

MONEY IN ELECTIONS.

Judge Neal's Strong and Wise Words at Wilmington.

Judge Neal, of the Superior Court at Wilmington, N. C. put the emphasis in the right place when, in charging a grand jury the other day, he declared that the corrupt use of money in elections was one of the worst evils with which a civilized people could contend.

He called attention to the wholesale debauchery of the ballot which had characterized many national and local elections. He instanced cases in his own State in which votes had been sold in open market for as much as $10 apiece, and cited one in which a father and five sons had sold the votes of the family for lump sum of $18, or $3 a head. He declared that the man who would sell his vote was no better than a dog, and that the man who would buy a vote would sell his own if a high enough price was offered.

These are sharp words, but they do not hit very wide of the mark. It would be an encouraging omen if judges and prosecuting attorneys everywhere would pronounce with equal vigor against violations of the laws enacted to secure the purity of the ballot. In Virginia we are fortunate in having a stringent statute against the corrupt use of money in elections, but there are constant complaints that it is frequently violated in many sections, especially in primary elections. Considering the number of these complaints there are astonishingly few prosecutions under the statute, too few to be reassuring. The difficulty is that private individuals dislike to prefer charges and most officials take no pains to collect evidence.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

OAKLEY ITEMS.

Last Time.

There has sprung up recently a sort of slang phrase, which we see in print and hear used by speakers, that means a great deal. Indeed, there is so much common sense in it that we believe it should not be regarded as slang at all. It should be regarded and heeded as the real key idea for enterprise and development. "Get busy," is the phrase to which we refer, and if more people would heed its suggestion there would be less idleness and more accomplished. We have made these observations to say something about lost time and its repairs. It is a common thing to see almost as many people sitting about or standing around in a small town as you see at work. If such people would "get busy" and stay busy at something their communities would not appear so dull and dead. It is astonishing to observe the lost time in almost any community. If men would loaf less and stay away from the places where loafers congregate and pay more attention to little things they can do about home, their communities would make a great deal better show as to thrift and industry. Many a man loafs about the streets or elsewhere when he might be putting in some slight improvement about his front yard which would give his home a better appearance. There is a vast deal of lost time which ought to be saved. Many a town and community which seems lifeless and dull would seem quite the opposite if all the people would "get busy" at something and keep up the lick all the year round. And many people who say times are hard and prospects dull would see things in quite a different light if they would "get busy" at something and do their best to make things lively and times prosperous. The truth is, every man has a pretty good and safe capital in time, and if these assets were turned to good account there would be more good business and less stagnation. Just sitting around will never improve conditions, but the rather will make them worse. Everybody should "get busy."—Scotland Neck Commonwealth.

There will be choir practice at the Christian church Friday night at 8 o'clock. Every member is requested to be present.

TO THE PEOPLE OF GREENVILLE.

Cordial Invitation to Teachers' Meeting Saturday.

In the chapel of the graded school building next Saturday morning at eleven o'clock will be held the last meeting of the Pitt County Teachers' Association for this year.

Matters of more than ordinary interest will require all the time of the session. No formal papers will be read or routine school subjects discussed, but instead, the teachers will be addressed by Hon. J. Y. Joyner, State superintendent of public instruction. The prize of $25 will be awarded to the school whose teacher or teachers have made the most improvement on the grounds and house. The medal offered annually by Hon. J. Bryan Grimes to the pupil who writes the best essay on Pitt county history will be delivered. In addition to the Grimes prize, the medals offered by Mr. L. C. Arthur and Rev. W. E. Cox will be presented.

I am sure the meeting will be a most interesting and profitable one, and as superintendent of the graded school, I want to give the people of Greenville a special and pressing invitation to be present. I am particularly anxious that our people hear our State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Hon. J. Y. Joyner. He is always an interesting speaker, and while Saturday is an unusually busy day, I hope all of our people will come out who can, as I am sure it will be worth while for them to do so.

H. B. Smith,

COX MILL'S ITEMS.

Cox Mill, N. C., Apr. 14th.

A good many of our people are ready to set out tobacco.

D. G. Moore, of Grimesland, was here one day this week.

W. A. Tyson, of Greenville, spent Saturday night and Sunday here with friends.

Miss Maggie Hudson, of Black Jack, spent last week with Misses Cora and Sattie Carroll.

Miss Lela Roach, who has been teaching school at McGowan's school house, has returned to her home near Coxville.

Griffin Rouse has been on the sick list this week.

Some of our farmers are planting cotton this week.

J. L. Stokes, of Clay Root, was here a while Saturday.

Eddie Moore went to Greenville Saturday on business.

Notice to Medal Contestants.

All those who have handed in papers and are therefore contestants for the medals should be here Saturday at the teachers' meeting as I will not know myself until then who has won the prize. It will be impossible for the committee to report in time for me to notify the successful ones. These prizes will be presented Saturday.

W. H. Ragsdale,
Co. Supt. Schools.

The Meeting.

Rev. E. McWhorter continues to preach most effective sermons. His labors have been a delight to the community. Friday will be his last day in Greenville. Services will be held at 10 a. m. and 7:45 p. m. At four in the afternoon Friday Mr. McWhorter will preach to the children and young people. The usual services will be held tonight. The meeting has been a great blessing to the many who have attended.

Doctors recommend Pepsi Cola in case of fever.

Two Cities in Old-Dominion Dry.

Danville, Va., April 16.—The city of Danville today voted against licensing saloons on a majority of 45 votes. Each side carried two wards. The city voted against license April 9, 1903, by 203 majority, but on September 14, 1905, a second election resulted in a majority for license of 18. Today's election causes the pendulum to swing back to the dry cause.

The result today was the culmination of a campaign which has been hotly waged for a fortnight or more.

License will expire by limitation April 30th.

Winchester, Va., April 15.—Winchester gave the "dry's" one hundred and four majority at today's local option election out of a total of 849 votes cast, overturning a majority for license two years ago of 52 votes.

Trustees in Session.

State Superintendent J. Y. Joyner, Senator Y. T. Ormand, of Kinston; J. O. Carr, of Wilmington; I. T. Turlington, of Smithfield; C. W. Wilson, of Scotland Neck; J. C. Parker, of Trenton; J. R. Bannerman, of Burgaw, and T. J. Jarvis, of Greenville, trustees of the Eastern Carolina Teachers' Training school, are in session here today passing upon the plans of the architects and preparing for work to begin on the buildings. The plans as presented and practically accepted by the trustees make a splendid appearance.

State King's Daughters

The King's Daughters will hold their annual convention Raleigh on April 30th and May 1st. On the evening preceding the first session the Woman's Club will give a reception to the delegates.

There will be many addresses of interest. Mrs. B. F. Dixon will make the address of welcome and the response will be by Mrs. E. J. Fand, of Wilmington. There will be talks and papers by Mrs. Walter Clark, Dr. Dixon-Carroll, Dr. R. H. Lewis, Dr. B. Dixon and others. The Stone-wall Jackson Training School will be a topic of interest.

Bazaar at Carolina Institute.

Friday evening April 17th will bring the bazaar at Carolina Institute. There will be different amusements, something interesting for old and young. A fish pond, a grab bag, a fortune tent, a post office, an express office, a baby show, and the pinning out of the donkey's tail are some of the features of the bazaar. Refreshments will be served during the evening. A sofa pillow will be given to the young lady who receives the greatest number of votes for her popularity.

Misses Coward and Davis.

Greenville is Lucky.

The carnival at Washington is the same one that wanted to come to Greenville tax free. Judging from what those say who went to Washington to see it, Greenville is fortunate in not having it.

J. D. McNeill, of Fayetteville, president of the State Firemen's Association, and who was also one of the famous trio of anti-prohibitionists who held the convention in Salisbury to save the State, was a visitor to Greenville today.

Potatoes have been getting under cover today in anticipation of frost tonight.

Trade Report.

Richmond, Va. Apr. 16, '08. Bradstreets Saturday will say for Richmond and vicinity.

Trade in most lines shows little change from last week. Slight improvement is noted with jobbers of groceries and provisions. Produce is more in demand; early vegetables are being marketed from nearby districts. The spring jobbing season for dry goods and notions is about over, the volume of business as a whole has been light and orders usually curtailed, filling in orders are noted. In the loose tobacco market offerings are small, but prices good. Lumber conditions quiet with a slightly increased demand for the cheaper grades, few lumber mills have resumed work. Collections throughout the district continue slow. The approaching holidays have given tone to retail trade, especially in millinery, dress goods and clothing. In North Carolina the majority of cotton mills are either closed or running on short hours, owing principally to light orders. Much of the 1907 crop remains in the hands of the planters. Cotton and corn are being planted, a full average of the former is anticipated, while the average of peanuts will probably be reduced 25 per cent. Throughout the district favorable weather conditions have existed for the past two weeks. Winter wheat is promising and tobacco plants are reported plentiful.

The Story of Cinderella.

The story of Cinderella is a version of one of the most popular and widely spread folk tales in the world. Miss Cox has collected and discussed no fewer than 318 varieties of it. The slippers appear only in a few, and the fairy godmother is generally a beast of some sort in the cruder versions of the story, but the slighted little sister is usually very recognizable. In an ancient Malagasy version of the story the youngest sister, who is the slave of her two seniors, three times receives beautiful clothes from a friendly rat and on the third occasion golden slippers also. The loss of one of these leads to her discovery and triumphant marriage, while the two unkind sisters are turned into lizards.—London Chronicle.

Tomorrow is Good Friday, but there are no promises that it will be any better than any other Friday.

We need more men like Governor Glenn, willing to make a personal sacrifice for the good of his party, and for the sake of peace and harmony in the State.

A Durham minister did not do a thing for the "merry widow" hats but ask the wearers of them in his congregation to please remove them. Report says that the hats came down. That was sensible.

The president has sent another special message to congress, this time urging the building of four more battleships. Uncle Sam's money must be spent for something, and maybe the shipbuilders had as well get a rake off as anybody.

The New York World comes to the front with a story of a blue bird building a nest in a woman's hat, and going to church with the lady when she wore that particular hat. The new style hats afford plenty of room for birds to occupy the second story.

You can usually count on a clown turning the joke. One who was traveling with Cole's circus has fallen heir to a fortune of more than a million dollars. After getting the money he may go right on making a fool of himself for the amusement of others, even if it is not in the ring.

And now Wake Forest college
bobs up with a hazing episode in which a victim was shot and slightly wounded by one of his assailants. Would that this hazing business was broken up entirely. It can be said in this instance that the wrong boy was the one to get shot. It should have been a hazer.

If congress should continue in session until the meeting of the Republican national convention,
Foraker would keep up his agitations of the Brownsville affair equally as long. He acts like he thinks the negroes are the whole thing in nominating a candidate for president, and that the prize will come to him.

Governor Glenn hopes that the crowning event of his administration will be seeing prohibition effective in North Carolina before the expiration of his term in office. The people of the State should see that his wish is realized in such a large majority for prohibition on the 26th of May as will forever put that question at rest in North Carolina.

A FRONTIER MARKSMAN.

Wild Bill Hickok's Skill in Use of the Six Shooter.
Wild Bill Hickok was the first fron-tiersman who recognized the importance of proficiency in the use of the six shooter. This was the real secret of his supremacy. He was an unerring marksman and shot as accurately under fire as when firing at a mark, apparently taking no aim.

Probably no man has ever equaled him in the lightning-like rapidity with which he could draw a weapon in time of emergency and in the thorough self possession that made it possible for him to take advantage of every opportunity in savage conflict. He had a standing order to his deputies that they should not rush in on him in any of his affairs and especially should not come quickly up in the rear.

By forgetting this man named Williams met his death at Abilene, Hickok taking him for an enemy and firing so rapidly that it left no opportunity for recognition. He readily killed a wild goose across the Smoky Hill with his revolver. Riding at his horse's highest speed, he fired shot after shot into a tin can or a post a few rods distant.

Standing at one telegraph pole, he would swing rapidly on his heel and fire a pistol ball into the next telegraph pole. These were some of the simpler feats he performed day after day on the street to settle little wagers. He could shoot a hole through a silver dime at fifty paces and could drive the cork through the neck of a bottle at thirty paces and knock out the bottom without breaking the neck. He could do what the fancy shots of the present day do, and possibly some of them equal him as marksman with a revolver, but it must be remembered that he was the first to acquire the skill, and the so called crack shots of his day were poor imitations at best, although most of them boasted of their fame.

He shot just as well with others shooting at him and at a man as steady-ly as at any other target. There were certain traits of his character, however, that were almost womanly. He was fond of children, and they liked him.
He declined to quarrel with the peaceful settlers of the community, the business men, on any provocation. There was no foolhardy bravado about him.

CONJURED A TREATY.

How Houdin, the Magician, Awed the Arabs Into Submission.

During the French conquest of Algeria (1830-3) negotiations for peace were entered upon with the sheiks of certain Arab tribes, and a meeting for the settlement of terms was arranged to take place at the French headquarters. The French officers received their guests with great hospitality, and after the banquet given in their honor, at which the utmost splendor was employed in order to dazzle their eyes and captivate their simple minds, an adjournment was made to a large hall, where M. Houdin, the celebrated con-juror, who had accompanied the French forces, gave an exhibition of his skill.

They stared in open mouthed wonder at all the tricks that were performed, and a feeling of awe crept over them
as they witnessed the mysterious appearance and disappearance of various objects. But what appeared to them most marvelous was the apparent manufacture of cannon balls. M. Hou-din passed round among them a high hat, which they examined very carefully, but without suspecting anything unusual in either its make or its appearance. When the hat was returned to him the conjurer placed it on the floor in the middle of the stage in full view of his audience. He then proceeded to take from the hat cannon balls apparently without number and rolled them across the floor into the wings.
With this the performance terminated.

The chiefs then consulted among themselves and came to the conclusion that it was useless to offer any opposition to an army that could turn out its ammunition in so easy a manner. They therefore signed the required treaty and departed to tell their friends in the desert of the wonderful power of the invaders.

Wanted to See Too.

Farmer Ased and his wife came up to London to go to one of the theaters.
They saw a great many men go out after the first act, in which a man had been shot.

She—Henry, where are you going?
He—Look here, Sairey. I've stood this as long as I can. I'm going out like the rest of 'em to see how that fellow is getting on who was shot. The poor wretch may be dead by this time,
and if he is this ain't no place for us.

Deafness Cannot be cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear.
There is only one way to cure deafness,
and that is by constitutional remedies.
Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's

Quail Form a Dense Circle With All Heads Facing Out.

The nightcap preparations of the chubby little quail are very interesting. Each evening the cover forms in a new place, and this selection of the spot entails serious efforts. Bobwhite never quite loses remembrance of the many dangers which make his life in a wild state one great fear. A white throated male with soft clucks calls together a dozen of his comrades, and for a few minutes they all huddle together, but soon from the farther end of the aviary a clear "Whew-bobwhite" rings out, and off scurry the whole band, this time perhaps to settle for the night in the new place—a dense circle of little forms, heads all facing out, just as in their native stubble they rest facing in every direction, so that at the first hint of danger from any point of the compass the covey may explode and go booming off in safety. Poor little fellows, their wild life is strenuous indeed! Well for their race that every nest holds from ten to eighteen eggs instead of three or four!

The woodpeckers sleep resting upon their tails, even the flickers invariably following this custom, although during the day the flickers spend much of their time perching in passerine manner, crosswise upon a twig. Small birds, such as thrushes and warblers, sleep usually upon some small twig, with heads tucked behind wings in orthodox bird fashion, but they occasionally vary this in a remarkable way by clinging all night to the vertical wires of their cages, sleeping apparently as soundly in this as in the usual position of rest. A bluebird in a small cage slept thus about one or two nights out of each week. Any explanation of this voluntary and widespread habit among perching birds would be difficult to suggest.

The little hanging parakeets derive their name from their custom of sleeping always in a reversed position, and when distributed over their roosting tree they resemble some strange, pendant, green fruit rather than sleeping birds.—Oating Magazine.

THE BLUE JAY.

Why Should He Be Selected as Sand Bearer to Satan?

It is said and believed by many that all the blue jays disappear every Friday, and not one can be seen until the next day, and this disappearance is accounted for by the statement that the birds are under a compact with Satan and that they devote each Friday to delivering him a supply of sand to heat his caldron at the point of torture. But why should the blue jay be selected as sand bearer to Satan when there are so many birds of stronger and fleetier wing? There are many superstitions that have a reasoning basis, but this particular one has nothing whatever to go on.

The origin of it lies in the fact that the blue jay is a most particular home builder. He knows how to build his house, and he takes a great pride in it. He doesn't hang his nest to a limb nor glue it to a tree. Instead he selects a substantial fork or crotch of a limb, lays down a few twigs of goodly size and strength, and on these he superimposes a strong foundation of clay, with layers of papers between, and when his nest is finished it is as substantial in proportion as one of our modern steel structures.

Thus fitted and finished, it is admirably adapted to the rearing of a strong and healthy brood, and the blue jay goes about his business with the earnest energy that characterizes all his movements.

He raises his young and leads them about from tree to tree and from bush to bush until they have tried and found their wings, and then, his responsibilities being over, he proceeds with his career of civility, a veritable practitioner of rough fun and stage humor.—Uncle Remus' Magazine.

Pounds and Weights.

Here is a question that will tax the arithmetical powers of a youth. Suppose that for some reason or another a shopkeeper who sold goods by pounds and half pounds, but never in quantities exceeding twenty pounds at a time, was told that he must transact all this business with four weights only, what must these four weights be? The answer is half pound, one and a half pound, four and a half pound and thirteen and a half pound. With these it will be readily seen that any weight from half a pound to twenty pounds may be determined in pounds and half pounds.—Gateway Magazine.

Pleasant Anticipation.

The Rev. Dr. C. M. Lamson, once president of the American board of foreign missions, was called as a pastor over a parish and was undergoing examination before a council when the question was asked him, "Do you believe in a hell?"

The retiring clergyman of the parish sat beside him and, giving him a nudge, said: "Tell them yes. If you don't now you will before you have been here six months."—Argonaut.

Just the Other Way.

Fortune Teller—Beware of a short, dark woman with a fierce eye. She is waiting to give you a check. Visitor (despairingly)—No, she ain't. She's waiting to get one from me. That's my wife.—Baltimore American.

"Pa," said Freddy, "what is a social scale?"

"Generally speaking," replied pa, "it's a place where they weigh money."—Bohemian Magazine.

Various Ways of Telling the Story of an Accident.

THE PLAIN STYLE.
A lady slipped on some orange peel in School street yesterday and broke her leg.

THE STACCATO STYLE.
It was a job for a surgeon. Orange peel did it. There was a slide, a scream and a dull thud.

The atmosphere was full of lingerie, frou frou, hairpins and bric-a-brac.

It was laughable. But only to a few. A dozen men rushed gallantly to the rescue.

It was a woman who had fallen. Horror! A nether limb broken. She was in agony. And all because of somebody's carelessness.

Saul has slain his thousands. Orange peel has slain its ten thousands.

THE FLORID STYLE.

Tripping lightly down School street yesterday afternoon, her face all aglow with health and every muscle, nerve, vein and artery in harmony with the invigorating atmosphere, a representative of the softer sex was seen suddenly to deflect from the perpendicular, and in another instant this one of heaven's last and best gifts to man came with crushing force to the hard, unyielding pavement. The immediate cause of the unfortunate lady's downfall was the greasy envelope of that tropical fruit, the orange, which some thoughtless, if not malicious, individual had cast upon the public pavement. The victim of this carelessness or worse had sustained a fracture of a limb, and it will be many weary weeks ere she will again be able to walk erect and stately as heretofore.

THE FACETIOUS STYLE.

She will be careful how she treads on orange peel hereafter. She didn't know it was loaded. But it shot her off. It is only a broken leg. Not much comfort to her, but a good thing for the surgeon. There's money in it. People who throw away orange peel should be careful to throw it so that it will land with the slippery side down, unless they are in league with the bone setting profession. In that case, of course, it is different.—London Tit-Bits.

English Legend of Tailed Men.

When a Hollander wants to show his contempt for an Englishman he refers to him as a "steert man"—in other words, "the man with a tail." The old legend says that Thomas à Becket cursed the Kentishmen who spitefully cut off his horse's tail and that the entire generation of Kent which followed wore tails like horses. John Bale, Edward VI's bishop of Osory, mentions the legend, but gives some variations as to the cause of the punishment. He says on the authority of John Capgrave that "for castyne yshe tayles at St. Augustine Dorsetshyre men had tayles ever after that." Polydorus, however, applies the legend to the Kentish men of Stroud "forecutting off Tomas Becket's horse's tayle." One account says that only those living in Kent at the time the curse was pronounced "were afflicted with large drooping tayles like brutes, their posterity bying not so affected."

Might Have Been Worse.

In a foursome competition at Machrihamish one Scotchman of the party, a man of optimistic temperament, always remarked, "It might have been waur," whenever he put the ball into a peculiarly difficult bunker.

His irritated partner determined to rouse Macnab from his imperturbable serenity and said to him when next they played, "Macnab, I dreamed last night you were in hades."

"It might have been waur," came the reply, pat.

"How waur?" said the Englishman.

"It might have been true," replied Macnab. "I might have been there."

The Scotchman ended at least "one up."—London Globe.

The Size of Alaska.

Alaska contains 550,000 square miles of mainland, 7,000 square miles of the Aleutian islands and 22,000 square miles of other islands, a total of 579,000 square miles, or one-fifth of the area of the rest of the United States. It requires the areas of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and New York to equal this. The area of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Virginia and West Virginia equals only one-half of Alaska. It equals the combined area of Great Britain and Ireland, France, Germany, Belgium and the Netherlands. It stretches from latitude 51 degrees to 71 degrees and from longitude 130 degrees to 188 degrees.

The conductor had every appearance of being new to the business.

The car was well filled with a matinee crowd, and among the passengers was a flashily dressed individual escorting two overdressed young women. The conductor entered, stood before the trio and asked for the fares. The man handed him a dime and a nickel, whereupon the conductor asked:

"Three?"
"No; four," said the sporty chap, smiling.

Four fares were promptly registered, and the green conductor seemed at a loss to know what the passengers were laughing at.—New York Times.

Forks In England.

The enormous ruffs so much in favor in later Tudor times are responsible for the introduction of forks in England. The difficulty of reaching one's mouth when so adorned must have impressed itself very forcibly on every one, and so the invention of some means of prolonging the reach became an imperative necessity, and thus, as demand usually creates supply, forks came into existence.—Captain G. A. Hope in Grand Magazine.

A Precaution.

"Good!" exclaimed a Welsh hotel proprietor as a departing guest prepared to photograph the establishment. "I rejoice to see that you take with you one little memento of your visit. It shows you have been happy here. Is it not so?"

"Not exactly," was the morose answer. "I'm taking it to prevent any chance of my making a mistake and coming here again."—London Express.

To Whom It May Concern.

THE maintenance of any business is dependent upon the masses and not the minority. Therefore, Merchant, in order for you to be abreast with those who do the buying you must constantly keep before them the articles you have for sale and the bargains you wish to offer them. The correct way for you to do this is to begin advertising your business at once. In this way your business is almost hourly before some one who is thinking of purchasing some of the products you have to offer for their consideration. Let us do your advertising then you receive the benefits.

TURNING OF THE WORM

His Plain, Blunt, Straight to the Point Talk to His Wife.
"Mrs. Lambert, I think we will have to cut down expenses," remarked Mr. Lambert timidly.
To his intense surprise she made no reply. Then he grew bolder.
"And I am certainly of the opinion that you are spending too much money on gowns and hats."
Again no answer. His bravery jumped up another notch.
"And, Mrs. Lambert, I must say furthermore that we will have no more teas or receptions."
Silence. Mr. Lambert grows daring, courageous.
"It is simply an outrage the way you lavishly expend my hard earned money. You have no consideration and allow your extravagant ideas to carry you off your feet. Do you realize that we are living beyond our means?"
No answer.
"Do you know that I am making $100 a month and you are deliberately spending $200? Can't you see the family is bound to land in the poorhouse?"
Silence. Mr. Lambert's fortitude is unbounded.
"I have stood your impositions long enough, Mrs. Lambert. Do you understand? You have henpecked me until life is now unbearable. Now I intend to take hold of the reins. I will manage affairs and you will obey."
There was a sudden crash, then a yell. Mr. Lambert's head came into contact with the bedpost as Mrs. Lambert shook him furiously, and she exclaimed:
"Can't you keep your mouth shut when you are asleep? What in the world are you dreaming about anyway? It is simply barbarous the way you disturb my rest after I work so hard all day keeping the house in order. And you know I am worn out from tea this afternoon, yet!"
And Lambert realized it was all a dream and began nursing the slowly swelling bump on his head.—Bohemian Magazine.

MUSIC LOVING NAPLES.

It Has the Poorest and Happiest People in the World.
"It is estimated that a quarter of a million people in Naples live from hand to mouth, and there are hundreds of children who subsist out of the garbage boxes and who sleep in churches and on doorsteps.
The taxes in Italy to provide warships and to keep the nation on a war footing with the other powers are really stupendous. There is a tax on everything, says the Delinctor—grain in the field, fruit on the vine, old bottles, fuel and foodstuffs are very dear. Only labor is cheap. For the very poor meat is a luxury unheard of, and even macaroni is too dear to be indulged in often. There are any number of perambulating street kitchens, where various kinds of soup, cakes and fruits are sold in portions costing 1 cent. And yet these people seem very happy. Bands of musicians are always playing in the streets; the guitar and the mandolin are to be heard everywhere—on the boats, in the hotels, and the stranger is lulled to sleep by a soft serenade under his balcony.
The story teller thrives in Naples, as there are so many idlers there. He collects a little crowd around him and proceeds in the most dramatic way, gesticulating wildly and working his face into the most execratable expressions, to relate stories of adventure or other events, much to the edification of his hearers, who to show their appreciation are often betrayed into giving a sou which might have been better spent for bread or polenta.
The public letter writer is another street dignitary of importance and in great demand, especially with timid and buron maids of all work who have themselves neglected to learn the art of writing. Of such the public letter writer holds all the secrets of their loves and is often their adviser as well as amanuensis.

Pineapple Juice.

Garlic eaten raw will cure a cold in the head, grip or influenza in the first stages, but in cases where prejudiced people refuse to test its virtues Irish moss lemonade made after the well known flaxseed lemonade recipe and taken for both meat and drink stands next on the list.
Pineapple juice will relieve inflammation of the throat in the most advanced and chronic cases and will cure all ordinary attacks. In both membranous croup and diphtheria pure pineapple juice either raw or from the canned fruit will cure when the entire apothecary shop has been tried and found wanting.—National Magazine.

Von Hutten's Misery.

Very sad was the fate of Ulrich von Hutten, one of the greatest writers Germany has ever produced. Unable to earn a living, he was reduced to tramping through the country, begging food and shelter from the peasants. One bitter winter's night both were refused, and next morning he was found frozen stiff and cold in the drifting snow outside the village. "The only thing he died possessed of besides the rags he wore," says his biographer, Zuinglin, "was a pen."

"The Nub of the Thing."
"Man runs to cliques," audibly ruminated a grizzled citizen. "He thinks pretty well of his country, of his state or province, of his town, of his own street, and then we get at the nub of the thing—the man thinks pretty well of himself."—Kansas City Newsbook.

When a man is being operated on by a barber it is best for him to keep his mouth shut. The case is different when the patient is in the dentist's chair.

A Bad Mix.

Mr. Gladstone, speaking of Mr. Parnell on one occasion, made use of the oft quoted phrase "Marching through rapine to the dismemberment of the empire." On the same day there was a horse race in which the winners were respectively Veracity, Tyrone and Lobster. These facts were cabled to New Zealand together in the usual shorthand style of the cable. The result was that next day the New Zealand papers contained the following extraordinary paragraph: "Mr. Gladstone denounced Mr. Parnell as marching through rapine to the dismemberment of the empire and said that the Irish leader had the veracity of a Tyrone lobster."

His Dream.

"There is some money, my love," said the husband. "I don't want any," replied the wife. "Come, now, darling, take this five pound note and go out shopping." "Thank you, dearest, but I really don't care to. I would rather stay at home and see to the housework." Then the husband awoke and found that he had been dreaming.—Liverpool Mercury.

Land Sale

By virtue of a decree of the Superior Court of Pitt county made in special proceeding number 1519, entitled "Bessie B. Ives and others against Horace B. Ives and others" petition to sell land for partition, the undersigned commissioner will sell before the court house door in Greenville on Saturday, the 18th day of April, 1908, the following described tract of land situated in Pitt county and in Contentnea township, adjoining the lands known as the Blount Hall property, formerly owned by W. S. Blount, the Jacob McCotter lands, the lands formerly owned by W. L. Best and the run of Contentnea creek, containing 150 acres more or less and being the land upon which B. H. Ives formerly lived near Grifton, said land being subject to the life estate of Virginia D. Ives. Said land will be sold for cash on one, two and three years time to the best advantage of all parties in interest.
This the 14th day of March 1908.
F. G. JAMES,
Commissioner.
