PHIL MEADE SUICIDES.

Well Known Ball Player Ends Life By Shooting.

Charlotte dispatch, April 18: A special from Chapel Hill, N. C., to The Observer says that Phillip R. Meade, alumnus of the University of North Carolina and son of Rev. W. H. Meade, Episcopal rector at that place, committed suicide late this afternoon by shooting himself in the mouth. Meade went quietly to the room of a friend while the latter was out, disrobed, lay down upon the bed and then fired the fatal shot. Meade was in the best of health. He was a base ball player of note. No cause can be assigned for the act.

This is the same Phil Meade, who umpired in the Old Virginia North Carolina League.

A Notable Example.

Some of the people of great wealth who establish libraries, endow colleges and do other things which benefit in the main people who are able to take care of themselves, have an eye to self in making the gift and of course do what they think will bring most glory to them; others, honestly trying to do the most good with their money lack practical knowledge. The Landmark has often wondered why people who have surplus wealth don't establish and endow hospitals, 'orphans' homes and homes for old people. Some of them do contribute to hospitals—Mr. Geo. W. Watts, at Durham, being a notable example—but there are comparatively few contributions from wealth to the causes last named, homes for old people being almost unknown.—Statesville Landmark.

A Remarkable Operation.

Several days ago at the home of the patient, a colored woman, who lives near Grimesland, a very rare and remarkable surgical operation was performed by Dr. Joshua Tayloe, of Washington, N. C., and Dr. C. M. Jones, of Grimesland, assisted by Miss Gentry, a nurse from the Washington Hospital. The operation was a typical Cesarean section for the removal of a full term foetus through and incision in the abdominal wall. The operation was performed about twelve days ago, and at this time the patient is doing well with every indication of ultimate recovery.

Death at Wake Forest College.

Mr. Charles Archie Boyette, of Murfreesboro, a student at Wake Forest college died Saturday night. Death was caused by a complication of internal obstructions and peritonitis following and operation for appendicitis thirteen days ago.

Father of Base Ball Dying.

New York, Monday, 20.—Henry Chadwick, widely known as the father of base ball, is critically ill at his home in Brooklyn. He is a veteran writer on sport and may not live out the day. He is 83 years old and has been falling for some time.

Day Changed.

The children of the Christian Sunday school are requested to meet at Mrs. E. G. Flanagan's Friday afternoon after school hours instead of Thursday.

REVIVAL IN JAIL.

Conducted by Rev. Whitaker as Result of Visit of Spooks.

Asheville, N. C., April 20.—As a result of the visitation of an alleged "spook" or "presence" at the county jail Friday night when the prisoners were so badly frightened, two of them fainting, has resulted in good. Saturday night all the prisoners in the jail, including probably 30 or 40, requested "Rev." W. G. Whitaker, the United States prisoner, charged with using the mails for fraudulent purposes, to hold services continued, all of the prisoners joining in. Two of the white men were converted. All were afraid. Today the prisoners handed Jailor Mitchell their playing cards with the request that he burn them. The prisoners also told Mr. Mitchell that they had agreed not to use any more profanity and to cut out vulgar talk. Mr. Mitchell declared today that his bunch of prisoners were certainly changed men.

MAJ. TURNER MOREHEAD DEAD.

Last Living Child of Late Gov. Morehead Dies in New York.

A telegram was received here this morning by Maj. Jos. Morehead announcing the death in New York last night of Maj. J. Turner Morehead after a lingering illness. The remains will be brought to Spray, the former home of the deceased, for interment there tomorrow.

The deceased was a member of one of North Carolina's most distinguished families, being the last living child of the late Governor Morehead. He moved from Spray to New York about five years ago. Maj. Morehead was 68 years of age and is survived by a widow and several children.—Greensboro Record, 2c.

Off to Washington for United States Court.

Judge Thomas R. Purnell and Mashal Claudius Dockery left today for Washington to hold United States district court. Deputy Marshal R. M. Ward went down yesterday. There are very few cases to be tried and most of these are for violations of the internal revenue laws. The court will adjourn either Wednesday or Thursday.—Raleigh Times.

Perfect Eye Sight.

Persons with defective vision should have it corrected by the Prisoptometer. Examinations free for 6 days. The business will be in charge of John R. Elkin, doctor of optometry, who is also a retired practitioner of medicine and surgery. Parlors at The Aldine Hotel, 312 Washington St.

Hon. W. W. Kitchen to Speak.

Hon. W. W. Kitchen, who is candidate for nomination for governor of North Carolina, will address the citizens of Pitt county at Greenville, on Monday, the 27th of April, 1908, at 12 o'clock. Every citizen is requested to be present and hear him discuss the political issues. J. S. Manning.

Meg's Diversion Postponed.

We regret very much to announce that on account of sickness "Meg's Diversion," which was to have been presented at the opera house Wednesday night, has been postponed indefinitely. Notice will be given when the date for its presentation is decided upon.

AYDEN ITEMS.

Newsy Notes From a Hustling Town, Briefly Told.

Ayden, N. C., April 21, 1908.

Owing to our absence in attendance upon a district meeting of the Knights of Pythias at Kinston we failed to furnish items in our last letter that we should otherwise have done. It is seldom we take a day off for pleasure and we feel sure our friends will pardon us. The meeting at Kinston was a fine affair. There were about two hundred visitors present, much business was transacted and a general good feeling prevailed throughout the entire session. Thursday night after final adjournment a magnificent banquet was served by the members of Kinston lodge to the visitors which was grand with the presence of the ladies of Kinston. If anyone has an idea the fair sex of Kinston are not pretty, fascinating and charming just let them go and see. The people of Kinston are grand and gave us all a glorious time. To one and all we return our sincerest thanks for many courtesies shown. Those who attended from here were: W. J. Boyd, Frank Lilly, J. J. Hines, Steve Nobles, Leslie Turnage, J. R. Turnage, G. A. Kittrell, H. S. Blount, D. S. Moore, Clarence Cannon, Jasper Gardner, Elmer Gardner, Church Moore, A. L. Witherington, Ned McLawhorn, Heber Hart, J. H. Tripp, J. M. Dixon, E. B. Joyner and J. M. Blow.

E. A. Kline, wife and children were here Sunday attending the Odd Fellows' services.

H. A. Blow, W. B. Wilson and others from Greenville were here Saturday to hear Gov. Glenn.

Saturday was a big day in Ayden. In fact the biggest in its history. The crowd was estimated at from 2000 to 2500, and it was a whole heap of folks to greet our governor. Gov. Glenn came on time accompanied by ex-Gov. Jarvis, of Greenville, who introduced him to the people. Gov. Glenn had a large and appreciative audience and for about two hours he poured hot prohibition shot into the ears of his hearers. His speech throughout was listened to attentively and the most excellent behavior on the part of the people was manifest on every hand. That the speech was forcible, logical and conclusive, no one would otherwise imagine. That its effect will be felt in the near future is very evident. Gov. Glenn is popular with our people and wields a great influence among them. They are always glad to have him come and regret to see him leave.

Rev. D. W. Arnold, of Greenville, preached a sermon Sunday afternoon to our Odd Fellow friends. We were deprived the privilege of hearing him, but from the remarks we hear it was highly enjoyed and very pleasing to those who were present. There was a large number of ladies.

A great many of our citizens are attending court in Greenville this week.

A. G. Cox and G. R. Dixon, of Winterville, made us a pleasant call Saturday.

What a lot of pretty girls! was heard from every side Saturday when those beauties from Winterville passed us by with the sweetest of smiles, and there were wagon loads of 'em too!

If you want good ice and your moneys worth buy from the Red Ice Wagon. Greenville Livery Company. 4 21 5td.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL BRIEFS.

The Visitors Here and People Who Travel.

J. F. Barwick, mayor of Ayden, is here today.

J. M. Elow, our Ayden representative, was here today.

Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Woodward left this morning for Durham.

D. J. Whichard left this morning for Charlotte to attend the press convention.

O. L. Joyner left Monday evening for Danville and other points in Virginia.

Misses Eula and Lillian Proctor, of Rocky Mount, are visiting Miss Nellie Williams.

Miss Myrtle Marsh returned Monday evening from Washington, where she had been to spend Easter with relatives and friends.

Smith-Smith.

There was a pretty home marriage on April 16th at 9:30 o'clock p. m. at the home of the late Mr. Jesse Smith when Mr. Haywood Smith and Miss Mary I. Smith were united in Christian matrimony.

Miss Mary is a beautiful and refined young lady and loved by her many friends. Haywood is a handsome and industrious young man. We congratulate them on their choice, and wish for them a prosperous and happy life. S. W. Sunrell.

Large Easter Egg Hunts

Miss Edith Payne, one of the teachers of the graded school, gave her grade and a number of invited guests a delightful Easter egg hunt Monday afternoon. About fifty children participated in the hunt which took place on Greenville Heights. After the hunt lemonade and cake were served. It was a very enjoyable occasion.

Shirt Waist Sale Friday 24th.

The shirt waist sale by the ladies of the Methodist church will be held next door to S. T. White's store Friday. Don't forget the date, and come get your share of the great bargains. Ice cream will be served.

Grading down the sidewalks to a proper level for the street paving has begun in front of the postoffice. A few loads of paving brick were brought up this afternoon and paving will soon be in progress.

The boys in the office who have charge of the news end of The Reflector for the next few days will appreciate your phoning or sending in any item of news.

The Greenville Livery Company's red ice wagon is the first wagon ever put on the streets of this city for the purpose of delivering ice.

Prohibition speeches are being made in various parts of the county and the people are turning out in large numbers to hear them.

Farmers are wishing for enough rain to set out tobacco plants. They will likely get rain soon.

Skating rink open tonight, and large crowd expected. Good time assured all who attend.

Great bargains will be offered at the shirt waist sale Friday.

Don't get wool gathered. Drink Pepsi Cola.

TUESDAY APRIL 21, 1908.

More business and less politics would really be better for the State.

"On to Charlotte" is the pass word of North Carolina editors today.

If the new hats go to the seashore this summer, larger traveling trunks will be necessary.

The Charlotte News advises that new spring onions and numerous wearers of "merry" widow hats are awaiting the arrival of the editors. That is a combination, sure, but most editors like both.

From the way Col. John R. Webster, editor of Webster's Weekly, can bring out things that have happened in the past, he must keep a file of all the papers that go to his office. If the occasion arises he can tell it on you every time.

There is no more important question before the people of North Carolina than that of State prohibition. The election is now only a little more than a month off, and the majority for prohibition should be so large as to forever free the State from the curse of liquor traffic.

There will be an improvement in many North Carolina papers this week while the editors are at the press convention and taking in the good things around Charlotte. The Reflector will come under this head and the editor will have nothing to do with the making of the paper from now until Saturday. Our readers will be the gainers.

Except and accept are entirely different words and mean exactly opposite, yet in writing people often use one of them when the other was intended. Even the editor of one of the State dailies in writing of the fine impression Charlotte is going to make on the editors this week, says they "will go forth to advise folks to except every opportunity to visit the Queen city."

BORN WITHOUT FEAR.

Yet Minds of Children Are Made Bogy Houses by Parents.

"My little boy is naturally so timid," "My little girl is so easily frightened. We are trying to cure her of it, but she was born with that sensitive nature, and we have to be very careful." So fond parents are sometimes heard to say when a child shows some special form of fear.

Yet, according to Clara Louise Burnham, who writes in Appleton's Monthly on "How to Keep Your Child From Fear," almost all children are born without fear, and fear is carefully instilled into them by parents and nurses.

Nature, she says, generally hands the child to the parents physically perfect, and still more often she hands him over full of optimism and faith. "Nothing is too good for me," is his natural attitude. Then comes perhaps his first fall. Straightway the anxious mother rushes to him with a cry and picks him up "with such manner and words that he screams with terror," and so the instilling of fear goes on.

"I'm afraid," begins too many of the remarks parents make to their children, says this author. Christian parents constantly disobey the Bible, which is full of commands to "Fear not," "Rejoice always," and while professing to believe the Bible undermine the child's native confidence by teaching it that the world is beset with "snares and pitfalls to health and happiness." So the child becomes, as it were, mentally slouching and stoop shouldered instead of facing life, as he was born to do, with an upright, joyous carriage.

Fear, disaster, sickness should not be talked of in the presence of children. Even though they may not seem to understand it at the time, it sinks into their little minds. It is a disturbing, a distorting influence. Even worse in its influence is the mistake of the anxious mother who is always imagining that her child is ill. "Are you sure you feel all right, dear? Haven't you a pain anywhere?" It need not take much of such insistence to make the healthiest child, if not physically ill, at least nervously upset. The unwise nurse does no end of harm. "She may be kind and loving," says Mrs. Burnham, "and yet consider the mysterious boggy man and the obvious policeman her legitimate allies in enforcing a paralyzed obedience." And so fresh elements of fear are introduced into the child's horizon.

Another thing this writer strongly denounces is the "strange tradition" that into every pantomime or play for the entertainment of children monstrosities must be introduced—cardboard giants, weird figures with goggle eyes and awful grins—which strike terror into the baby hearts. She makes a special remonstrance concerning Captain Hook and his pirate band in "that otherwise charming play, 'Peter Pan.' No child under twelve should have his nervous system shocked by these gentlemen and their awful captain," she says, and she describes how at one performance she saw a child with its head buried in its mother's lap, begging piteously to know if "the pirates had gone."

A Little to One Side.

"You think you have unusual presence of mind?" said Mrs. Jenks to her husband in a tone which was somewhat tinged by the recollection of her recent wrongs connected with a forgotten basket of kindlings.

"I do in reason," said Mr. Jenks boldly, turning his back to the wood box.

"Humph!" said Mrs. Jenks. "Well, while you've been two hours and a half at the store getting me a yeast cake I've been reading the paper a few minutes to rest my back after doing a lot of work no woman ought to have put on her, and I've been reading of a man that really had presence of mind. What should you do first off if you saw a man fall out of a balloon way up in the air?"

"First off," said Mr. Jenks, turning a calm gaze on his inquisitor, "I should wait to see where he landed, meanwhile standing from under if possible."—Youth's Companion.

Bills and Coins.

All kinds of guesses have been made as to the number of one dollar bills that would be required to equal the weight of a five dollar gold piece. The guesses range, as a rule, from 50 to 500, and when a humorist in the subtreasury asks a visitor which he would prefer, all the five dollar gold pieces he could lift or the same weight in one dollar bills, the visitor immediately votes for bills, imagining, as he does, that the proportion will be about ten to one in favor of one dollar bills as against the gold. As a matter of fact, there is very little difference between the weight of one five dollar gold piece and five one dollar bills. To be exact, just six and a half bills will balance the five dollar gold piece.

ODD OR EVEN.

It is a Very Simple Game, but May Be Made Quite Expensive.

An eminent Dutch artist during a visit to Paris encountered two of his former students to whom he had frequently extended pecuniary assistance. "At last, dear master," exclaimed the elder of these two out at the elbow bohemians, "we can repay to some little extent the kindness you rendered us at Leyden. Come, you must dine with us!" In spite of the Dutchman's polite protestations they each took an arm and hurried him to the finest hotel in the city. After a splendid repast the master, observing the countenances of his hosts and guessing from their shabby appearance that their generosity had led them to incur a bill beyond their joint purse, announced his intention of settling the score.

"Impossible!" cried the elder student, as if insulted at the suggestion. But after considerable discussion he became less determined. "Ah, well, my master," he said generously, "as you insist I will relax so far as to play a game of skill with you for it! I am thinking of a number. Is it odd or even?"

"Even," replied his guest. "Odd," said the student immediately. "So you have the pleasure of paying for the dinner, while I pay for the wine."

"Wait," said the Dutch artist, puzzled. "Let us play for that too." "If you wish it, certainly," rejoined the student, shrugging his shoulders. "I am thinking of a number. Is it odd or even?"

"Odd," cried the master. "Even," was the cool reply.

"But," inquired the loser after paying the heavy reckoning, "I am curious to hear the principle of your game."

"It is very simple," the student answered. "As you see, I think of a number, odd or even, and you have to guess it."

"Ah," murmured the master thoughtfully, "I see! Yes, it is simple—very simple. But I would not play with many people. It is too expensive for me!"—London Answers.

Ought to Have Known Him.

He was a drummer of the more flashy type and had just finished telling a startling story to his newly made acquaintance in the parlor.

"That reminds me of one of Munchausen's yarns," remarked the victim for want of something better to say.

"Munchausen? Who is he?" "Why, don't you know about him? He is the most colossal example of mendacity that civilization has produced."

A brief, painful silence ensued, which was broken by the traveler in a tone that was almost timid.

"Excuse me, my friend," he said, "if I seem inquisitive, but would you mind telling me what house he travels for?"

mer shopping.

"The idea of his calling me extravagant!" exclaimed Mrs. Schoppen.

"Well," replied her friend, "perhaps you're not as economical in your shopping as you might be."

"Nonsense! Why, I never buy a blessed thing but bargain."—Philadelphia Press.

For Coughs and Colds

Nearly all other Cough Cures are constipating, especially those containing opiates. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup moves the bowels. Contains no opiates.

Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup

"A Cold or a Cough nearly always produces constipation—the water all runs to the eyes, nose and throat instead of passing out of the system through the liver and kidneys. For want of moisture the bowels become dry and hard."

Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup relieves Colds by working them out of the system through a copious action of the bowels.

Deafness Cannot be cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CECENEY & CO., Toledo, O., Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Kodol for Dyspepsia has helped thousands of people who have had stomach trouble. This is what one man says of it: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Gentlemen—In 1897 I had a disease of the stomach and bowels. I could not digest anything I ate and in the spring of 1902 I bought a bottle of Kodol and the benefit I received from that bottle all the gold in Georgia could not buy. I still use a little occasionally as I find it a fine blood purifier and a good tonic. May you live long and prosper. Yours very truly, C. N. Cornell, Roding, Ga., Aug. 27, 1906. Don't be in a hurry to see life if you would live long.

Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup—the cough syrup that tastes nearly as good as maple sugar and which children like so well to take. Unlike nearly all other cough remedies, it does not constipate, but on the other hand it acts promptly yet gently on the bowels, through which the cold is forced out of the system, and at the same time it allays inflammation. Always use Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

Truth is heavy therefore few care to carry it.

To have perfect health we must have perfect digestion, and it is very important not to permit of any delay the moment the stomach feels out of order. Take something at once that you know will promptly and unfailingly assist digestion. There is nothing better than Kodol for dyspepsia, indigestion, sour stomach, belching of gas and nervous headache. Kodol is a natural digestant and will digest what you eat. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

Silence is the fence around wisdom.

CLIMBING AN ICE SLOPE.

Vain and Perilous Effort to Scale Mount McKinley.

The long trail to the north brings out the best in men and the worst, declares Mr. Robert Dunn in "The Shameless Diary of an Explorer." As a member of a party which made a vain attempt to reach the top of Mount McKinley he tells something of the hardships of one day's travel:

Furtively, imperceptibly, the steepness had stolen a march on us. As one line of footholds gave out we had to slide dexterously to another. The steeper slope was swept clear and hard. Steps had to be cut.

We have only three ice axes. As I never gave them a thought this morning, all of them were gobbled up when we started, and I was left with only one long willow tent pole. It was never meant to balance you in half cut steps that may or may not hold your toe.

As the steps changed from a stairway to a stepladder the other three betrayed no excitement, no uneasiness. Neither did I at first, but I felt both. It was not dizziness, not vertigo, but simply that as I looked down the sheer 2,000 feet from where we clung by our toes imagination resistlessly told over how it would feel, how long it would last, what the climax in sensation would be, were I to fall.

As hour succeeded hour I lived each minute only to make the false step. Courage is only a matter of self control anyway.

Climbing the highest mountain on the continent with a tent pole! Sometimes I boiled in those dizzy, anxious places that I had put myself in such a position with such men. Yet I must reap my own sowing. Once I asked if it wasn't customary to rope on such steep slopes, but no one but Fred answered, and he said: "Y' ain't goin' to ketch me tied up to anybody. A man don't want to take chances with any one but himself, haulin' him down from these places."

One requisite of explorers besides aversion to soap and water is insensitiveness. They can't see; they can't feel. They couldn't do these stunts if they did.

THE HUMAN BRAIN.

It is the Most Marvelous Machine in the World.

The human brain is the most marvelous machine in the world. It occupies less space in proportion to its capabilities than any machine it ever invented. It sends a special nerve to every ultimate fiber of some 500 muscles, to many thousand branching twigs of arteries, to every pinhead area of the numerous glands which keep the machine properly oiled, heated or cooled, to some sixteen square feet of skin, which is the outpost guard of its castle, with such completeness that the point of a pin cannot find an area unguarded. It possesses special quarters for the reception and translation of a constant stream of vibrations that are the product of all things movable or still in the outer world. On the retina of every open eye is a picture of the outer view, a focused imprint of every ray of light and color, and in the visual chamber of the mental palace stands a vibrascope, a magic lantern that receives the retinal picture in its billion speeding series of light waves and throws them upon its mental screen as a living moving picture of light and shade and color. In the chamber of sound is a vibraphone, over whose active wires passes every wave of sound from the dripping of the dew to the orchestral fortissimo, from the raucous screech of the locomotive to the sighing of the wind through the meadow grass. In the chambers set apart for scent and taste and touch are the secret service guards to report upon the air and food which give sustenance to the palace and upon the solid qualities of the tactile world. And, wonder of all wonders, this complex human brain can think in all languages or in no language and even conceive its own physical mortality.—Edward A. Ayres in Harper's Magazine.

Where the Tips Go.

"But I can tell you something you don't know about the tipping system in the cloakrooms of some of the large cafes," remarked a midnight diner to his wife.

"Why, don't the small boys just pocket all they get?" inquired she.

"Pocket! Their uniforms are made without a sign of a pocket so that none of the tips can find a lodging there. Those boys get nothing but a salary, which is paid by a man who has purchased the check room privilege for as high as five thousand a year. The tips are all turned into him. You can imagine what the privilege is worth when he can pay down that sum for the right."—New York Press.

The Oldest Encyclopedia.

The most ancient encyclopedia extant is Pliny's "Natural History," in thirty-seven books and 2,493 chapters, treating of cosmography, astronomy, meteorology, geography, geology, botany, medicine, the arts and pretty nearly every other department of human thought known at the time. Pliny, who died 79 A. D., collected his work in his leisure intervals while engaged in public affairs. The work was a very high authority in the middle ages.

The Child's Advice.

Little Arthur stood peering down into the countenance of his baby sister, whom the nurse was singing to sleep. "Say, nurse," he finally whispered, "it's nearly unconscious, isn't it?" The nurse nodded in the affirmative and sang on.

"Then don't stuf any more or you'll kill it!"—Lippincott's.

SHAKESPEARE'S TOMB.

Its Would Be Desecrators and the Post's Imprecation.

The fact that would be desecrators of Shakespeare's tomb have not dared to risk the falling of the curse invoked in the lines cut upon his tomb is a striking testimony to the powerful effect upon mankind of such an imprecation. J. O. Halliwell-Phillips, writing in the eighties, said:

"The nearest approach to an excavation in the grave of Shakespeare was made in the summer of the year 1796 in digging a vault in the immediate locality, when an opening appeared which was presumed to indicate the commencement of the site of the bard's remains. The most scrupulous care, however, was taken not to disturb the neighboring earth in the slightest degree, the clerk having been placed there till the brickwork of the adjoining vault was completed to prevent any one making an examination. No relics whatever were visible through the small opening that thus presented itself, and as the poet was buried in the ground, not in a vault, the great probability is that dust alone remains. It is not many years since a phalanx of trouble toms, lanterns and spades in hand, assembled in the chancel at dead of night, intent on disobeying the solemn injunction that the bones of Shakespeare were not to be disturbed. But the supplicatory lines prevailed. There were some among the number who at the last moment refused to incur the warning condemnation, and so the design was happily abandoned."

A correspondent of the London Athenaeum wrote in 1881: "I remember on a visit to the grave of Shakespeare in 1827 or 1828 remarking that it was little creditable to the authorities that the raised covering to the tomb should have been allowed to fall into such decay, for I could see into the grave through the hole formed by the sinking of the stones. The reply was that, 'on account of the anathema inscribed upon the tomb,' no workmen could be persuaded to meddle with it."

An earlier incident is thus set forth by a contributor to the Monthly Magazine of Feb. 1, 1818:

"Notwithstanding the anathema pronounced by the bard on any disturber of his bones, the church wardens were so negligent a few years ago as to suffer the sexton in digging the adjoining grave of Dr. Davenport to break a large cavity into the tomb of Shakespeare. Mr. — told the writer that he was excited by curiosity to push his head and shoulders through the cavity, that he saw the remains of the bard and that he could easily have brought away his skull, but was deterred by the curse which the poet invoked on any one who disturbed his remains."

The attempt at a later day to meddle with the tomb had no more effective ending.—New York Tribune.

South American Animals.

Many curious animals haunt the marshy parts of South America north of the pampas. Frogs bl, and ferocious (the ceratophrys), give making vicious springs when closely approached; the capybara, a cavy "contented with the bulk of the sheep," the huge coypu rat and the swartly tapir are frequently seen. Along the forest margins troops of peccaries are often met with, occasionally the jaguar, sometimes the puma; likewise that toothless curiosity the great ant bear, long in claw, long nosed and remarkably long tongued. Very plentiful, too, are those "little knights in scaly armor," the quaint, waddling armadillos. Long toed jacanas pace about upon the floating leaves. A familiar object is the great jabiru, a stork with a preference for the desolate lagoons, where it may often be observed staff-casque on one leg and wrapped in pro-spection.

Big Tips For Little Favors.

"It is surprising," said a veteran Pullman porter, "how big a tip a porter sometimes gets for doing a very little thing." He added:

"A passenger once tipped me extra because he said I did not leave his shoestrings coiled up inside his shoes after I had blacked them. He said nothing made him madder than to slip on his shoes in a hurry in a sleeper only to find that he had to take them off again because the shoestrings were inside. Ever since that time I have been careful not to leave shoestrings inside of the shoes I black, and more than one passenger has thanked me for being thoughtful. But it wasn't me that did the thinking. The tip did that for me, and I never forgot it."—Leslie's Weekly.

In the Right Direction.

Bishop Blomfield was one of the many witty Englishmen whose good things have found their way into a volume of reminiscences, "Leaves From the Notebooks of Lady Dorothy Nevill."

Bishop Blomfield was led into a controversy one time with a learned man as to the mental superiority of the east over the west, and his opponent as a parting shot said:

"Well, at any rate, you can't dispute that the wise men came from the east."

"Surely that was the wisest thing they could do!" retorted the bishop.

A Futile Boast.

"Love me and the world is mine," he said.

"What's the use of saying that?" she replied. "I've been loving you for weeks and you haven't even succeeded in getting a good job."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Marriage is a lottery in which men stake their liberty and women their happiness.—Mme. de Rieux.

"Boost the Booster."

That's the official slogan of a certain town in Arkansas which through boosting itself and boosting its boosters has doubled its population since the 1900 census.

BOOST THE BOOSTER!

The Arkansas town had been quarreling among itself for years, and standing still. It had boosters, but it had others who refused to boost the boosters, refused to stand by them and yell, "Good boy—keep it up!"

BOOST THE BOOSTER!

Finally the town got together with itself, organized a "Boost the Booster Club" and began to boom. Now its principal thoroughfare, which was a streak of mud, is a stretch of asphalt, and it has new buildings to match. Now everybody boosts the booster and booms the boom.

BOOST THE BOOSTER!

BOOST THE BOOSTER!

This town might take a hint from that one. We have our town boosters—every town has some. But sometimes they get discouraged because of opposition right here in our midst.

BOOST THE BOOSTER!

Cut out the criticism!

Quit the queering!

Boom the Boom!

Then watch the old town perk up and plunge forward. You can see it move.

WHEN YOU BOOST THE BOOSTER YOU BOOM THE BOOM.

WHEN THE EARTH DIES

And When Our Other Planets and Our Sun Are Also Dead.

STILL THE HEAVENS BLAZE.

The Infinite Space Shall Always Be Filled With Suns and Worlds and Souls, For in Eternity There Can Be Neither Beginning Nor End.

The earth was dead. The other planets had died, one after the other. The sun was extinct, but the stars were still twinkling. There shall always be stars and worlds.

In the unmeasurable eternity time, which is essentially relative, is determined by the movement of each of these worlds, and in each world it is felt according to the personal sensations of their inhabitants. Each globe measures its proper period of time. The years of the earth are not those of Neptune. Neptune's year equals 104 of ours and is no longer in the absolute. There exists no proper common measure of time and eternity.

In the empty space time does not exist. There are no years, no centuries, but there is a way of measuring time upon a revolving globe. Without periodical movements one can have no conception of time whatsoever.

The earth existed no longer; neither did its celestial neighbor, Mars, nor beautiful Venus, nor the gigantic Jupiter, nor the strange universe of Saturn, its rings gone, nor the slow planets Uranus and Neptune, nor even the sublime sun, whose rays had for centuries made fertile the celestial countries suspended in its light.

The sun was a black globe, the planets were other black globes, and this invisible system continued to course in the starred immensity at the bosom of the cold darkness of space.

From the viewpoint of life all these worlds were dead, existed no longer. They survived their antique history as do the ruins of the dead cities of Assyria, which the archaeologist discovers in the desert and revolved dark in the invisible and unknown. Everything was covered with ice, 278 degrees below zero.

No genius, so sage, could have brought back the days of old when earth sailed through space bathed in light. Its beautiful green meadows awaking with the rays of the morning sun, its rivers flowing like serpents through the green fields, its woods reverberating with the songs of the birds, its forests enveloped in majestic mystery.

Then all this happiness seemed eternal. What has become of the mornings and evenings, the flowers and the lovers, the harmonies and joys, the beauties and the dreams? All have disappeared.

The earth is dead, all the planets are dead, the sun is extinct. The solar system gone. Time itself even annihilated.

Time flows into eternity, but eternity remains, and time revives.

Before the earth existed, during a whole eternity, there were suns and worlds, humanities filled with life and activity as are we today. For millions and millions of years our earth did not exist, but the universe was no less brilliant. After our time it will be as before. Our epoch is of no importance.

The dead and cold earth carried in itself, however, an energy not lost, its movement around the sun, which energy transformed into heat would suffice to melt the whole globe, to reduce it to vapor and to begin a new history for it, which, it is true, would not last long, for if this movement around the sun should suddenly cease the earth would fall into the sun and cease to exist. It would rush toward it with ever increasing speed and would reach it in sixty-five days.

When the earth is dead, other worlds will come. There will be other humanities, other Babylonians, other Thebians, other Athenians, other Romans, other Palaces, other palaces, other temples, other glories, other loves, other lights.

And these new universes will disappear in their turn, to be followed by still others. At a certain time far away in the future eternity all the stars of the Milky Way shall rush toward one center of gravity and form an immense formidable sun, center of a system, whose enormous worlds shall become populated by beings living in a temperature which would seem red hot to us.

The infinite space shall always be filled with worlds and stars, souls and suns, and eternity shall last forever, for there can be neither beginning nor end.—Camille Flammarion.

Cut His Visit Short.

The Duke of Wellington once wrote to Dr. Hutton for information as to the scientific acquirements of a young officer who had been under his instruction. The doctor thought he could not do less than answer the question verbally and made an appointment accordingly.

Directly Wellington saw him he said: "I am obliged to you, doctor, for the trouble you are taking. Is — fit for the post?"

Clearing his throat, Dr. Hutton began: "No man more so, my lord. I can."

"That's quite sufficient," said Wellington. "I know how valuable your time is. Mine just now is equally so. I will not detain you any longer. Good morning."

Occasions of adversity best discover how great virtue or strength each one hath, for occasions do not make a man frail, but show what he is.

A LESSON IN ECONOMY

A STENOGRAPHER in a prominent business house, who operated a typewriter where the carriage had to be raised to see what was written, wasted eight minutes in one hour in lifting that carriage.

She was employed eight hours per day. On this basis she lost 64 minutes that day.

She would lose in one year of 300 working days 820 hours.

She was paid $2.50 per day for eight hours' work, 35.7 cents per hour.

Her employer, therefore, would have paid her $114.24 in one year, for which he received no equivalent.

There were ten stenographers employed in this office, and if they all lost the same amount of time, he would have paid in one year $1,142.40 for which he enjoyed no benefit.

In ten years he would have paid $11,424.00 for nothing.

Every business man using a typewriter that does not write in sight, but on which you have to raise the carriage to see the writing, is losing money in the same proportion.

WHICH IS BETTER—

to have that saving of money in dividends, or pay it out for wasted time?

Where She Found the Sermon.

A certain Boston man doesn't go to church often, but a week or so ago he was persuaded by his wife, and they attended services together. Upon their return home he regarded her with a teasing look and asked:

"Now look here, dear. Which is worse, not to go to church at all, or to go and pay absolutely no attention to the service?"

"If you mean that for me, I think you are horrid," she said.

"Well, you didn't. You were looking at all those diamonds the woman in front of you had on all the time."

For an instant she blushed, for she is an honest little woman, but quickly recovered her poise.

"Oh, well, suppose I was," she retorted. "Didn't you ever hear of sermons in stones?"—E. Roberts.
