HAPPENINGS IN NORTH CAROLINA

SHORT ITEMS OF EVENTS ABOUT THE STATE.

Six Horses and One Mule Destroyed in Fire at Concord, and Man was Shot in Back from Ambush.

Concord, April 12.—Fire broke out this morning at 2 o'clock at the livery stable of J. M. Wood, when six horses and one mule were killed, three horses being burned almost to a crisp and the others suffocated from dense smoke and heat.

Concord, April 13.—A malicious and wanton murder was committed in No. 5 township last night about 8 o'clock, 4 miles northeast of the city at the old home of Abner Walter on the old Salisbury road, when Arthur Kriminger was shot in the back from ambush, resulting in instant death. The young man had been to the city during the day and had been out driving with several girls. He had started on his homeward journey and reached within a few hundred yards of his home when the assassination took place.

BRYAN AND PROHIBITION.

Nebraska Statesman Has One Card Which He Thinks Will Win.

"I have been told," said a prominent Democratic politician, "that William Jennings Bryan has an unplayed card up his sleeve on which he is depending for election, provided he is nominated for the presidency. I further understand that the final trick with which Bryan hopes to win the presidential game is a strong prohibition plank in the Democratic platform.

"I am inclined to think that there is something in this story. Only those who travel about the country a good deal and are close observers of the trend of sentiment can appreciate the force of the great temperance wave that is sweeping over the nation. I think without doubt it is the greatest moral movement of the day. I can easily understand how it might be made the leading campaign issue—in fact, the determining issue—of the presidential campaign.

"Mr. Bryan is peculiarly well fitted to make a fight for national prohibition by reason of his well known temperate habits. The sentiment against the unrestricted sale of intoxicating liquors is spreading over the country like a prairie fire.

"I have heard it asserted by competent authorities that Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, and even Iowa, Kansas, and Nebraska could be carried by Bryan on a prohibition platform. This seems like queer reasoning to many persons who do not know of the tremendous feeling that has been developed on this subject in these communities.

"It would not surprise me at all if the presidential campaign should be fought on the issue of temperance. There is very little difference in the announced principles of the two parties on the subject of the trusts, and both are for tariff revision. In view of this many Democrats believe they could make a ten-strike by adopting a strong prohibition plank in their platform and depend upon carrying certain Republican States where this sentiment is strong, and the solid South, thereby electing Bryan."

WINTERVILLE ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From Our Hustling Neighbor.

Winterville, N. C., April 15, 1908.

A. W. Ange left Tuesday afternoon to visit a few days at Jamesville.

There was a temperance rally at Tucker's school house Sunday afternoon. A large and attentive audience was present to hear Prof. G. E. Lineberry. Quite a number of our people went to take part in the singing.

J. B. Carroll went to Greenville Tuesday evening.

Dr. W. C. Tyree, of Raleigh is assisting Rev. T. H. King in a meeting at the Baptist church. He is preaching the gospel in its purity and beauty. It is truly refreshing to hear him bring out the wonderful truths of the gospel. All are cordially invited to attend these services.

Remember the closing of Miss May Brook's school at Renston next Friday, the 17th. Supt. J. W. of Raleigh, will deliver an address at 11 o'clock. Dinner will be served on the grounds.

Rev. Mr. Jackson filled his regular appointment at the Free Will church Saturday and Sunday. He preached a strong temperance sermon Sunday morning to a large congregation. He admonishes all Christians to take their stand for God, and by so doing they would have to stand against the liquor business in all its forms. He gave the business some heavy blows.

A. G. Cox and Rev. Mr. Jackson attended the temperance rally at Elm Grove Sunday afternoon.

A. W. Ange has improved the appearance of his dwelling by having a coat of paint put on.

The John H. Sparks' Shows.

A rattling good show with a big line up of splendid acts and features can be anticipated after reading what the papers have to say about the Sparks' Shows where ever it has exhibited. Its recent tour through the state of Pennsylvania was an ovation. The Elk County Democrat said that it was the best show that ever visited Ridgway, and the Cambria Tribune remarked that every claim was more than made good. The Oil City Derrick printed nearly a column of praise, and as this is one of the really influential papers of the state, it means a good deal. Listen to it. "The Sparks' popularity has been established by carrying out each and every promise, and 'then some.' The show contains every feature of the most pretentious exhibitions, in the country, and of a better quality, and they are presented in such a way that they can be enjoyed and appreciated to the fullest. Of all the shows that have visited Oil City, this is certainly the people's favorite, and the packed tents of yesterday is a deserved tribute to the energetic genius who originated and developed this splendid exhibition."

Mr. W. S. Moye Hurt.

Mr. W. S. Moye, one of the employes at the Greenville Manufacturing Co's plant was painfully cut Tuesday afternoon. He was tightening a bolt above the knife on a planing machine when the wrench he was using slipped off the bolt and his right wrist and left hand both came down heavily on the edge of the knife, cutting him severely. Dr. Morrill who dressed his injuries had to take several stitches to close the cuts.

WANT NO CARNIVAL.

Board of Aldermen Vote Against Proposition.

The board of aldermen have thrashed over the carnival question again and decided against permitting such a show to come here tax free on condition that a small per cent. of the receipts be donated to the fire department. A representative of a carnival company came here yesterday and managed to arouse enough interest in it for a special meeting of the aldermen to be called for this morning to hear his proposition. Several business men were present to oppose the carnival and for a while there was a lively discussion of the question. A motion to reject the proposition of the carnival representative finally got the right of way and was carried by a vote of 6 to 2.

There is nothing for Greenville to gain by having a carnival, but a great deal may have been saved by not having one.

Expression of Sympathy.

From the Baby Roll of the Methodist Sunday school the name of another little darling has passed to the record in our Father's keeping. Since then life has not been just the same to the young father and mother, so grieved in the going of one of the twins. Thelma Carson and Elma Lee were the twin stars that shone with new lustre in the life of Brother and Sister Will E. Nichols as they began to build a home. But little Thelma is with them no more, and even her baby sister feels the change. It is all very trying for the loved ones but there is light beyond and the Christian's hope of a reunited family circle. Our sincerest sympathy belongs to the loving father and mother.

Miss Etta Harris.

Pay Your Poll Tax.

It is well to remember that the man who does not pay his poll tax prior to May 1st will not be permitted to vote in any of the elections to be held this year. This is an important year politically, and we take it that no good citizen desires to disfranchise himself by neglecting to pay his poll tax. On May 26th the people of North Carolina will vote on the proposed State prohibition bill, and in November we will elect county officers as well as congressmen and presidential electors.

Pay your poll tax.

There Are Others.

The Reflector has been called down again for not naming all the candidates out for the nomination of register of deeds and sheriff. There are two for each of these offices that we did not get, O. W. Harrington and J. H. Cobb being candidates for sheriff, and W. M. Moore and R. M. Hearne being candidates for register of deeds. This makes six candidates for each of these offices, and there may yet be more to come.

B. & L. Fifth Series.

The fifth series of stock in The Home Building and Loan Association will soon be opened. Read the advertisement in this paper and be ready to take some shares in the new series. By so doing you will make a good investment and at the same time help your town to grow.

WE ARE RESPONSIBLE

Our Own Neglect To Uplift Causes Much Depravity and Crime.

"To the trained observer of life it is obvious that criminals are not on the whole to blame for their vicious career.

"For twenty-five years, as a police reporter in New York, I saw all the wickedness of depraved human nature," says Jacob Riis in the May Delinquent. "I saw a seemingly unending succession of young rascals—so the police had stamped them and the record on the station-house blotter bore them out—going from the slums through the wicket-gate of the toms to the prison and to the gallows, and it was a sight to discourage any one whose horizon was limited by our earth-life.

The chill of it abides with me yet. But behind it all I made out also what it was that had depraved their poor human nature, and that the responsibility lay with us who let it be, whose neglect of the neighbor that had fallen among thieves was to blame for it all. The world is no worse than we make it. We also can make it good."

GLENN NOT A CANDIDATE.

The Governor Addresses an Open Letter to the People of the State.

Raleigh, April 14.—In an open letter, addressed to the people of the State, Governor Glenn today formally announced that he would not be a candidate for the United States Senate, to succeed Senator Lee S. Overman. He will support Overman. The letter which, is lengthy, is in part as follows:

"I have given the matter careful and prayerful consideration, and feel that I am doing right, and in coming to my conclusion two things have actuated me—first to serve the state by preventing a bitter contest; second, and hope still a higher motive, to help humanity. With hostile papers saying I was making this canvas for prohibition as a stepping stone for my own political advancement, or hoping on the crest of a temperance victory to ride into the office of Senator, the effects of my campaign would be welcomed and my sincerity doubted. So, desirous to be untrammelled by thoughts of self, but only acting for what I believe the state's greatest good, I lay aside my ambition. I know that the present is my flood-tide, and in refusing to take the political current I lose all my ventures and surrender forever my ambition, but one thing is better than holding office—duty."

Surplus Growing.

On Tuesday the directors of The National Bank held a meeting and passed $2,000 of the earnings to the surplus of the bank, in addition to leaving something over $2,000 in the undivided profits. This brings the total surplus of the bank up to $7,000, which is a remarkably good showing for an institution just two years old.

Great Day at Ayden.

We hear the people of Ayden and surrounding country are preparing to give Governor Glenn a great day next Saturday.

The local committee requests all persons who have saddles to bring them to Ayden prepared to take part in a great parade. They propose to make the 18th day of April an ever memorable day.

Do they call them "merry widow" hats because they cover so much territory?

Most of the editors are having a shirt laundered in readiness to go to Charlotte next week.

The Horne cartoon that has recently appeared in some of the papers is the best production of the campaign so far.

Wonder if the president's vetoing the "dam bill" made the cussing speaker give vent to a few more of them.

If you are going to bring up the past political records on all of them there are many who cannot show entirely clean pages.

Congressman Kitchen can draw his salary even if he is spending most of his time in the State, and that is about all he could do if he was in Washington.

Senator F. M. Simmons of North Carolina, was one of the speakers at the celebration of Jefferson day by the Democratic club of New York, Monday night.

Some of the papers are publishing plans for Mr. Roosevelt to take a trip abroad next year, just like all possibility of his being a candidate for president again had gone.

Not a few movements have been made to head off the Democratic presidential nomination and keep it from going to Mr. Bryan, but they fail about as fast as they are made.

If the men want to see the preacher when they attend church Easter Sunday they should move up to the front pews, or they will not be able to see over the new hats.

The Charlotte Chronicle says that according to the old Dutch weather prophets the fruit will be safe after the full moon of this week. We are afraid that down this way there is not much of it left for the full moon to pass on.

The "Good Book" refers to some folks as "stiff necked" people. Many who will wear the big new Easter hats next Sunday will come under that class. Such heavy hats will make their necks stiff if they are not already so.

Those who want to vote against prohibition try to make up some excuse for so doing, while those who want to vote for it, knowing they are on the right side, do not have to make any excuse. That is the difference in the right and wrong of a matter.

The owl is the most solemn looking bird and the most stupid.

GOBELIN TAPESTRY.

How It is Woven and the Materials That Are Used.

The warp or foundation of the Gobelin tapestry is formed of a series of stout woolen threads, which are stretched upon the loom and are fixed in place. The weaver then applies the wool, which consists of colored threads forming the pattern. Two kinds of tapestry were formerly made. In the haute lisse tapestry the warp was stretched vertically upon the loom, while in the basse lisse it was placed horizontally. At present only the haute lisse is made at the Gobelin works. Some of the looms for this kind of tapestry date from the time of Louis XIV., but have been somewhat improved in more recent times. This type of loom consists of two horizontal cylinders placed about ten feet apart and held in two uprights forming a frame. The cylinders are mounted at the ends in trunnions, which work in wooden sockets so that the cylinders can turn freely. The bearing slides up and down in a groove in the frame, and the roller is turned about by means of a lever. As to length, the looms vary from twelve to twenty-three feet, according to the size of the tapestry which is to be woven. Sometimes several pieces of narrow tapestry can be woven upon a single loom of the larger type.

When mounting the work upon the loom the weaver first sets up the warp of vertical threads, and each thread is given an extra length of about five feet in excess of the desired length of the tapestry. The threads are stretched on the rollers, putting the extra length on the upper roller. The threads of the warp are equally spaced, the standard spacing allowing about twenty-five threads to the inch. The tension upon each of the threads is about seven pounds, which holds them well in place. When the warp has been laid out the weaver passes a one inch glass tube between the threads so as to separate the uneven numbered threads on the outside and the even threads on the inside. The rod is placed about two feet above the working point. To carry out the weaving process the weaver takes his place at the back of the loom with the original design in colors placed behind him. He repeats the design by making a tracing in ink upon the threads of the warp, but this is only to give him the principal points of the design, and the weaver must be a veritable artist in order to copy faithfully the painted cartoon upon the canvas. He is provided with a great number of spools or shuttles, each containing a different colored thread. As the work progresses the finished part of the tapestry is rolled upon the lower cylinders. In weaving the larger pieces the worker is almost entirely concealed from view.

In all the tapestry of the ancient period the warp consists of woolen threads, and this seems to be the best, for other kinds of thread have been tried without much success. Cotton thread was substituted in 1850 for the wool, as it was claimed to be cheaper and less liable to attack by insects, but in 1890 the use of wool was resumed, as the advantages claimed for cotton were not substantiated in practice, and the economy was very small. Silk has also been used, but without any advantage.—Scientific American.

Origin of the Jury.
The seed of our present form of trial by jury may be found in a law of Ethelred II., binding the sheriff and twelve prominent thanes to swear that they would neither acquit any criminal nor convict any innocent person. In 1176 the jury system was very imperfect, the jurors being essentially witnesses, distinguishable from the other witnesses only by the oath they were obliged to take. Under Edward I. witnesses acquainted with the facts in question were added to the jury, and finally these became simply witnesses, without judicial power, while the first ceased to be witnesses and became only judges of the testimony given. Centuries were to pass, however, before the complete separation of the functions of jurymen and witness was effected.—New York American.

The Cannon Ball Tree.
Among the plants of Guinea one of the most curious is the cannon ball tree. It grows to the height of sixty feet, and its flowers are remarkable not only for their beauty, but also for their fragrance. Its blossoms are of a beautiful crimson, appearing in large bunches and exhaling a rich perfume. The fruit resembles enormous cannon balls; hence the name. However, some say it has been so called because of the noise which the balls make in bursting. From the shells domestic utensils are made, and from the contents are obtained several kinds of acids, sugar and gum as well as the materials for making an excellent drink in sickness.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. A LESSON IN ECONOMY

A STENOGRAPHER in a prominent business house, who operated a typewriter where the carriage had to be raised to see what was written, wasted eight minutes in one hour in lifting that carriage.

She was employed eight hours per day. On this basis she lost 64 minutes that day.

She would lose in one year of 300 working days 320 hours.

She was paid $2.50 per day for eight hours' work, 35.7 cents per hour.

Her employer, therefore, would have paid her $114.24 in one year, for which he received no equivalent.

In ten years he would have paid $1,142.00 for nothing.

Every business man using a typewriter that does not write in sight, but on which you have to raise the carriage to see the writing, is losing money in the same proportion.

PERFUMES.

How the Dainty Odors Are Coaxed From Freshly Picked Flowers.

Glass sheets held by frames a few inches apart are smeared rather thickly with lard, and between these sheets the freshly picked blossoms are scattered, touching the frames, but not being pressed by them. In one day the oil of the flowers exudes, and the lard absorbs the precious drops. If the flowers are plentiful, they may be changed as often as every six hours and in the case of jonquils thirty times. Jasmine is usually changed eighty times before the layers of lard are entirely saturated. When the lard has absorbed as much oil as possible from the flowers, it is melted and dissolved in purified alcohol made from grain. When this mixture is filtered, the concentrated extract may be redissolved in spirits, diluted or mixed with other oils, according to the strength or quality desired.

Attar of roses and neroli, the base of eau de cologne, are made by a different method. The perfume may be extracted by an ordinary process of distillation if a very even heat is maintained, but the usual method is the bain marie. A large kettle of lard is immersed in a tub of water at the boiling point until the grease reaches a uniform temperature and is entirely melted. Into this warm lard the petals of orange blossoms or of roses are thrown. The petals remain a day or less in this bath, and then the odoriferous wilted flowers are removed and fresh ones submerged until the mixture attains the desired strength. The women beat the mixture into a cream. After the pomade is made the oil may be shipped in this state or distilled and sold in its concentrated form as attar of roses or neroli or diluted to the strength of "perfume" or eau de cologne.

Twenty thousand pounds of rose petals are required to make one pound of attar of roses, valued at about $200. A thousand pounds approximately of the petals of the flower of the bitter orange are necessary to make a pound of neroli, valued at $20 on an average.—Jane Rosamond White in World Today.

He Wanted a Smoke.

An old Welsh preacher in his eightieth year, who was an inveterate smoker, was one day driving out with his servant, also noted for the quantity of tobacco he consumed.

Suddenly the trap overturned, with the old man underneath, the groom having succeeded in jumping on to the hedge.

A crowd of men by whom the old man was almost worshiped at once rushed to the spot and proceeded to raise the capsized vehicle, believing that the old gentleman was seriously hurt, if not killed.

They had raised one side of the trap when he thrust his head from beneath and addressed his servant:

"George, have you got a light?"—London Tit-Bits.

As Many Bald Women as Men.

"Why is it men get bald and women don't?"

At this question the hairdresser laughed.

"My dear sir," he said, "there are quite as many bald women as men—in fact, I incline to believe that there are more."

He pointed to the switches, curls, fringes and complete female wigs in his window.

"Why would those things exist if women didn't get bald?" he said. "The hairdresser puts in all his spare time in making false hair contrivances, and nine out of ten of them are made for woman. Well, woman wouldn't wear them if she didn't need them, would she?"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Savage Proverbs.

"The proverbs of the savages of Africa are interesting," said an ethnologist. "They are full of color. Here are a few from the Basutos, the Yorubus, the Wolofs and the Pashtos:

"Cross the river before you abuse the crocodile."

"He who unjustly spears another knives himself."

"The mud hippopotamus does not bring forth the gazelle."

"One head impaled on the gatepost is more valuable than six on the shoulders of enemies."

"Kraals built in a day are mud ruins in a week."

The Dragon and the Goddess.

A woman was at a dinner party with an eminent Chinese philosopher when she said: "May I ask why you attach so much importance to the dragon in your country? You know there is no such creature, don't you? You have never seen one, have you?" "My dear madam," graciously answered the great Chinaman, "why do you attach so much importance to the Goddess of Liberty on your coins? You know there is no such lady, don't you? You have never seen her, have you?"

THE REAPER KINGS.

A Theory That Lincoln's Candidacy Was Due to Their Wars.

Among the different types of reapers and the numerous variations of each type the bitterest rivalries prevailed. There was no pool, no "gentlemen's agreement," no "community of interest." Indeed the "harvester business" was not business. It was a riotous game of "farmer, farmer, who gets the farmer?" The excited players cared less for the profits than for the victories. As fast as they made money they threw it back into the game. Mechanics became millionaires and millionaires became mechanics. The whole trade was tense with risk and rivalry and excitement, as though it were a search for gold along the high plateaus of the Rand. And this in spite of the fact that, with the exception of McCormick, Osborne and Whiteley, the men who came to be known as reaper-kings were not naturally fighters. No business men were ever gentler than Deering, Glessner, Warder, Adrance and Huntley. But the making of reapers was a new trade. It was like a vast, unfenced prairie, where every settler owned as much ground as he could defend.

Each step ahead meant a struggle for patents. Whoever built a reaper had to defend himself in the courts as well as approve himself in the harvest fields. Cyrus H. McCormick especially, as William Deering soon learned, wielded the big stick against every man who dared to make reapers. He was the grizzled old veteran of the trade, and he gave battle to his competitors as though they were a horde of trespassers. He was their common enemy, and the reaper money that was squandered on lawsuits brought a golden era of prosperity to the lawyers.

Some of these patent wars shook the country with the crash of hostile forces. The tide of battle rolled up to the supreme court and even into the halls of congress. Once in 1855, when McCormick charged full tilt upon John H. Manny, who was making reapers at Rockford, Ill., a three year struggle began that was the most noted legal duel of the day.

McCormick, to make sure of his victory, went into the fight with a battery of lawyers whom he thought invincible—William H. Seward, E. M. Dickerson and Senator Reverdy Johnson. Manny made a giant effort at self defense by hiring Abraham Lincoln, Edwin M. Stanton, Stephen A. Douglas, Peter H. Watson, George Harding and Congressman H. Winter Davis.

From first to last it was a lawyers' battle, and McCormick was finally defeated by Stanton, who made an unanswerably eloquent speech. For this speech Stanton received $10,000, and Lincoln, who had made no speech at all, was given $1,000. Yet in the long run the man who profited by this lawsuit was Lincoln, for it was this money that enabled him to carry on his famous debate with Douglas and thus made him the inevitable candidate of the Republican party.—H. N. Casson in Everybody's Magazine.

He Didn't Care.

"We—we want you to marry us," said the blushing young man, indicating a young woman with downcast eyes and smiling face who stood a step behind him.

"Come in," said the minister. And he endeavored to ease their embarrassment for a moment. But he soon decided that it was useless to try.

"Will you be married with a ring?" he inquired.

The young man turned a helpless gaze on his companion and then looked at the minister.

"If you've got one to spare and it can come out of the $2, I guess she'd like it," he said at last.—Youth's Companion.

Solicitude.

"I have had a delightful evening, Miss Genevieve," said young Cholly, rising to go at 11:30, "and I had no idea it was so late, had you?"

"Why, Mr. Smallweed, I?"

"For heaven's sake, Miss Genevieve," exclaimed the young man in alarm, "don't yawn! There was a girl who yawned too hard the other day and dislocated her jaw!"

With an effort she turned the yawn into a laugh, and the idiot remained ten minutes longer.—Chicago Tribune.

How to Make Cold Cream.

To make cold cream take of oil of almonds two ounces, spermaceti half an ounce and white wax a dram. Melt together and while cooling add two ounces of rosewater, stirring until cold. Cold cream may also be made by this formula: Take four ounces of unsalted butter, four ounces of white wax and an ounce of vaseline. Melt together and perfume with oil of bergamot. The more cold creams are stirred and beaten while cooling the whiter they become.

Not a Mechanic.

"A Scotch Canadian wanted to join the force the other day," said a New York police official. "To make himself look respectable he bought a suit of clothes from a friend of his, a stationary engineer. When he presented himself at headquarters the Sherlock Holmes of the force was the first person he had to see. Mr. Sherlock, looking up from his desk, scanned the applicant shrewdly, shot a quick glance around the room to see that he had every one's attention, and then said in his deepest, most impressive voice:

"Aha, a mechanic, I perceive!" "Na, na," replied the Scotchman, "a Mackenzie."

For Instance.

For instance, there is a deep sea fish in shape like a John dory, which has literally a globular electric light hanging in front of its mouth at the end of a long arched cord springing from the back of its head. This light illuminates the darkness of the depths and serves to attract the small fishes, I suppose as a lamp attracts moths, for they float rapidly into the open and expectant mouth of the larger one, which thus with very little trouble, enjoys a substantial feast.—Cor. London Saturday Review.

A Little Sermon.

To be honest; to be kind; to earn a little and spend a little less; to make, upon the whole, a family happier for his presence; to renounce when that shall be necessary and not be embittered; to keep a few friends, but these without capitulation; above all, on the same grim condition, to keep friends with himself—here is a task for all that a man has of fortitude and delicacy.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

A SEA PICTURE CRITIC

He Knew All About Ships and the Wild Ocean.

ART COMMENTS OF A SAILOR

The "Death of Nelson" Reminded Him of How 'Arkness Come Off the Main Yard—The Blood Red Sky Without a Cloud That Foretells a Storm.

Crude perhaps and curious, the outcome of a life apart, sailormen have yet an appreciation of the arts, writes David W. Bone in the Manchester Guardian.

Once in the Walter gallery I was looking at "The Death of Nelson." There was a man with the look of a seaman standing near. He had a slight smell of drink and was chewing tobacco. He, too, was interested in the picture, and, recognizing me as seaman-like, he said something, and we got to talking about Nelson and his times, about ships and pictures. "B'gad, mate, them fellers" (the painters he meant) "knowed what they was a-doin'. Look at that 'ere glim" (lantern). "Looks as its trimmin' was forgot w'en they brought th' admiral down. . . . An' them eyes," pointing to a wounded seaman in the near foreground, "them's th' eyes o' poor 'Arkness wot come off th' main yard las' voyage an' struck th' five rail full on!"

He told me of the accident, how it happened, and by his eyes and rude, simple speech I saw it all. As plain before me as the figure of the stricken seaman I saw 'Arkness come off the main yard, clutching wildly at the sheets and lifts as he fell. I heard him strike the rail with a sickening thud and he stretched. I saw the running figures on the deck, and—"e never larsted th' night. We buried 'im out there. Taltal it was," said my speaker, involuntarily twisting a shoulder to an imaginary southwest.

There was a sea picture, a ship coming up to the Isle of Wight—clean curving sails, a good sense of movement and a fine, breezy atmosphere. "Jest wot it is," said my friend, "omeward bound. Let 'er go, boys!" a burst of enthusiasm that made some visitor glance around, alarmed. "Omeward bound it is!" There were other fine pictures, but we did not feel that we had a right to do more than look at them and admire. With sea pictures it was different. They were our world, and who had the right to criticise the way a sea was moving off the sky if we had not? Too often had we watched, anxious eyed, for a break in the clouds not to know the way of wind on the water, the seed of a cloud breaking free in a welcome shift. Well we knew the curve of a standing sail and the relation it bore to the sense of movement.

*For a city of the sea Liverpool has no great representation of her foremost industry on her chamber walls. Sea pictures have apparently no attraction for her chiefest citizens. There was little call for sea critics downstairs, so we went to an exhibition of modern art in the upper galleries. Here we found ourselves properly confronted. "Setting Sail After a Blow" it was, a large canvas, a ship pitching heavily in the swell of a recent gale and the crew putting the canvas on her. It held a great message for my mate (black smoke and an ever whirling screw had not yet dulled his sea fancy). He was highly pleased. "Them seas wot ye gets off th' Plate!" He wanted to show some word of cheer, to swing his right hand to the left shoulder in seamanlike admiration, but the cold gray eye of a tall hatted official was upon us—"Huh, sailors!"—and there was a group of young ladies near by worshipping at the shrine of a corporation purchase, so he contented himself by nudging me furiously. "That's wot I calls a picture," he said. A sunset over water claimed our attention. A blood red sky with no clouds, only a slight density near the horizon. I said it was remarkable, perhaps unreal. "That's where ye ain't in it, mister! Look a' here! If ye wos t' take all th' colors in th' locker so's ye 'ad lots o' red an' yellor in, ye'd find a sky t' match it. Ain't ye never 'eard o' what them dagos calls blood o' Chris?—them dagos wot loads ye ballest in th' Plate?" I had not heard. "Well, it's a sky like that, an' it comes afore one of them 'pamperos'."

"Min' I wos lyin' in Monte Video oncet, an' we 'ad a sky all blood red an' never a cloud, an' th' fishin' boats was all comin' in; not rowin' shipshape, same 's me an' you 'ud do; them shovin' th' oars 's if they wos pushin' a barrier." He spat into a dark corner and said something more about dagos, then continued: "Nex' day we 'ad a gale. 'Owlin', it was, an' her drivin' into it same 's we wos off th' Horn, an' a big German bark driv' down on us an' took th' fore to'gal'n'mast out o' 'er an' th' boom an' started all th' 'edgear. Two ships wos driv' ashore, an' that's wot comes out o' them skies wot they calls th' blood o' Chris."

It was an impressionist picture that annoyed my mate—an impression of a scene in dock, with masts and funnels and hulls all mixed up. The coloring was good, but the ships might have been ninespins or egg boxes or anything. At first he was perplexed, then amused, then indignant. "Oh,—" he said. "What's this? Ships b'gad, or I'm a Dutchman!" He burst into a fit of rude laughter. "Ships it is, mister, an' look at them tawps'l yards! Ships w' tawps'l yards below the main, an' a hangman's gibbet fer th' mizen gaff. Them fellers 's got some cheek, mate. That's wot I calls it—cheek—'t be paintin' things like that. 'Oly sailor! Look at them."

In Another Voice.

As the pastor of the Zion's Hill church looked down at his parishioners, to whom he had been giving thirty-five minutes of sound doctrine, his face took on a less benignant expression.

"Bredren an' sisters," he said, "I want to warn you against one t'ing, an' dat is t'inkin' ebery man dat don't hab jes' de same views you got is a no-count religionist."

"I don't want to hear so much talk about 'wolves in sheep's clothing' as I bene hearin'. You don't want to settle it in yo' minds dat a man's a wolf in sheep's clothin' jes' because he don't bl'at exactly like you do."—Youth's Companion.

Gout the Foe of Consumption.

Sir Dyce Duckworth in his address to the faculty of medicine said that many persons were constitutionally predisposed to rheumatism and gout, but an important characteristic in such cases was the antagonism of the tissues to the bacilli of tuberculosis. The more rheumatic or gouty a person was the less pronounced was his tendency to consumption.—London Post.

Relic of the Past.

"So, woman, you treasure another man's photograph?"

"Don't be foolish, Henry. This is a portrait of yourself when you had hair."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Powerful Explosives.

"What are the most powerful explosives known?" queried the young man. "Two prima donnas in one opera company," replied the ex-theatrical manager.—Chicago News.

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

Danger Signal No 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

Danger Signal No 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidney—and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's proof:

James Hardison, business address 319 E. Fifth St., Greenville, N. C., says: "My kidneys acted too freely, especially during the night when I would be forced to rise several times. In the morning my back would be very lame and at such times I was subject to pains through my joints. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Wooten's drug store, restored my kidneys to a normal condition. I am now able to sleep well at night and the lameness and soreness across the small of my back has entirely disappeared. I have found Doan's Kidney Pills to be exactly as represented and I have no hesitancy in giving them my endorsement."
