"QUICKEST WAY OUT OF TOWN TOO SLOW"

Lincoln County Man Finds Letter Shoved in at Window and Takes the Warning Seriously.

Charlotte, N. C., April 21.—A strange case of what appears to be a "Black Hand" attempt at intimidation has come to light here through the deposition before a United States commissioner of H. R. Poteat, who declares that he is a refugee here on account of a letter left at his home in the town of Denver, Lincoln county, telling him that the "Quickest way out of town is too slow for you." The letter was shoved through a window while Poteat and his family were at breakfast, and Poteat says that John Skelton and others he believes are involved in the writing. Poteat says Skelton brought the letter and in the epistle it is solemnly declared that if Skelton is mentioned in connection with the affair, Poteat will be dealt with very soon. District Attorney A. E. Holton has been informed of the affair and may take some action soon.

Rev. R. C. Jackson,

We are requested to announce that the Rev. R. C. Jackson, an able and highly esteemed Free Will Baptist minister, will speak on prohibition at the following times and places.

May's Chapel, Monday night April 27, at 8 p. m.

Marlboro church, Tuesday night April 28, at 8 o'clock.

Fountain, Wednesday night April 29, at 8 o'clock.

King's X Roads, Thursday night April 30, at 8 o'clock.

Shivers school house, near Steven Wooten's Friday night May 1st.

Gum Swamp church, Saturday night and Sunday, May 2 and 3.

Mr. Jackson is one of the leading ministers in his church. He is greatly esteemed and beloved by all who know him and it is hoped that the people, in the communities where he speaks, will do themselves the honor to go out to hear him. They will go away from the service better men and women rejoicing that he came into their communities. 4-20 3rd and w.

Dr. B. F. Dixon.

Will speak on prohibition at the following time and places: Bethel (in Methodist church) Sunday, May 3rd, at 11 a. m., Greenville (in Methodist church) Sunday, May 3rd, at 8 p. m.

It gives me pleasure to make this announcement and to invite men and women in town and country to hear this eloquent apostle of a righteous cause.

Thos. J. Jarvis,

Chr Pitt county Anti Saloon League.

Prohibition Speaking at Farmville.

Rev. T. H. King and Rev. M. T. Plyler will speak to the people of Farmville and surrounding country at 8 o'clock Thursday night, April 30th, 1908. Men and women from town and country are cordially invited to hear these Godly men discuss a righteous cause.

Thos. J. Jarvis,

Chr. Pitt county Anti-Saloon League.

CLOSING OF SCHOOL.

Misses Cooke and Gibson's School to Close April 28th.

The school out near Mr. O. L. Joyner's, taught by Misses Cooke and Gibson will close next Tuesday, April 28th. On Monday night the regular school exercises by the pupils will be had. On Tuesday there will be an all day picnic. At eleven o'clock Prof. E. C. Brooks, of Trinity college, Durham, N. C., will deliver the address. In the afternoon the Junior Order of United American Mechanics from Winterville will raise a United States flag over the building. There will be other exercises in addition to these. Those who attend any or all of these exercises may expect a rare treat. Prof. Brooks is easily one of our best speakers of today. There has been wonderful improvement in this neighborhood along educational lines during the past year. They have erected one among the best two-room school houses in the county and have had a very fine school during the present session. We bespeak for this school a large and appreciative audience at their closing exercises on Monday night and Tuesday of next week.

Does Moderate Drinking Hurt You?

"Does moderate drinking hurt you?" You drinking man, there—old at the business,—speak right out. Does it hurt you? I say from my experience from a medical standpoint, it does hurt anybody who drinks it, moderately or otherwise. I have practiced medicine for more than thirty years, and have never seen it do any real good I could detect. But on the other hand, I do know that I have seen it do lots of harm in the sick room. I have seen so much depression and so many vitiated stomachs from its use, I am, and have been for a long time, disgusted with it, and have for many years doubted a fellow physician's ability when I learned that he prescribed whiskey in pneumonia and typhoid fever. It is not a stimulant or a food and no good can come of it. But on the other hand, it is a depressant and a disease producer, and in this role no drug on earth is its equal. It has caused more diseases and killed more people than all the other drugs on earth. Why prescribe it, then? I do not. No man can say to me, "I have the drink habit, and 'thou art the man.'" We have several other medicines far ahead of whiskey in all cases where whiskey has been prescribed heretofore.—By Dr. H. F. Freeman, in The Progressive Farmer.

Four Year Old Girl Burned to Death.

Hope Mills, 20.—While playing with an oil can this morning and attempting to make a fire in the stove, the 4-year-old girl of Mr. John Deese was burned to death. The child, not knowing the dangerous nature of the oil, poured it in the stove, which contained live coals, causing a large amount of gas. This readily ignited and enveloped the child. She died in about two hours.

The Oxford Orphan Asylum was established in 1872. Since that time it has cared for over 2,400 children. Among the number are some of the valuable citizens of North Carolina, now using their influence and power in the world's betterment.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ange went to Greenville Monday.

Macadamized Highway from New Bern to San Francisco, Cal.

A picturesque project is that proposed highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the building of which is provided for in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Bourke Cockrun, of New York.

The bill provides that the highway shall follow the 35th parallel of latitude. It would start on the coast of North Carolina near the Southern end of Pamlico Sound, traverse North Carolina, the extreme northern part of South Carolina, the border line between Tennessee on the north and Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi on the South, pass through Arkansas, Oklahoma, northern Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and have its western terminal on the Pacific coast in Southern California a few miles south of San La's Obispo. It is provided that the highway shall be of the best and most scientific road construction, have generous width, be as nearly level as it is possible to make it, and be well lighted with electricity and policed its entire length. On each side of the road, the bill provides, shall be laid out ornamental gardens.

The author of the bill does not give any estimate of the cost of the enterprise. It is only fair to Mr. Cockrun to say that he is not the author, that he merely introduced the bill by request. He declines to divulge the name of the author, but popular report accredits the measure to a New millionaire who is notably fond of burning up highways with his automobile. A macadamized highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific with few hills and no curves would afford opportunity for some auto scorching that was scorching.—Durham Herald.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE.

Mule Stayed in Tar River 14 Hours and Was Rescued.

Mr. R. A. Parker, of Belvoir township, came very near losing a good mule Monday. He left his stable open to allow the mule to go out and water and went on to attend to some other matter, and on returning could not find it anywhere. Finally he went to the river, about half mile from the stables, and found the mule had wandered out of the pasture, which leads on to the river where it had fallen over a 20 foot embankment. Coming to the conclusion that the mule had drowned Mr. Parker gave up the search and returned home. Next morning one of his neighbors brought the mule back saying he had found it wedged between two logs about two miles down the river. The mule is alright except a small skinned place on one shoulder, and doubtless would have swum out, but that he is blind.

To the Parents of Children in the Graded School.

Owing to the circus in town to-morrow, we shall have only one session of school. This will give the children ample opportunity to attend the show, and at the same time not have their school work very seriously interfered with.

I ask each parent to see that the children come to school. Please do not give them permission to be out. We are making all the necessary provision for the children, and I ask that our plans be not interfered with.

Due to an unusual amount of sickness we have had a large number of absences since the first of February. The children ought not to lose any more time out of school from now until we close. We have lengthened the session sufficiently to make up all lost time except legal holidays, and if pupils lose time, the fault is not ours. I hope we shall have very few absences from now until the 21st of May, the date of our closing.

Very truly,
H. B. Smith,
Supt.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, God in his wisdom has seen fit to sever from our midst our worthy brother, Dr. W. H. Bagwell, and whereas, in the death of Brother Bagwell our lodge has lost one of its members, who loved the lodge and its principles, the town of Greenville one of its valuable and worthy citizens and his family a beloved husband and loving father. Therefore be it resolved, that we extend to the family of our deceased brother our sincere and heartfelt sympathy and commend them to Him who is a father to the fatherless and an unfailing guide to all who put their trust in him, that we send a copy of these resolutions to The Daily Reflector for publication and a copy to the family of the deceased and spread upon the minutes of our lodge.

Respectfully submitted,

Prunes and Butter for U. S. Soldiers.

Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, has added butter and prunes to the army bill of fare, the new bill of fare to go into effect on May 1. The president is exercising the authority given him as commander-in-chief of the army and navy. Butter has never been furnished in the army rations. The enlisted men themselves have had to buy it, or else go without. Prunes are added as a desert.—Atlanta Journal.

The Orphans' Concert, April 29th

Parents, encourage your children to attend the orphans' concert on the 29th. It will entertain them. It will help them. It will lead them to sympathize more with the great movement for the protection and care of homeless children. It will encourage them to be more active helpers in the cause of humanity.

WEDNESDAY-APRIL 22, 1908.

Greenville looks like it is doing business with a dozen solid car loads of brick coming in at one time.

The boys miss the editor, but they hope he is enjoying eating the onions and looking at the "merry widow" hats.

Parents who allow their children to go fishing should be sure to warn them of the swift and deep current of the river.

The Editors will have a good time today in Charlotte, and will not be disturbed by hearing the incessant cry "more copy."

More hog and hominy and less cotton is the advice offered the farmers by agricultural papers and leaders of farmer's organizations.

The Brownsville affair has bobbed up again. This time Senator Borah, of Idaho, declares the negroes guilty. Everybody knows they are guilty—except Mr. Foraker.

Secretary Cortelyou offers a remedy for all the ills in the body politic. This remedy is that business shall go into politics. What is to become of the professional politician, Mr. Secretary?

The first public speaking in Greenville on prohibition will be next Monday, April 27. All organized forces of the county should turn out on that day. Let us make it a great day for prohibition in Greenville and Pitt county.

Harry K. Thaw's lawyer has made application for an order directing the superintendent of the New York State insane asylum at Matteawan to permit Thaw to sign an application for a writ of habeas corpus. This is the first step in proceedings looking to his release and it will not be long before he will be free. It is remarkable how money helps folks out of scrapes.

The dust in the streets has been exceedingly unpleasant for the past week. With as much water as Tar river affords we should be able to utilize enough of it to make the town more comfortable. Since it is required to keep steam in the boilers all the time it would be very little expense to furnish a larger supply of water. It would be a great saving to the property owners if the dust was kept down. Housekeeping would be easier and paint would last much longer. Dust makes wood decay more rapidly than if kept clean. It would be wise if the town would allow all users of city water to sprinkle, by means of hose, the streets in front of their homes free of charge.

SHORT WORDS.

Here Are Some, and They Are Right to the Point.

The following paragraph on "The Use of Short Words" is attributed to Horatio Seymour. It practices what it preaches therein, since there is no word in it with more than two syllables save such as are quoted for purposes of illustration: "We must not only think in words, but we must also try to use the best words and those which in speech will put what is in our minds into the minds of others. This is the great art which those must gain who wish to teach in the school, the church, at the bar or through the press. To do this in the right way they should use the short words which we learn in early life and which have the same sense to all classes of men. The English of our Bible is good. Now and then some long words are found, and they always hurt the verses in which you find them. Take that which says, 'O ye generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?' There is one long word which ought not to be in it—namely, 'generation.' In the old version the old word 'brood' is used. Read the verse with the term, and you will feel its full force, 'O ye viper's brood, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?' Crime sometimes does not look like crime when it is set before us in the many folds of a long word. When a man steals and we call it a 'defalcation,' we are at a loss to know if it is a plunder or a crime. If he does not tell the truth and we are told that it is a case of 'prevarication,' it takes us some time to know just what we should think of it. No man will ever cheat himself into wrongdoing nor will he be at a loss to judge of others if he thinks and speaks of acts in clear, crisp terms. It is a good rule, if one is at a loss to know if an act is right or wrong, to write it down in short, straight-out English."

Don't Fold Your Arms.

By folding your arms you pull the shoulders forward, flatten the chest and impair deep breathing. Folding the arms across the chest so flattens it down that it requires a conscious effort to keep the chest in what should be its natural position. As soon as you forget yourself down drops the chest. We cannot see ourselves as others see us. If we could, many of us would be ashamed of our shapes. The position you hold your body in most of the time goes to become its natural position. Continuously folding your arms across the chest will develop a flat chest and a rounded back. Here are four other hints which should be made habits: Keep the back of the neck close to the back of the collar at all possible times. Always carry the chest farther to the front than any other part of the anterior body. Draw the abdomen in and up a hundred times each day. Take a dozen deep, slow breaths a dozen times each day.—Family Doctor.

The Model.

The difficulty of saying a suitable thing about an unprepossessing person was once cleverly surmounted by the great Duke of Wellington. At a Mansion House dinner he was called on to propose the health of the lady mayoress, whom he had never seen. The duke got up and proposed the toast, describing the subject as "the model of her sex."

Now, the lady happened to be a very plain wizened little woman, so the then Lord Ellenborough afterward asked the duke how he could describe that ugly little creature as the model of her sex.

"Why," said the duke, "I thought I did very well. I had never seen her before and didn't know what she was like—and some models are blamed ugly!"

Physiognomy.

The science of physiognomy can be traced as far back as the time of Pythagoras, who is said to have examined carefully the faces of his would be pupils before admitting them to his school. Hippocrates, 450 B. C., refers to the science, and Cicero has many references to it. The first systematic treatise on the subject that has come down to us is that attributed to Aristotle. The sixteenth century was particularly rich in literature on physiognomy, and the eighteenth shows a still greater interest in the science. Lavater's book seeming to be the final word on the subject.

Active Girls.

From an early age the girls of Japan are instructed in physical exercise, with the result that at maturity the women are almost as strong as the men. It is not an unusual sight in the mikado's empire to see a company of girls who are strolling along a country road step back a few yards for headway and then, following a leader, all nimbly clear a five foot fence by leaping over it.

BEATING THE LAW.

Sunday Travelers and Inns and Taverns in Scotland.

There is a law in Scotland generous to travelers. That law grants them the privilege of all taverns and inns during prohibition hours. Thus if you arrive in Edinburgh on a Sunday, having traveled, say, from Glasgow, your innkeeper is bound to serve you with any sort of alcoholic refreshment, albeit the native of Auld Reekie must fore and starve his Sabbath away on ginger ale, memories and the anoral promise of tomorrow. But the law is merciful. He that hath journeyed three miles is a traveler within the meaning of the act.

Consequently there is a vast array of travelers leaving Edinburgh on foot, on coaches, pony carriages, etc., for the trains' run not.

They all seek to constitute themselves as travelers. Just within the three mile limit, as far as Edinburgh is concerned, lies the historic village of Corstorphine.

A traveler arrives from Edinburgh. He knocks at the door of the village inn. He is wearied by his long walk. He is in sore straits.

The door is opened timidly, cautiously, and a voice is heard, "Who is it?" "A traveler," is the weary answer. "Whaur do ye come fra?" "I come from Edinburgh," is the answer.

"Then ye canna come in. It's against the law."

The door is banged ruthlessly. The traveler thinks awhile. Your Scotsman thinks slowly, but very surely.

After deliberation he knocks again. The formula is gone through. "Whaur do ye come?" "Frae Leth," answers the traveler quickly.

"Then ye may come in. Why did ye nae tell the truth at first?"

Dixie's Land.

The phrase "Dixie" or "Dixie's Land" is supposed to be derived from one Dixy, a kind hearted slave owner on Manhattan Island in the latter part of the eighteenth century. His treatment of his negroes caused them to regard his plantation ("Dixy's") as little short of an earthly paradise, and when any of the slaves were taken away from their old home they were always pining for "Dixy's" and singing and talking of its joys. When slavery moved southward, the same ideal of "Dixy's" was taken along, and in the course of time, its origin being forgotten, it was applied to the southern homes of the negroes.—New York American.

Lighting Up.

"Ever notice," asked a salesman for a grocery house that makes a business of supplying the big New York hotels, "that if you stroll uptown and look at any of the big hotels you will see them all pretty well lighted up? Plenty of rooms occupied apparently. Well, that's sometimes a bluff. The hotel has orders to light up a number of the front rooms every evening just so that the hotel won't look like a graveyard."—New York Sun.

Hottentot Women.

Among the Hottentots women hold a better position than they do anywhere else in Africa. "The married woman," says one traveler, "reigns supreme mistress. Her husband cannot without her permission take a bit of meat or a drop of milk." Generally "they rank much above the average of the negro races."—London Spectator.

Considerate.

"And would you marry me if I were a poor girl, working for a living?" asked the waitress. "Darling," responded the accepted suitor, "it wouldn't be fair. You'd be doing enough in supporting yourself."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Deafness Cannot be cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup—the cough syrup that tastes nearly as good as maple sugar and which children like so well to take. Unlike nearly all other cough remedies, it does not constipate, but on the other hand it acts promptly yet gently on the bowels, through which the cold is forced out of the system, and at the same time it always inflammation. Always use Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

No man approves of a woman who flirts with another man.

To have perfect health we must have perfect digestion, and it is very important not to permit of any delay the moment the stomach feels out of order. Take something at once that you know will promptly and unfailingly assist digestion. There is nothing better than Kodol for dyspepsia, indigestion, sour stomach, belching of gas and nervous headache. Kodol is a natural digestant and will digest what you eat. Sold by Jno. L. Wooten's Drug Store.

But few dancing masters are to be found in the hop districts.

The kidneys are delicate and sensitive organs and are very likely at any time to get out of order. SHEFFIELD PLATE.

History of This Now Very Rare and Valuable Ware.

Sheffield plate differs from all other plated ware in that the plating was done on the sheet metal before the article was shaped. Before and since then plating of various sorts has been applied only to the finished piece, as in our electroplating process. Moreover, the plating was done on copper, while modern base metal is usually composed of an amalgam of copper, nickel and zinc.

Furthermore, it is possible for the collector to secure examples of early Georgian and so called Queen Anne work in Sheffield plate, while the early and high money value of silverware of that period make its acquisition extremely difficult. Sheffield plate historically and artistically is as worthy of a place beside old china and old mahogany as is old silverware.

In 1742 one Thomas Bolsover of Sheffield, England, described in the histories as an "ingenious mechanic," accidentally fused some silver and copper while repairing a knife. He began experimenting, seeking for a method of plating copper with silver for the manufacture of small articles. In 1743, together with Joseph Wilson, he set up a factory for the manufacture of buckles, snuffboxes and knife handles.

Joseph Hancock soon got hold of the secret and, perfecting it, demonstrated that it was possible to imitate the finest and most richly embossed silverware. Settling in Sheffield, he started the manufacture of all sorts of domestic pieces. Beginning modestly with horsepower, he later added water power for the rolling process. Other manufacturers followed his example, and Sheffield plate soon began to replace pewter on the tables of the English middle classes. Altogether we know of twenty-three important manufacturers of this ware.

The industry flourished until the middle of the nineteenth century, and so few pieces of copper rolled plate were made after that time that they need not concern the collector. Electroplating was discovered or invented by a medical student of Rotherham, near Sheffield, and the new process was patented on March 25, 1840. By 1850 the new ware was on the market everywhere, and the industry had been revolutionized.—Country Life in America.

BISMARCK'S ANGER.

The Incident That Made Certain the Franco-German War.

The Princess-Bismarck, so the story goes, changed the political history of France unwittingly, and but for her the Franco-Prussian war might never have been waged.

Bismarck was unfriendly to France, but the Empress Eugenie hoped with her beauty to influence him so that the little trouble with France and Germany might be smoothed over. She therefore invited the German prince and his wife to visit the court of France, and the Prince and Princess Bismarck arrived in great state at the Tuilleries.

That evening there was a grand reception, and Eugenie received the guests in a gown which made her so ravishingly lovely that even Prince Bismarck, German, stolid and in love with his wife, stood and gazed upon her with admiration. And Eugenie was not slow to observe the effect of her beauty upon him. She called him to her side, and Bismarck came, with his wife upon his arm.

Now, the Princess Bismarck was tall and gaunt, and her feet were generous. As she walked she showed a great deal of sole.

While Bismarck stood talking with Eugenie an audible titter was heard along the line of ladies. Bismarck, who was quick as a flash, followed the glance of their eyes and saw them rest upon the feet of his wife.

That settled the matter. The political history of France was altered from that moment.

A year later, when Paris was besieged, Bismarck himself fired a cannon over the ramparts, and those who were near him heard him shout:

"Take that for the feet of the Princess Bismarck!"

The slight was avenged.

The Mayflower.

Never did a ship sail with such momentous results as the little west country clipper schooner the Mayflower, but few people have bothered to ask what was her fate after she had landed the heroic band of Englishmen on Plymouth rock. As a matter of fact, she drifted into the cotton trade and sank after many years of service for the East India company at Masulipatam, on the coast of India.—London Standard.

A Third Need.

"You need," said the expert to the sufferer, "two pairs of glasses, one for reading and one for long distance."

"Can't you make it three pairs?" asked the man who had made a study of his own case. "I'd like some short sighted ones to use on bill collectors."—Nashville American.

Agreed With Him.

Father (calling from head of stairs at 11:30 p. m.)—Jennie, don't you think it's about time to go to bed? Jennie—Yes, papa dear. What on earth keeps you up so late?—Pathfinder.

Not Unusual.

"Sometimes," said Uncle Eben, "I ketches myse'f lambastin' a mule foh doin' purty much de same as I would do if I was in de mule's place!"—Washington Star.

Nature creates merit; fortune brings it into play.—Rochefoucauld.

EDISON THE VICTOR.

He Humbled the Pride of the Fast Telegraph Operator.

Edison made his first record as a telegraph operator in Memphis. A contemporary says he came walking into the office one morning looking like a veritable bayseed. He wanted a job, and, although his appearance was not prepossessing, the office was short handed, and he was assigned a desk at the St. Louis wire, the hardest in the office. "At the end of the line was an operator who was chain lightning and knew it," says Francis Arthur Jones' "Life of Edison."

"Edison had hardly got seated before St. Louis called. The newcomer responded, and St. Louis started on a long report which he pumped in like a house afire. Edison threw his leg over the arm of his chair, leisurely transferred a wad of spruce gum from his pocket to his mouth, took up a pen, examined it critically and started in about fifty words behind. He didn't stay there long, though. St. Louis let out another link of speed, and still another, and the instrument on Edison's table hummed like an old style Singer sewing machine. Every man in the office left his desk and gathered around the jay to see what he was doing with that electric cyclone.

"Well, sir, he was right on the word and taking it down in the prettiest copperplate hand you ever saw, even crossing his 't's' and dotting his 'i's' and punctuating with as much care as a man editing telegraph for printers. St. Louis got tired of and by and began to slow down. Then Edison opened the key and said:

"Hello, there! When are you going to get a hustle on? This is no primer class."

"Well, sir," said the gentleman in conclusion, "that broke St. Louis all up. He had been rawlinding Memphis for a long time, and we were terribly sore, and to have a man in our office who could walk all over him made us feel like a man whose horse had won the Derby."

THRILLING SPORT.

Rafting Down the Canyons of an Unmapped Glacial River.

With provisions for only ten days a party of explorers in Alaska found one September that they must build rafts and take their chances of letting the swift river carry them to settlements where food could be obtained; otherwise ice and snow would shut them in from all hope of rescue. In "The Shameless Diary of an Explorer" Robert Dunn tells of the journey on the roughly made rafts.

"At 11 o'clock today began the most thrilling sport I know, rafting down the snaky canyons of an unmapped glacial river.

"Fred and I captained the Mary Ann II, the other three the Ethel May. We rasped and hauled them over the gravel shadows of our tributary, shot out between the main walls of the stream and seized upon that boiling current.

"We reached silently from cliff to cliff, jammed pike poles into the slate shelf overhead, twirled out of eddies. We bumped and grounded. We dashed overboard and on the run eased her across shallows. We tugged half an hour to make an inch at each shove through the gravel, suddenly plunged in to our necks, and she leaped free as we scrambled on.

"Bowlders rose through white ruffs of water in midchannel. We might or might not hang on them for a perpendicular minute.

"You must be very handy with a pole. You must have a hair fine eye for moving angles, the strength of an eddy, the depth of foam ruffling over a stump. You must be surer of the length of your pole than a polo player of the reach of his mallet. You must be quicker than a Siwash dog. You must know the different weight of each log down to ounces, the balance of the duffel piled high like a dais, covered with the tent and the bean pot, the mackinaws and the ax lashed to all the lashings. It's a pretty game."

A Risky Subject.

"Do you think, sweetheart," queried the young man with the evenly divided hair, "that your father will consent to our marriage?"

"Well," replied the fair one, "of course papa will be sorry to lose me, but—"

"But," interrupted the rash youth, "I will remind him that instead of losing a daughter he will gain a son."

"Dearest," rejoined the wise maid, "if you really want me you mustn't say anything of the kind. Papa has three such sons boarding with him now, and he's a little touchy on the subject."

Queer Milk.

Many specimens of unconscious humor are received by the editors of that monumental work, the "Imperial Gazetteer of India." A district was said to be "an extensive rolling plain, consisting of alternate ridges of bare stony hills and narrow fertile valleys." An interesting item of natural history was afforded by the remark, "The buffalo differs from the cow in giving milk which is richer in butter fat, in voice and in having no hump."—London Globe.

Poured.

"I have poured every day this week at some function or other," remarked the vivacious girl.

"Well, well!" murmured the old gentleman who overheard her. "Now I know what is meant by the term 'a reigning belle.'"—St. Louis Republic.

No man prospers in this world by luck unless it be the luck of getting up early, working hard and maintaining honor and integrity.—Beecher.

Are You a Trust Buster?

Hey—You! Yes, YOU'RE the man we mean.

You're always talking about the harm the trusts are doing. The country's going to the demnition bowwows, you say, because of the uncurbed trusts. Rich growing richer, poor getting poorer. Used to be that a poor man could go into business for himself in a modest way and make a good living. Now he must become a clerk or a roustabout or a hodcarrier for some corporation—some combination that has grown to be a Goliath of bigness, that has devoured the fat of the land and is still gormandizing upon it, till there's not a scrap of bone left for the under dog.

That's your line of talk. You're still handing it out, and you're proud of it.

Well, now, let's see: Are YOU a trust buster YOURSELF?

Didn't we see you stalk up to the postoffice just now and mail a letter with the address of a city Mail Order Store on the envelope? Hey! Didn't we?

Don't you know that the Mail Order Store is a trust—one of the most dangerous in the crowd? Don't you know that it is secretly and silently and slyly closing the doors of opportunity to the young men in country towns and small cities like ours? Don't you know that the Mail Order Trust is collecting the patronage of town and country people by the mail route, thereby cutting down the patronage of the smaller merchant, the local man who is trying to build up a modest, independent, antitrust business?

Hey! Didn't that ever occur to you?

N. B. (which means note well): Why don't you trade at home instead of helping to build up a trust that hurts your home place?

A LESSON IN ECONOMY

A STENOGRAPHER in a prominent business house, who operated a typewriter where the carriage had to be raised to see what was written, wasted eight minutes in one hour in lifting that carriage.

She was employed eight hours per day. On this basis she lost 64 minutes that day.

She would lose in one year of 300 working days 320 hours.

She was paid $2.50 per day for eight hours' work, 35.7 cents per hour.

Her employer, therefore, would have paid her $114.24 in one year, for which he received no equivalent.

There were ten stenographers employed in this office, and if they all lost the same amount of time, he would have paid in one year $1,142.40 for which he enjoyed no benefit.

In ten years he would have paid $11,424.00 for nothing.

Every business man using a typewriter that does not write in sight, but on which you have to raise the carriage to see the writing, is losing money in the same proportion.

WHICH IS BETTER—

to have that saving of money in dividends, or pay it out for wasted time?

A DESPERATE CHANCE.

Effect of the Excitement of Battle on a Wounded Man.

Amos Chapman was fifteen years in the government employ as a scout on the plains. During his life of constant peril and exposure, writes Mr. Randall Parrish in "The Great Plains," one of his most heroic deeds was performed while he was bearing dispatches for General Miles from his camp on McClellan creek to Camp Supply, Indian Territory. The dispatch party consisted of six men. Early in the morning, after a hard night's ride, they were suddenly attacked near the Washita river by a band of over a hundred Kiowa and Comanche warriors. Captain Dodge thus describes what followed:

The first intimation of the presence of Indians was a volley which wounded every man of the party. In an instant the Indians appeared on all sides.

Dismounting and abandoning their horses, the brave band of whites moved together for a hundred yards to a buffalo wallow, a shallow natural depression in the prairie.

Chapman and Dixon, being but slightly wounded, worked hard and fast to deepen this depression, and as soon as it was sufficiently deep to afford some cover it was occupied and the work continued from within.

Smith had fallen from his horse at the first fire and was supposed to be dead. Chapman said, "Now, boys, keep those infernal redskins off me, and I will run down and pick up Smith and bring him back before they can get at me."

Laying down his rifle, he sprang out of the buffalo wallow, ran with all speed to Smith, seized and attempted to shoulder him.

"I lay down," said Chapman, "and got his chest across my back and his arms around my neck and then got up with him. It was as much as I could do to stagger under him, for he couldn't help himself a bit. By the time I had got twenty or thirty yards about fifteen Indians came for me at full speed on their ponies."

The boys in the buffalo wallow opened on the Indians, and Amos ran for it.

"When I was within about twenty yards of the wallow," he continued, "a little old scoundrel whom I had fed fifty times rode almost on to me and fired. I fell, with Smith on top of me, but as I didn't feel pain I thought I had stepped in a hole."

"The Indians couldn't stay around there a minute. The boys kept it red hot. So I jumped up, picked up Smith and got safe into the wallow."

"Amos," said Dixon, "you are badly hurt."

"No, I am not," said I.

"Why, look at your leg!" And, sure enough, the leg was shot off just above the ankle joint, and I had been walking on the bone and dragging the foot behind me, and in the excitement I never knew it, nor have I ever had any pain in my leg to this day."

Not So Very Old After All.

In a little village churchyard at Bickenhill, in Warwickshire, is a tombstone upon which is inscribed the age of a dear old maiden lady who departed this life in the year 1701. Her age, as testified by the engraver's art, was 708—born before the conquest and dying under Queen Anne. Again, at Chave Priory, Worcestershire, the age of a "rude forefather" is similarly inscribed as 309. Not to harrow the reader, we may say that these portentous figures are strictly the product of the engraver's art. The monumental mason of those days was nothing if not ignorant, and his idea of writing 78 or 39 was to write 70 or 30 first and 8 or 9 afterward, meaning 70 plus 8 or 30 plus 9, etc., as the case might be.—London Graphic.

A LETTER.

Pactolus N. C. Mch. 8, '08.
H. A. White,
Greenville, N. C.

Dear Sir: Your letter containing checks from two of the companies in settlement of loss on dry kiln and lumber received.

On February 6th, my kiln was burned and the prompt adjustment made by you on February 17th, enabled me to quickly begin operating my mill again.

The handling of my loss by you was pleasing to me.

Please write another policy on my new kiln, and send it to me by return mail.

Yours truly,
(Signed) R. R. Fleming,

Note This is only one among the many letters I have from satisfied policy holders. My long experience in the business of Fire Insurance has equipped me to handle your loss satisfactorily. Moral - Get the best your money can buy.
