BIG LAW SUIT.

E. A. Kline Files Lien on Norfolk & Southern Railroad for $100,340.

The largest suit ever brought in Pitt county has just been started in the filing of a labor and material lien for $100,340 by E. A. Kline against the property of the Norfolk & Southern Railway Company. Mr. Kline has entered suit for this amount jointly against the Norfolk & Southern Railway Co., J. G. White & Co., and Johnston & Grommet Bros., under whom he had contracts in the building of this division of the Norfolk & Southern road, and he being unable so far to get a settlement for material furnished and labor done in constructing the road.

Mr. Kline is represented in the action by the law firms of Skinner & Whedbee and F. G. James.

Immigration and Emigration.

Giving round figures for the purpose of easy comparison, 340,000 people went back to Europe from Atlantic ports in the year 1906, while 560,000 went back in the year 1907. An even more significant comparison is to be found by taking the last three months of the two calendar years. In October, November, and December of 1906, 121,000 steerage passengers returned to Europe, while 264,000 returned in the corresponding months of 1907. Still more interesting, perhaps, are the figures for the opening weeks of the present year as compared with those of last year. We have obtained statistics for the ten opening weeks, including January, February, and nearly half of March. During these weeks, to give the exact figures compiled by the steamship companies, the arrivals from Europe were 44,712, and the departures from America for Europe were 131,740. We are, of course, confining our comparison to third-class passengers. The figures for the opening ten weeks of 1907 were almost exactly reversed,—that is to say, 139,052 arrived from Europe, and 43,642 took the return voyage.

The steamship companies thus carried about the same number of passengers, but last year three-fourths of the steerage travel was from Europe to America, while for the corresponding period this year three-fourths of the travel has been from America to Europe. There is to-day no great movement based so precisely upon accurate information as the movement in the labor market. European workmen do not come here unless there is a definite demand for their services, and millions of letters going back and forth stimulate or retard the movement, according to conditions. There is of course a normal return migration that has to do with the season of the year and certain kinds of employment. But beyond that normal movement, changes in the ratios are to be regarded as a sort of barometer indicating the condition of industry and trade in the United States.

Their long marches and voyages as members of the world's army of workers help to train and educate these people. In due time the energetic ones establish themselves with their families either on this side of the water or in Europe. If they settle down in their old homes they are the more progressive citizens for what they have learned in America. In the majority of cases, however, they prefer the United States, become useful citizens, send their children to our schools, and become part and parcel of our great English-speaking democratic community. In a general sense, this freedom of labor migration between Europe and America is not a harmful thing, and ought not to be hampered by harsh or arbitrary restrictions. Its careful and intelligent regulation, on the other hand, is both possible and desirable. There is no reason why, under cloak of the freedom of the labor market, we should allow this country to be a dumping-ground for the dependent or the vicious classes. Since the steamship companies have the largest motive in the promotion of this kind of migration, it is a good plan to throw heavy responsibilities upon them and to compel them to aid our Government in every way by sifting the unfit from the fit in the provinces of their origin or at the ports where they take passage.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Review of Reviews for April.

MR. JESSE L. SMITH DROWNED.

Goes Fishing With Friends and Falls in Creek.

Information reached here early this morning that Mr. Jesse L. Smith, a prominent farmer of Beaver Dam township, was drowned last night.

The particulars as could be learned were that Mr. Smith and some half dozen neighbors went to Bryant creek Friday to set nets and camp out for the night. Sometime between one and two o'clock Mr. Smith got up and left the camp while his companions were asleep. The first known of his leaving the camp was the others being awakened by hearing something fall heavily in the water and it was discovered that Mr. Smith was missing and had in some way fallen into the creek. The body was found about half an hour after sun rise and was taken to his late home.

Mr. Smith was 52 years of age, a good citizen and a man generally liked by every one. He leaves a wife and nine children, and was a brother of Mr. J. S. Smith of Greenville.

The burial will take place Sunday afternoon by the Masonic Fraternity, he being a member of that order.

Opens Office Here.

T. L. Willingham, district manager of one of the large insurance companies of Greensboro, the Security Life and Annuity Co., has made Greenville his headquarters. Many representative people throughout this section have policies with this excellent company and Mr. Willingham, being an insurance man thoroughly conversant with the business, will no doubt meet with much success here.

Ladies Aid Society Meets.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church will have their regular monthly session with Mrs. J. A. Ricks Monday afternoon 4 o'clock. This being the last meeting of the church year, a full attendance is requested that a complete report may be made at the spring meeting of Albemarle Presbytery on April 21st.

Wife's Premonition True.

While waiting on customers in her husband's butcher shop at 1821 South street last evening Mrs. Alexander Singerman suddenly fell faint, and when revived said something had happened to her husband, for she had had a premonition. Five minutes later a man walked into the shop and said Singerman had been killed in the afternoon on the Pennsylvania railroad at Thirtieth and Market streets.

Singerman had gone to the West Philadelphia Abattoir, and after leaving there was killed on the railroad by an engine—New York Press.

Fell into A Hole Dug For Fence Post.

The three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rom Smith, of Liberty, was nearly drowned Monday by falling into a hole which had been dug in the yard to plant a fence. The hole was about two feet deep and had only about a gallon of water in it. The boy had a tin can in his hand and it is supposed he was trying to dip the water out when he fell in in head foremost and was unable to help himself. A letter received yesterday says the child died a short while after being taken from the hole.—Ashboro Courier.

GLENN AT AYDEN.

Speaks There on Saturday Afternoon, April 18th.

It gives me great pleasure to announce to the people of Ayden and the surrounding country that Governor Glenn has kindly consented to deliver an address on temperance and prohibition at Ayden on Saturday afternoon, April 18th, 1908. I am sure the people of Ayden will make all necessary preparations for a convenient and comfortable place for the speaking.

There will be some preliminary services at the place of speaking beginning at 2:30 p. m. and the address of the governor will begin at 3 o'clock sharp. I shall expect to see the greatest audience ever assembled in Ayden. It will be a great occasion and a great speech. Men, women and children are cordially invited to be present and hear this great man discuss this great question.

WINTERVILLE ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From Our Hustling Neighbor.

Winterville, N. C. April 4, 1908.

The Sunbeam society of Winterville Baptist church gave a most excellent entertainment Wednesday night. Misses Hattie Kittrell and Elizabeth Boushall are to be congratulated for the excellent training that they have given the children this year. Who can estimate what child training means? The world needs men and women with trained minds and hearts as never before.

Rev. T. H. King delivered an address last night at the close of Miss Lela Roach's school at the McGowan school house. He was accompanied by R. H. Hunsucker.

Quite a number of our people attended the closing exercises of Miss Kate Chapman's school in the country last night. They report an enjoyable time.

J. D. Cox left yesterday for Raleigh on business.

An Italian Band gave an excellent concert in the auditorium of Winterville High school last night. They make delightful music.

Miss Elanch Ferebee of Shermidine is spending Saturday at the Cormitory.

Miss Bettie Tripp returned to Oxford this morning after having spent some time with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Tripp.

Miss Lala Chapman, accompanied by Miss Dora Fleming of Stokes came in last night to spend Sunday at home.

G. E. Lineberry went to Greenville today.

Another Wreck.

There was another wreck on the Norfolk & Southern railroad, Friday evening, that delayed traffic several hours. The wreck occurred about eight miles above Farmville where the engine of a work train left the track and turned over, several colored men who worked on the train were injured, one of them having an arm broken. The west bound passenger train had to wait at the wreck several hours for the track to be cleared.

The cause of the wreck is said to be due to the engine running backwards at too high speed.

The Odd Fellows who went to Behaven to attend the district meeting, returned Friday evening and report a fine trip.

Newspaper Advertising.

It is conceded by all business men now and is recognized the world over that advertising is the best investment that a business can make. Never in the history of the world have advertisements been read by the public as closely as now. Advertising has become so popular that the public looks to the best advertised business for the best bargains and best goods. There are few people who do not read advertisements, and the good women are always looking for information as to where they can spend money to the best profit and advantage.—Ashboro Courier.

Now the Vanderbilt family is joining in the "society" doings with a divorce suit.

Now and then they find out that an alderman does not have the softest berth in the country.

The New Bern Sun seems to have got by all the "next steps." Hope Bob has not reached the end of his journey.

When a man starts out to be a candidate in the present day method of seeking office, he should count the cost.

Money, though greatly wished for, does not insure matrimonial happiness. Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt, whose husband is worth sixty millions, is suing for a divorce.

If the women were "just crazy" over as many things as they say they are, it would take all the revenue of the country to build enough asylums to meet the demand.

Wonder why the Durham Herald missed the opportunity of taking three turns at Governor Glenn and ex-Governor Aycock, and quit at only taking two in that many articles exactly alike.

The Ohio school disaster has occupied the public mind for a time and caused some agitation of better means of fire escape in school buildings, but now it will likely be forgotten until memory of it is revived by another disaster.

But of course, the Georgia man who shot another in Coffee county will have good grounds for justifying his act.—Wilmington Dispatch.

Yet he should be re-restrained sufficiently to make ground-less such an excuse.

It is almost nonsensical for an intelligent person to argue that prohibition takes away people's liberties. It is just as sensible to say that not allowing a man to steal, nor to do murder, nor to commit any other crime, is taking away his liberty.

The Reflector feels like it owes an apology to the State of Alabama, for saying that one of her United States senators had gone home and kicked up a row. We had in mind at the time of writing Senator Davis of the State of Arkansas, but by a temporary slip of memory mixed him up with Congressman Heflin of Alabama.

Of course prohibition is in a sense a moral question, but if some disease should infest the country that destroys as many people a year as fall victims to whiskey, the scientific and financial resources of the government would be exhausted, if need be, to stamp it out. The government spends millions of dollars in trying to save people from disease, and millions more are spent in the care of the poor and the orphans, yet it licenses and encourages a business that destroys more lives than disease, that impoverishes more people and makes more destitute orphans than war. Yes, prohibition is a moral question, and more; it is a question of public safety.

FLEA IN THE PLEIADES.

Indian Legend About Five Maidens Who Would Marry For Love.

A curious explanation of the origin of the Pleiades is given by a writer in Out West, who secured it, among other myths, from a tribe of California Indians.

According to this piece of tradition, a great chief was the father of five daughters so beautiful that they attracted many suitors, but they declared they would remain single unless they could marry for love.

They were very cold and critical and quite ignored the young men who came to court them. One day when they were playing and singing Baakil, "the Flea," heard them and followed the sound until he came in sight of them. He was so captivated that he prayed the Great Spirit to transform him into a handsome man.

No sooner said than done. When the five daughters stopped dancing, there among them was so beautiful a masculine being that they fell in love without further ado. When the Flea had decided on his choice, he went to the chief and asked for her and was happily surprised to find that all five of the girls pined to be his.

So he married them all, one after the other, and they lived in peace and happiness through the winter. But with the late spring and summer a change took place. The heat affected the Flea, and every time he embraced any of his wives they began to itch. Their rosy cheeks vanished, their buoyancy became languor, and one took pity on the other and said:

"You must leave him to save your beauty."

When all five had been told the same thing from each other they decided that something must be done. So at midnight the five sisters met, and each proposed a way of escape, yet none was available save that of the youngest. Her plan was that they leave him for good and all.

To accomplish this end they gave him a sleeping draft when he awoke at the usual hour for his drink, for the Flea was a very light sleeper, and the hurrying and bustling of the five women would have awakened him had he not been drugged. When he was in his soundest sleep the women departed.

When the Flea awoke many hours later and got up he thought, "Where are my wives?" Looking about, he realized that they had fled. He went eastward and had journeyed many days when just about to rest on the sandy shore of the ocean he caught sight of them and excitedly exclaimed:

"I will catch you yet!"

They heard him, and the youngest turned to see how far behind he was. She called to her sisters: "Let us hasten. He is gaining on us rapidly." Curiosity caused the others to turn. They lost time until again the youngest cried, "He is very near!" Then with one voice they cried: "We will go up into the air! There he cannot come with us!"

Slowly and gracefully they rose until they reached the places they now occupy in the sky. Baakil again invoked aid of the Great Chief and through him was also allowed to arise to the sky. But before he was able to embrace any of his wives he, too, was turned into a star.

That is why there now are five stars close together in the Pleiades and one at the side. This one the Indians are convinced is the Flea.

Where Four States Meet.

It is odd to reflect that it is possible for one to be in four states at the same time. Yet there is one such spot in the United States. Glancing at a map of the United States, one finds an intersection between two straight lines, where Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona meet. The place is not often visited, as it is not easily reached. The stone erected by government surveyors is on the top of a spur in the Carrizo mountains. The nearest railway town is Mancos, Colo., nearly a hundred miles from the "four corners." The region about was once densely populated by cliff dwellers, but there are now no human beings within miles. Some years ago the Indians destroyed the boundary shaft. It was not replaced until 1904, probably because a long time elapsed before the authorities knew the old one had been wrecked.

With Knife and Fork.

In the middle ages people knew not knives and forks, but ate with nature's implements—their fingers. Later they held the bread or meat in a napkin in their left hands and cut off pieces with a dagger held in the right hand, the food being carried to the mouth on the knife, even in the most polite society. The next development was to have a special eating knife instead of using the dagger, which might have been used for the dispatch of an enemy. Each person kept an eating knife, and when he was invited out to dinner he brought his knife along with him. Forks were used in Venice in 997, but it was not till 1608 that a Venetian traveler, one Thomas Coryate, introduced them into Britain.—London Standard.

AFTER THE BALL

California's First Clearing House Was Not a Financial One.

The meaning of the term "clearing house" may not perhaps be familiar to all people outside of banking and commercial circles. An incident which occurred during our civil war may give a clear though homely idea of what a clearing house is.

The occasion was in 1864, when the citizens of San Francisco gave the famous "Russian ball" to the officers of the Russian fleet of warships in San Francisco's harbor, which had been sent to the federal government by the emperor of Russia to the assistance of the northern states in that war.

That ball was the most brilliant affair of its kind that has ever taken place in California. It was attended by the governor and all the state and municipal officers, the members of the supreme and superior courts, all the foreign consuls and the officers of the army and navy within reach of San Francisco, besides many of the old and wealthy Spanish families from southern California, all handsomely dressed and resplendent in diamond ornaments. The large hall was splendidly decorated with Russian and American flags intertwined. The flags of the foreign consuls and lines of eagles of singing canary birds were hung around the gallery. A military band and a string band supplied the music. On the stage of the hall were stacks of arms and accoutrements of war, while the rich dresses of the ladies and the uniforms of the officers of the navy and army, together with the grand official regalia of the foreign consuls, made it a scene of splendor and a wonder and delight to the Russian sailors.

After the supper, which was served in keeping with the rest of the ball, the Russian officers, the consuls and many of the guests of honor retired, but "the dance went on." Soon afterward it was seen that the waiters in the hat room had become confused in their deliveries, and gentlemen, finding their hats checks useless, were obliged to go inside and search for themselves, which resulted in soon covering the floor with articles of clothing, from which each man took that which fitted him best and went home.

The following day a notice appeared in the newspapers inviting all persons who had lost their overcoats or hats and had taken others instead to return them to a place designated in the notice and receive their own. The result of this move was a success, for every man who had lost his own and had brought that which belonged to him, the writer being one of them. This, then, was California's first clearing house, though not a financial one, in so far as the basic principle of the bankers' clearing house is concerned.—Los Angeles Times.

When Age Troubles Women.

"Women," said a marriage license clerk, "often lie about their age in the certificate. Look here. This is a letter from a woman now, asking me if a little age lie will legitimate her marriage. She says she is thirty-six, and her fiance thinks her twenty-nine. She wants naturally to maintain the illusion. I get such letters every week. I reply, if stamps are inclosed, that there is no law against these lies. After all, they do no harm, do they? Yes? No?"

"There's a law against them in Australia. There only the other day a divorce was granted a man on the plea that his wife had lied about her age to him. She was, it seems, forty-six, but he had thought her only thirty-five."—New York Press.

The Earliest Money.

The earliest money was probably shells or strips of bark. Skins appear very early as a medium of exchange. Later on sheep, oxen and other sort of cattle were used as the measure of value. With the advent of agriculture the products of the farm were sometimes made to be value units. So late as the early colonial times in Virginia tobacco was used as currency. Eventually the metals iron, silver and gold became the almost universally recognized money of civilized and semi-civilized peoples, iron taking the lead in point of time.—New York American.

Thumb Bells.

The thimble was originally called a thumb bell by the English, because worn on the thumb, then a tumbler and finally its present name. It was a Dutch invention and was first glass and pearl. In China beautiful carved pearl thimbles are seen, brought to England in 1695. Thimbles were formerly made only of iron and brass, but in comparatively late years they have been made of gold, silver, steel, horn, ivory, and even glass and pearl thimbles are seen, bound with gold and with the end of gold.—Eclectic.

PALINDROMES.

Words and Phrases That Spell the Same Backward and Forward.

"There are in the English language certain words and sometimes whole sentences of which the letters composing them, taken either in direct or in reverse order, read the same. Such combinations are called palindromes, a name derived from two Greek words meaning to run again—that is, the letters run or read backward as well as forward.

"When the first man met the first woman—whose name, Eve, by the way, is a palindrome—he may have introduced himself to her thus: 'Madam, I'm Adam.' In this supposed case I assume that he spoke English and not a garden of Edenish dialect, and if my supposition be correct he made use of a palindromic expression.

"Among the simple words of this kind or instances of whole sentences are deed, defied, gog, Hannah, level, minim, redder, nun, repaper, reviver, rotator, sexes, shahs and tat. 'Was it a cat I saw?' is palindromic.

"Barring the spelling the following sentence may be given: 'Lewd did I live & evil I did dwell.' Another example is, 'Deserts I desire not, so long no lost one rise distressed.' It is said that Napoleon was once asked whether he could have invaded England, when he replied, 'Able was I ere I saw Elba.' This is a good specimen of a palindrome, but of course the reply was never made, as he would have answered in French. Here is one in Latin, 'Subi dura rudibus.' 'Endure hard things from the rude.'

"The following list of five words furnishes a remarkable combination of letters. With one exception they are all Latin words in good repute, and the letters are capable of many regular transformations:

SATOR

"The first letter of each word, read downward from the top of the list, spells the first word, and the second letter of each word, read in the same way, spells the second word, and so on through the list. Beginning at the top each word, read backward, spells the corresponding word in the list under it—that is, the top word spells the bottom word, the second word from the top spells the second word from the bottom, and so on. Again, beginning at the bottom of the list, the last letter of each word, read upward, spells the word at the top, and in the same way the second letter of each word spells the second word from the top, and so on through the list again."

The Infant Terrible.

A Washington heights mother had just sought to punish her youthful son, and the son, to escape, had crawled under a bed, when a woman friend called at the apartment.

"What a lovely place you have here!" the caller remarked. "So pretty and so bright and clean! You must give more personal attention to things than I do."

"At this moment the small boy crawled out, scenting safety."

"Say, mamma," was his greeting, "I don't get under any more beds in this house. Look at me. I guess when you sweep you never sweep under there. The dirt's an inch thick."

The caller looked off into space, and the mother exclaimed enthusiastically:

"Oh, let me show you my hat, my dear!"—New York Globe.

Why He Didn't Resign.

Sir William Wightman held office in the old court of queen's bench in London far beyond the prescribed time, and at last, on the eve of the "long vacation," he took a sort of farewell of his brother judges. However, when "the morrow of All Saints" came around he turned up smiling at Westminster hall. "Why, Brother Wightman," said Sir Alexander Cockburn, "you told us that you intended to send in your resignation to the lord chancellor before the end of August." "So I did," said Sir William, "but when I went home and told my wife she said, 'Why, William, what on earth do you think that we can do with you messing about the house all day? So, you see, I was obliged to come down to court again.'"

Valiant Inevad.

During an invasion panic which spread through England when some French colonels addressed their emperor, Napoleon III., in very fiery terms a certain Yorkshire colonel of volunteers distinguished himself by the following utterance at a local banquet, "Gentlemen, on behalf of my comrades I can assure you that if Napoleon's colonels should land at Spurn the First East York rifles will not be the last to flee," a declaration that remained as a joke against the regiment for many years.

Deafness Cannot be cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. C. ENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Are You About to Invest In a Piano?

If so invest in a good one, and buy it from a firm of established reputation. If there is honor in whatever house you deal with there will be worth and value in whatever goods it sells. It has always been our greatest pride in affording protection to our patrons. There are now more Steiff and Kohler & Campbell Pianos in the homes of Pitt county than all other makes combined. There must be a reason why. Below is given a partial number of Greenville people whom I sold Steiff and Kohler & Campbell Pianos, and the prospective piano buyer is referred to the following list:

FARMVILLE ITEMS.

Farmville, N. C. April 4, 1908.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Taft are here from Greenville.

Dr. C. C. Joyner returned yesterday from Norfolk.

There was to have been an old time fiddlers' convention here last night, but it seems that the old time fiddlers didn't come in a sufficient number and the convention was called off.

We are soon to have a brass band, and if the present enthusiasm continues among the boys, it will be a band hard to beat.

The remains of Mr. T. B. Whitehurst, who committed suicide in Florida on Thursday, will be brought here this morning for burial. Mr. Whitehurst had not lived here for sometime, but had many friends here who were shocked to hear of his death.

We are glad to note that W. J. Rasberry, who has been quite sick, is improving.

There was an attempted criminal assault this morning on a recently married daughter of Mr. J. R. D. Moore, who lives at Marlboro about one mile from here. The negro who attempted the assault has been arrested and placed in the guard house. He is said to be half-witted.

Disappointed.

At one of the sideshows in a certain fair the principal performer was a knife thrower, who made a specialty of throwing knives all around a lady into a board at the back of the stage. The partner of this artist was a middle aged, stout and—well, very plain, and when she came on the audience gasped. They had not thought it possible for any one to be—well, so plain and live through it. The man arranged her to the board and at the critical moment threw the knife. It flew through the air and struck, quivering, in the board.

Voice from the back:
"Great Scott! You've missed her!"—Modern Society.

Their Silence.

"I am glad you were there, my boy," said Mrs. Stormington Barnes in exultation. "I am glad you were there. I had the audience spell-bound, didn't I?"

"Why—er—it seemed to me that they didn't applaud very much."

"That's just it. I had 'em so interested in what I was saying that they didn't even dare applaud for fear they'd miss some of it."—Exchange.

For Your Sunday Dinner.

try the following delightful desert:
1/2 cup English Walnut meats.
1-2 doz. figs, cut up fine.
1 1/2c. package JELLO-O, any flavor
Dissolve the JELLO-O in a pint of boiling water. When cool and just commencing to thicken stir in the figs and nuts. Served with Whipped cream.
Delicious. The walnuts, figs and JELLO-O can be bought at any good grocery. This makes enough desert for a large family and is very economical.

A LESSON IN ECONOMY

A STENOGRAPHER in a prominent business house, who operated a typewriter where the carriage had to be raised to see what was written, wasted eight minutes in one hour in lifting that carriage.

She was employed eight hours per day. On this basis she lost 64 minutes that day.

She would lose in one year of 300 working days 320 hours.

She was paid $2.50 per day for eight hours' work, 35.7 cents per hour.

Her employer, therefore, would have paid her $114.24 in one year, for which he received no equivalent.

There were ten stenographers employed in this office, and if they all lost the same amount of time, he would have paid in one year $1,142.40 for which he enjoyed no benefit.

In ten years he would have paid $11,424.00 for nothing.

Every business man using a typewriter that does not write in sight, but on which you have to raise the carriage to see the writing, is losing money in the same proportion.

WHICH IS BETTER—
to have that saving of money in dividends, or pay it out for wasted time?
