode In Court.

"You are charged with snatching a woman's pocketbook."

"I know it, judge. But I wouldn't do such a thing, hungry and broke as I am."

"Too conscientious, I suppose?"

"No. I don't pretend that. But why should I snatch a woman's pocketbook? What would I want with a couple of car tickets, a powder rag, a piece of chewing gum and a dressmaker's address?"

Once more a shrewd criminal over-shot his mark. His familiarity with the contents convicted him.—Washington Star.

Why He Was Suspicious.

"There is something suspicious about that," remarked the young man named Brown as he hung up the telephone receiver.

"About what?"

"Why, I just called up the home of a girl who has led me to believe that I am the warm favorite and that there are no others on her list. She wasn't at home, so the party who answered the ring said, but it gave me a jar when she added, 'Shall I tell her you called, Mr. White?'"—New York Press.

Beyond the Earth.

"Bliggins thinks he knows more than anybody else on earth."

"You state it mildly," answered Miss Cayenne. "Since the assertion that Mars is inhabited he goes further than that."—Washington Star.

Scores of Greenville Readers Are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty.

When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills follow; Urinary trouble, diabetes.

Doan's kidney Pills cure them all. J. Frank Powell, living in West Tarboro, N. C., says: "I suffered a severe attack of la grippe which left my kidneys in a disordered condition. Standing on my feet so much during the day greatly aggravated the pains in my back, and frequently I was forced to sit down to relieve my trouble. A dull aching across the small of my back kept me in almost constant misery and when ever I attempted to stoop or lift anything sharp shooting pains would dart through my loins. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills and they gave me relief in a short time. I have not suffered from backache since, and my kidneys have been regular in action. I am pleased to recommend this excellent remedy to other sufferers."

Today was a pretty finish to the bad weather.

Good time to begin telling the people about your spring goods.

It requires no Argument to prove the advantage of having a bank account. The fact that a great majority of business men have one shows that a bank account is well worth having.

The National Bank

ACCEPTS ACCOUNTS

from men of small affairs as well as from those of large interests. It suggests that you open one even though your business is not on a large scale. The advantage of the account will become more and more apparent with every day's experience.

Spring Cleaning, Spring Cleaning

The prevailing rage now, in domestic life, is Spring Cleaning. While you are at that, get out your spring dresses, suits, etc., and have them cleaned up-to-date and ready to wear. Also have your winter clothes cleaned and treated with my special chemical solution to prevent moth eating, and pack them away until winter. RIGHT NOW IS THE TIME.

Yours to please,
