HAPPENINGS IN NORTH CAROLINA

ITEMS TOO SHORT FOR SEPARATE HEADING.

Hickory, N. C., March 26.—John Triplett, a seventeen year old boy, committed suicide here this afternoon. When the body was found he was lying on the bed in his room with a shot gun by his side and a great gaping hole through his breast. It was evident that he had placed the muzzle of the gun to his breast and discharged it by pressing the trigger with a forked stick. No one knows of any cause for the rash act except that his older brother reproved him yesterday for something he had done.

Wilmington, N. C., March 26.—J. S. Brock, formerly in the employ of the Wacamac Lumber Company in this city, has brought suit against the company, alleging $10,000 damages for the loss of an eye. He alleges that a lathe machine was defective in the plant of the company and that while at work, a piece of wood was hurled with great violence into his face inflicting such injuries as to cause him to lose his eyesight.

Fayetteville, N. C., March 26.—Same Murchison, the negro who slew Fayetteville's chief of police, J. H. Benton, on February twenty-third last, was found guilty late this afternoon of murder in the first degree. The trial lasted just two days.

Just at the hour of going to press we learn that our old and esteemed friend, Mr. W. B. Whitehead, was instantly killed by a Coast Line train near Halifax. He lived with his father at the old family homestead near town and it is supposed that he had been to Halifax and was returning home when he was accidentally killed. He was 57 years old.—Weldon News.

The Home Paper.

The papers of the large cities are all right if you want them, but it is your own home paper that advertises your churches, your numerous societies, sympathies with your afflictions and rejoices with you in your prosperity. In short it is the local paper that mentions the thousands and one items in which you are interested during the year, and do not find in papers of large cities.—Durham Sun.

And it is your home paper in which you sometimes find your own name, while if you should live that long you might look a century without seeing it in the big city papers.

AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Hustling Town, Briefly Told.

Ayden, N. C., Mar. 27, 1908

Rev. C. W. Howard filled his regular appointment here 4th Sunday morning and at night.

Mrs. Susan Jackson is visiting her son W. C. Jackson.

Joe Latham of Washington was here Thursday.

W. L. Browning and wife went to Kinston Wednesday and returned Thursday.

The society of Junior Builders are preparing for an Easter entertainment on third Sunday night at the Christian church.

Prof. J. A. McArthur will deliver a lecture on temperance Sunday morning at the Methodist church immediately after Sunday school.

Wednesday evening March 25, 1908 in the town of Ayden Mr. W. O. Wilson and Miss Clara Mills were united in the bonds of matrimony by J. M. Blow, J. P.

There were several horses to run away in town Wednesday, but no serious damage was done.

G. C. Barrett, of Farmville, was here yesterday.

It was reported Wednesday that we were to have another runaway marriage, but papa caught on and nipped the fun in the bud.

J. R. Sauls and Henry Edgerton, two very prominent business men of Kenly have been the guests of M. M. Sauls during the week.

W. E. Moye is today serenely and sweetly wearing that suburban smile all over the prospects of a certain young lady at his home. She is a stranger now, but will become better acquainted after awhile.

Mrs. W. S. Blount is here on a visit from New Bern.

We are sorry to learn the condition of Mrs. Trotman has not at all improved. She still suffers intensely from her wounded hip. Never before have we seen so much fertilizer hauled away from a town as we have seen this season. We readily suppose there were as many as one hundred wagons and carts here Wednesday. If crops are not good this year Rome will certainly howl.

MR. BOND WITHDRAWS.

Court Will Not Duties Permit Active Campaign, Might Impair Health.

To the Democratic voters of the First Congressional District:

About a month ago I announced myself a candidate for the nomination for congress.

I was acting in good faith and with the desire to secure the nomination. At that time I hoped to be able to free myself from court engagements so as to make an active effort to secure it. This I find I am unable to do as I have matters in court that will take up most of my time. I am warned that the strain of attempting to do both will threaten me with serious physical result.

I therefore withdraw from the contest. The assurances of support were most gratifying to me and I am thankful for same. In the future as in the past I shall do what I can for the success of the Democratic party and the candidates.

Truly,
W. M. Bond,
Edenton, N. C., Mar. 24th, 1908.

Miss Sallie Dixon, of Snow Hill, who had been visiting Miss Mary Johnson, has returned home.

MR. BOND WITHDRAWS.

From Congressional Race in First District.

Edenton, N. C., March 26.—Our townsman, Hon. W. M. Bond, who a few weeks ago, announced his candidacy for Congress to succeed Hon. John H. Small from the First North Carolina District, informed your correspondent here today that he had decided to withdraw his name and would not stand for the nomination.

Mr. Bond announced his candidacy a few weeks ago at Currituck court house at the opening of court in this district. He has since made several speeches in some of the counties at the noon hour of court each Monday. Mr. Bond has been unwell for some time and was unable to speak Monday at Hertford court. This and his large practice in the district have caused him to withdraw from the race. This leaves Mr. Small without opposition, and it is hardly probable that he will have any.

WASHING MACHINE NOTE CASE.

Decided in Favor of Plaintiff and Note Must be Paid.

There was tried in the Superior court Thursday the suit of Einstein Bros. vs W. B. and J. H. Vandford. This suit was for recovery on a note given by Vandford in the purchase of a washing machine right. The note was given to W. E. Moore and later transferred to Einstein Bros. When the note became due payment was resisted on the ground that the washing machine right was a fraud, hence the suit. The case was decided in favor of the plaintiff and judgment was given for the amount due on the note.

TO THE WOMEN OF THE STATE.

They Should Organize in Every County.

Chairman John A. Oates, of the Executive Committee of the North Carolina Anti-Saloon League, has issued the following appeal to the women of the State:

"To the Women of North Carolina: I am sure that you are deeply interested in the present campaign in North Carolina against the liquor traffic. It is a conflict of vast importance, in which the home, the school and the church are arrayed on one side and the still-house and the barroom on the other side. This conflict touches the life of every woman and child in North Carolina.

"Our good women have great influence in shaping the affairs at all times and just now they can do telling work in behalf of the best interests of all that we hold dear. Let me urge upon you to organize in your counties, townships and communities. The women of the county-seat should get together as soon as possible and select a president, secretary and treasurer and executive committee of five. Then this central committee should arrange for a similar organization in each township and then in each school district. The work of women will be very helpful indeed in distributing literature, holding rallies of the children with songs and recitations to which the general public will be invited and in arranging to see voters personally. You will do well to cooperate with the chairman of the prohibition forces in your county, but do not lose any time in getting this organization started at once. Do not wait for your neighbor, but go ahead and arrange for a meeting right away. We will be very glad to assist you in your work in any way we can.

"Sisters, this issue is of so much importance that you cannot afford to let this opportunity slip to do something for the protection of your homes against the liquor traffic. Act today for God and home and native land.

"John A. Oates, Chairman Executive Committee North Carolina Anti-Saloon League."

"THE GOOD PAYER."

Good Payers Who Do Not Pay Bills.

A local merchant complaining of poor collections, said, "the good payers don't pay their bills." It seems a contradiction to call a man a "good payer" who does not pay an account when it is presented. A "good payer" in this connection is the man or woman who has the cash to meet every bill presented.

To the person who finds it hard to meet bills, but who pays every store obligation as fast as possible, it is indeed a strange position, that of the first running an account with a local merchant, when cash could be paid for every article as needed, and second, having run an account to keep turning away the collector time after time, when there is on hand, or in the bank, money that could and should at once satisfy the obligation.

It is the "good payer" in the town that works real hardships among local merchants. The "good payer" in the first place is known to have money, though hard to collect from. It takes real trade nerve to refuse such a patron. And yet many a merchant inwardly curses when such a customer comes in, for the merchant knows he will lack courage to say "no credit."

In such times as these, the "good payers" are specially cruel to merchants. The man who is out of work must now be given extra credit. He has always met his bills. He is likely to be at work again very soon. The merchant cannot turn him away. Just here is where the "good payer" is peculiarly aggravating. He or she is harder than usual to get money from. A local merchant tells, that if he could get his Christmas bills collected from customers he credited as "good payers" he would be easy.

Why not every "good payer" prove the truthfulness of the appellation at once, in this city? Never would such a move prove more welcome to the local trade. Never would the situation appear brighter to the faithful merchants, who have given credit in the utmost good faith and confidence, that the credit given was equivalent to money, when the bill was presented. Now of all times, can Mr. and Mrs. Good Payer redeem their past failings, and find with their receipted bills an impulse given toward local trade betterment. And who ought to hesitate to hasten local trade betterment, when the power is theirs to do so?—New Bern Journal.

Trade Report.

Richmond, Va., Mar. 26, 1908.

Bradstreet's Saturday will say for Richmond, Va. and vicinity:

Trade in most lines continues to show improvement. Orders for dry goods, shoes and kindred lines are larger. Lumber, especially the cheaper grades, is in more demand. Building material and hardware show increased sales. Produce is in fair demand at satisfactory prices. Considerable improvement is shown in coffees, teas and like lines. Tobacco is being marketed in smaller quantities, the majority having been sold of the 1907 crop, and prices for this season range above those of any recent year. Retailers are displaying spring styles and trade shows more activity. Collections continue slow. Favorable weather prevails and crop conditions are good. Winter wheat is promising.

The Easter hat is going to test the existence of a financial panic.

Never mind about the odor of the moth balls, it is usual this time of year.

If you are waiting for prosperity to return, better time could be made by going out to meet it.

Had it not been for Governor Glenn calling the legislature in extra session to approve the compromise with the railroads, where would we be now in the rate matter?

We ought to have a little to do of some kind over sticking the first spade in beginning the street paving. What think Mayor Wooten and the street committee of this?

If reports are true there has already been spent several times more in promoting Secretary Taft's candidacy for the presidential nomination than the salary of the office amounts to for a whole term.

Charlotte is fixing to make it harder to get. The physicians of that city have been doing such a thriving business writing whiskey prescriptions that the aldermen are considering the matter of turning it to the betterment of the city's revenue account by placing a tax of 25 cents on every prescription filled.

Says the Greenville Reflector: "The New Bern Sun might include snow balls in its 'next stop' list". Nope: Nothing doing. Flag stop. Passed it without even hesitating.—New Bern Sun.

The Charlotte Chronicle in noting that Congressman Small will have opposition for the nomination this year says that Mr. Small cannot be spared. This is true. Mr. Small is too good and useful a representative to be cut off at the time when he becomes of great use to the State. His district will nominate and elect either the present representative or another, but the entire State has an interest at stake and it is to be hoped that Mr. Small will be retained in Congress. From the Chronicle we clip:

"The candidate to try for his seat is Mr. Wm. M. Bond, of Hertford, who, according to The Kinston Free Press, 'is an able lawyer and a very excellent gentleman.' That may be true, but he lacks experience in Congress and is an untried experiment. The Free Press very plainly expresses the prevailing sentiment when it says that his return to Congress 'is an affair not only of the Democrats of the first district, but of the east and indeed of the whole State.' His services are needed there in prosecution of the work on the great waterway, a work in which he has rendered such conspicuously effective aid. He cannot be spared from Congress at this stage in his career. Nothing could please us better than to see Mr. Bond eventually come around to this sensible conclusion."—Concord Tribune.

GALAX IS LOYAL.

The Plant Will Grow Only in Certain Sections of the South.

Many persons whose interest is attracted daily by the wreaths of dark green or bronze foliage labeled "galax leaves" at the doors of the florists' shops probably do not know that the plant from which these leaves are picked is one of the most loyal and truly American to be found. In fact, the galax root refuses to grow in any other soil than that of the United States.

Not only is the galax American, but it is born and bred southern. It will no more flourish outside of Dixie than in an alien soil. Few plants are restricted in growth to so narrow an area. In a small section of rugged country in the Appalachian mountain range, where the corners of Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee run up together, the galax clusters grow in profusion. They are indigenous to this region, elevated many thousands of feet above sea level, and, although many attempts have been made to introduce the plants in other parts of the United States and in foreign lands as well, the experiments have always proved futile. Neither will the galax thrive in the hothouse. Only the rare air and mountain loam of its native soil seem adapted to its growth.

Accordingly since the discovery of the value of galax leaves for decorative purposes hundreds of tons of them have been sent to the northern markets from their native corner in the mountains, where during certain seasons whole families devote themselves to gathering and packing them for shipment. There are many points in favor of the use of the galax in decorative schemes. A dark green during the summer months and a rich bronze after being touched by the frost, the leaves retain their hues for weeks after they are gathered. Furthermore, they are very hardy, permitting rough and ready packing, which renders their shipment inexpensive. They retain their freshness and color for a long time without being kept in water.

Possessing these qualities, it was only natural that the galax should have come at once into favor for the brightening of rooms and the decoration of tables. Carloads of the leaves are shipped into the north not only for sale in New York, Philadelphia and other centers, but also to be transferred to steamships and carried abroad.—New York Sun.

The Age of Birds.

Birds of very small size and slender build not only live to a very old age, but in their old age are freer from accidents and signs of senility than is always the case among animals. It used to be said that crows and carrion crows lived over 100 years. If this statement seems rather exaggerated, there is no question that well known naturalists speak of crows of fifty, sixty and even seventy years old. Eagles, horned owls and herons attain similar ages, and Mr. Gurney, the English naturalist, cites a condor of fifty-two years old, a horned owl of sixty-eight and a royal eagle that died in its fifty-sixth year. But the record of longevity undoubtedly belongs to the parrot. M. Abrahams declares an Amazon parrot reached the ripe old age of 102 years, and a Frenchman, M. Lepaillet, tells us of a parrot, Jacko by name, that had lost its memory at sixty, its sight at ninety and had died at ninety-three.—Paris Matin.

He Could Be Trusted.

A train from the north pulled into the station at Charlottesville, Va. An elderly man thrust his head out of a window of a day coach and summoned a little colored boy. The following colloquy ensued:

"Little boy, have you a mother?"
 "Yassuh."
 "Are you faithful to your studies?"
 "Yassuh."
 "Do you go to Sunday school?"
 "Yassuh."
 "Do you say your prayers every night?"
 "Yassuh."
 "Can I trust you to do an errand for me?"
 "Yassuh."
 "Well, here's 5 cents to get me a couple of apples."—Success Magazine.

Pay Only For What You Take.

An old Scotsman, not feeling well, called upon a doctor. The doctor gave him some verbal instructions as to how to regulate his diet, advising him, among other things, to drink no spirits for a time. The Scotsman rose to leave when the doctor said:
 "I am in the way of charging for my advice. I will trouble you for half a crown."
 "Oh, maybe," said the patient, "but I'm nae gawn to tak' yer advice!"—London Telegraph.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol For Dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly, and write this hoping that humanity will be benefited. During the month of March the subscription list of The Daily Reflector will be revised so as to comply with the law of the Government Postoffice Department which goes in effect April 1st. Under this law daily newspapers cannot be sent to subscribers who do not renew within 3 months after date to which their subscription is paid. Therefore we ask every subscriber to The Daily Reflector who owes for 3 months or longer, to send a remittance at once so we can keep your name on our list. The publisher can have no choice in this but will have to comply with the law.

If subscribers prefer to remit for three months at the time it is all right, but in that case they will have to pay every 3 months, or they can pay as many months at the time as they like so as to save the trouble of remitting oftener.

We hope every subscriber will attend to this promptly as we had rather not drop a single name from our list. But bear in mind that The Daily Reflector cannot be mailed after April 1st to any person who owes for 3 months or longer.

HER NEWSPAPER DAD.

It Isn't Always Cross; Sometimes He Is Positively Jubilant.

Newspaper daddies are funny. I think mine's one. He's funniest at breakfast, only it isn't breakfast, 'cause he's lunch, and that's another funny thing about it.

"Where's mamma's paper?" he asks mamma the first thing when he comes downstairs. And then when she looks sort of childishly at him 'cause he's a little gruff he hurries up and says, "Good morning, everybody," just as though he felt kinda 'shamed of himself.

And then he won't talk when he gets his old paper. He just sticks his nose into it and looks at one page after another just as fast as he can, and then he begins all over again and does it slower and keeps still for quite awhile.

Then mamma and I wait for an explosion.

"Jist!" he says. "They couldn't spell 'cat' right."

Then he goes chasing from one page to another as fast as ever he can, talking to himself, and when he's got real mad he shouts at mamma: "They buried it! See. They buried it back there—way back there, of course, and it's the best story in the paper!"

Then mamma says, quiet, like a calm after a storm, "Come, dear, your coffee 'll get cold."

But he's more like a bear than a dear, and he doesn't come, but he keeps on growling at the old paper. I guess he finally gets tired of himself, too, and then he jumps up, throws the paper on the chair and tries to dodge mamma's funny smile.

Mamma's awfully patient, I think, and she never gets mad, but just smiles and smiles at daddy when he gets cross at things. Sometimes she asks him why he wants to keep on being a newspaper man if it's so awful. One time he answered and said it was because if he kept on working sixteen hours a day maybe the office would some time give him as much as the stereotyper gets for working eight hours a day. Mamma said that was sarcasm. I guess he thinks sarcasm must be a good thing for the office, 'cause he most always talks that way about it.

But newspaper daddies aren't always cross. Sometimes mine hurries downstairs a whole lot earlier, and then when he grabs the paper he smiles all over and shouts at mamma:

"See that story? That's a clean scoop, and a bully one! That's worth living for! And, say, won't the fellows on the old Bugle feel sore, though!"

"I tell you," he says then, "one day like that is worth a bicycle of Cathay," whatever that is.

And then mamma looks at me and smiles, 'cause we both think he's funny, sometimes.—Des Moines (Ia.) Register.

A Great Lawyer's Method.

Writing of "Civilian Leaders of the Confederacy" in the Louisville Courier-Journal, John Goode says of Judah P. Benjamin:

"The first time I met him we discussed the practice of law, and in the course of the conversation he asked me what we considered a good fee in my part of the country, to which I replied that we considered $500 a very respectable fee. He smiled and said: "When I practiced law in New Orleans if a man employed me I charged him a retainer. If he came about the office much I charged him a reminder, when I had done some work in the case I charged him a refresher, and when it was all over I charged him a finisher."

Prompted a Question Which Saved an Old Woman's Life.

Elizabeth Janfield, afterward Lady Falkland, was called an "odd child." Sometimes her father, who was a judge, took her with him to court. On one of these occasions a woman was brought before him on a charge of witchcraft. It was said that she had bewitched two or three persons to death. The frightened creature when asked if this were so fell on her knees and, weeping, confessed that the accusations against her were true.

"Did you bewitch — to death?" asked the judge.

"Yes," was her reply.

"Did you come in the form of a black cat and breathe on him so that he languished away?"

"I did."

And then the judge heard a whisper at his ear, and his little daughter—she was only ten years old—begged him to ask the woman if she had bewitched John Symondes to death.

The question was put and immediately answered in the affirmative. How had she done it? Then she told one of her former stories, at which all the company laughed. The reason of the merriment was that John Symondes was the judge's brother-in-law and at that moment was standing near him in court. The judge then asked why she had made such a statement.

"Alas, sir, I knew him not," replied the woman. "I said so because you asked me."

"Are you no witch?"

"No. God knows I'm not."

"Nor did you ever see the devil?"

"No; never in all my life."

On further examination she said she had been told that if she did not confess she would be tortured until she died, but that if she admitted all the accusations mercy would be shown her. She was thereupon acquitted, and she owed her release and probably her life to the shrewdness of a little girl.

DOG INTELLIGENCE.

The Clever "Malamutes" That Carry the Mails in Alaska.

The Eskimo begins to train his dog for sledge work before it is a month old. One of the most interesting features of Eskimo villages are puppies tied to the pole of a tent. They pull on the rope with all their puppy strength in the effort to break away and join in the frolics of their elders.

Not until a dog bred for mail service is one year old is it put in training for the trail. It begins by running ten miles with the team; then it is dropped out. Next day it runs the same distance. Gradually the distance is increased until it reaches its fifteenth month of life, when it becomes part of the regular service. The life of a mail dog is from three to four years. No greater punishment can be inflicted than to lay a dog off from service.

When unruly they are often threatened with a lay-off, and with almost human intelligence they seem to understand the disgrace it implies in the eyes of their fellow workers on the trail. All fight to be leaders. A constant spur to an unambitious dog is the "outsider," who will quickly take away the leadership not only in the mail service, but in teams maintained chiefly for the pleasure of the sport.

The intelligence of the malamute is remarkable, its scent wonderful, its instinct, as a rule, unerring.

Some dogs are better trail followers than others, as some are better leaders. In a blizzard the best of them lose the trail, but invariably find it. When on the trail they never eat but once a day, then at the end of a journey. After feeding, like weary children, they fall asleep and are never quarrelsome. It takes on an average twenty pounds of food a day for a team of eleven dogs on a hard route.—Lida Rose McCabe in St. Nicholas.

THE COW AND THE GATE.

Animal Ability to Associate One Thing With Another.

When I was a bucolic treasury clerk in Washington the cow of an old Irishwoman near by used to peep through the cracks in my garden fence at my growing corn and cabbage till her mouth watered. Then she saw that a place in the fence yielded to me and let me in, so she tried it. She nudged the gate with her nose until she hit the latch, and the gate swung open and let her in. There was an audible crunching of succulent leaves and stalks that soon attracted my attention. I hustled her out and sent a kick after her that fell short and nearly unjointed my leg. But she was soon back, and she came again and again till I discovered her secret and repaired the latch so that nudging or butting the gate would not open it.

How surely such conduct as this of the cow's evinces reason to most persons! But shall we not rather call it the blind gropings of instinct stimulated into action by the sight and odor of the tender vegetables? Many of the lowest organisms show just as much intelligence about their food as did the old cow.

Even the American sun dew, according to Mrs. Treat, will move its leaves so that it can seize a fly pinned half an inch from it. The method of the old cow was that of hit and miss or trial and error. She wanted the corn, and she butted the gate, and, as luck would have it, when she hit the latch the gate swung open. But shall we conclude that the beast had any idea at all but the sense impression made upon her hunger by the growing vegetables?

Animals do not connect cause and effect as we do by thinking the "therefore." They simply associate one thing with another. Your dog learns to associate your act of taking your hat and cane with a walk or your gun with the delights of the chase or with its report, if he is afraid of it, and so on.

Without this power of association the birds and beasts could not get on in life. The continuity of their experience would be broken. It is a rude kind of memory—sense memory. A sense impression today revives a sense impression of yesterday or of the day before, and that is about all there is of it.—"Animal and Plant Intelligence," by John Burroughs, in Outing Magazine.

What He Would Shy At.

In a certain recent case a groom was being cross examined by a barrister more famous for talent than beauty of features. The clever advocate was endeavoring to find out about the temper of a horse, which had an important bearing on the case, but the witness was not very lucid.

"Does he shy?" he was asked.

The groom said he did.

"At what?" was the next question.

"At lots of things," was the answer. And for long no better or further particulars could be got. But Mr. Witt, determining to get a clearer answer, went on.

"But tell me," he said in his most suave tones, "of any particular thing he would shy at."

"Well, 'e'd shy at you," was the unexpected answer. And every one seemed to wonder whether that was evidence.—London Answers.

Navy Is Never Done.

A navy, like a railroad, is never done. There never comes the grateful moment when the work can be said to be finished and the sole task left to be discharged is that of operation. As the roadbed, track, equipment of a railroad must be constantly maintained and improved, so if there is to be any navy at all equipment must be constantly improved and brought up to date, even under the policy of "replacement and repair."—Boston Transcript.

Royal Crowns.

Royal crowns have tended to become lighter. Thus, one made in the middle ages weighed over seven pounds, that of George IV. weighed five and one-half pounds, while Queen Victoria's crown, containing the great ruby which belonged to the Black Prince, weighed three and one-quarter pounds.

A Good Talker.

"They say her conversational powers are immense."

"Is that so?"

"Yes, sir. They tell me that girl once talked clear through Parsifal!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SLEEPLESSNESS.

Some Hints For the Victim of Compulsive Tendencies.

Many find themselves unable to sleep until the whole household is accounted for and the house locked for the night, until certain news is received, and the like.

The same tendency postpones sleep till all affairs are straightened out in the mind as well as in reality. A little reflection shows how indefinite must be the postponement of sleep under such conditions.

No training is more important for the victim of compulsive tendencies than the practice of trusting something to luck and to the morrow and reconciling himself to the fact that at no time in this world will all things be finally adjusted to his satisfaction.

Next comes the insistent desire to sleep in a certain bed, with a certain degree of light or darkness, heat or cold, air or absence of air. This is in line with the desire to eat certain foods only at a certain table and at a certain time.

The man who loses his appetite if dinner is half an hour late is unable to sleep again if once waked up. This individual must say to himself:

"Any one can stand what he likes. It takes a philosopher to stand what he does not like," and try at being a philosopher instead of a sensitive plant.

Inability to sleep while certain noises are continued must be similarly combated. If one goes from place to place in search of the quiet spot for sleep, he may finally find quiet itself oppressive or, worse yet, may be kept awake by hearing his own circulation, from which escape is out of the question.

He who finds himself persistently out of joint with his surroundings will do well to ponder the language of the Chinese philosopher:

"The legs of the stork are long; the legs of the duck are short. You cannot make the legs of the stork short; neither can you make the legs of the duck long. Why worry?"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Forced Pearls in China.

As long ago as the thirteenth century a Chinaman named Ye Jin Yang discovered a method of inducing the formation of pearls in the Chinese river mussels. The mussels were gently opened and small pellets, usually of clay, inserted. The mussels were then placed in about two feet of running water. At the end of two or three years, says a writer in the Manchester Guardian, they were again opened, when it was often found that nacreous matter had been deposited on the pellets, forming pearls, millions of which are sold in China. The most curious pearls represent the form of a small seated image of Buddha. The figures are cast in thin lead or stamped on tin and inserted in the mussel instead of the ordinary pellets. When covered with the pearl forming matter they become objects of great veneration to the people, who pay a high price for them.

He Aimed High.

To the uninitiated observer some of the gymnastics performed in a game of football are beyond explanation. The story is told of a half-back who complained to his family about the injustice of allowing football players to wear head protectors.

"I should think it was most necessary," said his mother, who had witnessed one game with many tremors. "Look at the front teeth your poor Cousin Frederick lost!"

"That may be," said her son stubbornly, "but look at me, laid up for two weeks with a lame foot just from kicking a fellow's nose gear!"—Youth's Companion.

Some Queer Japanese Customs.

Babies are carried on the back. Wooden shoes are worn. They are always left at the door.

People pass to the left instead of to the right.

They sleep on the floor.

They eat with chop sticks.

Men and women wear dresses almost alike.

Even in winter their only fire is a little charcoal in a small box.

Men sometimes wear hats. Women never do.

Marriage is arranged by parents or friends.—Yotsuya Mission.

DOING THEIR DUTY

Scores of Greenville Readers Are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys

To filter the blood is the kidneys' duty.

When they fail to do this the kidneys are sick.

Backache and many kidney ills follow; Urinary trouble, diabetes.

Doan's kidney Pills cure them all.

J. Frank Powell, living in West Tarboro, N. C., says: "I suffered a severe attack of la grippe which left my kidneys in a disordered condition. Standing on my feet so much during the day greatly aggravated the pains in my back, and frequently I was forced to sit down to relieve my trouble. A dull aching across the small of my back kept me in almost constant misery and when ever I attempted to stoop or lift anything sharp shooting pains would dart through my loins. I procured Doan's Kidney Pills and they gave me relief in a short time. I have not suffered from backache since, and my kidneys have been regular in action. I am pleased to recommend this excellent remedy to other sufferers."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

It requires no Argument to prove the advantage of having a bank account. The fact that a great majority of business men have one shows that a bank account is well worth having.

The National Bank

ACCEPTS ACCOUNTS

from men of small affairs as well as from those of large interests. It suggests that you open one even though your business is not on a large scale. The advantage of the account will become more and more apparent with every day's experience.

BREAD! BREAD!

Mrs. Maggie Whitley at the Norcott building near courthouse, bakes every day, bread, rolls, cakes and pies. Orders filled anywhere in town. Ice cream sold daily.

A Card.

On the first-Saturday in April I will be at Greenville, North Carolina to distribute circulars and talk to the farmers on the advantages of Simpkins, Prolific cotton over others. Please meet me there one and all. I will talk to you on truck growing and tell you how I grow 3 bales of cotton per acre. Meet me at court house at 11 o'clock on Saturday, April 4th.

Very truly,
W. A. Simpkins
