HAPPENINGS IN NORTH CAROLINA

SHORT ITEMS OF EVENTS ABOUT THE STATE.

Bryan to Lecture for Y. M. C. A.—Editor Given 24 Hours to Quit Town—Negro Commits Suicide—N. & S. Station Robbed.

The Y. M. C. A. of Wilmington have invited Hon. W. J. Bryan to deliver a lecture in that city sometime in May.

Henry W. Permenter, of Mecklenburg county, aged 104 years and the oldest Confederate veteran in the State, has made application for a pension.

Asheville, N. C., April 8.—A vigilance committee called on Editor Smith, of the Mitchell County Record at Bakersville, and gave him twenty four hours to quit town and never come back. He went. Some of the committee the other day took forcible possession of the paper and changed its politics from Democratic to Republican.

Fayetteville, April 7.—Lonnie McKay, colored, night porter at the Cumberland Hotel and well known to the travelling public, shot and killed himself with a pistol to day. The deed was first reported as suicidal, but the coroner's inquest left the matter in doubt and Mr. Crews, proprietor of the hotel, was positive that death was accidental.

Hertford, April 7.—Two white men entered the store of William Long, a merchant at Ycepin, a small station five miles south of here on the N. & S. road, at 6 o'clock this morning and attempted a daring robbery. They took Long by surprise and struck him two heavy blows over the head with a stout club. He shouted so loudly for assistance that the would-be robbers fled without their booty, leaving Long badly wounded. The robbers took the woods.

Trade Report.

Richmond, Va., April 9, 1908. Bradstreet's Saturday will say for Richmond and vicinity:—

Trade in general shows little change from last week. Orders for dry goods shows a decrease, while some improvement is shown in shoes and leather goods. More demand for lumber is noted, however 50 per cent. of the lumber mills in this territory are closed down. The 1907 crop of tobacco has about all been marketed by the planter. Little activity is shown in produce and fruits. Some shipments of early spring vegetables are noted. Iron and metal are in little demand. Retail trade shows slight improvement. Collections continue backward. Favorable weather has prevailed this week and crop conditions are good. Winter wheat shows improvement.

Albemarle Presbytery.

Elizabeth City, N. C., April 7.—The Presbytery of Albemarle will meet in Cann's Memorial church in this city on April the 22nd. The Presbytery will be in session for three days. The reception committee of the Cann's Memorial church are now busy making arrangements for the entertainment of the visitors. A large number of delegates and representative members of the Presbyterian church will be in attendance upon this session of Presbytery and an elaborate entertainment be furnished them.

CAPTURING AN ENGINE.

How a Plucky Engineer Overtook a Runaway on English Railway.

One of the finest stories in the history of the railways centres round a runaway engine on the Stockton and Darlington line.

The engine was observed by the driver of another and more powerful one. Seeing the fugitive speeding in the direction of Darlington he uncoupled his own engine, crossed the points and set out in pursuit on the same line. It was a long chase, but the pursuer, driven at top speed, gradually overhauled the runaway.

At last it came near enough for the driver to crawl to the front of his engine and drop a stout chain over the tender hook of the other. He returned to his footplate, shut off steam and screwed down his brake.

This steadied the one in front and so retarded its pace that the driver was able now to creep from his own engine on to the runaway, put on the brake, and bring it to a standstill, almost in the crowded Darlington station.—London Standard.

The North Carolina Press.

Right behind everything which has for its object the uplift of our people stands the Press of North Carolina. In the fierce battle for the destruction of the liquor traffic the News and Observer has stood like a stonewall; and all over the State our country newspapers to the best of their strength have gladly championed every righteous cause. A depraved and immoral newspaper cannot flourish in North Carolina. It must convince its readers that it loves the right in order to win their patronage. They may be deceived but they will not let the same man deceive them twice.

The field for the country paper is broader and more inviting now than it has ever been. The educational revival has opened new and larger opportunities for the country editor. The rural free delivery, instead of being a hindrance, is a great help, for it creates a thirst for reading and the deeper the thirst the better for the local paper. I am always glad to see a community proud of and loyal to its paper. It is the good sign of the paper and a better sign of the people. A merchant ought to patronize his home paper whether it pays him dollars and cents or not. It does pay him in a great many ways. It tells the story of loyalty to the world, that outsiders read and understand; it reveals a breadth, and a spirit of enterprise on the part of the home people that is the finest kind of advertisement and one that draws like a magnet.—Archibald Johnson in Ashboro Courier.

Spring Opening.

Thursday, Friday, Saturday of this week I will display at my Green house in West Greenville, the finest collection of Easter plants ever seen in Greenville. Be sure and come at once and make your selection as most of the plants not spoken of here will be taken to other towns Monday. "First come, first served."

Ollen E. Warren, Florist.

Public Library Hours Changed.

Commencing tomorrow, the tenth, the library will be open from four thirty to six thirty. Please notice that this change is for an hour instead of half hour, as before. Librarian.

"THE BIG STICK"

Learned to Look to North Carolina for Leaders.

Principal John E. Ray, of the State School for the Blind, has returned from New York city where he purchased a new $3,500 organ for his institution. The Department of Music of this school has had wonderful success, and its work has received wide praise and commendation.

On his way to New York Mr. Ray stopped at Washington City, where with President Hayne Davis, of the North Carolina Peace Society, and the members of the North Carolina delegation in Congress, he visited President Roosevelt at the White House. Mr. Ray stated that the company were well received by the president, who treated them in his characteristic way. Mr. Davis made an excellent impromptu speech before the president, which seemed to be highly gratifying to the chief executive, causing him to remark: "We have learned to look to North Carolina for leaders."

"The Big Stick" was also exhibited at this conference, President Roosevelt telling the North Carolina Congressman that they need not expect to get any more public buildings until Congress should give him three battle-ships.—News and Observer.

The Meeting.

There was much interest in the meeting in the Methodist church last night, and Mr. McWhorter preached an excellent sermon on love. At the close of his sermon he made an earnest appeal to his hearers to show their love for Christ by confessing Him. The service at 10 o'clock this morning was also very interesting. There will be service again tonight beginning at 7.45.

Lost $40.

Mr. A. L. Blow was around making inquiry this morning for some money that in an unaccountable way he lost out of his pocket Tuesday evening. The loss consisted of one $20 and two $10 bills rolled together. Quite a large sum to be losing in such hard times as these.

Lecture on China.

Dr. W. G. Painter, a returned missionary from China, in the Presbyterian church last night delivered an instructive lecture on China. He was a missionary there for thirty years and is thoroughly familiar with conditions and customs there.

Married.

At 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride, on Pitt street, Mr. Joseph Tripp and Mrs. Neta Whichard were married by Rev. M. T. Plyler. A few friends were present to witness the ceremony.

OFFICERS AFTER THEM.

Looking for Some of the Moving Picture Crowd.

Wilson, N. C. April 7.—Last Tuesday the Southern Amusement company advertised to show here for five nights. They advertised first-class moving pictures with polite vaudeville stunts—all for ten cents. At their first performance the attendance was very good, but on the second night when the same old gags were gotten off, it was in sight that before the week was out the entire outfit would go to the wall—and so they did. The men in charge—Finch & Parham—left the city in debt for board to the amount of eighteen dollars and leaving their two specialty people here.

These people claim that Finch & Parham are due them fifty dollars and that they hold a contract for four weeks at fifty dollars per week. They are also indebted to a young lady here for one week's piano playing.

Finch is the same fellow who was here conducting a picture show and jumped the town leaving a lot of unpaid bills. Two Rocky Mount boys, named Hicks and Cuthrell, followed Finch in the picture show business here and they also skipped out leaving a lot of unpaid bills.

Costly Business.

It is estimated that getting born in the United States costs people annually $225,000,000; getting married costs $300,000,000 annually; getting buried costs $75,000,000 annually; getting drunk and drinking spiritous liquor costs the people of the United States something more than $1,427,000,000 annually, or more than one and a half times as much as getting born, married and buried put together. No person can doubt that liquor forms the deepest, bravest and darkest stream of sin that flows into hell's eternal ocean.

QUITE A DIFFERENCE.

The proposition being before congress to put a stop to all dealing in futures, the Milwaukee Journal offers this argument in defense of future dealing:

"When a man buys a house and lot for $2,000, paying $500 down and giving a mortgage for the $1,500 remaining due, he stands to make if the value of the property advances, and to lose if it recedes. His actual investment is only $500, but he is the owner of the property in the eye of the law.

"Now suppose that instead of real estate the property dealt in is wheat or pork, or stocks. Does the character of the property change the moral aspect of the transaction?"

"Is it legitimate to buy real estate, paying only a part down, and illegitimate to buy wheat or pork or stocks paying only a part down? Is the house deal a solid business transaction and the what deal or the stock deal gambling on margins? Shall there be law to interfere with transactions of this character in wheat or stocks, and nothing to interfere with parallel transactions in houses or farms?"

This argument is no comparison at all. If a man buys the real estate he gets something tangible and will become the possessor of it. Of course if the purchase is made for speculation the profit or loss is measured by the rise or fall in value. In the purchase of future contracts of wheat, pork or stocks it is different. There is nothing tangible and the purchaser is not becoming the possessor of anything, the intent being to give or take the difference in price when the time of closing out comes.

Not many of the newspaper men are farmers, but now and then some of them can give the tillers of the soil some good advice. Here is an example of it that we clip from the Scotland Neck Commonwealth, which says:

"Let the farmers be sure to put in corn enough this spring to make sufficient home supplies. Nothing they can do will so inure to their advantage as a full smoke house and a well filled corn crib at home. With independence in home supplies the price of cotton next fall will not make so much difference with them."

The spirit of candidates going for each other like has been shown in the race for nomination for governor in this State seems to be catching, and now Mr. Bryan and Mr. Taft, candidates for president, have commenced jabbing each other before either is nominated.

The Goulds have withdrawn all the opposition to their divorced sister marrying another count. Just as well to have done this first, for when a woman sets her head to a thing, opposition will not change her.

THE CHARM OF ISLANDS.

What is Missed by Those Who Live Far From the Sea.

No men of the world are so to be pitted, I think, as those who dwell far from the sea. They shall never know but a piece of life. A plain, to be sure, is very well. It responds delicately enough to the humor of the seasons, changing from green to gold, from gold to dun, from dun to white. It has, too, its moods, its laughers, its melancholies, its rushings of the wind, its illimitability of the dark. A hill, though, is better—that is, a hill that looks across a plain, never one that is huddled among its fellows, for there one is caught like a beetle in a cup. A hill gives one a sense of freedom and a perspective upon the world. It is something to look down on the parquetry of field and town and wood and stream, to keep vigil upon the drama woven invisibly below one's eyes. And it has moments—a hill; certain nights of stars, certain bursts of storm, certain iridescent afternoons, when the whole tragedy of autumn is unrolled at one's feet.

But above all else in the world give me an island! There is your true microcosmos! There you hold in your hand, as it were, the essence and epitome of the universe. Your own earth spreads under your feet. Your own sky hangs over your head. Your own sea encircles you. Your own portion of life is meted out to you day by day, distinct from that of other men. For not the least charm of an island is its privacy. An islet, of course, I mean—one from which you may catch the glint of water on every side. Otherwise your island is no better than a pasture. Whether you be a hermit or whether you have a book of verses underneath the bough—and the requisite concomitants—or whatever be your personal circumstances, you are yet divided from a hostile or indifferent world. You are at liberty to feel and to test your own personality. You are not overborne by the rush of humanity which is the burden of terra firma.—Scribner's Magazine.

A CASTELLANE PIRATE.

Took Sultan's Library and Demanded Ransom For Its Return.

In 1611 Jean Philip de Castellane was commander of the French man-of-war Notre Dame de la Garde. Henry IV. sent him to Morocco to demand of the sultan the release of certain French prisoners. De Castellane carried his negotiations to a successful conclusion, and the sultan as a peace offering sent to the French commander twenty Arabian horses for the king. "Just as the Notre Dame was about to weigh anchor the pretender to the Moroccan throne gained a decisive victory, and the sultan decided to flee for his life. He engaged passage for himself and harem on a Dutch merchantman, and to De Castellane he entrusted his library, one of the most extensive collections of Arabic manuscripts and books in existence. The great Mulay Ahmed was the founder of the library. "Arriving at the place of rendezvous, Commander de Castellane sent word to the sultan that he could have his library for 3,000 ducats, the price of transportation.

"The sultan protested that he had made no such agreement and that besides he did not have the money to pay the demand, whereupon De Castellane sailed away. "He had not gone very far when a great storm overtook the Notre Dame and drove her, a wreck, upon the African coast at Casablanca, then occupied by the king of Spain, who was at war with Morocco. The Spaniards seized the library and shipped it to Spain, where it was placed in a wing of the Escorial. What remains of the library can be seen today in an alcove labeled the Arabian collection."—Florence (Italy) Journal.

Shiraz, Xeres and Sherry.
Sir Henry Drummond Wolff's knowledge of Spain and of Persia is shown in the following paragraph taken from his "Rambling Recollections":

"In Persia no wine is manufactured for sale except at Shiraz. When Persia was invaded by the Arabs they took back with them to Morocco the grapes of the district. In Spain they wished to naturalize the new fruit, and this they did at a place called Xeres, intended for Shiraz, there being no sound equivalent to 'sh' in Spanish. There they cultivated the grape and made wine, which now returns to Europe as 'sherry,' that word being a paraphrase of Shiraz. Shiraz wine is very similar in taste to sherry."

Juvenile Logic.
Marie is a very bright kindergarten pupil. She came home to her parents the other day and told them that the kindergarten teacher had said she will grow up to be a very nice looking young lady if she is a good girl, but will grow up to be a very ugly woman if she is a naughty girl. "Is that true, mamma?" asked Marie, and she was informed that if the teacher said so it was true. Marie then sat still for a while, pondering seriously. "But, mamma," she suddenly burst forth again, "why was the kindergarten teacher so naughty when she was a little girl?"—Philadelphia Record.

One Exception.
"I am reduced from affluence to beggary" he faltered. In as few words as possible she broke their engagement. "I wish to show," she observed haughtily, "that women, contrary to general report, do not necessarily care for things just because they are reduced!"—Detroit Journal.

Deafness Cannot be cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Kodol for Dyspepsia has helped thousands of people who have had stomach trouble. This is what one man says of it: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Gentlemen—In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels. I could not digest anything I ate and in the spring of 1902 I bought a bottle of Kodol and the benefit I received from that bottle all the gold in Georgia could not buy. I still use a little occasionally as I find it a fine blood purifier and a good tonic. May you live long and prosper. Yours very truly, C. N. Cornell, Roding, Ga., Aug. 27, 1906. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup—the cough syrup that tastes nearly as good as maple sugar and which children like so well to take. Unlike nearly all other cough remedies, it does not constipate, but on the other hand it acts promptly yet gently on the bowels, through which the cold is forced out of the system, and at the same time it allays inflammation. Always use Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

Anyway, the self-made man hasn't any one to blame but himself.

To have perfect health we must have perfect digestion, and it is very important not to permit of any delay the moment the stomach feels out of order. Kodol is a natural digestant and will digest what you eat. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

THE ENCHANTED MESA.

Story of Great Disaster Which Wiped Out the Population.

The story of the enchanted mesa was but a tradition when in 1541 the Spaniards first visited the pueblo of Acoma, in what is now Valencia county, N. M. Powerful tribes inhabited the region. These tribes or nations were constantly at war with each other, which accounts for the fortified character of the villages of the natives. The Queres, whose descendants now occupy Acoma, held this region and dwelt in small fortified towns, the capital of which was Acoma. It was not, however, the Acoma of today, but a city perched upon the top of the great rock now called Mesa Encantada. It was the magnificent city of the nation, and there dwelt the great men of the tribe, together with their families.

The rock then, as now, was unscalable, save at the one point where a narrow and precipitous trail led up the dizzy height. While not the most convenient dwelling place, for neither water nor vegetation was to be found upon the summit, it was safe from the attacks of foes. One man at the top of the trail could defend the city against the warriors of the entire west. One day, while a large number of the inhabitants were at work in the fields on the plain below or attending to the affairs of the tribe in the various neighboring villages, something within the rock or in the earth beneath it awoke to life and motion. There was a heaving, a quivering and a shivering of the great rock, and, with a mighty noise, it parted in twain, and a portion fell in fragments to the plain below.

Such persons as were carried down in the debris were crushed to death. A worse fate remained for those left prisoners on the top of the mesa, for that which fell carried away the narrow trail, the only means of ascent and descent. The stranded ones perished from thirst and starvation. The present Acoma family are the descendants of disaster. Ethnologists who visited the top of the rock some years ago found unmistakable evidences that it had once been the site of habitation. The story of the disaster had previous to that time been discredited and considered but an idle Indian legend. The discovery of the ancient ruins, however, seemed confirmatory of the tale, and it has since been credited.—Denver Field and Farm.

HARDNESS OF DIAMONDS.

The Stones Can Be Forced by Pressure Into Steel Blocks.

A word as to the hardness of diamonds. They vary much in this respect. Even different parts of the same crystal differ in their resistance to cutting and grinding. So hard is diamond in comparison to glass that a suitable splinter of diamond will plane curls off a glass plate as a carpenter's tool will plane shavings off a deal board. Another experiment that will illustrate its hardness is to place a diamond on the flattened end of a conical block of steel and upon it bring another similar cone of steel. If I force them together with hydraulic power, I can force the stone into the steel blocks without injuring the diamond in the least. The pressure which I have brought to bear in this experiment has been equal to 170 tons a square inch of diamond.

The only serious rival of the diamond in hardness is the metal tantalum. In an attempt to bore a hole through a plate of this metal a diamond drill was used, revolving at the rate of 5,000 revolutions a minute. This whirling force was continued ceaselessly for three days and nights, when it was found that only a small point one-fourth of a millimeter deep had been drilled, and it was a moot point which had suffered most damage, the diamond or the tantalum.

After exposure for some time to the sun many diamonds glow in a dark room. One beautiful green diamond in my collection when phosphorescing in a vacuum gives almost as much light as a candle, and you can easily read by its rays. But the time has hardly come when we can use diamonds as domestic illuminants.—Sir William Crookes in North American Review.

Good Reasoning.

"I don't see, madam, how you can expect us to pay any claim under your husband's accident policy."

"Well, you see it was this way: When he asks which it was, a boy or a girl, and the nurse said that he was the father of triplets, he dropped. Now, his death was due to an accident."

"How do you make that out?"

"It was an accident of birth."—New York Press.

Strapping a Razor.

In strapping a razor the blade should be drawn across the strop from the heel to the point, at the same time going the full length of the strop. In shaving this motion should be reversed, the blade traveling from point to heel. The reason of this is that the edge of the blade has tiny, sawlike teeth, and the opposite movements use these to the best advantage.

Opened by Mistake.

Absentmindedly the young woman yawned.

"Pardon me," she said. "I didn't mean to do that."

"I see," responded Mr. Lingerlong. "Opened by mistake."—Chicago Tribune.

A Vast Difference.

"Don't I give you all the money you need?" her husband complained.

"Yes," she replied, "but you told me before we were married that you would give me all I wanted."—London Tatler.

ANCIENT SWORDS.

The Famous Old "Two Hander" Was a Terrible Weapon.

In the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth centuries the development of the sword was carried forward rapidly. Hitherto the military organization of Europe had been of the most irregular character, but in the fourteenth century the German troops and the men from the Swiss mountains became known far and wide for their thorough discipline and their excellent organization. They approached more nearly to the modern notion of a soldier than any troops that had yet been put in the field, and they were employed as hired troops by the various European sovereigns. They were armed with a pistol and a huge two handed sword, which, through their marvelously skillful handling, became one of the most famous weapons of the army. This "two hander," as the Germans called it, often reached a length of seven feet, and one still preserved in Westminster abbey weighs quite eighteen pounds.

The wavy outline of the blade, a style of decoration that was much in favor in the arts about this time and from which came our word "flamboyant," or "flaming," gave greater efficacy to the blow. The prongs below the crosspieces protected the guard. Wielded by trained men, this weapon was capable of doing terrific execution. The brawny man-at-arms grasped the sword firmly in both hands. Balanced on one foot, he swung the blade in a circle above his head and fetched a crashing blow that mowed down everything before it. It was a favorite weapon with the English soldiery, to whose strongly built frames its huge proportions were well adapted. Richard the Lion Hearted, who from his great size alone would have been the foremost man on any field, handled this heavy weapon with such strength and skill that his name became a terror to the foe.

According to an old romance, an expert swordsman might hope to leave sixty of the enemy disabled on the field. But these mighty brands had all the faults of their virtues. Like the cumbersome armor of the Gothic period, they were a sore tax on the spent energies of the weary soldier, and owing to their awkward size extreme care was required in handling them lest an unexpected blow might be bestowed upon some fellow soldier in the furious assault. Besides, it took a lifetime of training to produce men of sufficient strength and dexterity to render effective service.—Chicago News.

A Deadly Insult.

A west side youngster was caught literally wiping up the street with another boy with whom he was supposed to be on especially friendly terms. The detector of his pugilistic encounter was his mother, who after she had yanked him into the house proceeded to deliver a lecture on the sin of fighting. The boy listened for awhile in silence.

"That's all right," he broke out at last in uncontrollable indignation. "It's all right for you to talk, but if you just knew what he said about you!"

The pause was significant. The mother took alarm.

"About me?" she said. "Why, what on earth did he say about me?"

"He said," blubbered the small boy in impotent wrath, "that you—wear—petticoats."—New York Times.

Still a Puppy.

The youth had only just left college, and his ambition, like his collar, was high.

At home the all engrossing subject was the young man's future career, and he was discussing with his parents which of the professions stood most in need of his genius.

The father's idea of his son's ability was disgustingly low.

"I think," said the old man, "that you had better adorn one of the stools in my office."

The young man drew himself up, and the high collar grew tight as he strove to swallow his righteous anger. Folding his arms, he asked:

"Am I a dog?"

"No, not yet, but you'll grow," came the crushing response.

The Safety Pin.

"The originator of the safety pin," said a historian of inventions, "was a little boy, an English blacksmith's son. The little boy, Harrison by name, had to look after his baby brother. The baby often cried, and its tears were usually to be traced to pin punctures. The boy nurse tried a long time to bend pins into such a form that they could be used with safety to his brother's flesh.

"In this he failed, but his father, the blacksmith, perceiving the utility of the idea the lad had been at work on, took it up on his own account and eventually turned out the safety pin that is in use today all over the world."

A LESSON IN ECONOMY

A STENOGRAPHER in a prominent business house, who operated a typewriter where the carriage had to be raised to see what was written, wasted eight minutes in one hour in lifting that carriage.

She was employed eight hours per day. On this basis she lost 64 minutes that day.

She would lose in one year of 300 working days 320 hours.

She was paid $2.50 per day for eight hours' work, 35.7 cents per hour.

Her employer, therefore, would have paid her $114.24 in one year, for which he received no equivalent.

There were ten stenographers employed in this office, and if they all lost the same amount of time, he would have paid in one year $1,142.40 for which he enjoyed no benefit.

In ten years he would have paid $11,424.00 for nothing.

Every business man using a typewriter that does not write in sight, but on which you have to raise the carriage to see the writing, is losing money in the same proportion.

WHICH IS BETTER— to have that saving of money in dividends, or pay it out for wasted time?

DUELING STORIES.

Girardin's Satisfaction and a Winning Choice of Weapons.

M. de Girardin, the father of the statesman and author, Emile de Girardin, on one occasion entered a place where several men were firing at a target. A gentleman present, whom M. de Girardin did not know, hit the bullseye at every shot. Several bystanders expressed themselves in very great admiration of the gentleman's precision.

"Yes," said De Girardin, "he shoots remarkably well, but it's quite a different thing to hit a man in a duel from hitting a piece of pasteboard."

The marksman overheard the remark and was offended.

"I think you are mistaken, sir," he said to De Girardin. "I assure you that if I had you before me I shouldn't miss you."

"You can have me when you like," said De Girardin.

"Let it be immediately, then," said the other.

An attempt was made to patch the matter up, but neither man would agree to an amicable settlement. The seconds were chosen, and the men went to a locality favorable for the duel. It was decided that they should fire separately, and it was left to a decision by lot which fired first.

The lot fell to the mysterious marksman. He fired at M. de Girardin and missed him. De Girardin stood still, making no sign as if to fire at his antagonist.

"Come, why don't you shoot?" asked his seconds.

"Why should I shoot?" asked De Girardin. "There is no reason why I should kill this gentleman. I maintained that even a crack shot could easily miss his man at twenty-five paces. This gentleman maintained the contrary. He must now be convinced that he is wrong. I owe him no ill will for having discovered that."

A better method of meeting a dueling challenge was no doubt one which was employed on a certain occasion by a French statesman against M. Victor Noir, an illiterate bully of the press in the time of the second empire. The statesman received from Noir, for no real reason whatever, a challenge to fight a duel.

Noir was a densely ignorant man, and nearly every word in the challenge was misspelt. The statesman responded with the following letter:

Dear Sir—You have called me out without any good reason. I have therefore the choice of weapons. I choose the spelling book, and you are a dead man.

The duel was never fought.—London Tit-Bits.

Expert Opinion.

Physicians as a class are supposed to be indifferent to poetry. They have other and more important things to think of.

"What do you think of my poems?" inquired the young man.

"They betray an astonishing ignorance of anatomy," replied his medical friend.

"But they're not supposed to be scientific, you know."

"That may be the case, but it affords no excuse for your saying they 'spring from an aching heart' when it is so apparent that they proceed from a deranged liver."
